GEORGE FARMER, promising young ceramic artist, at work on one of the figures which have brought fame and the beginning of fortune to his local doorstep.

George Farmer's name may not strike you forcibly as you read this. That doesn't really matter. The point is his name WILL strike you forcibly within the next year or less, and you may then recall reading this article. George Farmer is a lad—a chocolate-skin lad. Allah be praised—who has touched genius and had it, in turn, touch him. What he does with an inanimate lump of clay within 45 minutes is comparable to Michelangelo working on some high-flung scaffold, holding his breath. I've seen Farmer take that clay and breathe beautiful, poetic and stunning force into it with his strong, quick-moving, sensitive fingers. I've seen him work, hunched over a littered table, totally oblivious to anyone in the room, his face a mask. Minutes later, he'll straighten, sigh perhaps, and turn to us with a quick smile. A gesture from him signifies the magnificent completion of some ceramic bit of flawless perfection, some ceramic bit like those emotional figures which the famous Hatfield Galleries (on Wilshire) actually went into ecstasy over, and would not rest til the entire collection went on exhibit in their windows.

Slated originally for a brief exhibit at Hatfield, young Farmer's work has been kept there indefinitely. And each piece has had dealers and art-lovers and collectors looking coldly at whomever is fortunate enough to beat them to their checkbooks. The art world, frankly, says its never seen anything like George Farmer's ceramics. And it hasn't, do believe me.

His creative genius manages to safely elude use of descriptive adjectives. You have to see and feel and handle and close your eyes and go, then return to them.

A profound young man of 19, George Farmer attended Los Angeles schools. He describes his education as nothing to be enthused over, that is until Glen Lukens, SC's famous ceramic instructor, agreed to take him as a pupil (a friend suggested it), if Farmer would be willing to work and earn instruction. It was just last Spring. Farmer and ceramics discovered each other. An acquaintance of Lukens owned a kiln which, to her despair, eluded her working grasp. Calling him for aid, he sent his star pupil to repair it. That began things.

Young Farmer remained with the kiln owner, getting his first feel for clay. Thus came his fierce driving urge to work only 45 minutes. If he's not satisfied, his figure is squashed without a murmur. Inspiration? Farmer told us, "I first felt as if somebody somewhere kept whispering 'This is it—this is you!' After that, all my work came easily. It still does."

The makers of famous Jane Callender pottery, in need of a general worker, hired Farmer. He mixed clay, made glazes, prepared stains, fired kilns, applied glazing. There 11 months, he was progressing rapidly when Uncle Sam tapped his shoulder. He'd felt "quite badly" if he'd been rejected, he admitted. Now stationed in Alabama with a medical detachment, Farmer had previous hopes of getting into camouflage. It's all a new world, he hoped, and army life will be a new room to explore, something to add.

Farmer is a hard worker. And a quick thinker. I watched him work with one hand, eat an apple with the other. Possessor of remarkable transitory ability, his work signifies scientific approach, a requisite for an artist these days. With true art knowing no barriers of race or creed, the Farmer career truly is just beginning.

Of the many things written and said about George Farmer, I like best of all a remark made by his distinguished teacher, Glen Lukens. "George does in clay what Van Gogh does in watercolors!" And he's right. The same fluidity of movement is caught, held and given to you, as you gaze.

Since April he has completed 25 pieces, his last figures being those of a man and an unbelievably-alive horse. You're tempted to feel the horse mane, so animate is it—as if the wind is in it! His hobby of Boy Scout Master has lent added perception to his genius, undoubtedly.

George Farmer is a standard-bearer, truly. A singer of gay, tragic, poignant, merry songs in clay. Someday he will do a symphony. Remember that name—George Farmer, ceramic artist extraordinary.

THE READER'S DIGEST AND THE OPPORTUNIST, WARREN BROWN

By LLEWELLYN RANSOM

Warren H. Brown a quiet, rather insipid, little fellow, who smarted and squirmed unnoticed while the world walked around him and his Ph. D. degree, resorted to an old trick last month to pull himself out of obscurity for a brief moment. Under the guise of director of race relations, he went to the white folks, "hankieheaded", to tell them about his people.

Brown did not go as a defender of his race, he did not take the approach of Vice President Wallace, Under Secretary Welles, Pearl Buck, Herbert Agar or Wendell Willkie, who are acting according to the dictates of time and progress. No, Mr. Brown went as a "critic". He said the things Fascist-minded whites, Klu Kluxers and the Reader's Digest wanted to hear. Had his article appeared in the Saturday Review of Literature and stopped there it would have been bad enough, for this publication reaches comparatively few readers. But that was not the case, nor do I believe it was intended to be the case. Was this a "plant" by the Reader's Digest?

Almost simultaneously with its release in Saturday Review of Literature Brown's article appeared in the Reader's Digest with its circulation of 7,000,000 and a claim of 40,000,000 readers. The world was told that, "in season and out, they (Negro newspapers) present a distorted, dishonest picture of America—and of progress, place and opportunity of the Negro in it". Again he says, the drive to embitter and unbalance him, (the Negro) which began during the depression under Communist auspices, has gained momentum with America's entrance into the war. Nowhere is that drive being so aggressively promoted as in the incendiary columns of the Negro press".

What would be more inviting to those who would control or clamp down on Negro press as an organ of protest and defense than a statement by a Negro with a Ph. D. that his papers are disloyal and a menace to national unity.

"In Fact", a four page publication "For the millions who want a Free Press", published in New York, devoted an entire issue to exposing the Digest's Fascist leanings and connections. Here are some quotes:

DeWitt Wallace, owner and publisher of the Reader's Digest told his staff he does not want Hitler defeated. Said Wallace: "But I do not want Germany smashed. What will become of the continent of Europe if Hitler is killed and Fascism completely eradicated? We need little Fascism in the United States to keep this country in order".

"In Fact" points out that the new editor of Reader's Digest is Paul Palmer, former editor of the American Mercury; that Lawrence E. Spivack was publisher of all the Fascist propaganda which Palmer bought for American Mercury and remains publisher today; that under the Spivack-Palmer regime, Lawrence Dennis, former critic of the New Deal, came out in a December issue with 'Portrait of American Fascism' which openly stamped the American Mercury as the foremost advocate of Fascism in this country; that the Digest used a part of Mrs. Lindbergh's book "The Wave of the Future", and Colonel Lindbergh's "Aviation, Georgraphy," race talk. race talk.

Labor-baiting and Negro press-baiting Pegler is one of the few columnists Digest reprints. "In Fact" said of a Westbrook Pegler column called "My Day"; Wallace picked up one of the filthiest pieces of journalism of our time. Pegler's smear of Mrs. Roosevelt, 'The Protestant' magazine editorialized: Why did Reader's Digest hasten to provide him (Pegler) with its reading public of more than 5,000,000? Why did it present this sordid spectacle of a coward insulting the wife of our Commander-in-Chief to a ready-made audience that looks for information, and not for spiritual sabotage in its columns? So much for Brown crawling into print through Reader's Digest.

Let's see how honest and intelligent Brown is. Brown tells his 40,000,000 white readers. "When a Negro runs seriously afoul of the law, the Negro press seldom stops to ask the facts. It goes to town in flaming headlines to race-rousing accounts". Now let us see if Mr. Brown's example bears him out and if not, whether we are justified in calling him irresponsible or vicious, capable of saying anything to impress white folks, guilty even of selling his people for his own personal security.

I was assigned to that case the very evening it happened. Crowds were still milling about the scenes of the crime when I started out. I spent the whole night visiting homes of people who viewed the killing from their windows, who had followed the enactment of this ruthless killing from beginning to end. Crowds witnessed this daylight tragedy. My city editor, John Clark and I walked step by step over the scene with a sincere, intelligent, rational elderly man the next morning and questioned him rigidly. I took witnesses to Councilman Powell's office the next day. I wrote the testimony down and Powell turned it over to the Police Commissioner. My paper had a detailed written report from a newspaper man who was an eye witness. I talked to the father of the victim in the presence of a group of people and I covered the mass meeting and reported it for my paper.

Let me tell you the truth of what Brown chooses to call the shooting of a demented Negro who tried to escape. No white press told it nor did any investigate it. They took a police version.

Armstrong's father called the hospital because he received word that Armstrong had been behaving queerly at work. When the ambulance and the police arrived, the boy had gone to the laundry. On his return he was told without explanation, to get into the ambulance. When he refused, the policeman attempted to force him into it. Armstrong flattened him and started to walk away. Two policemen then proceeded to club the boy to his knees. When he arose he was dazed and from this daze he never recovered.

One cop ran to call more police. Armstrong walked on in his daze, bleeding from the head while the other officer walked in the gutter, gun drawn and cocked, constantly calling him. Armstrong gripped a small knife. A crowd followed and offered to help subdue Armstrong. The police told them to keep back. They crossed a broad avenue and went the distance of a long block. He was all but exhausted. He made it across the street down which he was proceeding.

Here, where the shooting occurred, a great crowd had gathered. There were 12 or 14 policemen present, and some on horseback. Armstrong went down on his knees from more blows. As he staggered to his feet dazed and attempted to move without a sense of direction according to an eye witness, the policeman who shot him said, "I want to kill that nigger". As the boy stumbled forward, he was shot twice.

Mr. Brown might ask himself if it was necessary to shoot to death a half dead youth when there were 14 strong and armed policemen present? The Grand Jury, after one of Mr. Brown's much vaunted investigations, exonerated the shooting cop.

Just a few weeks ago in New York, a drunken detective assaulted a youth before eye-witnesses, and shot him. Before morning the police, as they have in all these cases, had concocted a tale that three Negro youths mugged a cop. Within a few hours I ran the story down and in running it down, ran into police opposition. The white press had the mugging story.

Let me point out two things. One is that these mass meetings of protest have been few although the law operates daily. Our leaders have spoken out when the injustice was so flagrant that the people might soon lose respect for them and the law if they did nothing but sit around and nurse their very superior intelligence, as Brown does.

One more point about acting before investigation. It was not the Negro press that was guilty but the white press. So much so, that an agreement was made with Negro leaders in New York City by the Police Commissioner, not to release stories to the white press before proper investigation. So bad had this practice been that any cop could tell any story and it was printed. I should think it would be far more interesting to hear what a newspaper man had to say about the Negro Press. Earl Brown is now with Time, Life, Fortune. He is a former editor of a Negro newspaper and, I believe, a Harvard man, since high scholarship means more to Warren Brown than its practical demonstration. The Council for Democracy, that sponsored the peevish attack might consider this.

About the Council. Mr. E. N. Stanton, President of the Continental Features Syndicate, had this to say: "The Negro Press should accept this challenge and teach certain white folks, they can't pick future Negro Quislings, else they might be called the Council for the Axis". Although Brown says the Negro press presents the Negro falsely, the fact is that the only way he ever learns anything about his people that is worthwhile is through the Negro press. The only way the Negro gets into the white press, and particularly the front page, is to commit a crime. The exceptions to this are found with New York's PM, occasionally the Post in New York and the Daily Worker. One of Mr. Brown's most offensive lies was the statement that the Negro papers "foster segregation by aiming to make all Negro race-conscious before they are American-conscious. Will somebody tell Brown that to fight for liberty and justice is most American? The militancy of the Negro press is its American characteristic. That is what it's all about, Mr. Brown. The fight is to enjoy full American consciousness.

By the way, I wonder if the Reader's Digest would reprint this?

GRAY CONSERVATORY PUPIL WINS PROMOTION

Sgt. Les Taylor, who was a pupil of Prof. Gray in piano and harmony for several years, was one of the two successful candidates at Fort Lewis, Wash. who passed the examinations and who will be sent to the Army school for training as band leader.

Sgt. Taylor writes that the excellent training he received at the Gray Conservatory of Music enabled him, to meet the rigid requirements of the Army tests. Since only two men were successful it proves the high standards of instruction offered at the conservatory.

Midwinter term courses are beginning now in piano, harmony, voice, violin and other instruments. Phone AD-0753.

★ BEHIND THE SCENES With Harry

By Harry Levette

STARTING OFF THE OL' KOLYUM per promise, of news of local music makers now in the armed forces, several of the boys from the crack 20 piece band of the 10th Cavalry were in town over the week end from Camp Lockett, where it looks like they will be stationed for the "duration". You see the famous 10th is just the proper outfit to watch that wild Mexican Border, where the Unholy Three, Hitler, Mussolini and Hihrohito, might sneak across for a little liht tresspassing on posted hunting grounds.

War Secret!

In fact (now don't blab this) the reason there was a grand rush by all but a few of the boys in the band to enlist and form it, was because they heard the 10th would stay here and they would be allowed wee kend leaves. Thus they are always within a couple o fhours of their wives and sweethearts. Among those in town last Saturday was Jake Porter, looking very natty in new uniform and boots; he says hello to all old friends.

Jacqueline Woods my able AN P assistant has been so busy at the post-office for the past several weeks that she has not been able to write her popular column in the Eagle, "Orchids of Merit". However, she will resume it soon. For a long time all the show folk, musicians and other readers wondered who "Anon" her pen name was, until finally she came out in the open. She staged many camp shows for the service men during the summer. FAVORITE CHORUS GIRL of the week, Louise Franklin, nick name "Boll Weevil," pretty, graceful, quiet ality, unusually modest, and a fast, clever dancer. Now in "Stormy Weather" at 20th Century Fox: recently in "Cabin in the Sky", "Thank Your Lucky Stars", "Road to Morroco," and many others. No screen chorus is considered complete without her. Also played a number of dialogue bits in dramatic features. She was nurse in all colored MDP picture "Take My Life", "Four Shall Die." "The Louise Franklin Duke is Tops", and "One Dark Night". Lives with mother, both very devoted to each other.

Overman Becomes First "Dixie" Show Casualty

First casualty of the minstrel show routines for Paramount's "Dixie", is Lynne Overman, who, during rehearsal of a tambourine number with Bing Crosby, Billy de Wolfe and Eddie Foy, jr., cut a gash in his thumb on one of the instruments and then had to proceed wearing a glove over the bandage.

Curry Lee Calmes and a number of colored dancers are taking part in the new historical musical.

YOUNG CARL YAEGER . . . who will sing "Balad For Americans" Sunday night at 6:45 at People's Independent Church of Christ.

MIDNIGHT SHOW ALSO CARDED

Harlan Leonard and his swanky orchestra will play a return engagement at the Lincoln theatre, opening Saturday and playing through Tuesday.

This is the band which dropped in on us some time ago and wowed the crowds with some of the most tantalizing music to drift this way in quite a spell.

Especially ga-ga did the listeners go over the swellegant singing and electrifying personality of Myra Taylor, featured vocalist.

As an added attraction the Lincoln will put on a midnight show Saturday and with the splendid order now prevailing in the house will pack the theatre.

MYRA TAYLOR, the personality girl, vocalist with Harlan Leonard and his orchestra, who are opening a limited engagement tomorrow at the Lincoln theatre.

BILL ROBINSON . . . new Fox film.

'CHINA GIRL,' 'OVER MY DEAD BODY' AT UNITED ARTISTS

There is a virility and rugged drive to this Oriental picture "China Girl" which is now playing at the United Artists Theatre, 933 So. Broadway, downtown Los Angeles. Hecht, who both wrote and produced the film, chose a cinch subject in form of a hardboiled American newsreel-cameraman falling for a Chinese girl in Burma, in a period before Pearl Harbor, and proceeds to pack his scenes with spies, Jap generals, Flying Tigers, and a beautiful adventuress, and bombings as a love story unfolds.

The American around whom the action revolves is enacted by George Montgomery. The story relates his experience with Japs and two Americans in their pay just before the Pearl Harbor incident.

★ STAGE REVIEW

Disappointing many who hoped they would be able to remain into a second week, the Les Hite and Ethel Waters show closed at the Orpheum Theatre last Tuesday after treating Los Angeles theatre fans to the finest entertainment they have enjoyed for a long time.

With the unit intact, it opens at the Golden Gate Theatre in San Francisco next week. Following that, unless later developments prevent. Les will return here for a much needed rest and Miss Waters will come back to Hollywood to prepare for her future picture engagements.

Hites' acting, both as leader and master of ceremonies, did an excellent job making his introductions brief, catchy and to the point. He was backed up by an excellent show, featuring Jimmy Anderson, vocalist, Paul White, comedian, and the Three Hottentots".

Ethel Waters was greeted with a storm of applause as soon as she made her appearance, the cheering accompanying every number, so that she was unable to leave the microphone until she had rendered a half dozen numbers, besides a medly of her old songs, favorites in the early days of her notable career. Her song "Cabin in the Sky" which will be heard again in MGM screen version was a big hit, as well as "Am I Blue" from Warner Bros.' "On With the Show", of 1930.

MUSICIANS LOCAL PRESENTED SCROLL BY H'WOOD CANTEEN

Singled out as one of the groups that agve earned and deserves this special honor, Muicians Local 767 received a large beautifully embossed scroll last Saturday from the Hollywood Canteen board of directors. It was framed at once and hung in the assembly room of their club house at 18th and Central avenue. The highly valued parchment reads as follows:

Whereas: You have given of your time energy and efforts in behalf of Hollywood Canteen.

Whereas: Your unselfishness and willingness to cooperate with Hollywood Canteen for the benefit of the boys in service has been a contributing factor to the success of the Hollywood Canteen,

Now therefore be it resolved: That the Hollywood Canteen heartily appreciates your faith. This resolution of appreciation is a token of their gratitude.

LENA HORNE RETURNS; STARTS TO WORK IN NEW MUSICAL

Happy to be back to the Hollywood that has been unusually generous in its gift of overnight fame, Lena Horne, beautiful screen and stage celebrity returned last week. She had hurried back from New York, where she has just completed an engagement at the Savoy-Plaza. Incidentally this is the first time that a colored girl has been the featured entertainer at this swanky nitery.

She had signed for this appearance while here this fall, when with Ethel Waters, Rochester, Rex Ingram, and the rest of the large galaxy of colored stars, she had completed the role of "Georgia Brown" in "Cabin in the Sky."

Meantime she had signed for a lead opposite Bill Robinson in "Stormy Weather", big all-colored cast musical cavalcade at 20th Century Fox so the fates permitted both contracts to be filled with out a hitch. If anything more graceful than ever, she was a picture of glamour as she walked on stage 8, at Fox studio last Thursday to report to director Andrew Stone and dance director Clarence Robinson. She and Bill Robinson (no relation) the great Bojangles, started rehearsing the cake-walk, and the "Diga-Diga-Doo" which they will feature in the early historical epi-of entertainment by Negro pursodes of "Stormy Weather" a sagavеyors of amusement.

LENA HORNE . . . World's champion female.

200 RACE MUSICIANS SIGNED FOR FOX'S 'STORMY WEATHER'

The largest number of colored musicians ever to report for work in one picture were taken to Twentieth Century-Fox studio last Wednesday, by Edward W. Bailey, persident of Musicians Local No. 767.

There were 200 in number, all giving auditions, and all photographed for the production files. The picture which is scheduled to start filming on January 21, depicting the life of Bill Robinson, and a cavalcade of Negro music and stage life, is to be the greatest all-colored cast picture ever produced in Hollywood. Lena Horne, and a large galaxy of famous colored stars will be included in the huge cast. The new future is "Stormy Weather," changed from "Thanks Pal".

Light Complexioned Players Get Chance

According to Bailey, present plans call for all the musicians signed last week to work in various sequences of the feature, although not all in one band. To carry out the history of Negro music from its birth in jungle tomtoms up to the present day, it will be necessary to divide the number up into as many units as the mammoth cavalcade requires.

Bailey further declares that he is happy to announce that there is to be no picking of types for the screen presentation of these musicians, which shows the continued trend of Hollywood toward filming Negro life just as it is. Instead of picking the musicians for comical facial characters, and all of very dark color as in the past, they will be of all complexions, just as they are in the many bands throughout the country. "This is really a break for our fair-skinned brothers of the scale" said Bailey, for usually they seldom get to play in pictures.

Still another group are to be added, being those unable to attend the first meeting.

We always have time enough, if we will but use it right.
—Goethe

L. A. MUSICIANS' ASSOCIATION MEETS SUNDAY

Globetrotters, Air Base Fives Clash

★DOWN IN FRONT
With J. CULLEN FENTRESS

Town on Edge for Globetrotters' Appearance

You can hardly blame 'em, L. A.'s basketball fans, we mean. The famed Original Harlem Globetrotters are headed this way, and prospects of seeing the 1940 world champs in action, has the town on edge. Tuesday night at Shrine auditorium, they play the power fulservice quintet, Santa Ana Air Base.

Locals are fortunate at that, however, for at the start of the season A. M. Saperstein, astute owner-coach of this dynamic group of basketeers who have endeared themselves everywhere they have appeared with their brilliant play, clever novelty stunts and comedy and superb sportsmanship, was uncertain as to whether or not to travel his aggregation.

He was left no choice in the matter, however. From all sections of the country came an avalanche of requests for games to stimulate the moral of war industry workers and help raise funds for various war fund efforts, in addition to playing various service teams at their camps. With all his this in view, Saperstein immediately set to work forming another of his wonder aggregations.

Many of '42 Stars in Service, or War Industries

This wasn't an easy task by any means, according to Saperstein's offices, as many of his stars of a year ago had either gone into the service or are working in war plants. But he succeeded in bringing together a team that promises to be in keeping with Globetrotter tradition—now at its height as a result of winning 2,163 games and losing only 162 the past 15 years, attaining the world's professional championship in the tournament held in Chicago in 1940 and holder of the world's record for attendance at a basketball game. More than 22,000 fans jammed the Chicago stadium in November of 1940 to see the Trotters, as world's titleholders, play the pick of the nation's collegiate cagers in the first game of that annual classic.

The Globetrotters of 1942-'43 are said to be rapidly approaching their predecessors in the ball-handling finesse and showmanship that have helped make the team the attraction it is. The Trotters are on team always welcomed back anywhere they have showed, and that promises to hold good for the present troupe.

Notes Picked Up from Here and There:

The column went out to Hank Armstrong's the other day to view the art work of young Calvin Bailey. Bailey has done his work well. Over the bar in Hank's playroom, Bailey has 22 caricatures of famous personalities of the race, and a figure here and there around the walls. As good as all of it is, Bailey's sports panel got our eye. Over the piano, the panel consists of 15 figures: Joe Louis, Kenny Washington, Archie Williams, Jimmy Lu-Valle, Jesse Owens, John Henry Lewis, Chalky Wright, Hank himself, Cornelius Johnson, Fritz Pollard jr., John Borican, John Woodruff, Ray Robinson, Julius Franks, and Satchell Paige. Hank's tonsils were still inflamed at the time the column was there, necessitating a postponement of his scheduled tonsillectomy . . .

Oakland welter Earl Turner made a hit with the fans in his bloody brawl with rough Cecil Hudson. They'd like to see him more often. In the opinion of many, Hudson would be a much better fighter if he forgot his brawling tactics, pitching an opponent thru the ropes, and the like . . . "Turkey" Thompson, who is in the running with singer James Rushing for the title, "Mr. Five-By-Five," was in fine fettle Tuesday eve, scoring a two-round kayo over tough Jack Marshall. Thompson never looked better, and the column saw him put Bob Pastor on the canvas six times in one round . . . A note to Sgt. Jackie Wilson: Although your Madison Square Garden debut was spoiled by Jake La Motta, who outweighed you by 16 pounds, your coast fans KNOW you are going to do OK the next time out . . . Jules Covey, the new chairman of the State Athletic commission, made a lot of friends as a commissioner under recently-retired Jerry Giesler, and in all probability will keep those and make more in his new role . . .

Byrd to Test Jack Chase at Olympic

Jackie Byrd, welterweight champion of the South, is here to train for his 10-round match next Tuesday night against Jack Chase, California's state middleweight champion, at the Olympic.

Byrd is the knockout conqueror of Reuben Shank, the Denver toughie, who not long ago beat Hurricane Henry Armstrong and Fritzie Zivic.

Jackie hails from Blytheville, Ark., and is said to be a colorful, versatile ringman.

He is training at Willie Orner's Main street gymnasium.

Less than two weeks ago Chase lifted the state middleweight title from Eddie Booker in a sizzling 15-round battle at San Francisco. Booker was a 1 to 2 choice. Eddie was regarded as the uncrowned world middleweight champion.

Chase hails from Walsenburg, Colo., but for the past year has fought in California rings. He came up the hard way in local rings. The top fighters for months side-tracked him and he had to take what he could get at the smaller clubs. But he didn't get discouraged. When he got his break he rolled right along.

CORKING SCRAPS SLATED

Chase is a sharp hitter, and plenty ringwise. He has made some great fights at the Olympic where he twice defeated Bobby Birch, Big Boy Hogue and Amado Rodriguez. At Hollywood stadium the new middleweight champion defeated Costello Cruz three times. Cruz is one of the best middleweights in the game.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy has some corking fights slated following next Tuesday's attractive battle. Jimmy McDaniels, hero of a slugging bee with Armstrong, meets Al Tribuani Feb. 2; unbeaten John Thomas has the Feb. 9 date at the Olympic. A stand-out lightweight will be signed soon to face the flashy Thomas.

ON THE TURF

By Geo. A. Ramsey

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 22.—Whirlaway, the Great, has arrived at New Orleans after Florida meetings were postponed on account of gas rationing. So now, only one race track in the entire United States is running, although Bay Meadows has applied for a 52-day Spring meeting. They already have the consent of the Army; so now it's up to the California Racing Board, and we know that they will grant the popular Wm. Kyne the dates he's asked for.

The northern track had the greatest meeting in the history of northern racing last Fall. With all the horsemen stranded in dfiferent places, something had to be done. Keeping horses and feeding them is a big expense. It costs nearly three dollars a day to feed them, and then the swipes and grooms have to be paid.

Why Southern California can't have racing the same as the upstate track we would like to know. It is impossible to get stable room at New Orleans, and we venture to say that some of the greatest horses will try and get to Bay Meadows if and when the Spring meeting opens. And we also know that larger purses and stakes will be offered by the generalissimo, Wm. Kyne.

Well, we are hearing some mighty fine rumors these days about the re-opening of the beautiful Caliente track. Some have it that they will open about Feb 14. Anyway, that's just another rumor, but we hope to announce something soon that will bring joy to Southern Californians, who love the Sport of Kings.

Well, folks, there you have it, the news of the turf for this week. So keep smiling; have a little fun. Buy more U. S. War Stamps and Bonds. Let's get thi sover now, so everybody will feel free again. By buying bonds and stamps it won't take long. Let's help them to keep on bombing Berlin, and make Japan next. Well, I'll be seeing you. Until next week, so long, GEORGE.

Royal Giants Play Service Nine Sunday

The Royal Giants, composed in the main of Negro National and American league diamond stars, meet the Los Alimitos Air Base nine Sunday, Jan. 24, at White Sox park, 41st place and Compton avenue.

The game is slated to get underway at 2:00 p. m.

The Air Base baseballers have any number of major and minor league stars in their lineup, including Cliff Dapper, and Vern Stephens, of the St. Louis Browns.

Opposing the service team are such favorites of local fans as Bill Wright, Baltimore; "Slug" Easterling, of the Homestead Grays; Nate Moreland and Bizz Mackey.

Popular prices prevail for admission.

Marcus and Zurita Mix

Matchmaker Charley MacDonald's headliner for tonight at Hollywood Legion stadium pairs Juan Zurita, high-ranking lightweight, and Eddie Marcus, of the Abe Martell stable.

Zurita campaigned as a welterweight his last time out and was promptly cooled by Hank Armstrong. Marcus gave highly regarded John Thomas a stiff argument in his last appearance.

The bout is slated for 10 rounds.

Donnie Maes tackles Billy Hale in the six-round semi-windup.

5 Spike Aces on 'All' Team

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The late John Borican, famed middle-distance runner, was one of four Negro track and field aces, to be selected on the All-America team this week, by Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union.

Borican, who represented the Asbury Park (N. J.) A. C., was selected in the 880 and 1000 yard events.

Others on the team are Barney Ewell, Penn State, 60 yards; Frank Dixon, New York university, cross-country; and Adam Berry, Southern university, high jump.

FOX, VEGA FIVES OPEN HOOP FARE TUESDAY NIGHT AT SHRINE AUD.

Los Angeles will play host to basketball royalty next Tuesday night, Jan. 26, when the great Harlem Globetrotters, winners of the world championship tournament at Chicago in 1940, come to Shrine Civic auditorium to headline a gala doubleheader. The Globetrotters will face the Santa Ana Air Base quintet.

The powerful air base team is undefeated and led by two former All-Americans, Jack Hupp, of the University of Southern California, and Laddie Gale of Oregon.

The co-feature, 20th Century-Fox versus the Vega All-Stars, pairs two crack fives of this area

The Globetrotters will be making their first Los Angeles appearance with this showing, but their exploits on the court over 16 years have preceded them here. As winners of the world tourney in 1940, they played in the first annual game against the nation's picked college all-stars at Chicago stadium in November, 1940, attracting basketball's world record crowd of 22,000.

They drew 10,000 in an army benefit game with the University of Washington last Wednesday at Seattle. The Trotters hold atendance record at Olympia arena in Detroit, Convention hall in Philadelphia, and many other spots.

GREAT SHOWMEN

It is the outstanding team in the game for showmanship, their novelty and comedy stunts, trick passing and adroit ball-handling having helped make them idols throughout the country.

The team's starting lineup averages 6 feet, 3 inches in height and includes Inman Jackson, star center from City College of New York, now in his 14th season with the Trotters; Bob Powell of Gary, Ind.; Everett Marcell, Denver, Colo.; Reece (Goose) Tatum, Eldorado, Ark.; Roscoe Julien, Wilberforce university, and Al Singleton, Chicago. Marcell and Tatum are nationally known Negro baseball players with the Birmingham Black Barons and Cincinnati Ethiopian Clowns, respectively.

Famous stage, screen, radio and sports personalities are scheduled to be present Tuesday night to watch the Globetrotters make their local debut. Among them are Clarence Muse, Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, Bill Robinson, Hattie McDaniel, Louise Beavers and Henry Armstrong.

Tickets for the doubleheader, which begins at 8:00 p. m., are on sale now at both of the local Clark hotels and Shrine auditorium.

Turner Shades Hudson; Thompson KOs Marshall

Local headline fighters batted .500 during the past week at the two major boxing arenas.

At the Hollywood Legion stadium last Friday night, Cecil Hudson, 143½, dropped a close 10-round decision to Earl Turner, 146, of Oakland.

Hudson got off to a flying start, but after being floored by the hard-punching Turner, found himself gradually losing his early advantage. Turner's margin of victory was close, however.

Both fighters were blood-smeared at the end, Hudson from the nose, mouth and left eye, and Turner from the nose and left eye.

KO'S TEXAN

"Turkey" Thompson, 205, the nation's fifth-ranking heavy, knocked out "Texas Jack" Marshall, in the second round of their scheduled "10" at the Olympic auditorium Tuesday night.

The affair was abbreviated but furnished a near-capacity house with plenty of thrills while it lasted.

The Texan, outweighed by 12 pounds, held his short, stocky foe fairly even in the first canto. In the second, however, Turkey's left jabs and hooks began working over-time. Marshall hit the canvas for a count of two in the second and a few seconds later a terrific Thompson left hook crashed against the Texan's jaw and he was counted out by referee Johnny Indrisano.

Universal Church Opens in New Location Sunday

Sunday, Jan. 24, will be a banner day in the history of the Universal Evangelical church, of which the pastor and founder is Rev. Anita L. Edmonds, young evangelist of this city.

The church opens its doors in a larger, more commodious way to the public beginning with Bible school at 9 a. m. In its new location, Pastor Edmonds and congregation feel that they will be in better position to meet the spirittual needs and demands of those desirous of a closer walk with God.

"God's Filling Station" is what this church is destined to be. Sunday, 10:50 a. m., the pastor will preach from the subject, "He Was and He Wasn't." Guest artists will include Mr. Gilbert Allen, outstanding musician, who will render Prelude in C Sharp Minor on the piano. Mr. Joseph Hughins, noted gospel singer, will sing at all services throughout the week. Sunday night, 7 p. m., the pastor's subject will be, "The Man Who Talked to Heaven from Hell!" Ushers from 33rd and Compton Holiness church will serve throughout the day.

The entire week's program, as follows, has been designed to interest one and all. Monday night, 7:00 p. m., Rev. R. B. Backers preaching and Sis. Jenkins of

YOUTH CHOIR IN KFOX BROADCAST SUNDAY

Featuring Carl Yaeger and the forty-voice Choir of Youth, the People's Independent Church presents the Ballad for Americans Sunday evening, January 24th at 6:45 P. M. in the main auditorium of the church. The program will be in two parts: the first will consist of choral renditions, solos, and instrumental selections featuring such youthful artists as: Jacqueline Freeze, Lois Williams, Floyd Miller, Willie Valentine, Veneta Hayden, Gwendolyn Beeks and Dorothya McNeil.

The Ballad ,made popular by Paul Robeson, is a popular cantata written in a semi-operatic style. These young people under the idrection of Independent's youthful minister of music, Albert McNeil, has worked several months assisted by Jacqueline Freeze and Don White, Choir of Youth pianist and organist respectively, in preparation for this occasion. Mrs. Nell Saunders, Independent Guild member, is the advisor.

Although the program will be broadcast at 7:30 p. m. over Radio Station KFOX, a large audience is anticipated. The program will begin promptly at 6:45 p. m.

Begins Sermon Series at First AME Zion

The Rev. P. M. Marshall will begin a series of sermons on the 23rd Psalms at 11:00 a. m., Sunday. The first topic of the series is "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

The minister of the First AME Zion church, Pico and Paloma, extends a cordial invitation to the general public. He feels that in these days and times men must realize that we are still shepherded by the good Shepherd, who will not suffer any of his little ones to be left comfortless.

The choir under tne direction of Mrs. Jean W. Holmes, will present special music each Sunday morning for these special worship services.

Bishop Wright Endorses Church Community Slate

The growing program of community interest and activities at the First AME Church, 801 Towne Avenue, received the enthusiastic approval of one of the great leaders of Religious life in America today when Bishop R. R. Wright, Jr., of Wilberforce University after spending several days in the community referred to it as one of the most effective and comprehensive church program's of which he knew. In his sermon last Sunday Morning, Bishop Wright speaking to a congregation of over a thousand persons urged the church to recognize the creation of Goodwill among men as its distinctive contribution to a war torn world.

The Sarah Allen Mite Missionary Society of the church, Mrs. A. W. Jordan, president, assembled a large and enthusiastic audience Sunday night for a Missionary Mass Meeting. The subject of Bishop Wright's address was "Missions, And The Role of Africa in the Present War." He urged that all liberal influences in the nation combine to create sentiment for the creation of an International Commission with adequate native African representation which at the close of the war would assist in the government and development of Africa for a place among the free peoples of the world.

The assembly was greatly surprised to learn that the African Methodist Episcopal church maintains almost the only connecting link between South Africa and the American Negro. In the last 25-years every Negro who has entered South Africa has entered through this church. There are now more than 50.000 members, 2000 preaching points, and nearly a 1000 ordained ministers there.

On Monday night leaders of the church and community gathered as guests of the Crusaders Club to hear the final message of Bishop Wright, "The Negro In The Post War World." A delicious menu was served and the assembly pleasantly entertained.

Bakersfield Honors Mt. Zion Pastor

BAKERSFIELD, (By G. A. Jackson)—Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m. Rev. H. A. Green and family were honored by loyal members and friends, celebrating their fifth year of untiring services at the Mt. Zion Baptist Church. A very interesting program was rendered by Deacon M. S. Taylor. Sister G. A. Jackson was mistress of ceremonies and gave the welcome address. Mrs. Aredora Gray and Mrs. Marybelle Lewis were the soloists. Mrs. Ruby Goosby and Mrs. Evans, gave readings. This young couple has accomplished much and have endeared themselves to the community. Many out of town guests were present including: Rev. Bird, moderator of St. John; Rev. and Mrs. Leon Giles, state workers; Rev. White of Butler Willows and Rev. Bedford of Wasco, who delivered a powerful message.

The couple were recipients of many lovely gifts and money. The affair was largely attended by local pastors and their congregations. Under the auspices of the mission sisters of Cain AME Church, Mrs. Wade spoke to the members Sunday afternoon. A short peppy program proceeded each speaker. Pastor Clinton Girly, spoke Sunday morning, on "The debt you must pay," the message was uplifting and inspiring, one member was added to the church.

All departments are progressing under Pastor Powells administration. The church was beautifully decorated, and plans are underway to entertain the board of St. John District Association, Jan. 21. Officers elected for the year are R. D. Grimes, Chairman Deacon Board; Bro. Charley Harley, President BTS; Richard Hailey, Supt. Sunday School; Sis. A. J. Smal., President Missionary Society; Lucille Adkins, clerk.

Sunday, the Soldiers chorus of Minter's Field furnished the music, Mrs. Leon Nails was guest soloist.

Mr. Wesley Muse of Hollyspring, Miss., and Mrs. Eugene Green of Los Angeles were weekend guests of relatives.

A delightful motor trip was enjoyed last Thursday evening, when Rev. and Mrs. Green, Mrs. Stella Brown, Mrs. Aredora Gray and Mrs. G. A. Jackson, motored to Tulare to participate in an anniversary program.

Hamilton Choir Program Sunday

The Choir of the Hamilton Methodist Church, E. 18th street and Naomi Ave., will present the evening program, at the service, Sunday evening, January 17th, in the inauguration of a series of special evening services, at 7:30 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Helen D. Wortham. This will be an evening you will enjoy and you are cordially invited to attend and bring your friends.

Jr. High Chorus at First AME Sunday Eve

Highlighting the interest of the church in the youth of the community, and attempting to create more effective channels of cooperation between the church and the schools, the pastor, Rev. Frederick D. Jordan announced that arrangements have been made through the kindness of the principal, Mr. Bus, to present the Glee Club of the McKinley Junior High School in a special program on this Sunday evening at 7.30. Rev. Jordan who will also deliver the sermon at the morning service will deliver a special message for this service. The Senior Choir under the direction of Mr. Jester Hairston will sing for the morning worship, "The City Called Heaven", and 'Ho Everyone That Thirsteth' Wayfarer-MacFarlane.

At 4:15 P. M. the Interdenominational Gospel Chorus will present a program for the Stewardess Board Number 3, Mrs. Hattie Milton, president.

Dr. Evans to Fill Hamilton Pulpit

Dr. Evans, pastor of the great Metropolitan Community Church, Chicago, Ill., a visitor to our city, will be the guest preacher at Hamilton Methodist church, E. 18th and Naomi Avenue, Sunday, January 31st, at the 11 a. m. hour, on the occasion of the Annual Pledge Service of the Woman's Society of Christian Service. Dr. Evans is an outstanding religious leader, a great preacher, and scholar. He has rendered tremendous service to the nation and the Kingdom of God. You should hear him, and we invite you to do so.

EARL BROWDER WRITES: ALL TOGETHER, NOW!

drawn her military mission from Washington out of dissatisfaction with the consideration given China in our war policies; nor is it a secret that the relations between London and Washington are less harmonious than for some years past; and while the Soviet Union has made no complaints, and considers her relations with Washington and London as being improved and consolidated, yet we in America should be disturbed that the President has found it necessary, for the second time, to issue special orders that our lend-lease commitments, now in arrears, shall be expedited, and that anti-Soviet incitements still emanate not only from irresponsible newspapers but also from official sources.

In our fifth favorable item, the halting of Japanese advances in the Pacific, we also can find elements of weakness and danger. We have already mentioned the unsatisfactory relations with China. There are two sides to this: not only has China reasons to feel aggrieved, but the U. S. also has questions to raise with China, for example, why are her best armies used not against the Japanese but to blockade the Eighth Route and New Fourth Armies, which conduct a continuous struggle with the Japanese? U. S. diplomacy has spoken on this question, and at least prevented a worsening of that damaging disunity within China; but the basic problem remains unsolved. Then the question of India remains in deadlock, to the deterioration of our relations with all the Eastern and colonial peoples. We have not yet taken any serious steps to rally to our side the Pacific peoples subjugated by Japan, with a basic program for their national liberation. In all these weaknesses there is implicit the danger that we will not be able, as soon as we should, to pass over to a serious offensive against the Japanese, or that we may even suffer new set-backs.

Finally, there is our remarkable achievement in war production. We should have remarkable production, for we have a remarkable economy. But here also there are dangers and weakness, the most basic of which have been clearly defined by the Tolan Committee in Congress, the remedy for which is embodied in the Tolan-Kilgore-Pepper Bills for an Office of War Mobilization which will interate under one planned direction the handling of production, manpower, prices and rationing, and technological mobilization. Shortsighted management policies which penalize workers for increased productivity are playing havoc with labor morale, equally with the jamming of the collective bargaining machinery, and the threat of anti-labor legislation. The President's Seven Point Program against inflation, presented last April, has been sabotaged by Congress on these points requiring new legislation, the new tax structure is frankly based on the principle of soak-the-poor, price control has broken down, and the clear signs of an unnecessary and damaging inflation are appearing. There are grave dangers on our production front, just as we are entering the period of our greatest military effort. All shallow optimism and complacency become most dangerous here.

Yes, it has become necessary to combat and dispel the moods of unreasoning optimism that have arisen on the basis of the favorable turn of the war. That favorable turn is an unquestionable fact, and it should serve to fortify our confidence in the ultimate victory. But the darkest days of the war, its heaviest burdens and most grievous losses, are still to come for us. The most difficult times are ahead, and we must not soften up or relax, we must not grow dilatory or careless. On the contrary, now above all we must unite our nation and gather all its forces to meet adequately the supreme test of modern war. Above all we must master the unsolved political problems of this war of survival, of national liberation.

Now what about our pessimists, the faint-hearted liberals and persons of the intellectual professions, who have become frightened at the difficulties and dangers of this period, have fallen into a panic and announce their despair to the world. Pearl Buck was their most eloquent voice when, in a recent speech, she declared that this war had ceased to be a progressive war of the United Nations, that it had degenerated into an imperialist scramble for loot on our side as well as that of the Axis, and that we must look forward to a new war after this one. Fortunately, these pessimists are a distinct minority and the masses, especially the labor movement, do not take their direction. But this pessimism is a menace to public morale, it feeds on very real problems and difficulties, and it must be energetically combatted for it helps the camp of reaction and defeatism. The calamity howlers can sometimes do much damage, even when they are a small minority.

Imagine the results if the labor movement would listen to and follow such pessimists! Surely labor suffers from enormous provocations, and has accumulated unsolved grievances. If labor should lose confidence in the United Nations, in the basic soundness of the policies of our Commander-in-Chief, in the progressive and liberation character of our war effort, then the strongest factor which holds labor back from a great national strike movement would be removed; our war production program would be disorganized, sharp class struggles would rend the national unity, and our country's contribution to victory over the Axis would be jeopardized. Hitler and his Axis partners would gain a new lease on life.

Can anyone ,can even our pessimists, believe for one moment that such a logical outcome of their pessimism when applied in practical life be of any benefit to any peoples anywhere in the world, or to labor in America? Clearly, it could have nothing but disastrous results for all.

Strikes and strike movements or threats do not help to solve any problems under the conditions of this present war of survival. But strike movements cannot be controlled by and liquidated by counsels of pessimism, but only by constructive statesmanship which channels the legitimate forces behind them into new forms of action, finding solutions to these problems without resort to open conflict. Clearly such new methods of solution are possible only because of the just and progressive character of our war effort, which generates a national unity that reaches into all classes, that mobilizes the national will to enforce these new methods.

It is not going to be easy. The recent Convention of the National Association of Manufacturers, under the inspiration of Lamont Dupont, issued a call to employers to take advantage of war conditions to smash the labor movement, to dissolve the New Deal legislation, and to defeat the policies of the President. The reactionary Republicans, in coalition with the poll-tax Southern Democrats(probably control for the moment a majority in Congress which is willing to follow the lead of the NAM. Serious problems are inherent in this situation.

It is my conviction, however, that constructive solutions can and will be found for all problems and difficulties which stand in the way of victory. The solution must be found in the understanding and patriotism of the vast majority of the people, especially the workers, roused to action and organized.

The pressure of the people, roused to express their will, will dissolve the power of the threatening reactionary coalition in Congress against labor and the President.

The American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and the Railroad Brotherhoods, can and must move to closer unity between themselves, and with the mass of working farmers and their organizations, on the program which they already hold in common, and arbitrate lesser differences among them.

Labor must seek closer collaboration with the patriotic sections of management, with the help of the government, for solution to the problems of production, for a broad development 'of Labor-Management Production Councils, and for the peaceful solution of disputes and grievances.

Labor and the people must study more profoundly the political problems of the war, and bring an informed public opinion into play to strengthen the arm of the President and the various departments and organs of the Government.

6,000 plants scattered over the country. If a transportation tie-up, a shortage of materials or anything else interrupts that flow to assembly lines, it means loss of hours or days that can never be regained.

In a single month since the Council pooled the quarter of a billion dollars' worth of material owned by the eight Southern California aircraft companies individually, there have been 1,800 borrowings of materials. That alone indicated 1,800 bottlenecks broken in one month. An inexpensive part that is relative insignificant under normal circumstances becomes a critical item of major importance if your assembly line doesn't have it at a crucial time. Once, several much-needed planes were held on the ground for lack of cotter pins. At North American factory a fleet of fighters were ready for shipment except for the motor-cooling device, which failed to arrive on time. Another plant supplied that device and the fighters caugtht the ship scheduled for a crucial sea battle area. The bombers with which Jimmy Doolittle and his crew lambasted Tokio were off the assembly line on schedule only because the No. American factory was able to borrow some special fuel-line valves from another plant.

Almost as important as the swapping of supplies is the borrowing of machine time. Since the Axis attacked this country, every Pacific Coast aircraft plant has hummed around-the-clock.

This allows little time to overhaul key machinery such as hydro presses or metal-hardening equipment. Overworked machines break down like overworked men—when you can least afford to have them out of use. At Northrup, the hydro-press that shapes the empennage parts for Flying Fortresses broke down one day. It looked like a two weeks' delay on the assembly line while the press was undergoing repair. The factory manager called other plants. North American's press was ahead of schedule, so it took oved the Northrup job for the emergency.

--Like every other industry, aircraft is facing the problem of finding substitutes, not only for aluminun alloys, rubber, fittings, and other common materials, but now substitutes for substitutes. This calls for costly studies by technical brains that are too few to go around. By dividing the work and ending duplication, the industry is making its research brains go five times as far and fast, the sooner to out fight the Axis in theair.

Recently Vega, which is building Flying Fortresses under a pool arrangement with Boeing and Douglas, ran into difficulties on bomber cowlings. Consolidated loaned several technicians, who had solved a similar problem on Liberators, to help lick the trouble.

Since the Council was born all technical data have been available on request to Midwest and Eastern aircraft builders. Eight of the latter recently organized Aircraft War Production Council, East Coast, Inc., to head off slow-downs by pooling material and brains. Similarly, the automobile builders, who supply many of the engines that power the planes we fabricate, have their own potent Automotive War Production Council, Inc., which has been fuctioning in Detroit for many months. The country over, former rivals are now team mates. Today, because of voluntary industry teamwork, all of us, from the riveter on the MacArthur shift to the executive sitting at the war production council table, can say, "Here's your air armada, Mr. President."

To the dictators, we can add, "Here's proof that free men can outproduce slaves."

Labor must be given more adequate and responsible positions in the leadership and administration of the country's tremendous war effort.

More organization and activity of the peoples provides the basic solution to all the problems of a people's war.

The common man must step forward to claim his century.

Already the common men of the world, through their united efforts, have turned the tide of war against the Axis. The most difficult times are ahead. Rejecting alike all complacency and shallow optimism and the panic of an equally shallow pessimism, labor and the people will bring the nation to victory, to the triumph of the Atlantic Charter and the United Nations.

CHANDLER OWEN WRITES: NEGROES AND THE WAR

er manufacture guns in return for the food which they consumed; because the German hospitals were needed for wounded soldiers."

These were not Negroes or persecuted Jews; they were Germans, members of what Nazis call the Herrenvolk, the master race. Eighty-five thousand Germans, old, helpless, harmless, put to death!

There, men and women of color, is your social security under Hitler.

In 1937 the United States Government started a slum clearance program. The object of this program wa sto provide decent homes for poor people. Of the 121,500 nomes now contracted for in urban districts, approximately 40,-600 are or will be occupied by Negro tenants. Thus, although Negroes are approximately one-tenth of the population, the Government is assigning to them about one-third of the new homes —because Negroes have the greater need for improved housing. What would Hitler have done?

THE DOOM OF THE CHURCHES

A high quality of religious leadership has been one of the glories of Negro culture in the United States. The names of such sainted men as Richard Allen, Lemuel Haynes, Peter Williams, and Josiah Bishop are written in permanence on the pages of American history. Alike in humble wooden churches and in the magnificent brick and stone churches of our metropolitan cities, Negro clergymen steadfastly have kept alight the lanterns of the spirit.

Today Negroes own church property valued at nearly 200 million dollars. Baptist, Methodist, Episcopalian—all other denominations—enjoy complete religious freedom. It is easy to forsee what would happen to these churches under Hitler. He has persecuted the churches in his own Germany and in occupied countries. He has murdered or jailed clergymen brave enough to defy him. In the Nazi code there is not room for both Hitler and God.

A man who denies the Negro a soul will deny him a church. And in America Hitler would have reason. The Negro churches, before Emancipation, were hotbeds of revolt, meeting places of crusaders for abolition. Today the churches are the strongest organizations of Negroes in the world, and churchmen are leaders in the fight for equality. To Hitler, then, they would be dangerous. —and, because dangerous, doomed.

There are more than 60 secret and fraternal organizations of national membership among Negroes in this country. These secret societies are divided into two classes: The old-line societies such as the Mason, Odd Fellow, Knights of Pythias, the Elks, and the benevolent secret societies such as the True Reformers, the Grand Knighted Order of Galilean Fishermen, and the Nat'l Order of Mosaic Templars. Under Hitler these fraternal organizations would be abolished as the Masonic orders were abolished in Germany—because the Negro fraternal organizations have a tradition and a history of fighting for therights of Negro manhood.

Educational opportunity has always been precious to the American Negro because it is the keystone of race progress. Today there are approximately 100 universities and colleges devoted exclusively to Negro education in this country. Our boys and girls in the North attend State universities, and such institutions as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, and Cornell. In 1916 there were 1,643 students in Negro colleges. By 1941 the number had grown to 40,000. During a 25-year period, the number of students in Negro colleges increased some 2,400 percent.

WHAT HITLER SAYS ABOUT US

Hitler has made himself very clear on what he thinks about education for the Negro. In his book Mein Kampf, he asys this:

"From time to time it is demonstrated to the German petty bourgeois in illustrated periodicals that for the first time here or there a Negro has become a lawyer, teacher, even clergyman, or even a leading opera tenor or something of that kind . . . It does not dawn upon this depraved bourgeois world that here one has actually to do with a sin against all reason; that it is a criminal absurdity to train a born half-ape until one believes a lawyer has been made of him, while millions of members of the highest culture race have to remain in entirely unworthy positions; that it is a sin against the will of the Eternal Creator to let hundreds of thousands of His most talented beings degenerate in the proletarian swamp of today, while Hottentots and Zulu Kafirs are trained for intellectual vocations.

"For it is training exactly as that of a poodle, and not a scientific 'education.' The same trouble and care, applied to intelligent races, would fit each individual a thousand times better for the same achievements."

That's what Hitler thinks.

A ruler who regards Negro lawyers as born half-apes, trained like poodles, would drive from the bench such Negro judges as Charles E. Toney and James S. Watson of the New York Municipal Court, Herman E. Moore of the United States District Court in the Virgin Islands, Justice Myles Paige of the Court of Special Sessions in Brooklyn, Justice Jane Bolin, America's only colored woman judge, who presides over the Domestic Relations Court in New York. He would drive from the bench Judge Edward Henry of the Philadelphia Municipal Court and Judge Armand Scott of the District of Columbia Municipal Court. He would suppress the Law School at Howard University over which Dean William H. Hastie, now Civilian Aide to the Secretary of War, has presided so ably.

In the field of music and art the Negro would fare no better. In Norway the Nazi oppressors have made it a crime to listen to the phonograph records of Paul Robeson and Marian Anderson, these great artists of international fame. In 1933 when Hitler came to power there were Negro orchestras in some of the smart Berlin cafes: they were banned at once. Hitler hates all music that mirrors the aspirations of free people. In Poland the playing of Polish music is forbidden, and in America Negro musicians and Negro music would be silenced. The universally beloved old spirituals, the compositions of Still, Burleigh, Dett, Handy, and Boatner, the voices of Roland Hayes and Dorothy Maynor, the gay rhythms of Ellington, Calloway, Waller, Count Basie, the clatter of Bill Robinson's dancing feet would be heard no more.

The drawings and paintings of E. Simms Campbell, Aaron Douglas, Sam Brown, Jacob Lawrence, Hale Woodruff; the sculpture of Richmond Barthe and Sargent Johnson would be forbidden; the books of all Negro writers from Phyllis Wheatley to Richard Wright would be forbidden and burned.

Unity against America's foreign foes does not mean that Negroes must forego legitimate protest against discrimination in industry or the long struggle for political equality. This is known as the right of peaceful petition. Many people take for granted the right of peaceful petition. Hitler wouldn't take it for granted. President Roosevelt invited A. Philip Randolph and Walter White to the White House to discuss with him in person injustices to Negroes in war industry and Government employment. Can you imagine Hitler doing that" PresInRedio the President Roosevelt created the Committee on Fair Employment Practice to enforce his order that no worker be barred from war industry because of race, creed, color, or national origin. Can you imagine Hitler doing that?

THE END OF OUR NEWSPAPERS

Under Hitler the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People would be outlawed. The Urban League would become a criminal organization. The doors of 300 newspapers and periodicals would be locked the day the Nazis took over. Hitler says half-apes need no newspapers.

Hitler's record on the free press is consistent. In Belgium, Holland, Poland, Norway, Czechoslovakia the free press was abolished. Hundreds of journalists in occupied countries were imprisoned by the Gestapo, the German secret police.

So it does not take a fortune-teller to call the roll of the Negro journalists who would feel Hitler's lash. The Murphy brothers of the Baltimore Afro-American, P. B. Young of the Norfolk Journal and Guide, Ira Lewis, Mrs. Robert L. Vann, P. L. Prattis, George S. Schuyler and J. A. Rogers of the Pittsburgh Courier; Mrs. R. S. Abbott, John Sengstacke, and Lucius Harper of the Chicago Defender: Chester Franklin of the Kansas City Call: Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass of the California Eagle: E. Washington Rhodes of the Philadelphia Tribune: P. M. H. Savory and C. B. Powell of the New York Amsterdam Star-News: the Rev. A. Clayton Powell, editor of the People's Voice: Roy Wilkins of the Crisis —all these would be immediate candidates for the solitary cell or the concentration camp.

Germany in this war has drawn the color line even in the prison camps. Hans Habe, a refugee Hungarian who fought for France and was captured by the Germans, told the story of his experiences in an American magazine after escaping from his jailers. He was quartered at Dieuze along with a large detachment of captured French Negro troops.

"We arrived at the camp in Dieuze," Habe wrote in The Nation. "Here, as an all German prison camps for Negroes were immediately isolated. Barbed wire was strung around their barracks. No white man was allowed to converse with a black. Our own shelters were miserable enough; those of the Negroes, crowded into a narrow space, were much worse. Our food, though insufficient, was princely in comparison with that given to the Negroes, who practically starved. Hundreds of them fell sick, but were not cared for."

Under Nazi rule there have been thousands of executions and imprisonments in unspeakable jails and concentration camps. More than 1,700,000 Poles have been transported to Germany to work at forced labor. At least 1,260,000 French war prisoners have been made actual slaves in Germany, while the able-bodied people of France have been compelled to labor long hours in mines and munitions plants to feed the German war machine.

Julius Streicher, editor of Der Sturmer, Hitler's anti-Semitic and anti-Negro newspaper, says: "The emancipation of the Jews and the liberation of the black slaves are the two crimes of civilization committeed by the plutocrats in the last few centuries." But white or black, conquered people become slaves under Hitler.

WE CAN BE A MIGHTY FORCE

Some Americans say that it makes no difference who wins the war. Dorie Miller doesn't say that. Most of the 13,000,000 loyal Negro citizens know that America is fighting not only to live, but to live more fully. Because we have known the helplessness of bondage, we can be a mighty force in this nation's fight for freedom.

This war, said Vice-President Wallace in his great speech of May 8, 1942, is not a war for the preservation of outmoded way of living but a crusade for the common man.

"Through the leaders of the Nazi revolution", said the Vice President, "Satan now is trying to lead the common man of the whole world back into slavery slavery and darkness. So also is the doctrine that one race or one class is by heredity superior and that all other races or classes are supposed to be slaves."

But darkness shall not prevail. "The people," said Mr. Wallace, "are on the march toward ever fuller freedom than the most fortunate peoples of the earth have hitherto enjoyed . . . I say that the century on which we are entering—the century which will come out of this war—can be and must be the century of the common man . . . The people's revolution is on the march, and the devil and all his angels cannot prevail against it."

Recently the Christian Review, the religious journal edited by the Rev. L. M. Smith in Philadelphia, recalled the triumphs of America's Negro athletes at the Olympic Games and the insults that were heaped upon them by the German propaganda machine.

"Hitler," the editorial said prophetically, "will see some new "Black Auxiliaries." Negroes have been trained in the rudiments and sciences of war and it is likely that some Negroes will see action in Berlin.

. . . These Negroes will be wearing the insignia of the United States and will conduct themselves as champions. The Negro of America stands ready to bring new victories to his native land. And he will do it despite all the propaganda of the German and Japanese machines."

We already know something about champions. One cool summer night in 1938, under the lights of the Yankee Stadium, a champion knocked out the German champion in one round. Sergeant Joe Louis is now a champion in an army of champions.

Joe Louis doesn't talk much but he talks truly. He talks to 13,000,000 Negro American citizens, for all American citizens when he says:

"We're going to do our part and we'll win 'cause we're on God's side."

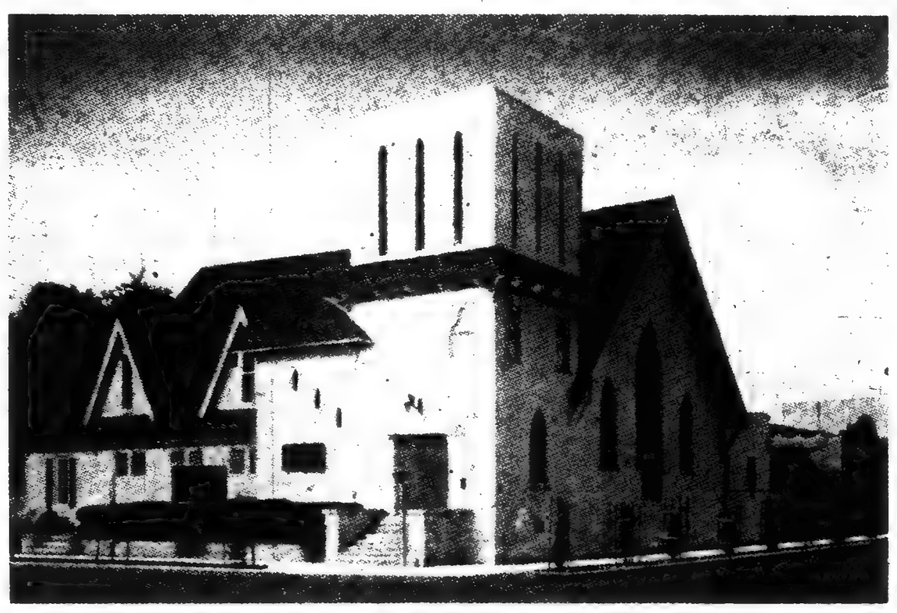
Greater St. Paul Baptist Church

At 21st and Naomi Ave.



OUR AIM:

$40,000.00 in the year 1943; with what we have on hand, we're ready to build our Temple outright.

OUR OBJECT:

Is of a three-fold nature.

(a) to peopleize;
(b) to financialize;
(c) to evangelize.

CHURCH

OUR MOTTO:

"I've opened my mouth unto the Lord and I cannot go back."

OUR SLOGAN:

Pressing through to decisive victory irrespective to opposition.

OUR THEME SONG:

"Pressing On."

In our 40,000 dollar pledge drive for 1943, ending February 7, 1944, we are asking the citizens of Los Angeles and the members of the St. Paul Church to pledge every dollar possible for our civic auditorium to be built in 1944, if the war closes. All that is given through the Sunday School, BTU, and otherwise, will be summed up and added to the total given by the donors whose names, with the amount, will be photographed and displayed to the public. We are certain that there are white friends and churches who will pledge $100 or more.

THE ST. PAUL BAPTIST CHURCH IS FORCED TO ENLARGE HER BORDERS, STRENGTHEN HER STAKES, AND LENGTHEN HER CORDS TO ACCOMMODATE THE GREAT THRONGS OF PEOPLE WHO ARE NOW CROWDING INTO HER SERVICES.

OUR PURPOSE:

A new building that will be known as St. Paul Baptist Temple, which is to be large enough to accommodate great public gatherings; the colored growth of the city demands another large public auditorium, therefore, the general public is to have a hand in the construction of this mammoth edifice.

OUR PLAN:

Two distinct churches with two dynamic preachers, with two spirit-filled choirs, and a full staff of officers for each church. One church is known as the St. Paul Bethany Chapel Baptist Church, the other, St. Paul Olive Temple Baptist Church. These churches are organized independent of each other and will carry on their individual worship with a view of raising $20,000.00 each within twelve months.

We deeply appreciate the kind words of encouragement from the editor, Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass. Our church regards her very highly for her Christian statesmanship and journalistic ability.

PASTOR S. A. WILLIAMS, Chief-in-Command.

Race Track GOSSIP

By Jay Gould

The glamour girls this week are Lucile Perkins, Betty Cade and Hilda Brown of 'Frisco.

The best dressed women this week are Mrs. Willie Bea McCovey, Miss Lurette Scott and Rebecca Roberts.

You just can't stop people from gambling if the hand books, races and different games don't get the boobs, the girls will.

Hot Springs will get a break as gas won't bother the race fans as they all walk to the track anyway.

Bay Meadows' Bill Kyne and Kid North are planning on February 22nd, George Washington's birthday for the opening day.

Don Roby left his home in Houston, Texas, for 'Frisco via Chicago and Detroit with a 15-Gee bank roll so the 'Frisco cheaters, burglars, sharks, safe blowers and sure-thing men are lined up waiting his arrival.

Dick Ruffin from Seattle who is a rich man, spent and gave away 25 hundred dollars in several days; Dick paid ten bucks for a shave.

Tommy Glass now one of the best money makers on the race tracks in town, tossing away money by the hundreds. Mr. Glass is married to Flo Washington, the entertainer.

J. B. Brown who skipped from Los Angeles with a thousand dollars has gone to the cleaners against fights, the ivorys and red and blue poker chips.

Tex Allen from up the State, you had better slow down as money is no object to you when high beeause you spend all you can spend and then begin giving it away.

George Hyson, why don't you get on time and keep your boots laced up as the party you was with t'other night is a desperado and everybody is afraid of her.

Frank Winbon and L. D. Benton still playing hard on each side of the bridge.

Cleo Foster you must have a buckeye, rabbit foot or clover leaf to get out of the Army--however, you are out.

Hat's off to Calvin Vincent for being a number one money getter with no strings tied to it, when he picks up on it.

Cal Williams, bartender at Town Club, what do you tell so many pretties, lovelies and cuties as they seem to be a pushover for you.

Vernon Love, glad to see you with so many ten dollar bills—why get soused every night.

Skaggs just returned from Australia with a plenty.

Don Jones and wife still on big time.

Jumbo Pete Rector and Big Bill are laying low and sawing wood with plenty of cash.

Joe Miller, B. Hill, Cactus and Mr. Louisiana plays all games on tables and the races.

Sonny Alexander and Stony was playing in 'Frisco. Sonny is still losing and winning that big money.

Tittie Brown, Yvonne and Robert Monroe, Jimmie Nichols was seen playing the Clubs in 'Frisco. Titie Brown seen with plenty of money, leaving for Seattle.

Pretty Wilma Chevalier, Los Angeles show girl, has captured herself a husband, Simon Wyatt of Oakland, Lovable pair.

Rosa Foster is tenderly waiting for tall, handsome Maurice McGovack, who is on way from Australia. Rosa has gone overboard for him.

We see Ten Jernigan, jr., the internationally known son of Ted, who we see nightly behind (and in front) of the bar at Slim Jenkins cocktail lounge in Oakland, is visiting the gay spots of 'Frisco again, after a successful invasion of the East (and he had the nerve to say it's cold here).

Mrs. Marie Canady entertained a bunch with a swell egg nog party t'other day at her downtown residence.

Saw Clarence McIntosh, Mrs. Essie Lee Jett, Mrs. Thelma Griffin having a grand time enjoying Ben Watson's band at the Club Alabam.

Miss Elvira Reed of Detroit, Mich., a newcomer to 'Frisco was seen in and out of the night spots with Miss Joyce Collins.

Jack Venerable and wife doing the spots after the holidays, Jack is on the wagon for keeps—do, tell!

Hattie Noel, Ford Jones and Harris on one of the outstanding Army Shows around 'Frisco-Oakland way.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gardner was as usual at the rinside. Roy bet a gob on the winner. Mrs. Gardander, Kansas is visiting Stockton. Uncle Jim is 89 years old and ner, Uncle Jim Herring of Alexlikes the chicks—more power, Uncle Jim.

Mrs. Barney McNeal's sister is still in town having a grand time. She is from Chico, Calif.

Mrs. Amanda Lewis and her daughter Mable were enjoying themselves at Jack's, also Capt. William B. Stawwell and Pvt. George Martin. What a swell time was had by all.

Mrs. Sadie Malcolm, sister of Wilma Chevalier, is still visiting in Berkeley, Calif.

Eugene O. Herman, and Cornell Manaw were playing awfully hard at Jack's Tavern. Herman is now a leaderman at Richmond Shipyard No. 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gaines playing the out of town races and all games for high stakes. They are receiving their mail at 2586 Sutter street, San Francisco, Calif.

Mrs. Carrie Newton of 1548 Jones Street gave a swell party t'other day. Mrs. Donnie Lawson, Mrs. Almeter King, Mrs. Martha Washington and Mr. Mack McClain of Pittsburg, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hight and Mrs. Anna Johnson of Berkeley, and Mrs. Lara Mason, Mrs. Pauline Sanders, Mrs. Day, Mrs. Goldie Pedro, Mrs. Lettie Sesson, Mrs. Clara Lightbourn and Mr. Curley Jackson of Oakland were all there.

Lillian Banks has shifted from coca cola to choice stronger drinks.

Mr. H. Brown and Miss E. Johnson have walked down the sacred aisle and are now honeymooning.

Lottie Coffman still shopping for baby clothes.

Steve Brody and Wolfang are now booking at the Rossmore Hotel in Los Angeles, with 20 grand bankroll.

Shelby Ward from down Texas way came up to Stockton to spend a day with Adela Ward and up to 'Frisco to see a friend Dolores Taylor. Shelby had plenty of banannas.

Dave Miffin, Rich Brody of the Bay Meadows Smoke Shop, and Tite Montgomery, big time sports puts all out of town Big Shots in bad shape before they leave.

John Bogan and Dickie Boy Lewis sure has taken the boys to the cleaners at Bay Meadows.

Miss Ollie Dawson of Kirkland Hotel dining room was seen in and out of night spots the other night. I wonder who gave her the beautiful orchids?

Buddy Montgomery and little old glamorous Billie Peeples had a cocktail the other evening and that was all, playing very lightly.

Ben Watson's, all star band at the Alabam late spot, plays all the late tunes including "If You're Going to Fall in Love With Anyone, Why Don't You Fall in Love With Me".

Pat Patterson who went overboard about a Los Angeles big shot is still talking about taking another trip to L. A.

Berry Clinton, if you don't slow down, I am warning you to take it easy or you may get a Jack Chase pop on the jaw by your wife.

Bailey Heads San Diego's NAACP

SAN DIEGO, (By E. B. Wesley)—Rev. L. H. Owens, pastor of Bethel AME church is spending a few days in Los Angeles on business.

The report of the work of the local branch of the NAACP was very gratifying, with Mr. E. W. Anderson business man and civic leader. More new members have been added to the roll and its finances have been increased more than in the twenty-three years of its organization, with five hundred dollars in the bank. At the meeting on Jan. 11, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dr. E. A. Baily, pres.; Mr. C. D. Jolly, vice-pres.; Mr. Walter McDonald, sec'y; Miss Clara Collins, treas.

The news of the brilliant going away reception tendered Mrs. Exie Lee Hampton at the Clay St. YWCA Center Sunday afternoon will be reported in full in next week's San Diego column.

The palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Welton on So. 30th St., was the setting of a very beautiful tea sponsored by the usher board of the Logan Chapel AME Zion church, Sunday afternoon. The tea was well attended by large groups from 3 till 7:30 in the evening. Dainty sandwiches, luscious cakes, candy, nuts, tea and punch were served. Mrs. Effie Ray, attractively attired in a sequin-lit, splash-print afternoon gown, poured tea, while punch was being served by Mrs. Viola Franks, dainty attired in a baby pink faille' afternoon gown. The ushers with their accustomed genial manner accorded every one a pleasant afternoon.

Second AME Choir Plans Fete

Thursday evening, Jan, 28, the Junior Choir of the Second A. M. E. Church, 43rd Place and San Pedro are having their First Anniversary. Mrs. Faye Allen of the Board of Education, and Presiding Elder Frank A. Harris of the AME Church of the Fifth District, will present the certificates. The public is cordially invited. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Woods, director and advisor, Emma Johnson, secretary. Rev. J. B. Isaacs, pastor.

Reed Lauded for Broadcasts

Dr. Granville W. Reed, better known to the radio world as Dean Reed, has won for himself and the race which he represents, distinction and honor during the two months that he has been appearing over radio station KGFJ, indicated by the number of congratulatory letters and other expressions received by him and his staff both from individuals, churches and pastors.

Arrival of Voice Recorder, Playback Highlights Week at DeFremery USO

Monday night was the highlight of the week at the DeFremery USO Club. It all centered around the new voice recorder and playback which arrived from the East. The voices of the service men are recorded on small discs suitable for mailing, and are mailed directly by the club to mothers, sweethearts, friends and others.

The fellows got a great kick when hearing their own voices. Most of the voice letters started off with, "Hello Mom! This is Arthur. Gee, I'm nervous and I can hardly talk to this thing. I hope you are well. The weather out here is fine and maybe after the war I'm going to get married and buy a little home and live out here. Then I can bring you here too. Say Mom, I know you have been praying for me, 'cause I couldn't get along as well as I have without someone praying for me. Well Mom, tell all the guys hello for me and tell them to hold everything until I can get back.

"Bye Mom--here's a kiss—smack, smack".

Well, that's just about how they went. Some fellows sang songs and some played the piano. The reproductions were almost perfect.

"You know," said one of the fellows, "this thing brings a lump in your throat. Just imagine Mom hearing her own son's voice. I can see her now playing it over and over again, and then calling in all the neighbors to hear it. This is about the nicest thing the USO could have done for us fellows."

Mrs. Mary E. Hill, Associate Directress, and Mrs. Marcella Ford, conducted several sightseeing trips throughout the East bay Area during the week. They are very popular, particularly to the men from distant places. Most of them enjoyed the sights from the Campanile at the University of California. Merritt Lake came next and, believe it or not, the sailors seemed to enjoy it most. At the Chapel of the Chimes Mayor Lawrence Moore, Mayor of Piedmont addressed the fellows explaining the relics in the chapel including music 350 years old and rare Bible manuscripts. Among the fellows, six states were represented. The group returned after luncheon at Jewels.

Mrs. Ethel Everett and Mrs. Hill, Associate Directress, visited thirty patients at Lettermann General Hospital. Arrangements were made for weekly USO visits through Mrs. Ruley, Red Cross Field Secretary.

Mrs. Jernigan and a group of volunteers will hold open house for the servicemen's wives on Sunday afternoon.

The Candy Class held their regular weekly session of candy making on Wednesday night, under the able direction of Mrs. Henriques. Taffy pulls, peppermint sticks, and molasses chews were made and a very enjoyable evening was spent. This class is fast becoming one of the most popular clubs meeting at the U. S. O.

On Sunday evening, January 17, the club will have its regular monthly birthday party in celebration of the birthdays of all servicemen and hostesses born in the month of January. Judging from the popularity and success of the last birthday party held at the club, it augurs to be one of the leading affairs given by the USO. Music and refreshments will be in evidence.

The following is a weekly schedule of events at the USO: Monday and Thursday, Recordings will be made for servicemen; Tuesday, the Chaperones will meet; Wednesday, Candy Class, under the direction of Mrs. Henriques; Thursday, Canteen Committee Buffett Snacks; Friday, Chaperones give dance for junior Hostesses; Saturday, there will be sightseeing trips for the Servicemen. Each week, a volunteer group of hostesses will visit the hospital and carry cigarettes, candy, magazines, etc., to the patients. Miss Florence Akins has also volunteered to set aside one night each week for craft work.

49TH STREET P-TA HOLDS MEET; HEARS SCHOOL OFFICIAL

Reverend Cleaves led the 49th Street P-T A meeting January 14 in prayer which is the appropriate thing for a time like this. The president, Mrs. Mildred Hawkins, thanked him on behalf of the 49th Street P-T A and welcomed him back again.

Mr. Robert H. Lane, an assistant superintendent of schools, gave a talk that interested the parents very much. He concluded by answering questions, asked by the parents, in "Mr. Anthony of the Good Will Hour" style.

Entertainment was furnished by the pupils from Mrs. Spencer's and Miss Edwards' class rooms.

The "March of Dimes" collection was taken by Mrs. Strather.

Miss Pauline Mainwaring's A-1 Class won the room prize for the third consecutive time. Her class was represented by the presence of the largest number of parents A large ovation was given her and the parents.

At the close of the program everybody felt that 49th Street P-TA meetings are well worth attending.

WASHINGTON, D. C. SCHOOL TEACHER IS L. A. VISITOR

Mrs. Bertha Howard Collins of Washington, D. C. flew here from Ft. Hauchuca where she has been visiting her son Lt. Wm. Collins, after visiting a week with Mrs. Zora Williams of South Van Ness, she will be the guest of her cousin, Dr. and Mrs. A. Newman in Berkeley, Calif. for a few days and then return to D. C. to resume her teaching in the public schools.

Chronic ill humor, is chiefly a bad habit, and a sort of self-indulgence. It is usually productive of unpopularity, misfortune and unhappiness.

If you wish to be successful and prosperous, try being cheerful, happy and gay. Not necessarily grinning all of the time, but carry a pleasant attitude within, and your dreams will materialize more quickly; certainly more smoothly.

With what is happening around the universe, it seems more than ever essential that we should avoid spreading our petty feelings of irritability and depression.

Mrs. L. W.—Dear Prof. Herman: I want you to tell your many friends that through your kind and generous advice I have found peace and happiness. And I am also using your Famous Hindu Charm Bag, and since I started using it, my salary has advanced from 12 dollars a week to 20. To Prof. Herman I owe a life-time of gratitude and thanks.

A. P.—Who had my watch?

Ans.—Giving your question careful thought and consideration I find that the person that found it was honest enough to return it. The reason for the broken stem is when you dropped it, the stem and crystal were shattered. Don't blame anyone for this damage, as it happened when the watch dropped from your arm.

T. C.—Will I meet a nice boy who will love me for what I am and no more?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that you have met several fellows that you liked but due to their attitude you have become discouraged. If you demand respect you can get it, and if a fellow finds a nice girl and appreciates her, he wont try to change her. You will find someone soon that will make you very happy.

S.M.C.—Has he married someone else?

Ans.—Concentrating upon your question, I find that your childhood sweetheart is still single I suggest that you write to him as he still thinks a great deal of you and would like to hear from you.

H. H.—Dear Sir: It seems that since I have been writing to you and getting your opinion on my problems they are not near so large and everything is working out much better. Thanks for everything you have done for me.

R. G.—What should I do about the situation now existing between me and this fellow?

Ans. —Your lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate your finding true love and happiness with someone else. The best way to avoid difficulties is to tell this fellow just how you feel, before the friendship goes on too long.

C. M.—Will I every marry the person I love?

Ans.—Your Zodiacal sign indicates marriage and it will in all probability be to the person you now love. If you write in for a private reply, I will be more than glad to help you.

F. W.—Will my luck ever change?

Ans. — My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals your luck improving this year and your being able to accomplish your utmost desires and wishes.

Mrs. I. O.—Shall we leave here this summer like we plan?

Ans.—It appears to me that you will be more successful when you make this change, and I recommend your leaving there at your earliest opportunity.

Popular Young Calship Worker Pneumonia Victim

John Hardy, a welder at the California Shipbuilding yards, who died after a brief illness on Jan. 12, was buried Monday in the Lincoln Memorial cemetery, following services in the Ivory Chapel of The People's Funeral Home at noon, the Rev. Karl Downs officiating.

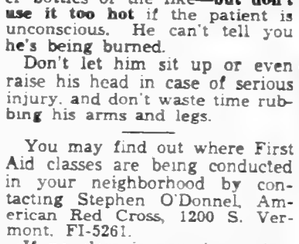
Hardy passed away at his home, 1143 E. 40th place, of pneumonia. His death came as a deep shock to his many friends here, especially those from Dallas, Texas, where his family now lives.

The deceased had lived in this city for six years. In 1937 he married Miss Rosa Moore, of a pioneer Pasadena family. Three years ago a daughter, Natasha, was born to the young couple.

WAS "FAMILY MAN"

A member of the Boll Street Methodist church of Dallas, Hardy joined Scott's Methodist chapel of Pasadena when he came to this section. He was a diligent church worker. Hardy was known as a "family man" and it is thought that his insistence upon doing so much work improving his home in addition to his night work at the shipyards reduced his resistence to the pneumonia attack.

Hardy was born in Monroe, La. He attended high school at Mt. Rose, Ark. and college at Pine Bluff. He then went to Dallas, Texas, where he worked as an automobile mechanic.



Survivors, in addition to his wife and child, are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hardy, Dallas, mtoher and father; D. Y. and Thomas jr., Hardy, Dallas, brothers; and Mrs. Katherine Williams and Mrs. Betty Johnson, Dallas, sisters.

Grazette, L. A. Man, Made Corporal

Osmond Grazette, husband of Mrs. Erma Grazette, 898 E. 53rd St., Los Angeles, has been promoted to the rank of Corporal, it was announced recently from Hamilton Field, Northern California air base.

Grazette enlisted in the Army September 28, 1942, at Los Angeles. He became a member of the Army Air Corps October 4, 1942, at Hammer Field, Fresno.

He attended high school in Cleveland, Ohio. He was a member of the United States Navy from 1919 to 1923. Before entering the Army, Grazette was a civil service worker in the Hall of Records, Los Angeles. He is a member of the Elks Club in Los Angeles.

(This is the 8th of a series of "What Not to Do Until the Doctor Comes." Approved by the American Red Cross, we are printing them in the belief that untrained aid can be terribly dangerous. For standard courses in first aid apply to your Red Cross chapter.—Ed.)

Shock, a serious condition that follows most injuries, can cause death. It can usually be prevented by keeping the victim warm—so, no matter what his injury (unless it's sunstroke) don't let him get cold.

If the patient is bleeding, not breathing or being burned, control of those conditions is the first order of business. Control of shock is second. In all other cases, control of shock comes first.

While you're waiting for the doctor, keep the patient warm. Cover him with coats or robes or blankets or even newspaper if you have nothing better. Don't forget to put layers under him, too.

Apply external heat—hot water bottles or the like—but don't use it too hot if the patient is unconscious. He can't tell you he's being burned.

Don't let him sit up or even raise his head in case of serious injury, and don't waste time rubbing his arms and legs.

You may find out where First Aid classes are being conducted in your neighborhood by contacting Stephen O'Donnel, American Red Cross, 1200 S. Vermont, FI-5261.

If no class is now in session, an adequate supply of instructors is available to teach new classes.

Jeff Students Attend Press Ass'n Breakfast

Pearl Dong, Rena Marlow, Harry Cage, Allen Estes, Kenneth Howard, Adrian Shields, and James Whitfield, students of Jefferson high school accompanied by Mrs. Lillian Graeber, attended the Los Angeles High School Press Association breakfast at Clifton's cafeteria on Saturday, January 16.

Pearl Dong was awarded a certificate of merit which is presented to graduating seniors who have done outstanding work in journalism. She is the only graduate at Jefferson high school who meets the requirements this semester.

L. A. URBAN LEAGUE FORMS "LEADERSHIP ROUND TABLE"

In an effort to bring the various leaders who are serving in official capacity together for periodic discussion of their mutual problems, a Council has been formed at the Los Angeles Urban League which is to be known as "The Leadership Round Table." It will meet bimonthly at the offices of the Urban League. It will use the Round Table techniques as outlined by Dr. Hjalmar Rutzebeck. An actual round table built on the dimensions suggested by Dr. Rutzebeck will be used. This device permits all the members to face each other at all times. The Round Table group functions on the commitment plan and does not appoint committees. It is a functional laboratory bringing together information for the benefit of the entire group. Plans and policies agreed upon are accepted impersonally, and referred to as "The Table" did, concurred, or suggested any such action or plans. One meeting of the month will be open for persons in the community to present their specific problems or projects for consideration and study.

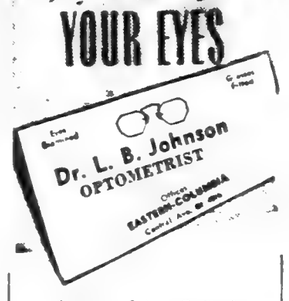
ACNE PIMPLES RUIN GOOD TIMES



. . . picking at them can cause you endless embarrassment. When you follow such annoying, irritating actions, you feel as though being with people is the last thing you want to do in this world. Black and White Ointment, with its germicidal action, promptly eases the soreness and itching of those externally caused, bothersome acne pimples. Easily applied as a dressing, its aid to Nature's active healing comes from a specially added antiseptic ingredient. Black and White Ointment kills often-present germs; itching is relieved, scratching is discouraged. It also relieves itching, burning soreness of eczema externally caused. Use only as directed. Black and White Ointment, 10c, large economical sizes 25c. 50c.

For daily skin cleansing use mild, fragrant Black and White Skin Soap, 10c and 25c everywhere.

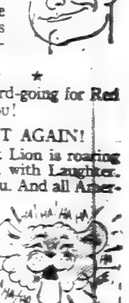
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S The LION'S ROAR

Published in this space every week — The greatest star of this season!



If it's Laughter that helps the world go around in ordinary times, it's Laughter that you need more of in these extraordinary days.

Leo promises that you will double-up with Merriment and Mirth when you see either one or both of the following pictures! They're laugh-loaded.

ANDY HARDY'S DOUBLE LIFE, with Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—Also Ann Rutherford and Sara Haden.

Andy was always good for plenty of Laughter when he led a single life. In "the double life", he's twice as funny!

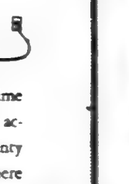
Watch out for Andy's new mermaid heart-throb! She's glamorous swimming champ Esther Williams.

★ ★ ★ ★



While you're still weak with Laughter, MGM suggests WHISTLING IN DIXIE with Red Skelton as head-whistler. And Ann Rutherford, George Bancroft, Guy Kibbee, Diana Lewis as assistant-whistlers! Red continues his role as "The Fox", introduced in Whistling in the Dark! Only it gets blacker for him in Whistling in Dixie. And funnier for you!

★ ★ ★ ★

Wheeee . . . but it's funny when Red gets scared stiff!

Wheeee . . . but it's a joke when Red gets cornered!

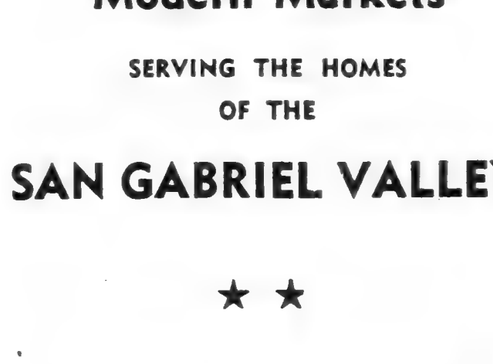
Wheeee . . . but it's a panic when he discovers the hidden gold and turns the tables on his tormenters!



★ ★ ★ ★

Wheeee . . . but it's hard-going for Red and funny-going for you!

RED'S DOOD IT AGAIN!

And so has Leo! That Lion is roaring for more movies filled with Laughter. Prescribes them for you. And all Americans. Says Taking Time Out for Laughter is Good For Everyone!

—Leo
the Laughing Lion!

GOOD LIGHT SAVES TIME ● Giving more time these days to Red Cross, U. S. O. and other patriotic activities means there is less time for housework. Plenty of light in your home, particularly in the rooms where you use your eyes the most, is a big help in saving time and making work easier. Adequate light helps so much and costs so little that you cannot afford to be without it.

LARY ABOUT-FACE IS HAILED; MEETS FRUITFUL

BULLETIN

Twenty-five Negro workers of the Los Angeles Railway company have already been upgraded from menial jobs to mechanical and other departments. All applicants for motorman, conductor, conductorette, and mechanical jobs with LARY must register at the U. S. Employment Service, 11th and Flower streets. NOWHERE ELSE!

Negro motormen, conductors and conductorettes will be hired and upgraded by the Los Angeles Railway Company, it was announced here Monday by the Negro Victory Committee.

An achievement equalling the Victory body's mass march of 2,000 Negro women on the United States Employment Service last year, LARY's capitulation followed conferences between Victory Committee chairman, Rev. Clayton D. Russell, the railway president, T. B. Harris, and spokesmen for the railway AFL union in the offices of Guy T. Nunn, in the minorities division of the War Manpower Commission last Friday.

This meeting grew out of two giant mass meetings of the Negro people called by the Negro Victory Committee with the cooperation of the railway unions.

Preliminary to Friday's climactic confab, Victory Committee and union representatives met hard-hitting Government man Guy Nunn in undisclosed sessions Monday, Jan. 18. Here detailed plans were laid for the final conference with the company.

Present were Eagle editor Charlotta A. Bass, Rev. Russell, and Seth B. Ray, of the Victory

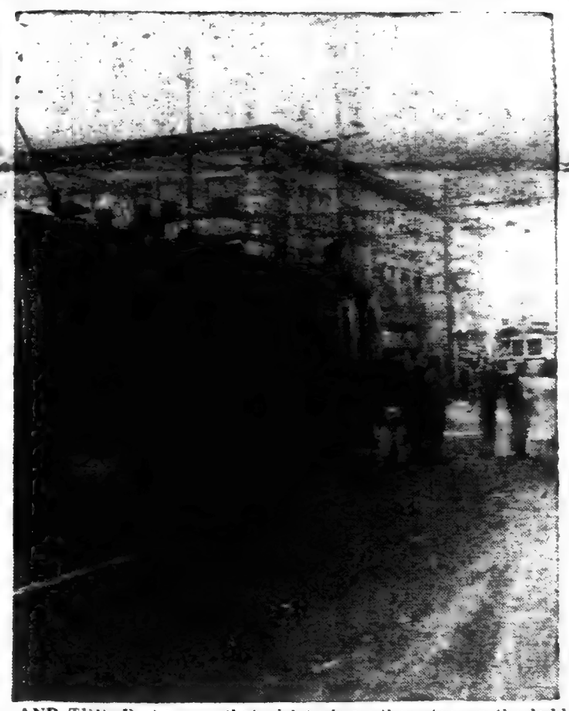
Rap Meat Distribution in City

Swanky Sections Get Best; Worst Goes to Eastside

Central Avenue war-working population lined up at the counters of butcher shops this week three-deep to buy inferior grade meat at prices which make the USA's price ceilings sound like jibberish of a by-gone age.

Meanwhile, reporters in the hinterlands of Hollywood and Beverly Hills report that exclusive restaurants catering to such vital war workers as chorus cuties continue to gobble the city's choice meat supplies and sell them for prices that are pure blackmail.



The unequal, hap-hazard and health-endangering distribution of meat was labelled one of the

COOK TELLS STRANGE STORY TO OFFICERS

Admissions and denials of the murder of Mrs. Martha James, four-month bride of a Naval officer, from second cook Robert Folkes of the Southern Pacific railroad had Los Angeles police guessing today.

Acting for Oregon authorities, Los Angeles police Monday night booked Folkes on suspicion of murder for the knife slaying last Saturday of "the woman in Lower 13".

Folkes, 20, second cook for the Southern Pacific, of 1636 E. 25th St., was arrested at Union Station on arrival of the train from Seattle.

Detectives acted on the telegraphic request of Dist. Atty. Harlow L. Weinrich of Linn County, Or., where the baffling murder occurred.

According to police homicide Capt. Rasmussen, Folkes' story has changed several times since police began grilling him three days ago at the City Hall.

He has confessed the murder.

He has denied the confession.

He has said his confessions "to conceal a man with a wife and two children. . ."

In a dramatic effort to secure a bona fide statement, police took Folkes to his East 25th street home, where, in the presence of his attractive young wife, "made such a confusion of admissions and denials that police were unable to credit any of his statements."

According to Rasmussen, things look pretty bad for Folkes, but we have nothing we could call a real confession."

Police have received a call from two young women, whom they refused to identify until their

EDITOR ONE OF 19 TO GRAND JURY IN 1943

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor-publisher of the California EAGLE became the first Negro to serve on the Los Angeles Grand Jury Tuesday when she was selected among 19 to sit during 1943 by Superior Court Judge Charles Fricke.

Originally sponsored by Judge Georgia Bullock, Mrs. Bass was served her warrant to appear for service by the first Negro court bailiff, also an appointee of Judge Bullock. —— -- -- -- Bratton.

Mrs. Bass' name, along with 89 others, was placed in the traditional bowl from which 30 are annually chosen at random. From this thirty, the Calendar Judge selects 19 for jury service.

Eleven of the 30 chosen at random offered valid excuses for not serving on the Grand Jury, leaving the required 19 for service.

LARY, UNION LABOR, NEGRO PEOPLE HAVE SHOWN PATRIOTISM

"Boys, we don't care who runs the street cars, black or white, so long as they move." — P. B. Harris, president of the Los Angeles Railway company.

Resolute steps toward strengthening the all-out war effort of the city of Los Angeles were taken this week by the Los Angeles Railway company, the War Manpower commission (minorities division), the Amalgamated Association of Electric Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, AFL, and the Negro Victory committee.

All these forces were joined in the last 7 days to crack the traditional bars which have held Negro workers of LARY to menial tasks.

The railway company was wrong. It refused to upgrade and hire Negroes in the face of a manpower shortage which was limiting the war production of the entire city through delaying vital war workers in jam-packed, tardy railway traffic.

The company is now right.

The change in its policy has been, according to all reports, thorough and sweeping. Already 25 Negroes have been upgraded. Applicants for conductors, motormen, conductorettes, mechanics, etc., must register with the United States Employment Service, at 11th and Flower streets. (The War Manpower commission has specifically warned against registering for this employment anywhere else. No public or private agency outside

★ WHAT'S DOING IN THE YOUNGER SET

By JESSIE MAE BROWN

Years of scholastic struggle were brought to an end this week when hundreds of Los Angeles high school students received their diplomas. The different schools carried off the graduation ceremonies in their traditional manner. However, Jefferson High school broke its age-old semi-formal suit tradition for the solemn, but beautiful, blue caps and gowns. Uniformity was definitely in evidence.

The big club dances, which usually follow the winter graduation, didn't come off as in past years. Most of the grads made their grand entrance into the club Alabam, and did their frocking at different house parties.

AFFAIR OF THE WEEK

Rachel Isom was hostess last Sunday afternoon to more than 50 of the local debs when she honored Joye Speights with a lingerie shower. Melonee Temple, Phyllis Hoxie, Betty Yarbrough, Corrine Jones, Josephine Pearman, Nita Clifton, Doris Smith, Clara Fentress, Jean Watkins, and Idell Johnson were among the guests. Throughout the afternoon the girls chatted, and congratulated the bride-to-be. Florance Cornelius, Hope Speights, and Marion Clarke assisted Rachel.

The Jeff Hi-Y semi-formal was quite a success last Saturday night, regardless of damp weather. The YMCA, served as setting, and the latest recordings were played. The sub-deb group was out in large numbers, as were the freshmen from the different colleges.

WELL, WELL, WELL!!

Gold bars weren't sufficient for Flo Cornelius; she now sports a pair of silver bars. Hear that the first lieutenant is stationed at Ft. Huachuca. This couldn't be part of the reason for her coming trip to Arizona, or could it? The Sub Debs are taking over in fancy style. Peaches Bleman, the darling of Manual Arts, not only has the high school lads at her beck and call, but also the few remaining suave gents . . . By the way, Santa Monica's Joe Spaulding is living in L. A. now.

Billy Benfield plans to join the Royal Bruins next semester, if he's still 'round town . . . Old Dan Cupid is still at work. Edgar Lester has finally chosen one from the famed triangle. Gloria Watson is working in defense, to pass the time away while hubby David is with Uncle Sam. Leo Johnson received "greetings from the President" a few days before his graduation. "What a gift," says Leo . . . The Negro University clubs of SC and UCLA are still going strong, and are making big plans for the coming semester . . .

Hear that Fannie Williams is letting a certain Douglas worker monopolize all of her extra moments . . . What's this we hear about Raymond Christian planning to tie the knot . . . Don't know just how it happened girls, but Julius Anderson is still out of the army. Connie Smart was noticed doing some fancy skating at the Jeff skating party t'other week. Wesleen Foster plans to continue her studying at SC next semester. Engagement rings worn by debs with fiances in the army don't mean a thing to Frank Dupas, and a few others . . . John Kinloch is still thrilling the millions . . . The sad look on the faces of the campus kids is due to last minute cramming for finals . . . According to the latest word, Neal Collins is making rapid progress in the armed forces . . . Believe it or not, the Harriet Patterson-Phillip Robinson romance is all over. Wonder who'll be next on the scene. Sarah Palode joined the lonely when her heartbeat left for the army . . . L. A. High's Dorothy Dent is one of the three colored stock girls employed at Bullock's Dept. store . . .

A pair of silver wings arrived from Aberdine, Maryland, along with a black onyx ring and necklace set. I am notified that the sender is only fine . . . Glamorous Madelyn Carrington is definitely in circulation nowadays . . . In closing, I answer the question of the week. Yes debs, and sub-debs, Felix Williams is footloose, and army free; so is the great scholar, Arthur Trent . . . 'Til next week.

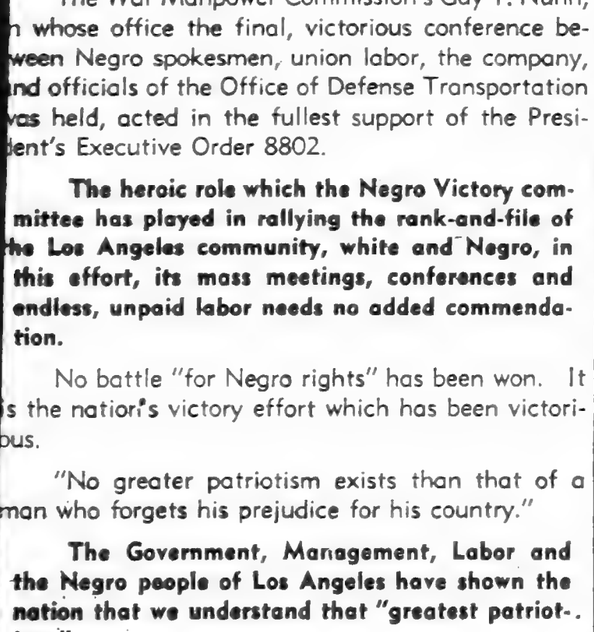
of USES is to refer workers to the firm.)

President P. B. Harris of the LARY, convinced finally of the war necessity, and the feasibility, of upgrading and employing workers without regard to race, has moved boldly and without subterfuge.

The American Federation of Labor may "point with pride" to the role which its local railway unions have played in bringing about the successful consummation of this win-the-war struggle. Every step of the way, this AFL labor group has backed the practice of democracy, as well as its word.



The War Manpower Commission's Guy T. Nunn, in whose office the final, victorious conference between Negro spokesmen, union labor, the company, and officials of the Office of Defense Transportation was held, acted in the fullest support of the President's Executive Order 8802.

The heroic role which the Negro Victory committee has played in rallying the rank-and-file of the Los Angeles community, white and Negro, in this effort, its mass meetings, conferences and endless, unpaid labor needs no added commendation.

No battle "for Negro rights" has been won. It is the nation's victory effort which has been victorious.

"No greater patriotism exists than that of a man who forgets his prejudice for his country."

The Government, Management, Labor and the Negro people of Los Angeles have shown the nation that we understand that "greatest patriotism."

COOK TELLS STRANGE STORY TO OFFICERS

stories are checked, telling of alleged familiarities aboard the Southern Pacific train on which Mrs. James met her death.

GIRLS TELL STORY

Detective Lieutenants N. S. Meza and Harry Rowe said the girls telephoned them and by arrangement met them on a street corner. They said they were on the same car as Mrs. James and occupied Berth 16 across the aisle.

Shortly before the time Mrs. James cried out and fell dying into the corridor, her throat slashed, the girls were given two "complimentary" turkey sandwiches by a waiter, they said.

Later, when one went to the washroom, the girl remaining was approached in her berth by a man "asking to be kissed goodbye" the detectives said.

Both girls were confronted with Folkes, who has a police record here of suspected assault on a woman, but failed to identify him.

Later reports were that the two women were occupying the same car on the same run as Mrs. James—but were on a different train.

Rasmussen, however, declined to discount their story until he made a satisfactory check. Rasmussen wired authorities at Salem, Or., to tally the purchase time on railroad tickets and attempt to check baggage stubs of the women to determine positively if they were on the same train as the victim.

LAST UTTERANCES

Just before Mrs. James tumbled from her berth in Lower 13, she was heard to exclaim: "I can't take any more of this"

A second later, she screamed: "My God, he's killing me!"

First to reach her side was Marine Private Harold R. Williams, 22, held at Klamath Falls, Or., as a material witness. He occupied upper 13 and said he chased a "dark man" through the train but lost sight of him. A trail of blood, believed dripping from the murder knife, led to an open door.

MATE ON TRAIN AHEAD

Mrs. James' husband, Ensign Richard E. James, was on a train ahead of his bride, the pair having been separated by train schedules.

Folkes told officers he had several drinks before getting on the train, and later had a few more at a "private party" in the dining car.

He said he remembered making six turkey sandwiches, only four of which were consumed. Later he walked through the train, he said, passing through Mrs. James' car to the smoking room, where he stayed 15 minutes. He said he saw nothing amiss.

Police also questioned Elmer White, waiter, 657 E. 40th Place, and N. L. Shaw, 1801 S. Berendo St., porter on the death car until relieved by Harry M. Hughes, 1838 W. 36th St.

Authorities said Folkes has a police record dating from August, 1940, when he was arrested for vagrancy and suspicion of attacking a white woman. She refused to prosecute, police said.

He also had two subsequent drunk arrests, one last September in which he assertedly tried to cut the screen on the window of a home occupied by three white women.

Committee; Troy Black and John E. Hargrove representing AFL labor.

Final success of the effort to aid winning of the war through cracking Los Angeles' transportation manpower shortage came, Rev. Russell stressed, through the cooperation of "labor, government and the Negro people."

Solidly backing demands to end race bias on LARY lines was Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric, Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America, Div. 1277, AFL.

"Negro conductors and conductorettes, mechanics and other railway workers soon to be upgraded will owe a debt of gratitude to the unfailing support of their white brothers who fought side by side with all Negro citizens to secure their employment."

FRIDAY'S MEETING

Last Friday's meeting in Guy Nunn's Manpower Commission office found LARY president P. B. Harris confronted with officials of the Office of Defense Transportation Roy Long and Walter Busch, railway union president C. Edward Lentz, Rowlin Haston, business agent of the union's mechanical division; Joseph Prutsman, railway union business agent; Troy Black, Negro union official; and Rev. Russell of the Negro Victory Committee.

Hard facts of a manpower shortage in transportation which has robbed defense workers in Los Angeles of precious hours day after day were hammered home during the meeting. That LARY street cars and busses have been taken off their runs because of lack of operators was pointed to as an unnecessary stumbling block in the way of Los Angeles' war effort--what with hundreds of qualified Negro workers unable to secure upgrading into conductor and motorman brackets. At the same time, Negro women were denied the right to apply for jobs as conductorettes.

Clincher in the arguments with the company was President Roosevelt's executive order 8802, which bars discrimination in defense industry (including transportation systems) on the basis of race, creed or color.

MEN AND WOMEN ALIKE

The railway company's new policy opens the gates to unbiased employment for both Negro men and women.

Applications for employment should NOT be made with any community agency or directly with the firm, but through the United States Employment Service at 11th and Flower Streets, the War Manpower Commission stressed today.

HAIL LARY

The railway firm's resolute about-face in policy was hailed today by the Victory Committee and held up as an example to the city of Chicago, where railway lines still refuse to employ minority groups.

So prompt and unhesitating was the firm's change in policy that it caught even Negro workers at LARY off guard.

One Negro car-washer, who had long yearned for a job in the mechanical department, for which he was qualified, was quitting the firm for a job at the shipyards. His supervisor told him not to quit, that he could have the long awaited mechanic's post.

Dumbfounded at the company's policy shift, the worker at first refused to believe in the upgrading. He was soon convinced, however, that a sweeping order had come from "upstairs" to crack every bar halting workers' fullest upgrading.

Effective work of the War Manpower Commission minorities division under Guy Nunn was also given a salvo by Victory Committee spokesmen.

PROTEST

Some 100 of the East Indian newspapers went on a one-day strike last week in protest against censorship of incidents in the central provinces some months ago. The All-India Newspaper Editors' Conference said the protest was aimed at censorship of activities of the auhorities in quelling an outbreak in Chimar. The desire to be well informed is always a symptom of democracy and should be fostered.

★ CROWN CITY CAPERS

By JACKIE BUNCH
(Guest Columnist)

Well, here I am again. Your regular columnist wanted a rest so she asked yours truly to take over this week. Always a pleasure to accomodate a friend.

Last week being final exam week our worries are over now, or are they? Some hope to graduate, others hope to pass, others just hope. Seriously among those graduating from junior high are: M. L. Jackson, Betty Lou Jones, Murray and Irene Huff, Bernice Cunningham, Thomas Floyd, Wendell Cummins, Grace Gilchrist. From high schol are: Lora Jacques, Doris Downs, Lucille Harrison, Lois Prince, Thelma Jackson, Betty Benson, Jessie Arnold, Philippa Jones, Nettie Mack and yours truly. Oh happy day.

There hasn't been a party in a week or so but graduation usually brings some around.

Jessie, Gloria, Philipoa, Lora, Thelma with the help of Barbara Durham have taken up painting since they've completed their color and design courses.

Johnetta and Ollie are going to be stenographers after this semester typing course. Betty and Philippa are hoping.

During exam week the Fine's burned mid-night oil studying and made all the movies the next day. They're all passing.

The Czars have been up for the duration since they can't compete with their "uncle". Hear pres. Rufus Blake is a corporal already. Or is he? Jessie believes it and said he has something the other boys don't have. Wonder what tht is? A track shoe? Eddie Johnson, Bernard Harris and John Anderson are still keeping up with their athletics. Eddie and John are boxing and Bernard plays basketball. Harrison Bailey is doing fine in the Navy. He sent a picture of himself in his "zoot suit".

Home on leave a few weeks ago were Edison Dean, Ernie Cunninham, Ralph Riddle, Teddy Hucherson sends his regards to his friends. Eddie Johnson is a Technical Corporal now. Pasadena is almost manless now. The few left but who are leaving soon are Ralph McAfee, Paul Taliaferro, Paul Devine, Bill Duncan, Harry Lester, Elbie Hickambottom. But when they're gone P. J. King, M. L., Johnny, Murray and Adam will be around. Bump Cunningham says he's in the 'B' class. Be here when they leave and he'll be there when they come back. J. T. Morgan's in 1-A. D. and Philippa is happy.

The end of the three week revival in Pasadena was Sunday night at Friendship Baptist with a handsome young preacher from Chicago preaching, also being the reason why so many girls were seen at church every night last week.

Thaddeus Dawson was in Pasadena Sunday night. He's an ex-Denan and says he may come back to go to J. C., lucky girls.

The Czars and Triple C's are running stiff competition for popular Doris Downs. And what about Ezel and Hattie?

Does Thelma still like hamburgers? She ate two one night. Could Wimpy have anything to do with it? East campus sees a lot of Billy Scott these days. Looks as if he's taken over since Fred went to the Army.

Where did Lora disappear to Sunday night? And so quietly too. I hear Clarence was about so I need not go on. Wendell Cummins' birthday party last week was very much on. Seen dancing under soft lights were Jennie McReynolds, Elbie Hickambottom and brother Grady, Bernice Cunningham, Lora Jacques, Ralph McAfee, Rosebud Jacques, Jerry Carter and many others.

Seen at the basketball games on Friday nights are Ray Evelyn Thompson, Bobbie Lawson, Thelma Jackson, Jennie McReynolds, 'Dewey', Bumy and others. On the court we see Johnny Burton, M. L. Jackson, Ernie Cunningham and Edison Dean (while here), J. T. Morgan, Thomas Floyd, Ray Stension, P. J. King and others.

Harry Lester is requesting a going away present from all the young ladies and Elbie is just being cool about the situation and trying to find the owner of a red button.

P. J. is back from his vacation and others are taking theirs now.

Lummie Long was in 'Dena a few weeks ago and his shadow still hovers. Joe Collins is seen quite a lot in 'Dena. Is it Dolores or Jessie or both? Or someone else? He was with Jessie Sunday. While up north Carolyn saw Harold Johnson, an ex-Denan. She says he's really "mad". And she's mad with "mad" talk.

The young men aren't getting so many gears lately for more reasons than tire and gas rationing. But they have fun remembering whose car was the fastest and who caught the best second.

Sammy Jones and James Johnson are in the limelight for future reference when the boys are all gone.

Why did Thelma miss an exam last week? The kids taking placement exams saw spots before their eyes after so many hours, but also found a bit of humor when a three letter word associated with the head drew S. K.'s wig. That test is going to make Betty post-mistress general since she knows I. Q. will count so much.

Why did Lora and Jessie want Fellowship so bad Sunday? J. T. was talking about all of his girl friends of the past but says he's satisfied with just one now.

Jessie and Gloria have watches but can't keep track of the time. Does anyone know what time it it is? Also hear that where some people need heaters others need ice boxes, or even cold water.

Adam and Johnny traded suits for Johnny's trip to Miami. Griff went to New York, and Robert went to Palm Beach.

Did you hear about the moron? He went to the city because the country is at war. Another one said he's goin to be a vitamin when he grows up, because he saw a big sign that said: "Vitamin B-1". Do you know any better ones? Send them in.

Won't we all be glad when the lights go on again all over the world and the boys are home again, and Philippa writes her column every week instead of writing in one week and skipping three. There are a lot of fellows in the services that look forward to reading news and gossip from their home town.

And now in closing, remember that today is the day you were worrying about yesterday.

Thanks Philippa. It was fun getting gossip from this person and that and putting it together for the Crown City Capers. I'll bet Johnathan M. reads it too deep in the heart of Texas and remembering when the Crusade took the spotlight once.

Not long ago, many a woman would prefer to suffer in silence from periodic, functional pain rather than talk about this subject.

Nowadays, women and girls openly praise CARDUI's 2-way help. Taken as a tonic, it usually peps up the appetite and aids digestion by stimulating the flow of gastric juices; thus it often helps build up resistance for the trying days to come. Or taken as directed 3 days before the time, CARDUI may help relieve pain due only to periodic, functional causes.

Try CARDUI. For 62 years thousands of women have said they believed it helped them.

REV. CHAS. M. TONEY

Rev. Toney at Pleasant Hill

Rev. Chas. M. Toney, field secretary of the Los Angeles District association of the Western Baptist convention, delivered the sermon Tuesday evening, Jan. 27, at 8 p. m., at Pleasant Hill Baptist church, North Bonnie Brae and Court streets. Rev. A. Wendell Ross is pastor.

Rev. Toney's subject, "The Sufficiency of the Gospel of Jesus Christ" (2 Cor. 2:16), was very well explained.

The heavy rain, did not stop the services. A large crowd attended. The gospel singers rendered the music and were at their best. At the close of services each one went home with the truth, "Jesus Christ is sufficient."

Notice to Eagle Readers

Beginning next Wednesday, Feb. 3, and every Wednesday thereafter, the California EAGLE will be off the press!

This move by the EAGLE'S management was necessitated because of war conditions.

The editors hope the paper will continue to live up to the highest expectations of its readers, offering complete, authoritative word-and-picture coverage of the history-making events transpiring all over the globe.

Remember, the EAGLE will go to press Tuesday night, off the press and on the streets on Wednesday morning!

Special Services

The Rev. Mr. Marshall, the minister of the First AME Zion church at Pico and Paloma will deliver the second in a series of sermons on the 23rd Psalm. Last Sunday, he gave the first sermon, entitled "The Lord is My Shepherd," it was very enthusiastically accepted, and well attended. A cordial invitation is extended to all persons to come and hear these sermons. They will add a lot to your spiritual growth, and they also afford a great deal of information.

Eastside's major problems this week by OPA officials, war workers, and the State CIO.

A demand for prompt, fair rationing of meat is catching hold in grass-root fashion. The present lack of rationing, it is pointed out, is maintained for the special interest of meat-packing firms which are having one hell of a time bilking all concerned.

Pay-offs by large restaurants to supply houses are mounting to astronomical figures. Meat is taken from communities of war workers, most vital to the nation and most in need of this essential protein food, and distributed to high-brow neighborhoods and the cover charge eateries.

CIO's six point program for rectification of the Coast's food crisis was hailed throughout the State this week. It follows:

1. Meat should be immediately rationed. An equitable rationing program should take into consideration and provide for regulations which will control both home consumption of meat as well as restaurant consumption. Special consideration should be given to hospital patients, the infirm and minors who may be in need of extra rations.

2. Sales of meat dishes by restaurants should be limited to two days per week.

3. Supplementary rations should be granted the smaller restaurants which cater to war workers and which are located in industrial areas.

4. Immediate price ceilings should be established on livestock.

5. Ceilings should be placed on restaurant prices, at least on meat dishes, which recently have skyrocketed.

6. The food rationing program announced by Sec. of Agriculture Wickard for canned products should also include immediate rationing of eggs, milk and other essential dairy products.

Choral Union to Present Singers Saturday, Feb. 6

The Gospel Choral Union is presenting Mrs. Sallie Martin and Miss Julia Smith in their last appearance in the city on Saturday evening, Feb. 6th, 7:30 p. m. at the Union headquarters, St. Paul Baptist church's Bible Temple, 21st and Naomi streets.

Mrs. Martin and Miss Smith are from the Martin Morris Studios of Chicago; both national gospel singers and organizers of the National Convention of Gospel Choirs and Choruses.

We are asking all the members of the L. A. Gospel Choral Union to be present. A special invitation to come hear or join this great unon is extended to all choirs or choral groups who sing gospel music.

Come one, come all and make this a grand event. Any information regarding this or the National Convention will be gladly given by Mrs. Martin.

Associate Matrons Club Organized

The Associate Matrons Club of Los Angeles for 1943 was officially organized and set to work by our Grand Worthy Matron, Mrs. Vivian O. Marsh on Sunday January 24 at the home of Mrs. Louise V. Fulghum.

After a very timely address by the Grand Worthy Matron and the Grand Deputy Lecturer Mrs. La Gulia Shaw, the officers of the club were elected and installed. The officers are president, Mrs. Freda Taft; vice-president, Mrs. Rheta Dobbins; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Louise V. Fulghum; chaplain, Mrs. Nannie Willbourn; reporter, Mrs. Hattie J Mathews.

On previous occasions, Negroes have been chosen among the 90 sponsored for Grand Jury service, but a colored citizen has never before been selected among the 30 chosen at random from the court bowl filled name-inscribed capsuls.

In a press statement, the Eagle editor said, "I shall to the best of my ability and knowledge uphold the confidence bestowed upon me by Judge Bullock, who sponsored me, and the people who have been kind enough to congratulate me."

THE FIRST Negro to serve on the Los Angeles County Grand Jury is the history-making honor that went to Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass (above), EAGLE editor, last week. Notice of the editor's newest civic duty was hailed throughout the city by all races, creeds, and colors. (See story on front page.)

Indian Independence Day Celebrated This Week

By R. LAL SINGH

What a contrast can be seen when one compares the situation in India with what is happening in China and the Soviet Union. What a contrast when compared to the participation in the war of the people of Britain. The defense of one's native land can be the inspiration for an organized defense by the entire people. Such a defense is in line with the deepest purposes of the United Nations in this war. The winnin of the war cannot and must ning of the war cannot and must not be the concern of any one section, any one nation, any one class of people: it cannot be farmed out to special cliques, clans, races or interests. The welfare of the peoples of the world is the stake in this war. To win such a war calls for the arming of the people. Die-hard Colonial Tory policy tends to exclude vast numbers of the people of the colonial world from fullest armed resistance to the common enemy; at the same time the Colonial diehards attempt to retain for themselves exclusive rights to the control and direction of defense.

For one must never forget that we shall together share the fruits of our sacrifices tomorrow. Freedom for India, as well as for the millions of other Colonials in similar present straits, must take place during the course of the war. This is essential to the earliest possible winning of the war. Indeed, the length and intensity of the war, as Nehru has pointed out, are greatly affected by what is done about India.

What, again, can be done now?

Nehru, great leader of the Indian National Congress, last May stated, "The grand strategy of the war requires a comprehension of the moral, psychological and revolutionary aspects of the situation. It demands an understanding of the urges and necessities that move people to action and sacrifice for a cause. It requires not only the sacrifice of lives of brave men, but of racial prejudices, of inherited conceptions, of political and economic domination, of vested interests of small groups that hinder the defense of the freeman--It requires a conception of the need of the moment and its translation into action . . . for today the interest of humanity is at stake."

Similarly, he said, "we are intensely interested in the defense of India from external aggression but we cannot do anything really effective about it because the only way we can do it is through mass enthusiasm and mass effort under popular control. We cannot develop our industries through wartime requirements shout out for such development."

Nehru pointed out further that what he wanted in India was the same spirit of no surrender as that which was so evident in the USSR and China. He advocated the organizing of an army of 100,000,000 for the defense of India, saying that he did not contemplate merely an army for frontline fighting, but wanted to organize the millions who would have to remain behind those lines; in fact, his idea was that such an army of men, women and children could fight effectively not only as a support for those in the front lines, but as a force which could function even should regular armies be defeated.

It was the nature of the war, it was the sinister motive of the Axis, as well as the great objective of liberation of the United Nations, that determined Nehru's stand. He saw the war in global terms; he saw clearly the aim of national freedom for all peoples from world enslavement. His point of view and that of the main body of leadership of the Indian National Congress is not based upon a narrow Indian nationalism. True it is that certain individuals have lost sight of the true meaning of the United Nations Charter, of the real objectives of the peoples engaged in this global war. But those who have this shallow understanding do not represent the decisive sector of the Congress leadership.

Nehru's declaration was the natural outgrowth of India's long struggle for liberation, a struggle which has always been waged in cooperation with and supporting the struggle for freedom, for liberation, of every nation anywhere in the world which has suffered aggression. Thus India's struggles have developed principles and goals the same as those embodied in the United Nations' Charter.

But over against this, the policy of reaction has been posed in India by the advocates of "non violent, non-cooperation". The leader of those who have over many years taken this pacifist stand is Mr. Gandhi.

Gandhi had long ago, to a considerable degree, been retired from the scene of positive political action. The failure of the Cripps Mission last Spring, and the break-down of negotiations, brought him forward again. Although he had been a man who, from the earliest stages of the Indian liberation movement had occupied a leading position, it must not be lost sight of that the Indian and British reactionaries at all times regarded him as an "ace in the hole" when confronted with mass unrest.

The unequivocal declarations of the Peasants Union and the All-India Trade Union Congress, as well as similar declarations from the Indian Student Federation and from the Congress itself in support of the Chinese people against the Japanese aggressor; in support of the Spanish Loyalist government in their struggle against the Hitler-Musolini puppet, Franco, were challenges to Gandhi's leadership. Each of these groups indicated clearly their wholehearted sympathy for the oppressed nation in each case. They expressed their regret that an Indian people's army could not come to the assistance of the victim. The challenge implicit in this program of assistance to fascism retired Gandhi from any positive role in the Congress. India quite naturally, inevitably, found itself in the ranks of those who desired to participate by force of arms in the world front against fascism.

The All-India Students Federation denounced the Japanese slogan "Asia for the Asiatics"; it exposed the utter emptiness of the Son of Heaven's so-called "New Order". The students further declared that their place was in the ranks of the progressive forces of the world front against the Nazi-Japanese enemy; further more, they categorically rejected the British colonial policy which retards the full and effective mobilization of the people of India as participants in this war of national liberation.

It is interesting to note that they declared that Gandhism was the exception in India; that despite the fact that powerful forces were at work attempting to sabotage the war effort, they, the Federation, would campaign against all such forces.

It must be stated here that the All-India Students Federation not only lived up to this declaration but was successful in preventing a nationwide strike among students, who for the time being had been emotionally aroused by the arrests of their leaders. To successfully accomplish this, the Federation was obliged to adopt a resolution to go on a two-day strike, during which time they succeeded in convincing the students of the disruptive character of the demand for a nationwide strike as a policy of action. The students were convinced by the arguments of the Federation that a static or "neutral" attitude toward the war could not in any degree assist in the winning of freedom for India.

The All-India Trade Union Congress declared its policy through its leader, Mr. N. M. Joshi. In their declaration it was clearly stated that India's independence and freedom was conditional upon a United Nations victory. The Trade Union Congress reiterated its stand of a decade earlier against fascism and reaction, but it pointed out that only through a recognition of the legitimate demands for a national government could the people of India be mobilized in defense of India. It sharply dissociated itself from Gandhi and Gandhism.

The failure of the Colonial Tories to take steps which would assure the total mobilization of the Indian people, foredoomed the Cripps Mission to failure. Likewise, it resurrected Gandhi from retirement and carried him on the crest of the wave.

This hard blow to the millions of anti-fascists in India was a complete negation of all that Nehru and the majority of the other main leaders of the Congress stood for. It led to utter loss of confidence on the part of the Indian masses with reference to British policy toward India. It dealt a most serious blow to the morale of the people and toward their ability to support the war. However, it thrust into clearer perspective the paramount military necessity in India: the immediate establishment of a National government.

This step can be accomplished through the release from prison of India's anti-fascist leaders, together with a reopening of negotiations and a clear statement by the British government that the purpose of these negotiations is immediate self-rule by India. This minimum program, and only this, can assure the speediest possible full mobilization of India's manpower and resources for the prosecution of the anti-Axis war.

For the United Nations, through such a step, to have in India a free and equal partner in the war effort would of itself arouse the greatest enthusiasm for the struggle against Hitler among the subjects of every occupied country of Europe, Asia and the South Pacific. They would undoubtedly take unprecedented and powerful actions against the Nazi-Japanese subjugators. Granting India her freedom would inspire the colonial and semicolonial peoples to a full acceptance of the war as a peoples' war. It would strengthen the morale of every United Nations soldier in every quarter of the globe. It would disintegrate permanently, the false foundation upon which world fascism thrives, and would drive into oblivion the defeatists, the fault finders, and all others who allege, pointing at India, that the present war is not a war of liberation.

THE BATTLE OF AFRICA AND THE AFRICAN PEOPLE -- REDDICK

By L. D. REDDICK

Now that the Battle of Africa has begun in earnest, World War II enters a new phase. The bold sweep of the United Nations' offensive from the Atlantic Ocean along the North African coast is an effective pre-condition for invasion into Europe across the Mediterranean Sea. It seems to be Africa's destiny to supply the answer to the universal cry for a "Second Front".

It is clearer than ever that the continent of Africa, including the great island of Madagascar, is of decisive military importance. This is true whether we think in terms of the defense of the New World against Nazi intrusion, the protection of the supply routes to the Far East, or the direct assault upon the soft spots of southern Europe and the Middle East.

We shall hear more about the strategic advantages of the various parts of the continent of Africa as the war moves along—but what of the people of Africa? How are they faring? What do they feel, think and will-to-do about it all?

We do know that thus far the support of Africa has proved invaluable to the cause of the United Nations. The Republic of Liberia cooperated secretly and completely in the plans for the penetration of French West Africa by the American forces. The black Governor-General of French Equatorial Africa, M. Felix Eboue, has been the mainstay of the Fighting French under General Charles de Gaulle. With British guns and ammunition, Haille Selassie's troops have swept the Italians from Ethiopia and are now participating in the drive against Rommel. Several thousand native troops from the Belgian Congo took part in the Ethiopian campaign and continued afterwards in pursuit of the enemy. These few spectacular examples only suggest the large support which the land and people of Africa are furnishing the United Nations. Without it where would we be now?

But in all of this what, concretely, is the stake of the African people? Does all of the talk about freedom include their freedom? Does the Atlantic Charter really apply to the lands along the Nile, the Congo, and the Zambesi? We have been wise enough and good enough to declare that we do not wish one foot of foreign soil for the United States. We have given assurance after assurance that we covet no territorial empire. This is wonderful, but is it enough?

Are Africans to fight and die for the doubtful privilege of remaining vassals of one or another colonial empire? Is the decision as to whom this part or that part of Africa is to go to be made without consulting the human beings whose native land it happens to be?

The tales of Nazi horror which float back from Europe to Africa cannot but remind us all that in South Africa the native people are not permitted to bear arms, are excluded from political participation and are generally dominated and exploited according to a pattern which we usually associate with Hitler. If this is a war for world freedom, as we are saying every day, then, the clearest symbol of wisdom and sincerity should be: first, to arm the African people and permit them full participation in the fight against fascism; and secondly, to guarantee to them, as to others elsewhere, the Four Freedoms and a fifth freedom called self-determination.

L. A. Emergency Medical Corps Needs Volunteers

Mrs. Verne W. McKinney, chairman of the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office located in the Spring Street Foyer of the Los Angeles City Hall, announced the immediate need of volunteers holding advanced first aid certificates, practical nurses with some hospital training, and registered nurses, for service with the Los Angeles Emergency Medical Corps in neighborhood casualty stations.

Persons accepted must volunteer to attend two training meetings per month as well as being available for emergency calls in case of disaster.

Owners of station wagons and panelled body trucks are asked to register their vehicles for use as emergency ambulances.

Persons interested in the above should contact Mrs. McKinney or a member of her staff in the Spring Street Foyer of the City Hall or by phone at MIchigan 5211, Defense Council Extension 1.

An instrument has been developed that enables blind persons to make precision inspection of certain machine products in war industries.

Boilermakers Attempt Jim Crow Union Here

Workers at California shipyards were warned this week to watch out for tricks by the notorious Boilermakers' union, which holds contracts at Calship looking toward the establishment of a Jim Crow union for the Negro workers.

It was learned by the EAGLE that big shot Negro pussyfooters for the Boilermakers outfit are in town to set up a Jim Crow "auxiliary" to the regular Boilermakers union. Plenty of provocation from the 'white' part of the union is supposed to make the Negro workers swoon at the thought of having a union 'of their very own.'

Real purpose of the Jim Crow auxiliary is make it easy for the Boilermakers to lope off Negro workers in their trade come peace.

EXCLUSIVE STORY TO EAGLE FROM FIGHTING REPRESENTATIVE

He Says Nation Must Smash Home-grown Defeatists, Fascists

In an exclusive statement to the California EAGLE today, Rep. Vito Marcantonio, author of one of the six anti-poll tax bills submitted to date in this session of congress, attributed his failure to secure a seniority-earned post on the important, poll taxer dominated House Judiciary committee to the power of "domestic fascists."

His complete statement follows:

The fact that I was opposed by Messers Dies of Texas, Woodrum of Virginia, Rankin of Mississippi, and Barry of New York proves conclusively that I was defeated by the forces of domestic fascists, most of whom have entrenched themselves in Congress, by the undemocratic poll tax. Mr. Barry's opposition can well be understood when we bear in mind his platform association with Laura Ingalls who is now serving a sentence for having been an agent of Adolph Hitler. The records of Dies, Woodrum and Rankin, as obstructionists of everything that has been decent and democratic are also well known.

History repeats itself. In 1924, my distinguished predecessor, Mayor Fiorella LeGuardia, was deprived of every committee position by the reactionary Republicans. At that time LaGuardia kept up his fight in behalf of the American people and stated that they could not take him off the Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. I make the same statement. Nobody can take me off this committee because I have been put there by the people, as I was nominated and elected by the voters of the Democratic, Republican and American Labor Parties.

The real issue against me was my fight to extend democracy by the abolition of the poll tax and to wipe out the disgraceful fascist blot on America, lynching as well as my fight in defense of American workers.

I am not at all discouraged. I shall carry on the fight to win the war, to destroy fascism abroad and at home, for the defense of the rights of American labor, to repeal the poll tax and to wipe out lynching. I have confidence in the people of America. They have always triumphed over reaction. Again in this critical hour the people will unite to destroy these domestic fascists who are subverting the victory effort and are conspiring daily to turn America into a Vichy America.

At no time have I compromised with these forces in Congress. It is precisely because I have refused to appease them that I have been deprived of a place on the Judiciary Committee to which I was entitled because of my six years in the House of Representatives. I shall continue the fight for extension of democracy to everyone in America irrespective of race, color and creed.

I thank Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, Robert Doughton of South Carolina, Jerre Cooper of Tennessee, Walter Lynch of New York, Emmanuel Celler of New York, and my many other friends in Congress for their support.

How much easier our work would be if we put forth as much effort trying to improve the quality of it as most of us do trying to find excuses for not properly attending to it.

PRETTY LITTLE GERLDINE ARTIS celebrated her fifth birthday Sunday, Jan. 10, at the beautiful home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Artis, at 1145 E. 47th street. Little Geridine wore a pink taffeta formal and a pink bow of ribbon in her hair. Owing to the skillful art of Mr. Ralphe Porter (cousin of the hostess) the house was beautifully decorated. The elaborate birthday cake, with its gorgeously raised floral design, was the centerpiece and the center of attraction. With their little voices ringing out, "Happy Birthday to You," the tiny guests then circled the table and each was presented balloons of various colors, and were they thrilled, blowing and tossing them into the air. The little guests, accompanied by their parents, were Mary Louise and Olivia Hunter, Nancy and Edgar Scruggs, Rosesina and Jonetta Baker, Ricky and Jovonne Harrison, Janice and Raymond Dones, Glory Jene Easley, Walter Shirley jr., Regional Woods, Donald and Emma Jean Allen, Rosalie Harris, Marline Hurt, and Judy Stanford. Not only were the parents of little Geraldine happy, but also the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Whitley, of 1335 E. Washington Blvd., and Mrs J. D. Artis, 1132 E. 47th street, who blessed the table so brilliantly.

MISS CAREY PRESENTS DIPLOMAS AT JEFFERSON

Miss Katherine Carey, assistant superintendent of schools will be the speaker and will present the graduates of Jefferson high school with their diplomas at the commencement exercises which will be held at the school auditorium at one-thirty o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, January 27.

Ballad for America will be presented by the A Cappella Choir. Rufus Mayfield will sing the solo part. The prologue, Lincoln Speaks, will be by Lois Jean Brown and Arthur Lewis.

Darrell McGinnis will play a trumpet solo. The accompaniment and the rest of the music for the program will be by Mr. Samuel Brown at the organ.

Mrs. Elsa Mae Smith, girls' vice-principal, will present the Ephebians, Pearl Dong, Frank Gonzales and Arthur Lewis.

Mr. George Costello, boys' vice-principal, will present the scholarship awards. The two members of the California Scholarship Federation are Parl Dong and Evelyn Williams. Anna Jue has been a member of the Who's Who honor scholarship society for three semesters; Joseph Tong for two semesters; and Betty Chatters, Antoniette Lee, and Ralph Rodriguez for one semester.

Mr. C. A. Dickison, principal, who will present the class to Miss Carey, will also announce other awards. Stella Zamora and Eugene Sides are the winners of the American Legion awards. Evelyn Williams is the recipient of the only national award which is given at Jefferson, the Bausch-Lomb science award. Anna Jue and Ralph Rodriguez will receive the Danforth award.

During their three years in senior high school, the following members of the class were neither absent or tardy: Clara Jackson, Fredrica Shaftner, Daniel Hester, and Ralph Rodriguez.

Pearl Dong, Geraldine Gaines, Rosetta Howard, Anna Jue, Fredrica Shaftner, Rosie Spera, Eva Thompson and Ralph Rodriguez and Stanley Wong have perfect merit records for the three years of high school.

Wilbur Hall, class president, will accept the diplomas for the class.

Officers for the present semester include: Wilbur Hall; girls' vice-president, Nettie Dennis; boys' vice-president, Frank Gonzales; girls' treasurer, Edna Smith; boys' treasurer, Harold Capers; and secretary, Dorothy Calhoun. Officers for the senior B term of the class were: president, Betty Chatters; girls' vice-president, Cullie Lee Hubert; boys' vice-president, Daniel Hester; girls' treasurer, Colleen Greer; boys' treasurer, Harold Capers; and secretary, Dorothy Calhoun.

The fifty-five girls and the fifty-five boys will wear royal blue caps and gowns. This is the first time that the graduates of Jefferson high school have worn caps and gowns. The decision to wear them was made by the class members.

Because of the early hour of the graduation exercises, few of the students and teachers of Jefferson will be able to be present. For that reason, the A Cappella will repeat Ballad for America at the award assembly which will be held on Thursday, January 28.

Henderson to Be Booster Speaker

Rev. J. Raymond Henderson will speak on the subject "How an auxiliary can best serve the church" at the regular meeting of the Second Baptist Boosters, Sunday, January 24 at 4 p. m. This will be the first meeting of the year with the newly elected president, Wm. Alvin Hall, presiding.

There will be a short program. The meeting will be held in room 105 at the church at 24th and Griffith Ave.

Alpha Bowling Club Members Hosts at Eastside USO Center

The Alpha Bowling Social Club made history, in that it was the first men's group to serve as Saturday night host club. Since its inception the USO has used women hostesses only, but the demand from the male populace, seeking information as to "What can we do to make life happier for the boys in uniform?" gave birth to the idea of the Saturday Night Host Club.

Some of the older men in uniform mentioned this as a clever idea, and talked among themselves at the end of the evening, about these nice friends that they had made. The evening was completed by shrewed games of bridge, whist, pool and a rollicking good time the men had between themselves. Mr. Al Collins distinguished himself by enjoying the society of the Navy men. A remark overheard was to this effect: "Say, guy, how did a boy as small as you get in the Navy, I bet you're from Texas!" And the joke of it is, he was. The request for seven or eight members for the evening was answered by the following attending: Messrs John Laneer, L. C. Robinson, Wm. Lincolnfelter, C. V. Jackson, Ed. B. Burton, Jos. C. Suttles and Al M. Collins. The service must go on. Despite the inclement weather, Friday night's Jam Session was as gay as ever. The grand spirit of the Junior Hostesses was again demonstrated by the number of them who attended in spite of the storm, and a convoy of forty men, numbers of sailors attended and enjoyed the evening, with no thought of wind or rain outside. An example of many requests made at the USO center: Men have been sent on various parties, highlights of one of the parties was recounted by one of the fellows.

This was a fashionable party in the Pacific Palisades, where one of the employees, entertaining his son, a newly commissioned officer, served dinner at seven, with dancing afterwards, for the service men and motion picture celebrities. Orchids to the Daffodil Social Club, Mrs. Ora Townsend, president, who gave one year's subscription to "Life" magazine; and how the men enjoy "Life!" To Miss Alice Smith for lovely scrap books; to Mrs. Billy Dennis for her generosity; to the charm and efficiency lent to the Canteen by Golden Poppy Past Worthy Council, No. 1, order of Calanthe, Knights of Pythias, Mrs. A. E. Seldon, pres., and Mrs. Jessie Brown, chairman of Canteen.

Answering a request for verbal information about the workings of the USO the Staff Secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Warren was sent as guest speaker to an interesting meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service, Wesley Auxiliary; questions and answers brought an enthusiastic determination from the women present to give more time and aid to the men in uniform through the USO. The third Junior hostess to officially join military ranks was Mary Lou Hopson (nee Betty Scott), whose marriage to Pvt. Peter Harold Hopson, was solemnized Sunday, January 17, at 4175 Naomi Avenue.

Generous donations from the following persons were given to the Canteen this week: Mesdames Florence Carter, Vertner L. Gordon, Vera Winston, Victoria Allen, Ethel Thomas, E. Ellis, Alice Wilson, Ollie McKenzie, J. H. Graham, Hattie Nash, Faulkner, Mae Hopson, and Mrs. Warren.

Military Wedding Unites 1st. Sgt. L. P. Brooks, Corp. A. June Morris

The usual strict military atmosphere of Camp Temescal, the 7th Regiment, California State Guard, Headquarters, was softened somewhat Sunday morning last by the gathering of officers and enlisted personnel at church call to witness the first wedding ever held on the camp grounds.

With 1st Lt. R. A. Cooper, chaplain, officating, 1st Sgt. Lawrence P. Brooks, Company L, and Corporal A. June Morris, Company I, were united in marriage with all the pomp and circumstance of a military wedding. Under a Guard of Honor formed by the 1st Sergeants, the bride, dressed in white moire, with a filmy finger tip veil, and carrying a French bouquet of gardenias, stepped down a white carpeted path upon the arm of Captain Vance H. Marchbanks, Regimental Adjutant, who gave her away. She was attended by Corporal Kate Lee Cecil, Matron of Honor, who wore a beautiful gown of blue satin and carried talisman roses. Tech. Sergeant Clint Porter, 1st Battalion Sergeant Major, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, which took place very fittingly at the base of the flag pole, a brief reception was held in the recreation hall.

BLUEJACKETS LEARN FAST

THEY KEEP 'EM FLYING.—In their second week of training in the aviation metalsmith shop, Great Lakes Training Station, Ill., three Negro Bluejackets learn riveting. Left to right, they are Henry Ratcliffe, 28, of 3326 Prairie Ave., Chicago, Ill.; William Rhoden, 25, of 5820 South Park, Chicago; and Joseph McDuffie, 25, of 3003 Caroline St., St. Louis, Mo. The men completed a month of mathematics and layout study before coming to the shop for their first practical work in metalsmith school.

NORTH AMERICAN TRAINEE POLICY VIOLATES ORDER 8802

Failure to Upgrade Trainees Flaunts President Roosevelt's Executive Order

That upgrading of Negro workers schooled at the North American training center at 1509 So. Figuero is proceeding in violation of President Roosevelt's executive order 8802 was exclusively learned this week by the California Eagle.

Two Negro trainees, one fully trained for the job and the other studying it, were told by a representative of the North American personnel department Saturday that the firm's workers "were not quite ready to accept a little Negro girl coming around telling them what to do," and advised both to give up hope of entering the inspection department at the plant.

Inspection requires that those trained for it cover the plant checking parts and labor and rejecting inferior craftsmanship.

Willie B. Henry, of 1724 East 119th street, has been trained in electrical work and in inspection. Three weeks ago she completed the inspection class and was told by her instructor, E. Konst, that as soon as her paper's from the plant arrived she would go on the job as an inspector, the first Negro woman to hold that job in the plant.

She waited impatiently for the papers, which never came.

Saturday, however, Margaret Long, of North American's personnel department, did come. She asked to speak to Miss Henry and Catherine Blair, 3711 Wall street, also studying in the inspection class.

Taking the two trainees to a private room, she told them:

"I am very sorry that I have to tell you this. It really hurts me, and I am ashamed of my race. You know, some of them haven't quite grown up yet and we don't have any Negroes in the inspection part of the plant as yet.

"You know," she continued, "white people are not quite ready to accept a little Negro girl coming around telling them what to do.

"So, I am going to place you girls back in the electrical class.

"Don't, " she cautioned, say anything to the other girls about it.

'If they ask you anything, say that you preferred electrical to inspection."

DO YOU KNOW BILL GORDON?

Next, Miss Long inquired whether the girls knew Bill Gordon, Negro North American employee, who heads a company sponsored Race Relations Commission.

The girls said they knew Bill Gordon.

"Bill Gordon," said the company spokesman, "understands the problems of the Negro. I've talked this situation over with him and he understands our viewpoint. He's very understanding," she added. "He's a very fine young man. You go talk to him."

VIOLATES EXEC ORDER

The California EAGLE has asked the CIO, which holds a contract with North American, to investigate. Since the CIO contract with North American covers only workers in the plant and not trainees, the regular mechanism of the grievance committee can't operate in this case.

Spokesmen for the Negro Victory Committee; however, stated today that North American's alibi about white people "not being quite ready" for Negro inspectors is contrary to the President's executive order 8802, Bill Gordon notwithstanding, and that such policies injure the war effort.

Conferences with the company are planned.

WAR MOTHERS

Child Care Need United Groups

Unity of all community forces was growing around a concrete program for securing child care nurseries for Eastside war working porents this week.

Seriousness of the need for adequate nursery centers on the Eastside was driven home during the last seven days as new stories of privation flooded the CIO headquarters at 4310 South Central avenue, where a battery of social service workers are registering mothers who desire nursery care for their children.

Kids who must roam the streets during after-school hours, kids given to the dubious care of elderly neighbors, kids suffering form malnutrition,—these were the kind of stories brought in. Just as important is the unfortunate plight of many war working mothers. Frequently they must stay awake most of the day caring for little ones after harrowing swing and graveyard shifts.

A meeting to coordinate community efforts to solve the nursery shortage problem was held Tuesday in the offices of Dr. Ruth Temple. Dr. Temple is the vice-chairman of a large group formed several weeks ago by Assemblyman Augustus F. Hawkins to seek a solution to the child-care problem.

After survey groups of the CIO and Assemblyman Hawkins' body complete plans, a general, community-wide gathering will be held Feb. 8 at Sojourner Truth Home to thrash out ways and means of bringing the whole nursery situation to an effective head.

Meanwhile, registration of mothers who need nursery care for their children continues at CIO headquarters at 4310 Central avenue. A visit to the headquarters is not necessary, however. A phone call to AD-3321 will do the trick.

It is necessary for all mothers needing child care to register in advance before funds can be secured form the Board of Education for establishment of more Eastside nurseries.

Cannon Co. Union Is Reinstated

705-491 Vote at NLRB Election; Workers on Spot

Despite near solid voting of Negro workers in support of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a National Labor Relations Board election Monday at the Cannon Electrical Development Company, 3209 Humboldt St., found the notorious company union, Cannon Electric Employes Association, reinstated by a workers' vote of 705 to 491.

About 250 Negroes are employed at Cannon Electric.

CIO spokesmen stated following the election that support from the Negro workers was "astonishin," but that a race-baiting campaign by the company union, coupled with a number of gala parties, assertedly at company expense, had turned the tide in favor of the CEA.

The company union, which has taken no steps to insure upgrading of Negro workers, is supported at the firm by Richard K. Franklin, front man for Negro-baiting fascist outfits, who once threatened to lynch Negro Communist "greaseball Pettis Perry," and wrote a letter opposing "arrogant minorities" and the "14, 15 and 16th amendments to the Constitution."

Clear Driver in Death of Mrs. Hester

Following an inquest at the Hall of Records Tuesday at 1:30 p. m., a coroner's jury exonerated J. Mathis, white, of blame in the death of Mrs. Phoebe D. Hester, 1614½ West street, who was almost instantly killed when struck by Mathis' car early last Thursday morning at 36th and Western Ave.

According to witnesses the woman attempted to cross Western at about 7:30 a. m. and because of the darkness, Mathis' failed to see her in time and his machine, said to have been running at a 25 mile per hour speed, struck her full on.

Taken to the Georgia street receiving hospital, Mrs. Hester was pronounced dead on arrival.

Was From Texas

The deceased, a widow, a nauve of Galveston, Texas, had lived in this city for the past 22-years. She was well known on the West Side, and was a member of the Eighth and Towne AME church. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Dazell of this city; and by Norris Hester, a son, of Berkeley, who heads the printing department of a large San Francisco insurance company.

Services at People's

Funeral services were held in the Ivory Chapel of The People's Funeral Home on Wednesday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Frederick Jordan officiating. Burial was at Evergreen cemetery.

LOCKHEED WORKERS

IAM REFERENDUM ON RACE EXCLUSION SET

While Negro workers at Lockheed-Vega aircraft plants who pay dues to the International Association of Machinists, Local 727, continue to be stupefied when they learn they are not members of the union, a referendum of Local 727 members (white) to determine whether the union should sponsor a national referendum of all I. A. M. Locals and district's on the question of Negro exclusion came to a close this week with virtual assurance of a victory for those who favor Negro membership.

In an exclusive interview yesterday with EAGLE reporters, 727's Vice-President McNett stated that, although final tabulations had not been made, a clear victory for the referendum which would put Local 727 in the limelight as the sponsor of a national I. A. M. referendum on the Negro question was virtually assured.

Negro workers at the plant meanwhile are being asked to secure their dues from the union office pending outcome of the national referendum.

Labor experts here, however, state that a wiser policy for the referendum on this question.

The general referendum will follow.

The whole proceedure will probably consume several months, but if successful, a milestone in the history of American Labor will have been reached.

Extensive national and international preparations for the referendum are underway. The National Office of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the National Urban League, the National Negro Congress and similar organizations will be called in.

Negro workers at Lockheed-Vega form the nucleus of this national propaganda machine. An organization "For a Yea Vote On the Referendum" has been formed, headed by Herbert Ward, a worker.

All Lockheed-Vega employees are urged to contact this body. A letter to the California EAGLE at 4075 So. Central avenue, will be forwarded to the group, or it may be contacted by a phone call to PA-1966.

GOODYEAR WORKERS

C. I. O. Efforts Get 200 Women Jobs

The employment of upwards of 200 Negro women in production at Goodyear Tire company today brings quick memories of the morning not so many months ago when Negro girls applying at the Goodyear gates were rudely turned away.

Behind this tremendous change in company policies is a story of long struggle by the CIO Rubber Workers union,—and also a story of management turning right-about-face on the wrong policy.

Since the employment of Negro women became the policy of Goodyear management, CIO Rubber Workers report that they have been integrated thoroughly throughout the vast plant, serving in production in all departments.

JOINING THE UNION

Rubber Workers also state that Negro women are becoming unionized swiftly, joining the labor body and taking an active part in meetings.

Development of these new industrial workers is heid as one of the Rubber Workers prime war jobs, according to statements.

The employment and upgrading of Negro women workers at Goodyear grew directly out of presure upon the company from the CIO. When Los Angeles CIO chieftain Phil Connelly visited Washington at the time of the Congress' national convention, he called upon Pani V. McNutt to argue the case of Negro women workers at Goodyear.

PRIDE OF A NATION!

Madam, here's one TABOO you can forget when you want relief

You can thank your lucky stars that women are no longer squeamish about discussing their troubles. Otherwise you might never know of the 2-way help that CARDUI may bring when nervousness, headaches and cramp-like pain are due only to periodic functional causes.

Many women find that, started three days before the time and taken as directed, CARDUI aids in relieving functional periodic discomforts. Used as a tonic, CARDUI often wakes up sleepy appetites, aids digestion by increasing the flow of gastric juices, and thus helps to build up resistance against the days it's needed most. Try it!

. . . when they look at you and wonder as your restless, scratching fingers add more misery to those itching, burning, torturing pimples of external cause.

. . . better do this right about face.

Help yourself get comforting relief plus healing aid through the antiseptic action of Black and White Ointment. Soothes out itch and burn, too. A favorite with thousands and thousands of happy users for over 25 years. You must like it, too, or the store where you buy it will promptly refund purchase price. Demand the original and genuine Black and White Ointment today—look for its famous name and trademark. 10c, 25c, 50c; save most by buying the larger sizes of Black and White Ointment.

PENNIES FOR Victory!

UNCLE SAM, while spending billions, asks for the conservation of pennies.

Not because pennies are pennies but rather because they are stamped from copper, one of the most needed materials.

There's an easy way for Los Angeles to meet part of the government's request in this instance.

It requires three quarters of a ton of copper to supply the pennies necessary to make change on the cars and coaches every day, or about five tons each week. If this is multiplied by similar uses in other cities this total tonnage of copper makes a very material difference in our war effort.

We suggest that you estimate your number of rides and buy tokens from the operator to cover your needs each week. Tokens sell for 5 for 35c or 10 for 70c—7c per ride.

Let's save the pennies for Victory.

Randolph, 2 Companions Meet Canadian Jim Crow

While visiting Toronto, Montreal, and Winnipeg, Canada in the interest of the organization of the sleeping car and buffet car porters of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railroads, A. Philip Randolph, International President, M. P. Webster, 1st International Vice-President, and Bennie Smith, 2nd International Vice-President of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, saw how race prejudice operates in the Dominion of Canada.

In Toronto at the King Edward Hotel, one of the finest hotels on the North American continent, Messrs. Randolph and Webster, when reservations were obtained, the manager asked where they were going to eat? To this strange question they replied, "In the dining room, of course." The manager herewith retorted, "Well, you know how it is. Some of our guests might object. I thought you would not mind eating in the cafeteria. Mr. Webster replied, "Aren't we guests?" The manager continued, "Well, you know how it is". At this statement we retorted, "Yes, we know how it is. We are going to eat in the dining room."

Accordingly, we ate breakfasts and dinners in the dining room. No objections were raised by anybody. One evening when we were entering the dining room, the captain of the dining room pretended that he had something to do in another direction and retreated in confusion, but the head waiter graciously seated us.

At the swanky dance halls where Negro and white named bands from the United States play, Negroes are barred. But this discrimination is being fought vigorously by a group of Negro youth ranging from 16 to 21. While in Canada, Mr. Randolph addressed this group of Negro youth and also a group of white youth urging them to join hands and fight to eliminate this discrimination. He also advised Negroes in these Canadian cities to seek a civil rights law to insure their citizenship rights during the war. Plans are under way to develop a movement to this end and to cooperate with the Jewish groups who are also victimized by discrimination in getting a civil rights measure adopted by the parliament at Ottawa.

Race Lawyer Maps Defense of White Murder Suspect

Clyde W. Storgill (white) of 848 Wall street was arraigned last Friday morning before Judge Charles W. Fricke in Dept. 43 of the Superior Court on a charge of murder, arising out of the shooting to death of James Callos on Christmas day at the same address.

When Deputy District Attorney Arthur Veitch asked Storgill how did he plead to the murder charge the accused man answered in a firm, clear voice "not guilty." Standing beside him was his Attorney, Curtis C. Taylor, veteran criminal lawyer who has been retained as defense counsel, who asked Judge Fricke for an early trial and the jurist complied by setting the trial date for February 18th in Department 46 of the Superior Court.

Attorney Taylor waived the reading of the complaint, received a copy of the transcript of the preliminary hearing and immediately went into a study of its contents, after which he announced that his client fired the shots, if any, in self-defense and that he looked confidently forward to producing more than sufficient evidence to prove the innocence of his client when the case comes up for trial.

Witnesses at the preliminary hearing testified that the dead man came into the home of Storgill on Christmas day in a drunken condition and embraced the wife, Mrs. Storgill at which the husband took offense. It was further testified that the dead man struck Storgill when the latter protested his attentions.

Victor G. Jordan, experienced criminal investigator, is hard at work investigating all possible angles to build up an iron-clad defense for the accused man.

Bessie Miller 1st Round Victor in Court Fight

Mrs. Bessie Miller, wife of Curtis Miller, 947 E. 55th St. was awarded temporary alimony and Attorney's fees and the right to occupy the beautiful home of the parties by Judge Wm. S. Baird in Dept. 8 of the Superior Court, last Thursday morning, after her Attorney, Curtis C. Taylor had cited Mr. Miller into court on an order to show cause based upon the divorce complaint on the ground of cruelty against the well-known railroad man who is employed upon the private car of a high official of the Santa Fe Railroad Co.

Mrs. Miller came to court with her leg in a plastic cast from a broken ankle, leaning upon the arm of her attorney, who presented her case to Judge Baird.

A bitter fight is expected over the division of the community property which consist of an automobile and expensively furnished house on 55th to which approximately $1000 in improvements have ben recently made.

HOLLYWOOD CANTEEN, WHERE DEMOCRACY REIGNS

If here . . . why not everywhere?

The Victory Committee is to be commended for their fine work in bringing about a realistic State of Democracy while Bolstering the morale of our men in the armed forces.

NOBLE SISSLE AND THE WILLIE COVANS

The two appearances of Noble Sissle's Band with Willie Covan's show, Florence Covan and Florence Cadrez responsible for hostesses. A stupendous show that money could not buy . . . All attractions worthy of top billings; C. P. Johnson's band had the audience fairly jumping to his fine rhythm, when Ernest Whitman came on as master of ceremonies, introducing a steady flow of artists, Caleb Peterson, Sam (Deacon) McDaniel, Clarence Muse, Rex Ingram, Hattie Morrison, Nicodemus. The Team of Bond and Jackson and Olivette Miller, vocalist and harpist with The Great Noble Sissle.

Executive Committeeman, Baron Morehead had the cooperation of the press in person of Herman Hill, Harry Spates and the Sepia Winchell, Bill Smallwood.

Hostesses seen were popular Co-Eds from UCLA, Ernie Mae Maxey, Roberta Scott, USO, Eileen Cook and City College, Sarah Hunter and Estella Estes and Miss Jane Hampton. Sgt. Rutledge from the 775th M. P. Battalion and Sgt. Withers of the 75th Chemical Co. sent detachments of 150 men. All seemed to be enjoying themselves.

SUNDAY, JAN. 13

The Covans are again in charge of the afternoon entertainment at The Hollywood Canteen from 2 to 8 p. m. One of the most outstanding bands will be on hand to do their bit for the boys and hostesses may contact Florence Covan at ADams 9136.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES BALL, MUSIC TOWN

The latest to date was that Music Town was a scene of much gaiety. Jesse and Winifred Pierson were the star witnesses to this gala affair. Like unto a premiere of Hollywood celebrities the postal employees and their wives featured "up to the minute styles" in the most becoming manner. In recognition of gas rationing and the need for a centrally located gathering place, Bebb Spikes' Music Town was selected for the ultra smart spot.

NUPTIALS MILITARY

The New Year starts off with our very popular matrons going for military attachments. A popular beautician and hair stylist whose hand has been so much sought after by the Los Angeles eligible bachelors (No, I won't name the disappointed ones!). Capitulated to charms of Sgt. Lee Curtis Whittaker of the Yuma, Ariz. Army Air Force Advance Flying School and Friday afternoon, trained down to the Border Town, came back Mrs. L. C. Whittaker . . . Yes, it's Ella Mae Meadows of the Frank-Esther Beauty Salon.

Kathleen Norman surprised all but a few of her closest friends when she made her secret departure for Bissbee, Ariz. Lt. Wm. G. Shearin simply could not go to Ft. Benning, Ga. where an important asignment awaited him So January 9th, she smilingly said "I do" and she returned to Los Angeles as Mrs. William G. Shearin.

Rhemm jr. Finishes Manual Arts With Brilliant Record

Manual Arts High school held its semi-annual award assembly this week and among the 15 ROTC cadets to receive officers' commissions was Cadet Captain Ferguson Rhemm jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson Rhemm of W. 37th place.

Graduating the third highest ranking officer of his class and the first Negro to attain a commission in that organization since Lieut. Gross in 1940, young Rhemm is one of the three Negroes to achieve the rank of captain since establishment of the ROTC there during the first World War.

Rhemm's rise has been a rapid one, being promoted from corporal to first sergeant and then to captain within a year and a half. This rise began when he scored an average of 98% on four general information tests given in his second year. Last semester he maintained an average of 100% in classes covering map reading, musketry and drill and command, the highest in his class.

Majoring in mathematics, Rhemm has held a "B" average throughout his high school career. He will enter Los Angeles City college next semester for special military training.

VERY PROMINENT

Aside from military activities, "Fergie," as he is known to his many friends, was very prominent in other school activities. He earned two letters in track and was the school's leading varsity quartermiler last season.

This past semester he became the first Negro to belong to the Manual Arts Hi-Y in three years and the first colored member and chairman of the boys' merit board. He also held the position of publicity manager of the Aeolian club, the school's foremost glee club.

As the crowning achievement of this phenomenal high school career, he became the first colored student to gain membership in the Manual Arts Knights, the highest honor organization of the school, and to top it all was elected to the presidency of that organization.

Ferguson attended Ascot avenue and McKinley Jr. High schools before entering Manual Arts.

"I owe much of the credit for my 'success' to Mr. Otto Buss, former boys' vice principal of Manual and now principal of McKinley . . . A bit of philosophy to pass on, which, by the way, isn't very original, is—all races and people are fundamentally the same, they just react differently due to their environment and teachings. You'll find good and bad in every group; it is to your advantage to cultivate the finer points of every class."

As Long As Memory Shall Last . . .

WHEN one dearly loved passes from among us, that is not the end, though bitter parting it may be . . . because so long as memory shall last that dear one will be yet with us . . .

BECAUSE this is so, our institution realizes its great responsibility in making the Final Tribute a perfect thing . . . so that those precious memories are beautiful to the end . . . unmarred by a single jarring note.

THE quiet beauty of our Ivory Chapel, the dreaming strains of our hidden organ, the complete perfection of every detail of our service — all of these are designed to make your memory one whose shining lustre the years will not dim, nor time destroy.

Race Track GOSSIP

By Jay Gould

Nick Nickerson, remember you have a charming wife and son, so don't lose your head trying to keep up with Emery Haller, the golf player and sport.

About the happiest three people out Sunday night doing the town was Frank Winbon, Merrie Canady and Vera Hamilton playing all the live spots.

Mildred Iva one of the city's best play girls has lost her head and is now Mrs.——oh, what's his name?

Vera (waitress) Marshall at Jack's--why don't you step out on the white porch and say who you want between the two playboys--they are both swell lads.

Ida King back from Denver, Colo., looking like a million with an expensive fur hung on her with nerve enough to say it's cold here.

Mary Bently and Jap Bur, who just returned from L. A. had a swell time in the Town Club Sunday night but the 12 o'clock closing stopped them from getting tanked.

Bob Miles and Sweetwine, top bartenders on Sutter Street keep the register running over with cash.

Geraldine Miller and her hubby, Little Brother, was out doing the spots Sunday night.

Frank Candy Young, Jr. has skipped town but left no address. Wonder why? He couldn't have been in the red with no one.

Lizzie Warner, Florence Nea's mother, stepped off the streamline from L. A. singing Praise The Lord and Pass the Ammunition, and with 5 hundred bucks in her stockings, wearing diamonds, pearls and furs.

Katherine Bost spotted in the Alabam minus Percy, her husband.

Julius Delifus and Clarence Estelle, cocktail bar and tavern, will be all remodeled and open for business when you read this. It's on the corner of Fillmore and Post.

Hortense Reed, Dorothy Hammond and Pauline Sanders should come in for their part of praise for their work at the Town Club but Vernon Noble, the manager, says "No dice".

Milton G-man Strod and wife, mamie work ogether and have gotten a hotel in one of the busy little towns and are making good.

Tricky Sam Davis, the play boy and gambler of Los Angeles, is proud papa and wants the world to know it--the stork surprised the scales with a big one.

Sympathy to Mrs. John Taylor and daughter, who lost her husband last week.

Eva Kelly and Babe Parker, beauty parlor ladies, are open until 12 o'clock some nights on Webster street between Post and Sutter.

Stockton News

The glamour girls of Stockton are still on big time: Jean Haller and Babe Lundy, Sadie Roby, Minnie Lee and Mrs. Clarence Dunn.

Sgt. Palmer Pinckney of Stockton and points in the valley was seen at the fights, blowing his bankroll on the loser, Eddie Booker. Nat Earl, the only one of the 'Frisco gang to hit the winner, but he was suffering with the shorts and his bet was small.

Adel Ward was seen with Peg Armstrong and Irene Walter the night spots.

Oh where is Dorothy Ivy? The play boy from Los Angeles is playing without her but we are looking for her up in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jones, in party with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lee, all are out spending 100 dollar bills for small change. Money sure must be easy to get.

Mrs. May Thompson and Mrs. Nancy Person and their friend were out playing Mr. Person's big money, having their fun. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall was on the party, spending big money, 20 and 10 at a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shafford entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Amos of Berkeley and Sgt. Stevens of Berkeley Sunday night at the Town Club in San Francisco.

Roy Brazil and Roy Muldren are still playing hard at the Town Club.

For any information, write or see Jay Gould, 1716 Webster St., San Francisco. Phone: WAlnut 0974.

The three glamour pretties this week are Lucile Boyd, Willie May Hodge and Velda Wilson of 'Frisco.

The three best dressed women this week are Henrietta Whitby, Gladys Lewis and Thelma Nickerson, all of San Francisco.

The Big Question mark is who is Mrs. George Ganes, biggest female plunger at Santa Anita and Hollywood Park for three years and beat the game at Bay Meadows, for ten Gees after returning from Honolulu, especially to play the races, visit the late spots and see the sights.

Mr. Ready (I am a playboy) Martin, and Mr. Bobbie (I am a playboy) Bell, both tossed away five hundred each bucking each other at an all night party and paid the lady 30 bucks for her trouble.

L. D. (Playboy) Benton didn't fumble the ball after all as he's back with Mona Venti with a bale of 100 dollar bills.

Roosevelt Williams at Camp San Luis Obispo and head man of the Baker Shop and his best girl at San Mateo have agreed to disagree, because she bosses him much too much, telling him what to do and how to do it.

Lefty Blackwell, one of the top L. A. bartenders is at Camp San Luis Obispo laying low and sawing wood.

One of the sad happenings was the passing of Miss Zelma Smith of Seattle. Her sister Nellie Winslow of Los Angeles flew to her bedside before she passed.

Dorothy Pitty is what you call a real knockout, playing the Theatre Cafe at Jack's with a party of kin, grabing and paying all checks and staking the waitress to high tips.

Buddy and Gladys Pitman must the way they lay it on the line in cocktail bars and night clubs. Some sports.

Miss Mildred Maxwell—you never looked more lovely than you did t'other night sipping choice drinks at the Alabam, sporting a late style hat with the brim pointed over one eye, making your face look pretty—some gal.

Miss Blanch Madra, why use the movie waves as the Beauty Shop ladies in 'Frisco stand out as there is no burning, scorching or pulling your hair while relaxing.

See Mrs. Bea Parker, beauty lady, has rented a space at the Webster Street Beauty Salon.

Naomi Gibson—see you circulating yourself around the city in your 1942 car regardless of the gas rationing.

Vera (I am Mrs.) ex-Hamilton smiled from ear to ear, when playboy Frank Windbun sailed into the San Francisco port.

Ruth (I am play-girl) Whitfield—don't worry about your ex on Webster Street as he's on the loose, making 12 bucks each pay day and don't want nobody.

A certain lady on Webster st, in the 16 hundred block should visit Margo--broadcast program. She might learn how to keep her mouth shut and not open it unless she's going to say something good about somebody in the world.

See Dorothy ex-Smith didn't act so chesty t'other day with her Army long coat with Big Brass Buttons and Flower Pot hat made of the same gods.

Peaches Lee with her school girl look and apple red cheeks is working in the shipyards, . . . so what!

Geraldine Miller and that pretty Cleo from Kansas City was a sensation while out doing the town.

Flash: Sam Burney--when a woman keeps yelling "no dice" which means nothing doing, why doing, why don't you get hip and wiggle away instead of trying to give your money away while tanked.

Little Jimmie, Leslie Chandler's brother--shame on you for using such strong words in profanity when you get high.

Somebody should tell Mr. Marion Taylor to let bygones be bygones and get himself another girl as he is young and smart on all games, and get on the water wagon for a while.

Hats off to John Henry, playboy, and sport for finally forgetting Dee Dee Hackett, who walked out on him and skipped to Seattle.

The Club Alabam using a non-coin telephone which is more trouble than the customers to them. If it was a coin phone, they could get enough rebate to pay part of the rent--two big old boobs.

Cal Williams, day bartender, at the Town Club and Broadway Brown of New York, day bartender at the Alabam, are doing a terrific business for their bosses.

Cleo Foster was turned down in the Army because he was 39 years old and Janie Foster has been a good girl ever since he left for camp.

Genevieve Friend, Little Mama and Ray Boughenight have taken on new laurels since the holidays.

Probably Miss Ione Darsey will change with the New Year and try to be sweet sometimes instead of being sour.

Myrtle Bishop, torch singer, must be saving up her dough for the opening of Bay Meadows, February the 22nd as he hasn't showed around Tan Town lately.

Miss Jap Burr and Red Head Barber who are thick as two peas in a pod can be seen floy-floying in and out of the high spots, spending coin.

Clarence Estel is on the sick list and everybody has their fingers crossed rooting for his recovery. Clarence has plenty coming in daily.

George Ramsey and Grant Edison at San Diego are all set for the opening of the Mexico City race track as cash is no object to them.

More than 11 million books were donated by the public in the 1942 Victory Book Campaign, and about half of these, after sorting for condition and for subject matter, were considered suitable for distribution to our fighting men.

Refuse collectors in Elmhurst, Ill., report everyone who throws away tin cans, and town officials then remind these people of the need to save cans.

Miss Carroll contributes her bit to the war effort in her daily work. She is one of the thousands of Negro girls now filling clerical positions in the Nation's Capital.

HERMAN T. SMITH

Herman Smith Making Big Record With Pepsi-Cola

HERMAN T. SMITH

Several years ago Pepsi-Cola broke into the news with the announcement that Herman T. Smith, well known race promotion and former newspaper man, had been appointed to an important post in the Company's National Sales organization.

In spite of the war and general business curtailment, Mr. Smith's work in the Company has increased and additional Negroes have been employed by the parent Pepsi-Cola Company and its independent bottlers. Today, in addition to Mr. Smith, six other Negro men and two young ladies have been employed in the National Office of the Company and 23 Negro salesmen have been employed by the Company's independent bottlers scattered throughout the country.

Negroes in Pepsi-Cola's national offices now include Herman T. Smith as director, Miss Jeanette Maund from Hampton Institute, Miss Marion O. Bond from Lane College, Mr. Allan C. McKellar from South Carolina State College, and Phillip Kane from Morgan College, all in National Sales; Mr. Thomas C. Richter from Howard University, Mr. Thomas C. Livingston, Lincoln, (Pa.) University, Mr. Joseph Christian, former advertising manager of Amsterdam Star News, and Peoples Voice, and Attorney Ed Dudley, former assistant New York State Attorney General, who are doing a special work in Army Camps, of a morale building nature, sponsored by Pepsi-Cola Company.

Mr. Livingston and Mr. Kane are now members of our Armed Forces. In addition to these Negroes in the white collar bracket, several hundred additional Negroes have been employed in many Pepsi-Cola plants.

Mr. Smith directs the efforts of this Negro group and they are an important cog in most Company operations.

HERMAN, the ASTROLOGER, care of THE CALIPEACE, IT'S WONDERFUL

Are we in danger of losing our power of concentration? In this modern day and cry is for speed and more speed. Speed however, has many advantages. It is a fine thing to be able to travel to distant points in a short period of time--especially when it concerns administering relief to the suffering, and keeping the enemy from our door step.

Speed likewise has its disadvantages, for it makes the world smaller and nature's handiwork less wonderful. It transfers our awe from the beauty of the wayside to the marvel of inventive genius for whirling us past it at a tremendous pace.

There is the clatter of the industrial wranglings, mental problems, international ferments and war-torn world. We are making too much noise and so many beautiful things of life are lost in the hustle and bustle. Let us take just a little more time to absorb God's wonderful works--appreciate His snowflakes, sunshine, raindrops and His other treasures. Concentrate on the finer things of life, for peace, contentment and happiness.

G. S.—Dear Prof. Herman: I am writing you to thank you for your help and advice. We have moved and my husband found work just as you said he would. We seem to be getting along much better, thanks to you. I will write in for my double Strength Charm Bag next week.

M. Y. H.—What does my friend think?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates the fact that your friend lost $35.00 while yoou were visiting there and you are wondering if he thinks you took it. Dismiss your doubts and fears from your mind, as your friend now knows how the money was lost.

E. B.—Will my friend ever come back to see me again?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that your friend has been busy, doing Defense Work and hasn't had time to do much visiting. But you will hear from him soon, as his hours have been changed, so that he might have more time off.

E. M. R.—Should I give my husband another chance?

Ans.—My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals the situation now existing between you and your husband and the fact that you are considering a reconciliation. I suggest that you try again, and profit by your mistakes. You both care a great deal for each other and should be able to get along nicely.

L. S.—Dear Sir: I received my Charm Bag about 3 weeks ago and must say it is just wonderful. Things are happening that never happened before. The boy-friend I have been going with for the past few years is acting much better, and my job is also going nicely. I am telling my many friends about you and your works, Professor.

A. D. A.—I am in love with a man that is real nice to me. I love him and want to marry him but he has never ask me to. We both have been married before. Will this man ever marry me?

Ans. It appears that this man has wanted to ask you to marry him, but thought you were against marriage because your first one wasn't successful. You should discuss this matter with him, as he doesn't know how you feel, and you will be surprised at the results.

J. D. F.—Will I be disappointed?

Ans.—Your lucky Stars and Guiding Planet indicate your being satisfied with the results from your venture. Don't expect too much from life, for you only get out of it, what you put into it.

N. R.—Will I get my job back?

Ans.—Your Zodiacal sign indicates the fact that you will either get your old job back, or another one equally as good in the next few days.

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL L. HACKETT, Sr.

Last week we promised you the low down on the conference to be held on wage legislation. Brothers the results exceeded our fondest desires in the form of complete unity in agreeing that all Federal employees should receive a living salary. The Los Angeles Postal Organization Council voted unanimously to adopt the resolutions presented by the United Federal Workers of America, Local No. 191. As Mead Bill S. 360 now stands it only includes clerks, carriers, postal laborers and Motor Vehicle employees.

At last post office employees have gotten together on one bill and Los Angeles has set the precedent. Let us hope that all of the other cities will follow suit. With the general public behind us and all Federal employees working together we can put an effective bill over.

For the benefit of those who are interested in the bill we are printing the resolution in its entirity.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas: The President has expressed a desire to equalize all Federal Employees salaries to meet the rising cost of living; and

Whereas: Legislation has not been enacted to provide adequate salaries for postal laborers, custodial laborers, elevator operators, oilers and wipers, window washers, station cleaners, or special delivery carriers; and

Whereas: Bills H. R. 1075 and H. R. 6217 have only provided within grade promotions and reclassification for custodial employees; and

Whereas: It takes seven years for these employees to reach the top grade, when an adjustment is needed immediately; and

Whereas: Many post office employees are still receiving a maximum of $1200 per annum which is not a living salary; and

Whereas: The cost of housing and price of commodities cost all Federal employees approximately the same, thereby working greater hardships upon substandard salaries; and

Whereas: Mead Bill S. 360 does not include all Federal employees in its provisions in spite of the immediate needs of employees receiving less than $1500 per annum; and

Whereas: Exclusion of the above employees mentioned will have a disastrous effect by increasing the turnover which is already alarmingly high.

Resolved: That the United Federal Workers of America, Local No. 191 goes on record to petition all Senators and Congressmen to include all Federal Employees in the provision of Mead Bill S. 360

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to every Senator and Congressman and also a copy be sent to every post office local.

Adopted: January 24, 1943.

Medic to Run in Baltimore's Council Race

BALTIMORE, Md.—The recent endorsement of Dr. J. Leslie Jones by a representative group of Baltimore, Maryland citizens for the office of Councilman in the forthcoming City election is an indication of the significant part the race is playing in the fight for political freedom today.

Dr. Jones, president of the City-Wide Republican Club is well known for the active part he played in his effort to better conditions for the race generally. One of the "Oriole City's" most untiring professional men, he is kept constantly on the go and is held in high esteem by persons in all walks of life.

L. A. Business Woman Joins Colors

MRS. VIOLA SUAREZ

Mrs. Viola Suarez, one of our most successful business women, has given up a lucrative business in the field of beauty work for war work with the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

Her ability and perseverence placed her in the fore ranks of beauticians in San Francisco, and made her a decided success in Los Angeles.

For a time she was sole owner of the Vernon Beauty Studio, 1166 E. Vernon Ave. Realizing that two can build bigger than one, she sold half interest to Mrs. Corene Judkins. The partners remodeled their shop, making it convenient and beautiful. The convenience of the shop and the excellency of their work brought them more customers than they could accomodate.

Friends and customers alike regret the retirement of Mrs. Judkins and Mrs. Suarez's decision to choose work in another field.

MRS. CORENE JUDKINS

However, the new owner, Mrs. Beatrice Robinson, is capable and experienced, so those who seek service at the Vernon Beauty Studio will be expertly groomed. Mrs. Ida Mae Hubbard, competent operator is working with Mrs. Robinson.

Serviceable gifts to be used in her new work and social functions given in her honor attest to the esteem in which Mrs. Suarez is held. Space will not permit us to mention the gifts nor the givers. We can only mention those who provided entertainment for her. They are as follows: Atty and Mrs. Willis O. Tyler, Frederick Douglas Unit of the Republican Study Club, Rev. Geraldine Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Judkins and Mrs. Myrtle Campbell.

FEPC Must Be Saved!

A stern task confronts Negro-America today, one demanding immediate organization of the masses of our people, alongside all progressive citizens, to demand re-opening of the hearings of the Fair Employment Practice Committee.

When Paul V. McNutt summarily ordered the discontinuation of the Committee's hearings on discrimination in the railroad industry, a mighty blow was struck for the war effort of the Axis nations.

A fundamentally necessary policy of the Roosevelt win-the-war Administration is at stake. Indications that the extreme seriousness of the situation is appreciated thruout the length and breadth of the nation are found in the resignations of Malcolm S. MacLean, chairman of the F.E.P.C., and that of William Hastie from the War Department. McLean's action, in effect, is a testimony from the Committee's chief that the McNutt order is a fatal blow to this vital anti-discrimination agency.

In New York, a state-wide conference is under preparation to mobilize the win-the-war millions of that state in the demand for re-opening of F.E.P.C. operations. In Los Angeles, the Negro Victory Committee plans similar action. The NAACP has already swung into the forefront with a community wide plea for protest letters to Paul V. McNutt. Walter White has struck a resounding blow at the cancellation. The National Negro Congress, the Federation for Constitutional Liberties, Wendell Willkie, Max Yergan,—all these individuals and organizations tell us that a basic struggle is underway. The people, in broad masses, must be brought into the fight.

To accomplish its ends, however, the demand for re-opening of the F.E.P.C. hearings must be based upon a clear understanding of the political situation out of which the cancellation grew in the first place.

It was not an automatic expression of malevolence on the part of McNutt or the President. The hearings were scuttled following a bitter campaign against them conducted by the reactionary forces lined up today in solid opposition to the whole network of vital measures necessary for the winning of the war. It is the same force which caused the dismissal of Leon Henderson, former Office of Price Administration head. It is the same force which at this moment is launching its great, defeatist drive against the lend-lease Act, the Wagner Labor Relations Act, the price control system: it is the same sinister force which sees in the limitation of salaries of 11,000 Americans to a paltry $25,000 per year a major conspiracy against the freedom of mankind.

This force draws its practical political strength from 1—the corrupt poll tax section of Congress, 2—the appeaser Republican section of Congress, 3—fully ninety percent of the major American press, including United Press, Associate Press, and the International News Service, 4—the big fascist American money centered in the National Association of Manufacturers, whose recent convention announced that its principal task, disregarding completely the war for survival,—is "to keep Roosevelt on the run."

Aims at Production

The main objective of those who forced the cancellation of the Fair Employment Practice Committee hearings was not an assault upon the rights of Negroes but an assault upon war production, upon which victory ultimately depends. As such, it fits snugly into the whole 78th Congressional conspiracy against the Administration and its win-the-war policies, among which equal employment of Negroes is an essential.

Those who drove McNutt to the postponement are comparable precisely to the Copperheads of Lincoln's Administration, quislings of the Hitler fascist regime just as the Copperheads were quislings of the slaveocracy.

The Administration's retreat before this Copperhead assault grows out of the practical weakness of its position in Washington at this moment. Along with all of America's common people, Negroes share in the responsibility for this weakness. Our support of the President's win-the-war policies has not been thorough or consistent. Large sections of the Negro electorate contributed to the elevation of outright Roosevelt-hating defeatists in the Nov. 3 elections. A substantial section of Negro leadership has levelled its severest invective at the President rather than those Hitlerite elements which have often tied his hands.

Nevertheless,—and regardless of its strategic weakness at the moment,—the Administration blundered seriously in crumbling meekly before the reactionary drive of the poll taxers and the lords of the railways. Its practical political position was not strengthened; it was weakened. Moreover, the action will cause wide discouragement and disillusionment among the masses of Americans upon whom the President must depend for his sole support against the high toned plots of Big Money and the Corrupt Congress. This retreat will not appease the appeasers. It will embolden them.

Our Path Is Clear

To the Negro people and all progressive, victory-determined America, the path is clear. We must strengthen the President that he may move swiftly and courageously against the den of defeatists who have engineered this debacle. The key to our struggle is this: in the face of a national man-power shortage, already threatening to tie up war production and war transportation, any retreat before prejudice-as-usual,—aimed at squandering the nation's most necessary war resource, man-power, is a step in the direction of national suicide and defeat, and those who argue for such defeat are, willingly or unwillingly, obstructing America's war effort.

What is the alternative, incorrect argument?

It is that of A. Philip Randolph, who mistakenly places the full weight of his denunciation upon the head of the President. Comparatively unattacked by him are the poll taxers, the Republican defeatists, the big American fascists, the big press,—the real source of the F.E.P.C. postponement. It is the President who is the villain. It is he who personally instructed McNutt to reverse his own policy as enunciated in executive order 8802. Randolph's position unites the Negro people with Bilbo, Rankin, Hearst, Lamont Dupont, Taft, Vandenburg, Hoover, et al, against Roosevelt, Wallace, Pepper, and the other spokesmen for the century of the common man.

This is seriously wrong. Our job is to demand Roosevelt's forthright action against these appeasers, defeatists and traitors. It is not our role to join such worthies in an orgy of Roosevelt-hating. It is as though Negroes of 1863 had joined the Copperheads and Dixie-sympathizers against Lincoln, who, incidentally, committed the same blunders which Roosevelt repeats today.

White Is Right

Resoundingly correct is the statement of Walter White in a letter to the chief executive, as follows:

"We want you to know that we understand and are deeply sympathetic with you personally because of the difficulties which the making of such a decision will entail. (the decision to re-open FEPC hearings) We know the terrible dilemma you face in the 78th Congress because of the coalition formed against you and against all liberal legislation by members of the Congress of your own party from the South, and of certain members of the Republican party. We have been informed of the lobbying being done among these members of the Congress by representatives of the railway brotherhoods and some of the representatives of the railroads who bitterly oppose any action which would attempt to correct the vicious discrimination against Negroes on certain of the public carriers of the United States. But we respectfully submit that any surrender to such forces, or any manifestation of weakness in the face of the barrage from them would be disastrous not only for the Negro but for the principles of democracy itself. Temporizing can only encourage those persons who wish to perpetuate the status quo with all its inequalities an ddiscriminations."

As a fundamental step in the direction of solving the American man-power problem, the Negro as well as every other citizen must be fully integrated in war industry and transportation. The railroads are not immune to the demands of an all-out global war, of an America which must supply the battlefronts of the world.

This is our cry. We must rally the black millions behind it.

We must rout the tools of Hitler who place race-hate above national victory!

★ W. J. WHEATON

Recently we sat in a meeting of the Bay Area Council Against Discrimination. It was rather an interesting meeting, and was presided over by Attorney Walter Gordon. The Council is sponsored by some of the leading citizens of the Bay Area. Non racial and among the sponsors are many of the leaders in civic affairs. Lawyers, judges, trade unionist and newsmen.

A very concise and logical report was made by a chairman of the Educational Committee (Mr. Grossman) he laid out a plan that seemed quite workable. The most of the grievance seemed to come from Negro shipworkers who made mention of many gross acts of discrimination. Especially in the matter of upgrading. As far as we learn from the protestors the blame rested with the foremen of the unions. But one worker, white, said that the managers of the yards and the foremen were quite adept in passing the buck. There was quite an amount of forensic display, and very little planning. Letters of protest to senators, congressmen and the President concerning complaints of men in the armed service and quite a bit of indignation because the Negro M. P.s carried clubs only and white M. P.s were carrying side arms. From reports coming from some sources the Negro M. P.s are sometimes very reckless with their guns and are inclined to use them very recklessly on the slightest provocation. From all reports the Negro soldier is making history. General Eisenhower commends them highly and the commander of the division stationed at Camp Huachuca, Ariz. That division comprises every branch of combat service. The commanding General claims that they have been trained intensively and are fit for a grueling service, and that he is proud of them. He makes the statement that the medical contingent of doctors are the equal of any in the service. All in all things could be worse. That does not mean that they could not be better.

There is one lone woman in the legislature. She is Catherine T. Neirhouse (Rep.) of San Diego. She is one legislator who believes that there should be no discrimination made because of race, creed, or color. In her Representative Hawkins will find an ardent and able advocate in his fight against the racial prejudice and its inherent adjuncts. The anti-Lynching and anti-Poll Tax bills which are presented by Representative Marcantonia (N. Y.) has the southern fellows all jittery. McKenzie (D. La.) Threatens to form a new political party if Marcantonia is appointed to the Judicial Committee and made its chairman. He. McKenzie, claims that the "New Deal" is trying to sabotage the South, and he eminates a lot of bosh that is a reflectilon on every intelligent southern member. That is--. Those bills necessarily go before the Judiciary Committee and the chairman wields some power.

It is hardly possible that the appointment will be blocked. Conressman Marcantonia is also a Democrat. McKenzie blames the "New Deal" for furthering the Marcantonia place on the Judiciary Committee, and still there are those who say that the Chief of the Nation is not concerned about the minority group. It was a fine blow to the solar plexus that the Pittsburg Courier gave to "On To Washington March" Randolph. Such demonstrations savor as much on the demagougic as the mouthings of the soap box orator. What we want, and what we need is a leadership that wears the cloak of dignified statesmanship. Such demonstrations as sponsored by Phillip Randolph does more to hinder the objectives, for which we strive, than helpful. To win the objectives we must use logic and strategy in the presentation of the case, and depend on persuasive argument to convince the intelligent public of its justness. Demonstrations such as the march proposed by Randolph--and we do not doubt his sincerity--have not, can not, bring about the democratic equality of citizenship. The existing racial conditions are known.

Even the illiterate dwellers of the Ozarks know of the obstacles which face the Negro. The Talmages, Bilbos and McKenzies have seen to that. There must be a campaign of education to awake from their apathy those who have been lulled to sleep because our cause has not been brought directly to them. We have often come in contact with influential people who, although cognizant of racial inhibitions and discriminations in national, and civic affairs have never gave them more than a passing thought because they had never been approached. We have knowledge that many of those people have been brought to see that democracy means equality of opportunity for all. And to our knowledge, they have demonstrated it.

This is an opportunity to sink deep the wedge into the roots of racial prejudice which we should not neglect. There should be, there must be, a planning to see that racial inequalities are erased forever. This nation must be taught to know that not only is it necessary that nations be allowed to be governed in their own way, but that democracy, to survive, must prevail at home. You women who have contacts with the influential women of other racial groups, such women as Representative Nierhouse, can do much good and could enlist her to contact others of her constituents in making the fight for equal rights of citizenship. It must be impressed, brought home with forceful logic, that there can be no true democracy unless every man, woman and child is given the same opportunity to rise or fall according to his or her ability to survive. None should be shackled because of Race or Religious belief. We believe that there is a motto or a slogan emblazoned on the banner of our women that reads "Lifting As We Climb." Yours is that you are equal to the task. a great opportunity. We know that you are equal to the task.

★ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mrs. Bass:

I feel that I would be doing the Eagle an injustice if I did not send a bit of news of my experience on the Santifee Trailways Bus from Los Angeles to Little Rock, Arkansas. We left L. A. Saturday night, Dec. 19, 1942. As the Trailway adhere strictly to the law of 35 miles per hour, we semed to be progressing very slowly in traveling. I must say that we got along nicely except one or two places in Arizona.

Another colored man, three white men, two white women and I rode together to Amarillo, Tex. We chatted together freely, had a very nice time until we got to Amarillo, there is where trouble started. The colored men and women have to use the same rest room, and that is when I came very near being put in jail. Some words passed between myself and the Station Master that would not look very good in print. It has ben 19 years since I visited this part of the country, and I think it will be more than 19 years before I will visit it again.

The three white men and two white women came as far as Muskogee, Okla., but the bus driver saw to it that we did not ride together from Amarillo to Muskogee. When we arrived there they shook hands and said goodbye to me.

If this escapes your wastebasket I hope to see it in your valued paper next week. Wishing a very prosperous and happy year for both you and your most paper, I am

Very respectfully,
D. M. Johnson.

P. S.—I will be leaving here tomorrow at 2:15 p. m. for dear old Los Angeles, but over a different route.

My dear Mrs. Bass:

Enclosed is my check covering a year's subscription to the California Eagle.

It is my favorite Negro paper. I especially enjoy Bill Smallwood's society column and your frank and fearless publication of items so vital to our race.

Very sincerely,

Second Baptist Marching On to Victory

The Main Auditorium was filled last Sunday morning to witness the Rally of the Second Baptist members to raise $2,000.00 in a week.

The minister preached from the subject: "People With A Mind to Work." And the people indeed have a mind to work, for at the close of the services the members of the church raised $2,298.55.

Be sure to attend the services at Second Baptist Sunday morning and hear another surprise in regard to the $55 in '44 Rally.

★ SPREADING JOY

In spite of gas rationing and poor transportation the Pioneer Club journeyed out to Watts last Tuesday night for their first meeting of 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gault of 2106 E. 105th street, flung open their palatial home to the club, where the following Citizens Committee, under the guidance of Mrs. Bennie Meadows was on hand to greet and welcome the Pioneers. Constituting the committee were: Rev. and Mrs. Ferrell, Mrs. Luke, Mrs. Dunn and the Meadows.

Among the other guests were Rev. Baxter Duke, and Rev. Grace Williams, a pioneer resident of Watts and Miss Johnnie West.

With Mrs. Cora Bleet, the President in the chair, the business of the club was concluded, followed by a short musical program by those two talented sons of the Gaults.

Of course you remember the Gaults, James Gault came to California with a group of immigrants in the spring of 1887; was one of the early members in "Old Wesley", he is the father of Lonnie Gault well known to the pioneers.

The Gaults are one of the substantial families of Watts and their home, situated at the corner of 105th and Lou Dillon Streets, is one of the show places of Watts.

During the program, Mrs. Meadows in a brilliant manner, extended welcome to the club in behalf of the people of Watts, she was followed by the Rev. Ferrell the popular young pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church and Rev. Grace Williams, a pioneer of Watts, who remembers when Watts was just a wide place in the road between Compton and Los Angeles.

Rev. Dukes delivered an inspired talk in which he encouraged the trail blazers to keep on the way of the pathfinder.

Official notice was taken of the passing of pioneer, Boyle Workman and Marcus Hellman. A pleasant interlude was the phone message of greeting from Mrs. Henrietta Fowler Inman, of Oakland.

Among the regulars who drove to Watts for the meeting were Mesdames Cora Buck, Laura Young, Spillar, Robinson, S. Brueington, Nancy Warner, Martha Barr, the inspired poetess Esther Bruce and William Gray Messers James Alexander, Will Gray, Will Posey, John Seller, A. Walker and young Qualls, the son of pioneer William Qualls once famous as the leading cornet player on the famous brass band made famous by Pro. Toney.

The heaping platters of light and semi-heavy refreshments were a fitting climax to a very enteresting session of the pioneers, the first of the New Year.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Martha Barr on East 43rd street.

Some of those still on the sick list and who I am asking you to remember in your prayers are Mrs. Dan Smith, 1126 E. 20th; Mrs. Myrtle Carter Crumbley, Wilson Sanitarium, E. 103rd St. Watts, opposite Jordan high school; Mrs. Mamie V. Holt, 112 So. Serrano; Mrs. Sallie Richardson, 1044 E. Washington; Harry Frye, 1208 E. 21st St.; William Wells, 1056 Washington and Albert Lewis, jr. at the Veteran Hospital, San Fernando.

In the passing of Pioneer Boyle Workman, California has lost a valuable son; Los Angeles has lost one of its true historians, and the Negro People of Los Angeles, one of our staunchest defenders.

In his books, in his private conversations and everywhere, he spoke kindly of colored people and the important part they have played in his life, of the presence of Colored People, at least one at the wedding of his mother and father and of our beloved Biddy Mason, who was the midwife and was in attendance when he was born. Peace to his memory.

Here they come the old sweethearts headed by Mr. and Mrs. Battles of East 113th Street, parents of Tom Duckett. My Congratulations.

★ The WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

NO EASY WAY

President Roosevelt last week warned us to pull in our belts and prepare for a simpler life, minus the frills to which we have been accustomed. "There is no easy, pleasant way to wage total war," he advised. "Production of goods should be simplified and standardized; unnecessary costs and frills should be eliminated. Total war demands the simplification of American life. We save rubber, metal, fats, carry coupons, answer questionnaires. This is all new. We have overdone it in many cases, but we are learning the simpler and better methods. But remember always that reaching the objective is what counts. There is no easy, pleasant way to restrict the living habits--the eating, clothing, heating, travel, and working habits--of 130 million people." That puts it to us just about the way it is. Trial and error is bound to appear in government as in individual business. We're an impatient people. We don't like too much trial and too much error, but once rationing gets well under way so we know we can depend on the equity of coupons, most persons will tighten their belts uncomplainingly.

MORE BREAKS IN THE ARMOR?

With the supreme Russian war offensive under way at Voronezh, and the progress at Allied positions in North Africa continuing favorable, the cracking of the German armor in the Balkans makes another formidable breach. Ankara and Berne dispatches reported that Germans had arrested 25,000 Bulgarians, and that Rumania and Bulgaria were in a state of near-rebellion. Tass, the Russian news agency, reported Rumanian jails overflowing. The censorship in all countries necessarily veils reliable stories of such activities, but men jailed indicate that someone was doing something! A thoroughly rebellious populace in any of the Hitlerheld countries could break things wide open. But the people are hungry--and not very strong. You can't foment anti-Nazi rebellions on an empty stomach.

RATION BANKING

If you have a calendar handy, begin chalking up things to be remembered this month. The New Year put the Victory Tax in our pockets, and before it is a month old, ration banking will have begun on a nationwide scale. Approved by the OPA and the American Bankers Association, it goes into effect January 27. This does not affect John Q. Public--contrary to the supposition of some who have asked bank tellers if it means that their bank accounts are to be rationed! "Ration Banking" belongs only to retailers and banks. All retailers of rationed foods, whose December sales were $5000 or more, food wholesalers and wholesale distributors of gasoline, must use the system. Merchants will open special ration coupon accounts at the banks as a convenience in redeeming coupons, for replacement of rationed stocks. Uncle Sam will be relying heavily upon the 13,000 commercial banks in the country which carry checking accounts—a system which suits coupon banking. Without these systems, nationwide, whole new coupon banking agencies would have been necessary for every community--and we could afford none of these. The banks will need the understanding of citizens and government in doing the job, inasmuch as the early stages of aynthing new are apt to have growing pains. But the public should remember that ration banking doesn't refer to money--only to the coupons you turn in for food--which your retailer must "bank".

MORE NAZI BLACKMAIL

American diplomats, newspapermen, and relief workers, held by the Vichy government at Lourdes, have been seized by the Germans as pawns for the German Armistice Commission, imprisoned by American troops in North Africa. The State Department offered to exchange French diplomats and journalists caught in the U. S., but this was the wrong answer. The Germans refused.

THE WORKS SPEAK

The passing last week of Charles Caldwell Dobie, San Francisco author of national renown, and of John McLaren of Golden Gate Park memory, marked an era. Mr. Dobie has written for the best national magazines for many years, and his books of this locale are among the good things of our time. "Uncle John" McLaren, that Scottish wizard of soils, died just a day later. Both men leave memorials of themselves--the one, in the beauty of the written word, the other, in the fadeless garden, wrought out of sand dunes into one of the world's most famed and beautiful parks. These men need no words of ours. Their works live after them.

Civil Liberties Union to Appeal Case of Draftee

A decision to challenge further the constitutionality of draft quotas based on color by appealing from the refusal of the Brooklyn federal court this month to grant a writ of habeas corpus to Winfred Lynn, Negro draftee of New York City, was announced by the American Civil Liberties Union today.

The court's denial of the writ was based on the contention that Lynn had suffered no damage because of color in being called as one in a group of fifty Negroes requested of his draft board by the army last September, rather than in numerical order. In answer, Arthur Garfield Hays, ACLU counsel representing Lynn, charged that "since the theory of the government is that to serve is a privilege, it is definitely discriminatory to choose men out of turn when such selection depends in part upon the color of the inductee." Hays cited the provision of the Selective Service Act that "in the selection and training of men for service there shall be no discrimination on account of race or color."

Lynn's appeal to the federal circuit court will be the third court contest of his induction on ground of discrimination. Shortly after his board first called him, he sought a writ in the Brooklyn federal court which the judge denied, holding that an induction order cannot be challenged until the draftee has submitted to it. Following the court's direction, Lynn then offered himself for induction and sought release from the army on another writ. Denial of this second writ on the ground of "no damage" is the basis for the Union's scheduled appeal.

AN EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA EAGLE SERIAL

"NATIVE SON" ★

From the book by
RICHARD WRIGHT

The coroner rapped for order, then rose and stepped to the table and with one sweep of his arm flung the sheet back from Bessie's body. The sight, bloody and black, made Bigger flinch involuntarily and lift his hands to his eyes and at the same instant he saw blinding flashes of the silver bulbs flicking through the air. His eyes looked with painful effort to the back of the room, for he felt that if he saw Bessie again he would rise from his chair and sweep his arm in an attempt to blot out this room and the people in it. Every nerve of his body helped him to stare without seeing and to sit amid the noise without hearing.

A pain came to the front of his head, right above the eyes. As the slow minutes dragged, his body was drenched in cold sweat. His blood throbbed in his ears; his lips were parched and dry; he wanted to wet them with his tongue, but could not. The tense effort to keep out of his consciousness the terrible sight of Bessie and the drone of the voices would not allow him to move a single muscle. He sat still, surrounded by an invisible cast of concrete. Then he could hold out no longer. He bent forward and buried his face in his hands. He heard a far-away voice speaking from a great height . . .

"The jury will retire to the next room."

Bigger lifted his head and saw the six men rise and file out through a rear door. The sheet had been pulled over Bessie's body and he could not see her. The voices in the room grew loud and the coroner rapped for order. The six men filed slowly back to their chairs. One of them gave the coroner a slip of paper. The coroner rose, lifted his hand for silence and read a long string of words that Bigger could not understand. But he caught phrases:

". . . the said Mary Dalton came to her death in the bedroom of her home, located at 4605 Drexel Boulevard, from suffocation and strangulation due to external violence, said violence received when the deceased was choked by the hands of one, Bigger Thomas, during the course of criminal rape . . .

". . . we, the Jury, believe that the said occurrence was murder and recommend that the said Bigger Thomas be held to the Grand Jury on a charge of murder, until released by due process of law . . ."

The voice droned on, but Bigger did not listen. This meant that he was going to jail to stay there until tried and executed. Finally, the coroner's voice stopped. The room was full of noise. Bigger heard men and women walking past him. He looked about like a man waking from a deep sleep. Max had hold of his arm.

"Bigger?"

He turned his head slightly.

"I'll see you tonight. They're taking you to the Cook County Jail. I'll come there and talk things over with you. We'll see what can be done. Meanwhile, take it easy. As soon as you can, lie down and get some sleep, hear?"

Max left him. He saw two policemen wheeling Bessie's body back through the door. The two policemen who sat to either side of him took his arms and locked his wrists to theirs. Two more policemen stood in front of him and two more stood in back.

"Come on, boy."

Two policemen walked ahead, making a path for him in the dense crowd. As he passed white men and women they were silent, but as soon as he was some few feet away, he heard their voices rise. They took him out of the front door, into the hall. He thought that they were going to take him back upstairs and he made a motion to go in the direction of the elevator, but they jerked him back roughly.

"This way!"

They led him out of the front door of the building, to the street. Yellow sunshine splashed the sidewalks and buildings. A huge throng of people covered the pavement. The wind blew hard. Out of the shrill pitch of shouts and screams he caught a few distinct words:

". . . turn 'im loose . . ."

". . . give 'im what he gave that girl . . ."

". . . let us take care of 'im . . ."

". . . burn that black ape . . ."

A narrow aisle was cleared for him across the width of the pavement to a waiting car. As far as he could see there were blue-coated white men with bright silver stars shining on their chests. They wedged him tightly into the back seat of the car, between the two policemen to whom he was handcuffed. The motor throbbed. Ahead, he saw a car swing out from the curb and roll with screaming siren down the street through the sunshine. Another followed it. Then four more. At last the car in which he sat fell in line behind them. Back of him he heard other cars pulling out from the curb, with throbbing motors and shrieking sirens. He looked at the passing buildings out of the side window, but could not recognize any familiar landmarks. To each side of him were peering white faces with open mouths. Soon, however, he knew that he was heading southward. The sirens screamed so loud that he seemed to be riding a wave of sound. The cars swerved onto State Street. At Thirty-fifth Street the neighborhood became familiar. At Thirty-seventh Street he knew that two blocks to his left was his home. What were his mother and brother and sister doing now? And where were Jack and G. H. and Gus? The rubber tires sang over the flat asphalt. There was a policeman at every corner, waving the cars on. Where were they taking him? Maybe they were going to keep him in a jail on the South Side? Maybe they were taking him to the Hyde Park Police Station? They reached Forty-seventh Street and rolled eastward, toward Cottage Grove Avenue. They came to Drexel Boulevard and swung north again. He stiffened and leaned forward. Mr. Dalton lived on this street. What were they going to do with him? The cars slowed and stopped directly in front of the Dalton gate. What were they bringing him here for? He looked at the big brick house, drenched in sunshine, still, quiet. He looked into the faces of the two policemen who sat to either side of him; they were staring silently ahead. Upon the sidewalks, to the front and rear of him, were long lines of policemen with drawn guns. White faces filled the apartment windows all round him. People were pouring out of doors, running toward the Dalton home. A policeman with a golden star upon his chest came to the door of the car, opened it, glanced at him briefly, then turned to the driver.

"O. K., boys; take 'im out."

They led him to the curb. Already a solidly packed crowd stood all over the sidewalks, the streets, on lawns, and behind the lines of the policemen. He heard a white boy yell:

"There's the nigger that killed Miss Mary!"

They led him through the gate, down the walk, up the steps; he stood a second facing the front door of the Dalton home, the same door before which he had stood so humbly with his cap in his hand a little less than a week ago. The door opened and he was led down the hall to the rear stairs and up to the second floor, to the door of Mary's room. It seemed that he could not breathe. What did they bring him here for? His body was once more wet with sweat. How long could he stand this without collapsing again? They led him into the room. It was crowded with armed policemen and newspapermen ready with their bulbs. He looked round; the room was just as he had seen it THAT night. There was the bed upon which he had smothered Mary. The clock with the glowing dial stood on the small dresser. The same curtains were at the windows and the shades were still far up, as far up as they had been that night when he had stood near them and had seen Mrs. Dalton in flowing white grope her way slowly into the dark blue room with her hands lifted before her. He felt the eyes of the men upon him and his body stiffened, flushing hot with shame and anger. The man with the golden star on his chest came to him and spoke in a soft low tone.

"Now, Bigger, be a good boy. Just relax and take it easy. We want you to take your time and show us just what happened that night, see? And don't mind the boys' taking pictures. Just go through the motions you went through that night . . ."

Bigger glared; his whole body tightened and he felt that he was going to rise another foot in height.

"Come on," the man said. "Nobody's going to hurt you. Don't be afraid."

Outrage burned in Bigger.

"Come on. Show us what you did."

He stood without moving. The man caught his arm and tried to lead him to the bed. He jerked back violently, his muscles flexed taut. A hot band of fire encircled his throat. His teeth clamped so hard that he could not have spoken had he tried. He backed against a wall, his eyes lowered in a baleful glare.

"What's the matter, boy?"

Bigger's lips pulled back, showing his white teeth. Then he blinked his eyes; the flashlights went off and he knew in the instant of their flashing that they had taken his picture showing him with his back against a wall, his teeth bared in a snarl.

"Scared, boy? You weren't scared that night you were in here with that girl, were you?"

Bigger wanted to take enough air into his lungs to scream, "Yes! I was scared!" But who would believe him? He would go to his death without ever trying to tell men like these what he had felt that night. When the man spoke again, his tone had changed.

"Come on, now, boy. We've treated you pretty nice, but we can get tough if we have to, see? It's up to YOU! Get over there by that bed and show us how you raped and murdered that girl!"

"I didn't rape her," Bigger said through stiff lips.

"Aw, come on. What you got to lose now? Show us what you did."

"I don't want to."

"You HAVE to!"

"I DON'T have to."

"Well, we'll MAKE you."

"You can't make me do nothing but die!"

And as he said it, he wished that they would shoot him so that he could be free of them, forever. Another white man with a golden star upon his chest walked over.

"Drop it. We got our case."

"You think we ought to?"

"Sure. What's the use?"

"O. K., boys. Take 'im back to the car."

SOMEWHERE IN AFRICA—First Lt. John T. Lyle, Medical Administration Corps, is being congratulated by Civilian War Correspondents on his being commissioned from the ranks. Lt. THE NEGRO: THE BATTLE OF SCIENCE, HUMANITY

By LLEWELLYN RANSOM

This month will find Negro people backing the March of Dimes campaign in the fight against the mysterious and dread crippling disease, infantile paralysis — a disease that is no respector of race, creed or color.

When the battle lines are drawn and the assault begins, the Negro people are never found wanting. They love a good fight. They survive by fighting. Whether it be a foreign foe, that threatens the nation's shores, prejudice that threatens the race within, or flood, famine and disease that come as a common enemy to all —the Negro battles valiantly.

They will support the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis because it granted $207,366 to Tuskegee Institute for a center to care for Negro victims, since it controls no hospitals nor their policies of discrimination. Negroes will give their dimes, and dollars because the foundation's 2,900 chapters throughout the nation give aid every day to infantile paralysis victims of every age, religion and color. They will give too because one half of what they donate will remain in the community to be spent on the work of the local chapter.

Colored people will drop their dimes and dollars because they know that the Foundation's "iron lungs" stand ready to be rushed to aid a stricken child or adult of their race, wherever they are. They know if the disease attacks their family or neighborhood, the foundation will give their doctors and hospitals the benefit of its research, technique and information.

The 50% of the funds collected that go to the foundation's headquarters is used to keep medical scientists searching day and night for causes, reliefs, cures and preventions of this great human malady.

The $3,034,000 that has been spent in this fight against man's enemy has not been spent in vain. The 2,900 chapters set up all over the country to administer to the helpless who have been struck down and to prevent further ravages in an epidemic threatened community, work with local doctors and public health officials. This assistance includes medical and surgical care, orthopedic equipment, transportation to and from clinics and financial aid in payment for hospital expenses. Chapters have been financing courses of instruction in the Kenny method of treatment for doctors, nurses and physical therapy technicians.

The foundation's funds brought Miss Kenny from the Australian bush country where she developed her technique of hot applications plus a highly specialized method of restoring awakened muscles to normal use. This method is one of relief and salvage and not the cure that someday must be found, but it is a God-send to the suffering and helpless.

In laboratories and field research, financed by the foundation, the search goes on for the cause and the cure. It will come some day, and while science battles with the help of the people's dimes, much is being learned each day that helps to combat the disease. Some of these things so far learned are: that the virus is excreted through the bowels both by the sick and those in contact with them; the virus is found in sewage, privies, and rivers polluted with sewage; that infantile paralysis might be spread through infected food or polluted drinking water, like typhoid fever and that the same sanitary measures used to stop typhoid from spreading can be used in the case of infantile paralysis.

The dimes and dollars we drop will carry on this battle for health and human life until the causes and a cure is found.

We're All in Army Now, Says LARY

The most potent "second front" is that of the army of Civilian Defense. You're in it and your transportation company is in it.

It's a big game and we must all play together.

The Los Angeles Railway's part is to do everything possible to further the war effort by getting the factory workers to and from their benches and desks promptly.

Your part, insofar as transportation is concerned, is to do those various little things that will assist the railway in doing its job by using tokens instead of cash for fares, by moving back in the cars as far as possible as soon as you have entered, by signaling for your stop in plenty of time, by driving your car so as to be of least interference with public transportation, by walking instead of riding whenever possible and by telling your friends that the railway needs both men and women workers to keep its equipment on the streets.

"It seems strange to be asking people not to ride our cars and busses unless it is absolutely necessary," said L. A. Reeves, Director of Public Service of the Los Angeles Railway, "but we really mean it because every seat we can save for some war worker means that much more help to our boys at the front."

We're all in the army now.

One of the biggest salvage jobs in the world is being done by the desert salvage squads of the British 8th Army, cleaning up Rommel's scrapped fighting equipment, abandoned in Axis retreat.

6 LOCAL WOMEN SIGN UP AS WAAC RECRUITS

By LT. HARRIETTE B. WHITE

The Women's Army Auxiliary Corp is now firmly established as a vital auxiliary of the Army of the United States. The Corps has taken its place in the national war effort alongside the Army. The value of its training has been amply demonstrated by its members' devotion to duty, their loyalty, their interest in their work, and their determination to execute their duties with skill and efficiency. Because of its proven ability to play an important role in the Army of the United States, the WAAC is growing rapidly and every day new opportunities for service and for advancement appear.

Many women of our race have offered their services to our country, because they know that the training they receive in this wonderful organization will be of great value after this great struggle is over, to rehabilitate their lives. Misses June Forrest, Geraldine Lunday, Blanche Fields, Mildred Sanders, Josephine Broadway and Ora Bragg were enrolled this month. Why not you?

Now is the time for you to do your part. Never before have women had so great an opportunity to be of service to their country when it needs them. This is a women's war, too, and the responsibility for victory rests upon YOUR shoulders as well as those of your husband, your brother, or your friends.

You can join this Service for women by visiting your local U. S. Army Recruiting and Induction Office. There is one in the Pacific Electric Building, 610 So. Main Street, in our city. Lieut. Harriette B. White, one of our race and the only colored WAAC officer on the west coast, will answer your questions, or her secretary Aline Holt, will be happy to serve you.

You can do your part in our war effort by enrolling in the WAAC . . . JOIN TODAY!!

City-wide Annual Meet of YWCA Slated Sunday

Annual meetings are on the calendar of the Woodlawn Branch of the YWCA this week. Members of the branch will share in the city wide Annual Meeting Sunday afternoon, Jan. 31st, three o'clock at the Hollywood Studio Club, 1215 Lodi Pl. Mrs. Archie R. Mosely, Miss Willie Clayton, Mesdames T. A. Higgenbotham, James E. Brown are among the women from the Woodlawn Branch who are assisting with the program.

"News Flashes" is the theme of the Annual Meeting Tea and Program to be held Sunday afternoon, February 7 when women and girls who entered the Association as members of the Woodlawn Branch will meet to hear about the achievements during the past year.

The membership committee meeting with the chairman, Mrs. Mosely, this week decided to accept the directives suggested by the Committee of Management as to time meeting, program and type of gathering. This meeting will be a family gathering of all women and girls who during 1942 and up to the time of the meeting have expressed their willingness to participate in the life of the Association by becoming members.

Tea will be served in the Girls' Club Room, entrance on East 43rd street, at 3 o'clock followed by a program in the main building at 4 o'clock. Members are advised to remember that the date of the Woodlawn Branch Annual Meeting is Sunday, Feb. 7th.

Reports of the recent "Negro Women in War Work" Conference sponsored by the Business and Professional Girls' League are that an enthusiastic group of women and men undeterred by rain met to discuss thoughtfully the problems with which Negro women are confronted in work during these war times. Finding and recommendations from the conference will be forth coming.

"Open House" is every Thursday at the Woodlawn Branch from 3 to 5 p. m. On February 4th the first Thursday in the month, the Education Committee under the direction of Mrs. Leonard Stovall, Chairman and Mrs. N. E. Jefferson, secretary, will be in charge of the program, the subject of which will be "Meet India." Mrs. Clara Sappho will review briefly a recent Survey Graphic article on "A Week with Gandhi" and the book "Meet India." Mrs. Celestine L. Smith, former National YWCA Student Secretary who has traveled in India and Africa will comment from her first hand experiences on "Life in India" and the implications of India's struggle for freedom. All interested members and friends, men as well as women, are welcome to attend this Open House program Thursday, Feb. 4.

EASTSIDE CHEST APPEAL SETS NEW RECORD

High tribute was paid to the Majors, Captains, Lieutenants and all loyal workers of the recent Community Chest Drive, for their successful efforts in raising the highest amount ever raised on the Eastside.

With the workers, contacting the local business establishments, churches, social clubs, labor organizations and auxiliaries and fraternal orders, they were enabled to get the support and achieve the success necessary to put the drive over.

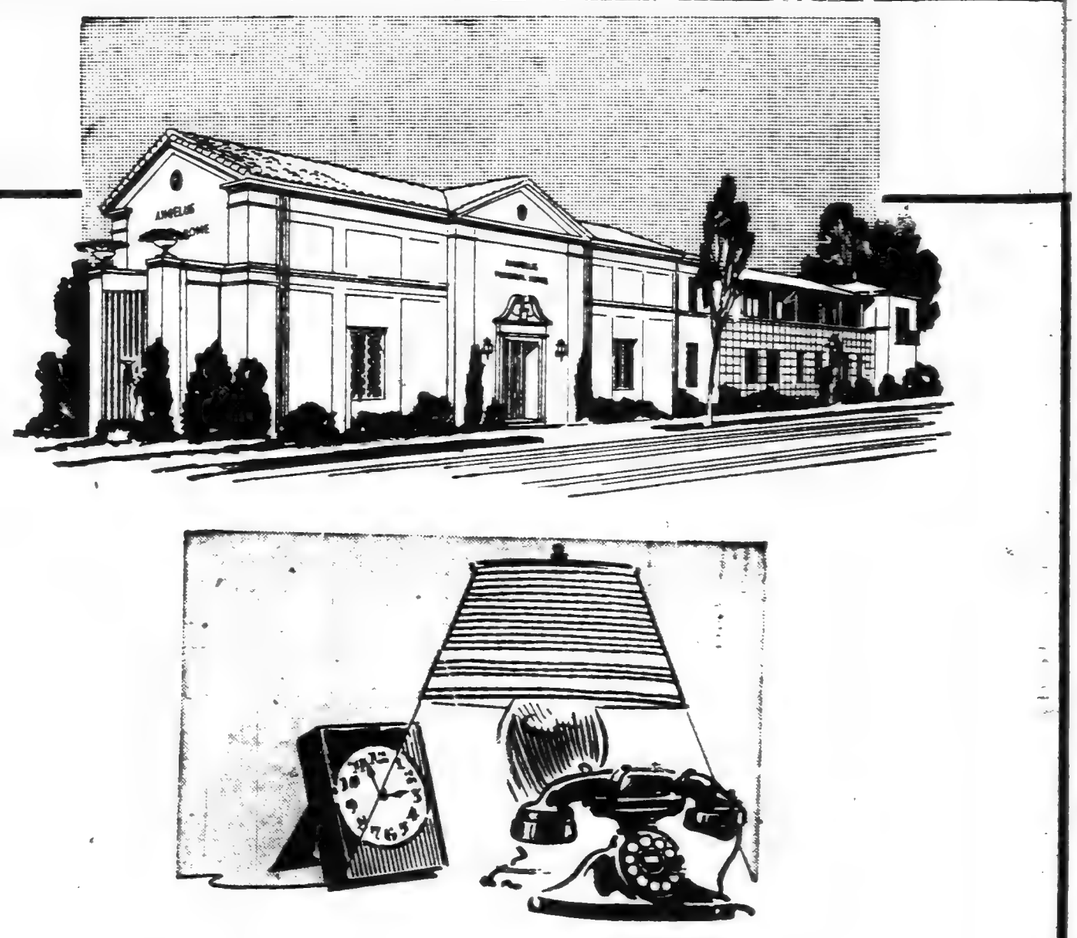
Time nor space will not permit us to mention here the names of all the workers or groups who contributed, for that was done during certain periods of the campaign.

John E. Hargrove, Colonel of Division No. 44 and Chairman of the Drive on the Eastside, reported approximately $2350.00 for his division or 106 per cent.

Mrs. Jessie Coles Grayson Col-

Mrs. Jessie Coles Grayson, Chairman of Eastside Area reported $287.00 or 106 per cent.

Att'y Ivan J. Johnson, III, Chairman of Special Gifts and Mrs. Josephine Brown, Vice-Chairman reported 100 of their quota. Hargrove said "the sense of pride and community interest of the Eastside citizens in looking out for the welfare of the children, aged, poor and needy in Los Angeles is important and we congratulate all who contributed their time, effort and money in orde. to make the campaign a success.



This was Hargrove, local labor leader's second year to put over a successful campaign.

War Relief Drive in 2nd Week

With more than five hundred volunteer workers engaged in various campaign projects, the United Nations War Relief drive to raise $1,000,000 in Southern California is now in its second week.

Plans for the campaign do not contemplate any door to door solicitation in residential areas, Lyman Thompson, director of the drive, said yesterday.

Excluding the United States steel production of the United Nations is 25 to 30 million tons less than that of the Axis, but with the U. S. included, it exceeds estimated Axis output by more than 50 million tons.

SHE LABORED LONG

...are Dorothy Lamour warm up to a scene for Paramount's "Road to Morocco," due Saturday at the Lincoln theatre for four days. Bing Crosby is co-starred.

'ROAD TO MOROCCO' AT LINCOLN

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, two of the nation's funniest men in radio and movies, will be seen together again in another "Road" picture—Paramount's "Road to Morocco," which is due Saturday at the Lincoln theatre, with the lovely, luscious Dorothy Lamour once more the lady they vie for.

The three stars, who shared honors in "Road to Singapore" and "Road to Zanzibar," are said to outdo their previous monkey-shines in this fun-for-all.

There's the business of Bing selling his pal Bob into what he believes to be slavery, only to discover that Bob, instead, has wound up in the palace of Princess Shalmar (Dorothy Lamour), living in the lap of love and luxury.

Then there's Mabel, the talking camel—the boys' "lost" scene in the desert—their wild and woolly rescue of the princess—all of it, and more, making "Road to Morocco" a movie "must" if ever there was one.

In addition to the million and one gags, there are four hit tunes.

Hygiene Cartoons in Eagle

The California Eagle is doing its part for National Social Hygiene Week by beginning a new series of excellent cartoons, which will reveal the importance of this national campaign.

One out of forty-two Americans has syphillis NOW. Only a blood test can tell if you have it. Know for sure! Southeast District Health Association is doing its part in Southeast Los Angeles. Programs in honor of the week are:

Reuben Snadow, manager of the Bill Robinson theatre will show a special movie on syphilis Tuesday and Thursday nights. Anyone can get a free blood test in the theatre lobby on those nights. The Urban League is assisting this.

Southeast District Health Association and City Health Department are arranging a special program with the Negro Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association at their monthly meeting Wednesday, Jan. 28th. The program is to include a special film for doctors on SYPHILIS and a lecture by Hamlet C. Pulley, M. D., Asisstant City Health Officer for Los Angeles. He will point out the role of the private physician, dentist and druggist in the fight to stamp out America's health saboteur number one--Veneral Diseases.

Meetings are held at Pueblo Del Rio Housing Development. The East clinic urges all to drop in for a free blood test during the week, or just to visit the clinic.

"STAND BY FOR ACTION" NOW AT UNITED ARTISTS

It's full speed ahead in "Stand By For Action" a Navy adventure show now playing at the United Artists Theatre, 933 So. Broadway, downtown Los Angeles. Battle action from the view point of a U. S. destroyer, bristling with excitement, is here combined with such a wealth of emotional sock, persuasive humor and inspiriting behavior as to make it perfect wartime entertainment for civilian and serviceman alike.

It has the names of Robert Taylor, Brian Donlevy and Charles Laughton as well as the timeliness of sea action by the U. S. Navy at a time when naval encounters are daily prospects the world around. As a production of high merit it has also a sense of complete reality, such as few film dramas of American fighting forces have yet achieved.

Terrific tug of sentiment is invoked by the story which takes one of the old destroyers of 1917-'18 with a great battle record and restores it to service.

IF you have a war work problem. . . housing . . upgrading. . . transportation, bring it to the EAGLE. We'll help!

Leola Wilson Heads OES Matrons' Club

O. E. S. 1941 Matrons' Club assembled at the home of Mrs. Leola Wilson of East 25th street, Sunday, Jan. 24th at 4 p. m. for an interesting meeting. The annual election of officers was held. The newly elected officers are:

Mrs. Leola Wilson, president; Mrs. Minnie Randolph, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Mary McAdoo, 2d vice-president; Mrs. Cullie Hubert, secretary; Mrs. Marion Willingham, assistant secretary; Mrs. Geraldine Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Venita Evans, parliamentarian. Vivian O. Marsh, having been elected G. W. Matron in July 1941, was named president, emeritus.

This being the birthday month of Cullie Hubert and Venita Evans, a surprise dinner of squabs, ice cream and cake was served.

The L. A. Texas College Club and the Willing Workers Club will hold Open House Sunday, January 31, at Camille's Party Den, 848 E. Adams Blvd., from 2 to 5 p. m. The public is invited.

DON'T
Rush stimulants!

★ FIRST AID DON'TS

9th in series of 10

(This is the 9th of a series on "What Not to Do Until the Doctor Comes." Approved by the American Red Cross, we are printing them in the belief that untrained aid can be terribly dangerous. For standard courses in First Aid apply to your Red Cross chapter.—Ed.)

More damage is done by forcing stimulants on people who don't need them than by withholding them from those who do.

Unless you're absolutely sure the victim requires a stimulant don't take any chances. Wait 'til the doctor arrives. Take the stimulant yourself.

Don't ever give liquid to a victim who is unconscious. Don't give any stimulant—whisky, water or anything in between—until he can swallow it. Don't give a stimulant if he's bleeding inside or out, or if he has a head injury. Don' give a stimulant if he's red in the face.

Don't give any inhalant like ammonia or smelling salts until you've tried it yourself, and don't apply it longer than you yourself can stand it.

If you have to use a stimulant, hot coffee or tea is as good as anything else. But there are so many cases in which even hot water may be dangerous. It's far better to wait for the doctor.

You may find out where First Aid classes are being conducted in your neighborhood by contacting Stephen O'Donnel, American Red Cross, 1200 S. Vermont avenue, FI-5261.

If no class is now in session, an adequate supply of instructors is available to teach new classes.

Graduating UCLA Sports Ed Reminisces

Jimmy Vento, sports editor of the California Daily Bruin, wrote his last column the other day. He's graduating.

Besides his column, titled "What's Brewin'," Bruin Vento described a few of the "thrills and chills that stand out above all" during his three and one-half year career of covering sports beats. Among them in football:

"The Kenny Washington to Jack Robinson pass against Oregon in 1939 . . . Oregon made 16 first downs that day, UCLA 8, yet the Bruins won, 16-6.

"Washington's run that tied the score in the '39 California game . . . Robinson's interception of Albert's pass to set up the tying T. D. in the Stanford game . . . The entire SC game in 1939 . . . Robinson's 80-yard punt return against SMU in 1940 . . ."

Among them in baseball:

"Jack Robinson's feat of stealing second, third and home against PJC (Pasadena Junior college) in 1941—he got on first by beating out a bunt."

Among them in track:

"Jack Robinson's first place in the broad jump event during the NCAA meet of '41 . . ."

Vento also put Jack Robinson (1941) on his "All-Bruin" basketball team dating back to the '39-'40 season.

"Greatest Footballer We've Ever Seen"

Graduating sports editor Vento thought the 1939 Bruin eleven was the greatest in UCLA history—including the 1943 Rose Bowl team—because "they possessed the greatest footballer we've ever seen—Kenneth Stanley Washington."

After comparing the 1939 and 1942 squads, on offense and defense, Vento wrote:

"But when all is said, the only reason that makes us favor the 1939 squad is that they were graced by the 'Greatest Bruin of 'Em All'—Kenny Washington.

"Kenny was the difference between a mediocre team and a great team that year. Kenny led the Bruins to the co-conference championship. Had he been a member of the 1942 squad, they would have been undefeated!"

The UCLA sports editor capped his writing efforts by selecting an "all-Vento" Bruin football squad.

To quote him: "We have Al Solari playing fullback on our first eleven so that he could team with Washington, Robinson, and Waterfield.

"This backfield has plenty of speed. Robinson and Solari. Two great passers—Washington and Waterfield. A great punter—Waterfield. Blocking—Washington.

"The line has two great receivers and speed and power galore."

On the first "all-Vento" eleven are: Woody Strode, '39, and Burr Baldwin, '42, ends; Charley Fears, '42, and Jack Finlay, '42, tackles; Nate deFrancisco, '41, and Jack Lescoulie, '42, guards; and Bill Armstrong, '42, center. In the backfield are Bob Waterfield, '42, quarter; Kenny Washington, '39, and Jack Robinson, '40, at left and right halfback, respectively, and Al Solari, '42, at fullback.

Of the three sepians, Washington, Robinson and Strode, the colors have claimed Robinson and Strode, while Kenny is a Los Angeles policeman.

Notes Picked Up Here and There:

That scheduled game between the Royal Giants and the Los Alamitos Naval Base nine has been postponed again. Rain washed it out last Sunday. Understand the naval diamondeers can't get away from their base this Sunday . . . Jack Chase, the State middleweight boss, and a good one, made his first appearance here since winning the crown from Eddie Booker Tuesday night and proceeded to TKO one Jackie Byrd in five heats . . . Watson Jones, the cool, calculating puncher and Ocean Park star, iced another one in Acy Haynesworth in the semi. It was a quickie, taking but two heats . . .

In the Mail: Pacific Coast Baseball league copy. Would feel much better about it if, since the majors and minors are signing up aged and veteran campaigners for the coming season, both brackets would take advantage of the wealth of Negro baseball material available. Thought Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis said last summer that there was no bar against colored baseballers in the majors? . . .

Had been set on giving the Harlem Globetrotters some fancy columnar treatment today. But, they dropped a 41-32 verdict to the Santa Ana Air Base quintet Tuesday eve at Shrine auditorium, and didn't look so hot in doing so. Maybe because the air base five, paced by former Trojans Hupp and Hanson, were too good. Frankly, the column doesn't think this edition of the Globetrotters is a reasonable facsimile of the 1940 world pro champions. The war is the reason, though, forcing owner-coach A. M. Saperstein to weld a new machine, steadied by the veteran Inman Jackson . . .

Ran into Francis Garland, former Jefferson High and City College cage ace, at the game. A defense plant worker now, Garland reported Monday for his physical . . .

Sgt. George Daniels, playboy-sportsman until inducted into the army six months ago, returned here this week on 12 days furlough. The sergeant dropped in on the column Wednesday to say he was stationed at Camp Swift, Texas, with the ground forces of the Army Air Corps . . .

Jack Chase Stops Byrd in 5 Heats

Jack Chase, State middleweight champion, made his return to Los Angeles and the Olympic auditorium a smashing one Tuesday night when he forced Jackie Byrd, Blytheville, Ark., to quit in round five.

When referee Reggie Gilmore stopped the bout in the fifth heat, Byrd was on the floor for the fifth time, four times in that stanza.

Weighing 154 to Byrd's 149, it was the first time that Chase had shown here since he won the state belt two weeks ago in San Francisco from Eddie Booker.

A non-title go, Chase used stinging left jabs, right crosses and right uppercuts to stop his foe who had made a battle of it until the fifth.

JONES IN KO

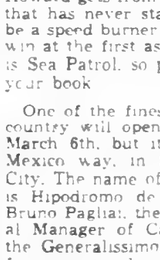
Watson Jones, the Ocean Park favorite, knocked out Acy Haynesworth in the second heat of the scheduled six-round semi. Jones weighed 168, Haynesworth, 164.

Results of the four-round prelims: Alonzo Williams nodded Bernie Cardenas; Curly Martin was given the duke over Rudy Campa; Bob Castro stopped Bobby Fuentez in round three.

JIMMY McDANIELS, AL TRIBUANI MEET TUESDAY AT OLYMPIC

Al Tribuani, highly touted easterner who came to the attention of local boxing fans when he was signed to meet Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, goes to the post here at the Olympic auditorium Tuesday night when he climbs through the ropes for a setto with Jimmy McDaniels, Watts Irishman.

McDaniels fought Armstrong to a near-standstill at the Olympic several weeks ago.



The winner of Tuesday's battle may meet Armstrong here at a later date.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy is lining up a sterling supporting card.

ON THE TURF

By Geo. A. Ramsey

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Generalissimo Wm. Kyne after being granted 45 days Spring Meet will try and get Whirlaway to come to the Bay Meadows course, it is understood that the popular boss of northern racing will offer a purse of $25,000 and the distance to be one and a quarter miles. Although at the present time the great Whirlaway is at New Orleans, where trainer Ben Jones shipped after Florida racing folded up.

Bay Meadows will attempt to attract the greatest horses now in training for its spring meet, and if the large stables can get transportation they will ship to the coast, although the weather is not so good this time of year around the Bay Meadows District. Kyne looks for the biggest meeting ever staged up north, the Fall meet broke all records for the up-state racing.

One thing that the horsemen will look to is the pride C. S. Howard gets from Seabiscuit. One that has never started is said to be a speed burner and is ready to win at the first asking. His name is Sea Patrol, so put this one on your book.

One of the finest tracks in the country will open to the public, March 6th, but it's way down Mexico way, in fact in Mexico City. The name of the new track is Hipodromo de las Americas. Bruno Paghai, the former General Manager of Caliente will be the Generalissimo, and a mighty fine person is he, and the Eagle's sports staff wish him plenty of luck. One of the big feature events for the Mexican oval will be the International Handicap with a value of $25,000 added. All Eastern tracks are going ahead with their plans to hold their summer and spring meetings.

We understand that if Alsab trains O. K. that the $700 bargain colt will be shipped to the coast, and if so and Whirlaway also come they will renew their battles. Both have beaten each other.

Count Fleet the Winter Book Kentucky Derby favorite will be shipped to Oaklawn Park in Ark., where racing will start on Feb. 22nd.

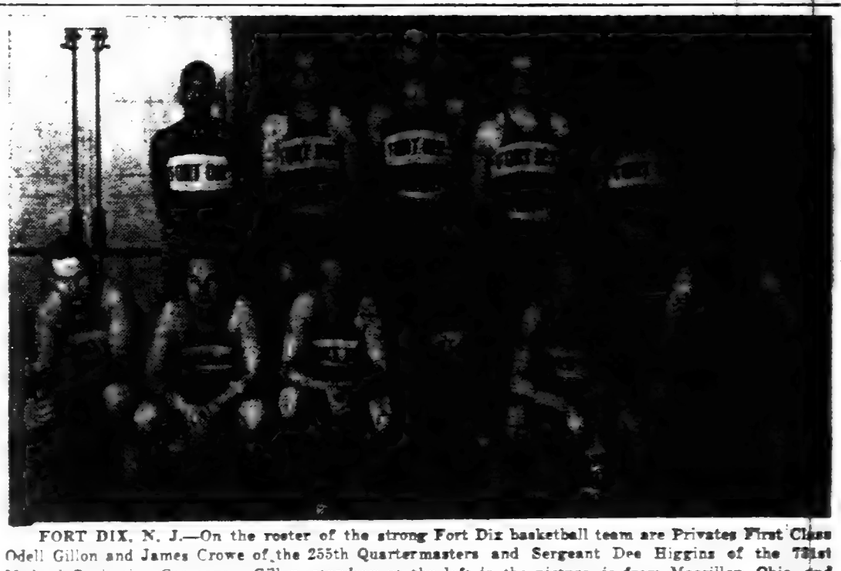
Well here is more rumors from the most beautiful track in the world (Caliente) news has it they, Caliente, will open sure about the first of March. Lou Anger will be the new boss, although no stranger to the border course, Mr. Anger was head of the track when gambling was closed, so folks look for an announcement in the paper soon.

The writer may take in Bay Meadows for the Spring meet, if so will inform my readers of the latest turf notes and horses to watch. Well that will be all this time. So long —George.

Army Quint Steals Stuff of Trotters

Taking the play away from their more highly publicized opponents at the opening whistle, the powerful Santa Ana Army Air Base quintet defeated the Harlem Globetrotters, 41-32, Tuesday night at Shrine auditorium.

Some 4000 fans witnessed the affair, despite a downpour.



The air base five, led by Jack Hupp, two-times All American from USC, and Hansen, dominated the play throughout. Hupp sank 15 points to lead the individual scoring.

Before Tuesday night's encounter, the army five had won 17 and lost five engagements. The win at the Shrine gave them a two out of three edge in their series with the Trotters.

APPEAR OFF FORM

Clearly disappointing the fans who had come out to see them clown and out-play their rivals, the Globetrotters appeared "dead on their feet." And with the exception of some sensational ball-handling in various stages of the game, they were forced to get down to business to avert a landslide, leaving little time for their reputed funny antics.

Many of the shots from the hands of Julien, Tatum, Powell, Singleton, Marcell and Jackson hit the rim of the basket, but failed to drop in. Their defense on the Hupp-Hansen scoring plays was weak also, not to mention their follow-ups under the basket.

FORT DIX, N. J.—On the roster of the strong Fort Dix basketball team are Privates First Class Odell Gillon and James Crowe of the 255th Quartermasters and Sergeant Dee Higgins of the 73lst Medical Sanitation Company. Gillon, standing at the left in the picture, is from Massillon, Ohio, and played for Massillon High and South Carolina State College; Crowe, kneeling fourth from the left in front, is from Dayton, Ohio, and played for Dayton High, and Alabama State College. At Crowe's right is Sgt. Huggins of New York, who played for Benamin Franklin High School. The Fort Dix team also includes several ex-college players who starred in previous seasons in the big intercollegiate contests at Madison Square Garden. Fort Dix is playing a stiff schedule of outstanding college and service teams this winter.

Basketball Practice Sked Starts

The Jefferson high school varsity basketball team has been playing a series of practice games, which started on January 13th, with a game with Huntington Park. The boys lost that game, 37-32.

On January 18, they played Jordan at Jefferson and tied them 22-22.

The game on January 21, with Ruis, was a Jefferson victory, 37-22. Ernest Johnson, captain of last year's B team, took high points. Allen Estes, Ben Walker, Robert Hicks, and Clarence Woodley also tallied. The entire team has come from last year's B team, aside from R. L. Bell and Johnny Weems, who were C's last year. Steven Mason and Charles Ary are both new players.

Other practice games are scheduled and the official basketball season will open the middle of February.

★ NOTES FROM McKINLEY

McKinley Junior High School is doing its share in helping in the war effort. To date the students have purchased from the Student Store $1288.90 worth of War Saving Stamps. We feel that this is a splendid record of the real spirit and cooperation which prevails in our school.

Last week the Student Body Elections were held. The elections were conducted under the guidance of our Student Body Council and Leadership Class. This is the first election that has been held at McKinley where everyone has been entitled to vote and we feel this a real progressive step. The results of the election are as follows: Marcus Johnson, president; David Butler, Boys' Vice-President; Mary Louise Whitley, Girls' Vice-President; Margaret Jackson, Secretary; Tony Sandoval, Treasurer; Mary Woods, Cross Roads Editor.

Our Glee Club has been active in our community and has made two appearances recently. One [illegible] at the Navy Relief staged at the Hollywood Dinel Station, and at Western Avenue and Vernon Blvd. The other performance was at the First A. M. E. Church at 8th and Towne.

The Student Council was host [illegible] at a Breakfast of Managers of the Visiting Nurses' Association. The group was served by our senior Catering class. At the conclusion of the meal, a brief business session was held with Mr. Beavers, the chairman, presiding. Those present were Mr. George Beavers of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company, Mrs. Brown and Miss Cassell of the Visiting Nurses' Association; Miss Dorothy Guinn, Executive Secretary of the YWCA, Woodlawn Branch, Rev. Jordan pastor of the First AME church and Mrs. Treadwell.

Hey, KIDS!!! Come make with the listen! And at the start I want to warn you that I'm not just clicking those new slightly bent dentures (Teeth). Someone told someone and someone told me that there's definitely going to be R—— in the very near future, and I'm not talking about a rodeo with horses and cowboys. So TAKE A TIP from an old desert rat, a fellow that used to be in on the 'know.' Buy the shoes and good clothes you need now—for yourself and loved ones. If you're one of the 400 and have a closet full of clothes, please don't read this ad because my good stuff is not for you, it is only for their majesties, the working people, and who isn't working . . . ? Do I know what I'm talking about? Oh, yes. Lots of clothes, the FINEST CLOTHES ever created by human minds, hands, and eyes, for ladies and gentlemen who appreciate the very best in style, workmanship and fabrics. These fine suits and coats are 100% wool. They come in worsted, gabardine, shetland, covert cloth, flannels, and all the other good fabrics. They are priced from $20.00 to $80.00, cash or charge. If you haven't plenty of that mola, that folding stuff, that lettuce, your credit is good at the good VICTOR CLOTHING CO., 214 S. Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles. Most people pay us cash now because experts agree that Victor has the greatest values in Southern California. Oh, and by the way, KIDS, we cater to all you good kids from 6 to 60—and this is off the record—we have a little pre-war stuff with zippers and pleats and some of the coats of these suits for your lovely ladies are 31½ inches long. Some length, eh what? A tip to the wise is sufficient. So I'll see you at the good VICTOR CLOTHING COMPANY, 214 S. Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles, tomorrow morning, 10 o'clock. And if you bring this ad with you, I'll give you, I mean I'll include without extra cost, a $20.00 genuine Bronson DeLuxe Overcoat, or you may deduct $20.00 off the price of any Bronson suit and overcoat, or you may have a lovely $10.00 ladies' Coat, suit or dress with the purchase of any one of these far-famed Bronson suits. This offer is exclusive and if you are troubled with Insomnia,

Rev. Morris to Leave on Speaking Tour of East, South

The California EAGLE exclusively announces today that its public relations counselor, the Rev. Charles Satchell Morris, II, of Los Angeles will leave the Pacific Coast next Thursday morning, February 4th, for a whirlwind preaching and speaking trek through the Deep South and the East where he has been a long-time favorite. Making his first stop at Yuma, Ariz., Rev. Morris will be heard by throngs of both races in the Union Baptist church on Thursday evening, February 4. Phoenix, where he was married in November, 1939, will greet him on Friday night, February 5th, in the historic First Baptist church. He will be the guest of the First Methodist church (white), Prince Chapel African Methodist Episcopal church and Phillips Temple C. M. E. church at Tucson, Ariz. on Sunday, February 7th.

During the following week this newspaper's public relations counselor will be greeted at Ft. Huachuca, Bisbee and Douglas, Arizona, and at El Paso, Abilene, Mineral Wells and Wichita Falls, Texas.

Arrangements have been perfected for 1500 persons to hear him when he preaches on Sunday morning, February 14th, at Prairie View State College, Prairie View Tex., according to word received from Principal William R. Banks. During the next week he will visit Waco, Corsicana, Fort Worth, Dallas and Texarkana, Texas whole on Sunday, February 21st he will be guest minister in Memphis, Tenn.

Huge and historic Abyssinian Baptist church in New York City, the world's largest Protestant congregation will welcome him on Sunday, February 28th, when he preaches both morning and evening at special exercises in the handsome $350,000 edifice carrying out a replica of the dedication ceremonies exactly 24-years ago when his late father was the chief speaker. The invitation came to the renowned Los Angeles minister from his life-long friend the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, jr., pastor, and member of the Board of Aldermen of New York City and the joint boards of Harlem's massive congregation. It is estimated that 6000 persons will hear him during the day. He will also preach at other churches in the East including parishes at Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. He will confer with the president of the University of Maryland at College Park.

Dr. Morris is also slated to occupy the pulpits of Olivet and Pilgrim Baptist in Chicago, Central at St. Louis, Second at Kansas City, and will address the students at Alcorn College, the state institution of higher learning in Mississippi and Florida A. and M. College at Tallanassee. Sandwiched in between journeys will be Virginia State Bluefield (West Virginia) State and Tennessee State Colleges where he formerly taught and West Virginia State College.

In commenting on his trip Tuesday Dr. Morris declared that he probably will be away from Los Angeles for three months on his intensive trek through the Deep South and the East.

Next Sunday afternoon, January 31st, he will deliver the address at the dedication of the new organ at Los Angeles Abyssinia Baptist church and special rally event, 4417 Ascot Avenue, of which the Rev. L. D. Stevens is pastor, at three o'clock. Sunday morning and evening, respectively, Dr. Morris will be the guest of churches in Pasadena and Monrovia.

For more than a month Dr. Morris has been confined to his East Woodlawn avenue home by reason of severe illness under the professional care of Dr. Jefferson D. Fowler. He will spend several days quietly resting at Hot Springs, Ark., while en route to New York.

While returning to California Dr. Morris will conduct special seminars at Tennessee State College, Nashville, in the graduate department where he formerly served as professor of English, director of publicity and chaplain. It is understood that he is seriously considering an important Baptist pulpit in the East.

Rev. Ross First AMEZ Speaker

Rev. Wendell Ross' choir and congregation, will bring a service to the First AME Zion church, Thursday evening, Feb. 4, 1943 at 8 p. m. This will be known as Business Men's night. Dr. Cobbs, well known among civic circles, will render a special solo, that evening. All are asked to come out, and hear this wonderful program. Rev. Ross, will deliver a special sermon for the occasion.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The Golden Text of the Sunday Lesson-Sermon on "Love" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, is selected from Jude and reads: "Keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."

The Lesson-Sermon tells of a woman "diseased with an issue of blood twelve years," who came behind Jesus, "and touched the hem of his garment: For she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be whole. But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour. . . . And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick." "It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

Universal Church Expansion Program a Grand Success

REV. ANITA L. EDMONDS

Last Sunday, Jan. 24, marked a new era in the growth of the Universal Evangelical church, non-denominational, founded and pastored by the Rev. Anita L. Edmonds.

The doors opened at 9 a. m., with a general assembly of the Universal Bible school, conducted by the superintendent, at the close of which the pastor presented the primary class with gifts.

The morning worship was prefaced with a soul-stirring devotional period conducted by the chairman of the deaconess board.

A capacity audience listened attentively as the pastor brought a masterful message on "A Closer Communion With God." Rev. Edmonds has few equals in her field as a pastor, evangelist, and gospel singer. Her message was appropriately concluded with one of her outstanding gospel songs, "I Walk With the King."

Mr. Gilbert Allen, noted musician of the city, graced the meeting with his presence, and brilliantly rendered for the congregation's hearing Rachmaninoff's C Sharp Minor Prelude. Rev. Edmonds, being a talented musician herself, has incorporated the plan to present the music of the masters in her services, notwithstanding the soul-stirring gospel songs will have preeminence.

The night service was an old-fashioned revival meeting with the gospel being preached in its purity by the pastor and spirited gospel singing being enjoyed by the congregation.

Both services were graced with ushers from 33rd and Compton Holiness church. The entire day was a great financial success.

Services were continued thruout the week, with such personages as Dr. and Mrs. Evans of Chicago, Ill., in attendance; the reverend doctor being the president of the Council of Independent Churches of America, Inc.

Plans are now in the making for the church's third anniversary. You will enjoy a spiritual treat by attending these services. Regular services Sunday and Wednesday night. The address is 2503 So. Central avenue.

Youth Choir Organized at First AME Zion

The First AME Zion church of Los Angeles, at Pico and Paloma, has organized a youth program. It consists of a choir and Usher Board, and other youth activities.

On January 23, 1943, we elected a president, Mrs. Helen Hamilton, who is a Jefferson High School graduate, and a secretary and treasurer, Miss Barbara Banks, a Polytechnic High School student. This was our first meeting and was largely attended, but not large enough. We want everyone who can, to come out. We meet from 5 to 7:30 each Saturday evening.

Mr. Gilbert Allen, is our choir-director. Mrs. P. M. Marshall, the wife of our pastor is the supervisor of youth activities.

First AME to Hear Address on 'Punching Holes in Dark'

This is the intriguing title of the address which will feature the Annual Missionary Pew Rally of the Sarah Allen Woman's Mite Missionary Society of the First AME church, 801 Towne Avenue this Sunday evening at 7:30. The address will be delivered by the President of the society, Mrs. Artishia W. Jordan. Her active interest in the Missionary work of the church was recognized two years ago when she was elected Editor of the Official Journal of the Women's Missionary Societies of the AME Church, The Missionary Recorder. This publication is issued monthly to more than 4,000 subscribers. At the last session of the Southern California Conference Branch Woman's Mite Missionary Society, Mrs. Jordan was elected its president. She has also recently been elected a member of the Executive Board of the American Mission To Lepers. Music for the service will be rendered by the J. E. Edwards Choir assisted by Rev. Arthur Peters, Gospel Singer.

The Missionary Society of the First AME church has enjoyed a remarkable growth in the past two and one-half years of Mrs. Jordan's leadership. It now contains 128 members, 72 of which are adults, and 56 children. Its Annual budget is $1000, a considerable portion of which is devoted to the Home Field.

MORNING WORSHIP

A sermon subject of the pastor, Rev. Frederick D. Jordan for the morning worship was announced as "More Than These". The famous Senior Choir of the church directed by Mr. Jester Hairston will sing "I Waited For The Lord" from Elijah by Mendelsohn.

Soul Winning in Second Week

The Soul Winning Mission, 2011 Hooper avenue enters into another week of soul winning. The Lord is blessing in every way and our hearts graciously welcomes his presence.

Sister Crooms begins a series of sermons Sunday night, Jan. 31. Subject: Ten (10) Kinds of Fools namely: The Ignorant, Deceived, Lying, Defeated, Hoarding, Camouflaged, Blind, Hard-Hearted, Damned and the Blaspheming Fool. Come, hear these messages and be blessed of the Lord. Come praying, come knowing that souls will be won.

"He that winneth souls is wise."

District Housewives to Hear Industry, Business and OPA

By LAWRENCE F. LaMAR

Area chairwomen of the several district units recently marshalled under the auspices of the Consumer Division of the Eastside Chamber of Commerce for an "all out war" on recent unreasonable and arbitrary rises in cost of foodstuff in the poorer Mexican, Negro and other handicapped groups, are slated to air their respective grievances before representatives of the meat packing industry, wholesale grocers, local retail merchants and officials of the local Office of Price Administration the night of Friday, February 5th at the 28th Street Branch of the YMCA.

The meet is being arranged by the Eastside Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of hearing all sides on the question of numerous districts getting their proper share of the governmental food rationing program. Persons residing in the poorer sections of Los Angeles have long complained in vain at this practice of the rankest sort of discrimination. Merchants fearing that the housewives were about to direct their attack upon them, have expressed a desire to air their case in their own defense. Many have pointed the accusing finger at the meat industry and the wholesale grocers as being the factors behind the evils complained of.

The huge packing houses located here, have been accused of by-passing the poorer districts in the distribution of their products in order to command a more handsome price. The old familiar excuse that "the government has taken all of the choice meats", is being wailed by the bigger meat and wholesale grocers by way of appeasement. The meeting February 5th at the YMCA is expected to go a long way in getting better product in the poorer neighborhoods and more equitable control of prices.

Leon M. Giles, president of the Eastside Chamber of Commerce, said members of the Mexican Chamber of Commerce and the Filipine Chamber of Commerce and other groups will also participate in the meet along with local merchants and OPA officials. The chamber official expressed a hope that a large group of interested persons would be on hand to hear the multi-sided reports, indicating that the public is invited to attend.

California Bank Has New Exec

Frank L. King, for the last 12 years comtroller and a senior officer of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, was elected executive vice-president of California Bank at the organization meeting of the board of directors held following the annual January shareholders' meeting.

A native of Sparata, Illinois, Mr. King was educated in the public schools of that town and at the Northwestern University School of Commerce. After his discharge from the Army in 1919, he was a national bank examiner for six years prior to entering the commercial banking business in Chicago, joining the Continental organization in 1928.

He is a member of the committee of the American Bankers Association charged with developing the plan of coupon ration banking soon to be inaugurated throughout the country as well as a member of the association's legislative and taxation committees.

Reporting to the shareholders on the progress made by California Bank during the past year, Arch W. Anderson, president, revealed net earnings of the bank during 1942 amounted to $943,000 which, after preferred dividend requirements of $24,000, is equal to $4.59 per common share.

Anderson pointed out that notwithstanding the fact that operating costs were higher last year, net earnings of California Bank for 1942 exceeded those for 1941 by $98,500.

Officers and staff of the bank last year sold 311,549 individual war bonds of Series E, having a maturity value of $17,237,000 and in addition handled 3,782 orders for Series F and G bonds and Tax Notes with a maturity value of $6,827,000, Anderson said.

FRANK L. KING, elected executive vice-president of California Bank.

Baker Camp, Auxiliary Install Officers

Capt. E. L. Baker Camp 71 and Auxiliary 53 held their joint installation Jan. 15, 1943, at Patriotic hall.

Those installed were president, Callie D. Mann; senior vice, Alma Ward; junior vice, Lethia Worthy; chaplain, Elmira Moorehead; secretary, Earnestine Washington; treasurer, Thena Levelle; patriotic instructor, Cecille Thomas; historian, Elenora Harrelle; conductors, Lydia Newton, Mollie Holden; guards, Victoria Carpenter, Jessie Walker; colors, Mayola Bradly, Thelma Alexis Mann, Nellie Williamson, Alberta Hixon, Cora Devers, Joan Cousins, Blanche Phelps, Lida Reed; musician, Ruby Silver.

The president and senior vice were very charming in their white gowns and gold accessories. As were the other officers, in pastel shade taffeta gowns, and corresponding accessories.

This year promises to be a very successful one as Commander Leavelle and camp, and auxiliary officers have all pledged their full support to the president and auxiliary.

At a round table meeting held Sunday, Jan. 24, 1943, at the home of President C. D. Mann, 1217 E. Santa Barbara avenue, 27 comrades and sisters attended this meeting to make plans for a program to be held Feb. 5, 1943, at Patriotic hall.

Prsident C. D. Mann received many useful gifts, among which were: hand-blocked table cloth from Uniform Rank Co. C, gavel from California State Guard and Comm. Corps, Pyrex set from Frank Ernest Auxiliary No. 2134; crystal dresser set from Baker auxiliary; souvenir gavel from daughter, basket of flowers from husband, victory necklace from past national president, Ann C. Jessmire and installing team. The necklace was made in the form of a V of defense stamps.

MONROVIA CHURCH SERVICES WELL ATTENDED
MONROVIA, Calif.—The services at the Community Baptist Church were well attended. The pastor delivered the messages at both services. The Missionary Society met at 7 p. m. last Sunday and had a very good attendance.
Mrs. Jessie Mae Anderson, who had an operation sometime ago, is now getting along fairly good. Mr. and Mrs. George Gardenhire, are proud parents of another baby girl, born a few days ago. Both mother and girl are doing nicely. Mrs. Hattie Oatis, who had been spending several weeks in her home state returned last week after spending the time with parents and friends.
On last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Mattie Bass, the mother of Mrs. Jessie May Goods, passed away in her daughter's home, 620 E. Walnut avenue. The funeral was conducted from the Israel Baptist Church, Los Angeles, Monday, Jan. 25th at 2 p. m.
The pastor had a very pleasant trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, attending the Tri-County Baptist Association. The pastor preached for the Second Baptist Church for Rev. B. T. Mayfield. There were fifteen additions for the day.
The regular monthly meeting of the Inter-denominational Ministers' Alliance was held in the YMCA building, 28th street and Paloma Avenue.
Devotions were conducted by Rev. R. A. Arrinton. Dr. S. M. Beane announced the death of Rev. J. J. Biars, and Dr. J. L. Caston announced the death of Rev. C. H. Douglas. Prayer for the families of these men was offered by Dr. Beane.
The speaker of the hour, Dr. F. D. Jordan, was presented by Dr. S. M. Beane. His subject was "The Church and Community Cooperative Study." A very comprehensive presentation of the subject was outlined. A committee to investigate the entire matter was appointed.

LA HORNE -- WOW!

"THERE'S NO Two Ways About Love," sings glamorous Lena Horne in this cabaret scene from 20th Century-Fox's "Stormy Weather," now filming in its second week.

As leading lady to Bill Robinson, star of this all-colored cast cavalcade of the Negro in the entertainment world, Miss Horne portrays the character of Selena Rogers, sister of Clem Rogers, Bill's buddy. All Miss Horne's songs were specially written for her by one of Hollywood's best composers.

NEGRO WOMEN TRAINEES ARE IN TEARS WHEN NO UPGRADING

Additional revelations of industrial monkey business came bounding out of the North American Aircraft training school at 1509 East Figueroa street this week following an initial blast in the EAGLE last week.

Operation of an extensive Jim-Crow system, replete with Negro stooges, was disclosed by Negro trainees, along with testimony to the effect that Negro women are being fired from skilled classes en masse.

Typical is the story of Dorothy Lugo, 945½ East 22nd St., who was fired from the North American training school recently.

After four weeks of training in December, Miss Lugo was sent out from the training school to the North American Inglewood plant along with a mixed group of about a dozen trainees. Three were colored.

Upon arrival in a department "working on wing tips," she states, the woman supervisor, attempted to bunch the Negro girls together.

However, she said, they managed to stand in groups of whites and were not sent to their work a la Jim Crow.

After about two hours of labor on the wing tips, Miss Lugo states the woman supervisor came to her and asked, "Are you American?"

She said yes.

"What kind of an American," was the new question.

"I'm an American-Negro," she responded.

A few moments later the supervisor returned, stating that her department was full.

The assistant supervisor, "a Jewish man", came up and said that the department was not filled and that as many workers as possible were needed," Miss Lugo said.

By this time, the other two Negro girls in the department had been removed from their work, and the three were sent back to the training school.

BACK AT SCHOOL

Back at the training school, the women confronted their sheet metal instructor, Karl Linsinmier, who had dispatched them to the plant.

He told them their plight was not his fault.

When pressed, said Miss Lugo, the instructor told the women, "What's the difference? You get paid in training just the same."

"We went there to work on airplanes," continues Miss Lugo, "and that's what we wanted to do. Since it seemed impossible for us to get work in the sheet metal department, we asked to be transferred to a class in some other subject.

"We were told this was impossible, although white trainees are transferred to other classes everyday.

"We were told, 'if you don't want to stay in sheet metal, get out'."

On January 1, Miss Lugo relates, with the confirmation of a number of other wrokers, the real blow fell. ALL NEGRO WORKERS in the sheet metal classes were dismissed.

"Colored girls," continued the EAGLE informant, "were crying in the hallways. A lot of us loved that work. We thought it was a real chance. We thought we

Virginia Paper Has No Use for Westbrook Pegler

RICHMOND, Jan. 29—The people of this booming war center have won a major victory against native appeasers and defeatists.

Westbrook Pegler's anti-labor, anti-Administration, anti-Negro,, anti-war program column has been removed from the pages of The Richmond Times Dispatch since the beginning of the year.

Labor has scored a tremendous success in removing the writings of this native pro-Fascist from the largest newspaper in Virginia. It should serve as an example to the rest of the country that Pegler's poison pen can be put in cold storage for all time.

In a leading editorial on Jan. 4, 1943, The Times Dispatch announced that "as a commentator on world affairs, he (Pegler) is a washout."

"He could beat the drum," reported the newspaper, "but that was no proof that he could play the piano, and his pathetic exposure of malignant misrepresentation in the field of international ignorance and 'communistic' claptrap has smeared his reputation beyond repair."

Early last year when labor and progressive war organizations called for Pegler's removal, the editors said that they could not break his contract. However, persistent demands finally removed the poison-pen scourge from the newspaper's columns.

It seems the last straw to break the column's back was Pegler's attack on Wallace's plan for the century of the common man.

"It is not on account of Westbrook Pegler's arguments (that his column was removed), but because of his misrepresentations that we have ceased to carry his articles," The Times Dispatch wrote on January 8.

In another editorial entitled "Pegler, a Ponderous Palooka," the newpaper stated that the NAM spokesman was doing "his best to destroy all ideas of world collaboration . . ."

REAL FIGHT NEEDED

WHOLE NATION JOINS IN DEMAND FOR REOPENING OF FEPC

NAACP, National Negro Congress, N. Y., L. A. Victory Bodies Act

National organization of Americans to battle the virtual scuttling of President Roosevelt's Fair Employment Practice Committe saw spectcular developments this week throughout the land.

In New York City a mammoth mass meeting called by the Negro Labor Victory, associated with Los Angeles' Negro Victory Committee, heard Ferdinand Smith, Negro chief of the CIO's national anti-discrimination body, Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, A. Phillip Randolph, Joe Curran, of the National Maritime Union, and others smack the cancellation of the FEPC hearings on railroad discrimination belly blows.

Although Paul V. McNutt had seen a delegation of 25 labor leaders from the New Negro Victory Labor body last week pledging to them continued existence and strengthen of FEPC, late reports this week stated that McNutt refused to see another delegation, numbering well over 70 this week. The latter group was headed by A Phillip Randolph and Walter White.

Randolph's newest scheme to hit the Government is a national civil disobedience campaign similar to those of Mahatma Ghandi.

Informed quarters in the nation's capital, however, point out that the tremendous mass upheaval which the cancellation of FEPC hearings has brought about has already empowered the Administration toward tentative steps in rescinding its previous action.

It was pointed out that McNutt, who has been an outstanding spokesman for full integration of Negroes in industry, was forced to cancel the hearings only after the bitterest campaign by Southern poll taxers and Northern railroad reactionaries in Congress.

CONDUCTORS TRAINED BY RAILWAY; MORE WANTED

Workers upgraded from car-washing departments are being trained this week by the Los Angeles Railway Company to take posts as conductors and motormen on the firm's extensive lines.

Meanwhile, an urgent call for workers to replace the upgraded ones has been sent out by the company, along with a plea for more applicants for conductorette, motorman and conductor jobs.

So acute has become the manpower shortage, it was indicated today, that even Negro workers, most heavily discriminated against in the city, are scarce as hen's teeth.

Civic leaders and spokesmen for the victorious Negro Victory Committee, however, urged that qualified Negroes apply for railway line jobs because of the serious need for men and women in this all-important war transportation industry. Further, it was stated, the advances of the Negro people must be firmly secured in this field, which will remain open in post-war years.

The city anxiously awaits the celebration which will greet the first run on LARY lines by a Negro motorman, conductor or conductorette.

Adequate investigation has dispelled fears that the company is attempting to "backtrack." Negro workers, along with all others, are urgently needed and the only real problem now is their scarcity.

Sweetheart Held in Poison Death

With the horrible death by arsenic poisoning the fate of Alonzo Smith, 48, of 2401½ Imperial Highway, and Miss Flora Belle Russel in jail chared with suspicion of murder, one of the most startling and complicated cases in recent police annals opened this week. Determined to sift all evidence down to the finest dregs, before a preliminary trial is set for the accused woman, sweetheart for the past five years of the victim, the sheriff's department has launched fuller and more thorough investigation. The investigators are Attherton Garnack, Garland and Case. The accused has retained Att'y Ivan Johnson for her defense.

Taking violently ill after partaking of a meal prepared by the Russell woman at his home Dec. 22, Smith died at General Hospital on Jan. 1. But on Jan. 6 Deputy Coroner Durkin notified the Bureau of Investigation that the autopsy showed positively that he had come to his death by arsenic poisoning, and recommended a full investigation. Following this Smith brother, Bryant, and Alonzo's son, Alonzo, jr., both of 1233 E. 33rd street made statements to the district attorney's office that they felt sure that the dead man had been the victim of foul play, and named

In this war for the maintenance of civilization, in this war against the black tide of Fascist barbarism, in this war which is the defense of every achievement of the common man from the Magna Charta to the Wagner Labor Relations Act, to the President's Executive Order 8802,--Our city bears a huge responsibility.

From our great factories, from our fields, from the minds and the hands of our people must flow the supplies, the planes, guns, gas masks, food, the raw material of victory, to every part of the world, to every battlefront of the world.

There is probably no city in the world whose industries bear such decisive responsibility in arming the armies of freedom.

War production is our business in Los Angeles. Everything else is important only as it relates to that war production. Our planes may turn the tide of a hundred battles. Our assembly

Love Murder Takes Life of Hubby

When entertaining two ladies in bed, never phone your wife to come get you.

That could be the moral of this story.

Alfred Smith, 24, 1335 East 21st street could have told you about it.

But he can't.

He's dead.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Last Saturday night at about 11 p. m. Alfred's wife, Clara Lee Smith, 29, of the same address, received a phone call from him. He said he had been drinking and was unable to manage it home. Would she come get him? He was at a house at 1682 East Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Smith called Alfred's sister, Exzee Clemmons, of 1231½ East 28th street. A few minutes later,, Mrs. Clemmons arrived at the Smith home with a friend, Vera Smith, sister-in-

RAIL MEN FEAR EFFECTS OF NAVY BRIDE SLAYING

With highly respected colored rail workers and union officials, such as Percy Buck, veteran dining car inspector and John Hargrove of the Dining Car Waiters Union expressing deep regret, the crimes of Robert Folkes, 20-year old second cook, has been a principal topic of conversation since its commission Saturday night, Jan. 23.

By his own written confession, Folkes, allegedly inflamed by drink, slashed to death Mrs. Martha Virginia James, 21 year old —bride of a Navy ensign, when she resented his entrance into her berth aboard the Pullman of his S. P. train near Albany, Oregon.

Arrested on suspicion by Los Angeles police upon arrival of the train here, Folkes, made a full, detailed written confession, disclaiming any brutality or "third degree" by police to force him to admit the slaying. He declared that he had become very drunk at a party staged by the dining car steward for the dining car crew, and although he made many erratic statements and contradictions, there was no evidence discovered that someone else had slain the young woman, and framed the blame on him.

Although Attorney Walter Gordon, jr. well-known young criminal lawyer had been retained as counsel for the suspect, he waived extradition proceedings, on Saturday, Jan. 30, when arraigned before Judge Byron J. Walters and was returned to Oregon on an order issued by the judge. Under Sherriff Clay E. Kirk from Lynn County, Ore. made the trip here for the prisoner, and returned with him the same night.

Police had also questioned Elmer White, a waiter, on the same diner.. in which Folkes worked, and N .L. Shaw, porter on the death car, until relieved by Harry M. Hughes, before deciding

Film, Tenn. Johnson,' Smears Negroes

Release of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film, "Tennessee Johonson," will drive deep wedges in the national unity which is America first requisite in its war against Fascism.

The picture, which has been condemned by every ranking progressive and Negro organization in America is a deliberate corruption of our history and smear on the Negro population of our country, was released to mild fanfare in New York and several other cities during the last two weeks.

WHAT IT'S ABOUT

The picture is supposed to tell the story of the Administration of President Andrew Johnson, the successor of Abraham Lincoln.

That story is one of corruption and betrayal. It is the story of a man who tried to sell out the Second American Revolution. It is the story of the first Gene Talmadge. The story of a man who hated democracy.

It was President Johnson who, in his third annual address to the Congress, advanced the theory that Negroes were biologically incapable of self-government, that everywhere that Negroes have been left to govern themselves they have "relapsed into barbarism."

WHAT MGM SAYS

With much sanctimonious braying about "historical accuracy" (it is accurate according to the Dixie-land histories which our Culver City cousins use for authority), the picture is foisted upon America today.

In it, Johnson is pictured as a lily-white saint carrying out the letter and the spirit of Lincoln's Administration!

Every ten minutes, Johnson (as portrayed by unfortunate Van Heflin) rolls his eyes to Heaven and invokes the blessing of the Martyr President, Lincoln-known Civil War appeaser the Liberator . . . Johnson the race-baiter--just the same. What stupendous baloney!

JOHNSON'S REAL ROLE

Johnson played a role similar to the one which Stn. Wheeler, Martin Dies, or Herbert Hoover would like to play today.

After the magnificent, emancipating Civil War Johnson came along with the theory and practice of giving back to the South everything it had possessed before the outbreak of hostilities.

In the picture, Johnson says, Lincoln freed the slaves. I will give their former masters."

Why?

Get the drift?

Concretely, it was Johnson who vetoed every bill to grant Negroes equal rights. It was Johnson who called the notorious State Conventions throughout the South which reinstated virtual slavery and set up the former traitors and rebels as the new government of the South It was Johnson whom the nation completely repudiated and denounced on the ground that he had betrayed Lincoln and the Civil War.

WHY RELEASED NOW?

Why, pray, does MGM come up with a glorification of a the midst of a campaign by the American people to isolate and destroy the appeasers who would sell-out this war for freedom just as Johnson sold out the last one in which America fought.

Why would MGM eulogize a man with the views of Martin Dies, when our whole nation is uniting to expell that Congressman from the post in which he has so long betrayed our national interests?

Why would MGM glamorize a Dixie race-baiter when our whole country is striving to erase the 'white supremacy' lie from our whole life?

Like the Courier, full revelation of this material has long been withheld in the interest of national unity and morale. But no further service may be rendered by hushing the Tuskegee situation, since urgent appeals to rectify it have gone unheeded.

Letters from Negro soldiers at Tuskegee tell of unarmed Negro Military Police at the mercy of Southern whites in nearby towns. They tell of Jim Crow regulations which have been instituted against Lieut. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis in the Officers quarters. They tell of our boys in uniform being called by Southern civilians, "Hey, nigger!"

A white officer who, at the time of the Tuskegee riot, (which some newspapers tried to pooh-pooh when it was exclusively reported in the EAGLE) sent an order into the town of Tuskegee demanding that Negro soldiers' uniforms be respected was removed,--but Kimble, Jim-Crow specialist, was promoted.

Sunday, February 14, Date Set by Church to Honor Seventh Anniversary of Rev. Clayton D. Russell

Sunday, February 14, is the date set by the official board to honor the minister of People's Independent Church of Christ, Rev. Clayton Russell for his seven years as pastor of this church and untiirng service to the community.

Coming to us just seven years ago at the tender age of 25 years, catching the mantle of our beloved Rev. N. P. Greggs, he has carried on the vast work to the astonishment of the most skeptical, said churchmen.

"We want to show him in a tangible way our appreciation. Our aim is $1000. Every member, friend and well-wisher is asked to contribute to this fund. On the afternoon of February 14, a huge mass testimonial will be held in this auditorium at which time we invite every one to be present and say "God's Speed" to our fearless, tireless, dynamic leader and minister, Rev. Clayton D. Russell. Special contribution envelopes will be passed for your love offering. Get yours today", they added.

Ladies Auxiliary, Local 582, Begins Year

The Ladies Auxiliary, Local 582, with all members at their post, opened their meeting for the New Year, Jan. 14, 1943. The opening song was led by the members, followed with prayer by Mrs. Joe Wyndon. During the business discussion, plans were made for the Pre-Saint Patricks Day Tea. The social meeting was opened Jan. 28, with salute to the flag, and theme song by the members. Prayer by Mrs. Marie Washington.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Clark. Mrs. Frankie Binkley, Mrs. Roberta Bellamy and Mrs. Butler, served a delicious repast.

If you are buying a laxative answer these 3 Questions first

Ques. Why do most people choose a popular laxative instead of a lesser known product? Ans. Because a popular-seller can generally be counted on to give satisfaction or it could not have won the respect of its users. Ques. What is one laxative that has been a popular-seller with four generations? Ans. Black-Draught. Ques. Why is Black-Draught made in 2 forms? Ans. Because many think the new granulated form is even easier to take.

Black-Draught costs only 25c for 25 doses. It is purely herbal, usually gentle, prompt, thorough. Follow label directions.

Dixie demagogues and Hoover Republicans dead set to destroy the President's war Administration had threatened to tie up the Administration's entire legislative program if the hearings were not cut off.

Failure to support win-the-war candidates in the Nov. 3 lection has weakened the Administration's technical position n Washington, where appeasers, Nero-baiters and pro-fascists in Congress hold virtually a balance of power.

PEOPLE MUST SPEAK

Responsible Washington spokesman, however, point out that no cloakroom conspiracy against the war effort and the Negro people can succeed in the face of an aroused public opinion.

The New York mass meeting, indications of national organization to fight for FEPC can very easily strengthen the Administration to the point of boldly slapping over its defeatist opposition, reinstating FEPC and making, if anything, more powerful than ever.

LOS ANGELES RALLIES

Los Angeles' prompt rally to fight for FEPC, led by the NAACP and the Negro Victory Committee, was given new impetus this week with the receipt of a letter from Paul V. McNutt, Manpower Commissioner, by Rev. Clayton D. Russell, Victory Committee head. The letter stated: "This will acknowledge receipt of your telegram of Jan. 13, addressed to the president and to me in which you support the work of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice.

"I am conferring with members of the committee at its next meeting to work out appropriate procedures for eliminating discriminatory practices in war industry and to bring about the full utilization of all available manpower in the country. The War Manpower Commission will take vigorous steps to achieve this objective throuh all appropriate means available to it."

RESIGNATIONS PILE UP

Atty. W. C. Hueston, Elks figure and legal advisor to FEPC, joined the growing list of Negroes high in government employ who have resigned as a result of the FEPC hearing cancellation. Others include Malcolm S. MacLean, former chairman of the Committee, Mark Ethridge and David Sarnoff, former members; and William Hastie, who held a special position as advisor to the Secretary of War in that department.

All of these men launched blistering denunciations of the cancellation, and all of them nailed the cause properly with the Dixie Democrat-Hoover Republican gan in Congress who, as Walter White stated, are out to kill all "liberal legislation and liberal policies."

A joint statement from Ferdinand Smith, of the CIO, Dr. Max Yergan, of the Council of African Affairs, and Wendell Willkie, labeled the move as "willingly or unwillingly" aiding the Axis.

In Los Angeles, the Negro Victory Committee plans a broad conference of labor, Negro, and progressive organizations to organize fullest mass pressure on Washington from this area. Dates will be announced shortly.

Choir Anniversary at Eighth and Towne

The J. E. Edwards Choir of the First A. M. E. church wil celebate its First Anniversary Sunday. The need for an aditional organized sining group in the life of the church was recognized during the first months of Rev. Jordan's administration as pastor of the church. In Octover 1941, rehearsals for the nef choir were begun, and in February of the following year the official organization of the choir was completed.

The annonuced subject for the sermon of Rev. Frederick D. Jordan at morning worship Sunday in historic First A. M. E. church will be "The Night Of Betrayal."

--Te famous senior choir of the church will sing "By Babylon's Wave."

Challenge Employment Question

Discrimination at 11th and Flower Is Charge

"Do you want colored or white?"

This is the cheery question which greeted the ears of a union hiring hall official who recently called the offices of the United States Employment Service, it was learned exclusively by the SAGLE this week.

The practice of asking 'racial' questionss has been renounced by USES big-wigs in the past and on one occasion this reporter saw themb shrink at the very thought of such shinanigins.

The union which reported the discriminatory question dispatches workers to local defense industry through USES. A strong anti-bias outfit it has protested to US ES over the race-questioning process.

A committee on minority group practices was set up by the employment agency several months ago. One of the specific requirements of this group was the emmediate end of the practice of raising the race question in sending out workers to local defense industry.

Moreover, USES, according to regulations, is not supposed to ACCEPT a biased order from any employer, much less indulge in that practice itself.

Strong community pressure will be brought to bear, it has been promised, to keep USES firmly in line with the President's executive order 8802, a fundamental win-the-war employment policy which bars all racial discrimination.

25 Delegates Call on FEPC Members

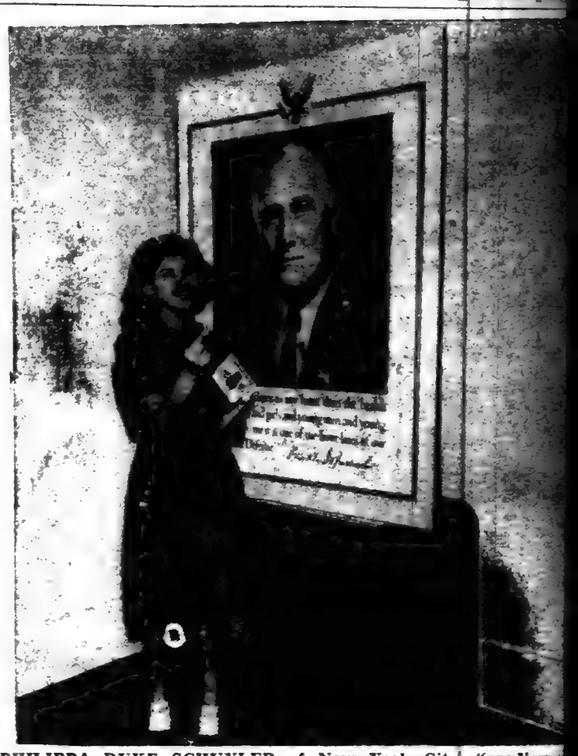
WASHINGTON, D. C.— 25-delegates representing church, civic, fraternal and trade union organizations conferred in Washington yesterday with the four remaining members of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice (FEPC) The delegation went to express to the members of the Committee their deep distress over the indefinite postponement of the hearings on discrimination in the railroad industry and to assure the Committee of the support of their constituents for the splendid work that the FE PC had been doing.

Theodore A. Jackson, representing the Joint Council of Dining Car Employees of America, AFL, spokesman for the New York delegates, stated that the present members of FEPC, Earl B. Dickerson, Boris Shishkin, John Brophy and Milton P. Webster, were in complete agreement to do all in their power to the end that the hearings would be rescheduled so that the discriminatory practices on the railroad would be brought to our nation's attention immediately.

"I am strengthened in my belief in democracy", concluded Mr. Jackson, "when I see how through the machinery of intelligent protest a threatened victory of unprogressive forces can be warded off".

EAST AREA CLINIC REPORTS 410 VISITS IN TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT

Intensifying its efforts in controlling tuberculosis, the Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health Association's East Area Clinic reports 410 visits to area residents during December. The nature of these visits was described as part of a plan to bring more people in touch with the free health facilities that are being made available at the association's clinic, 903 E. 28th street.



"Because of the fact that tuberculosis often strikes without warning, it is of the utmost importance that everyone obtain a regular check-up on the state of his health," saida a spokesman of the tuberculosis associatioon, "a chest X-ray is the only means of discovering this disease at its earliest stages."

During December 52 X-ray examinations and 52 tuberculin tests were given at the clinic. Sinc 1938, 3720 X-rays and 3808 tests have been provided free of charge at the clinic, the report shows.

"Tuberculosis is often thought of as a disease which is inherited. Such is not the case. It is caused by a germ which is passed from the sick to the well by contact. It can be cured if discovered early, but the fact that 860 Angelenos died of this disease in 1941 is evidence that people do not take enough advantage of the health opportunities that are available. Everyone should have a chest X-ray regardless of how he feels, said the Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health association.

Dr. Leonard Stovall is medical director: Dr. Wilburn J. Williams, medical consultant, and Miss Theresa V. Dixon, public health nurse, is director.

Additional medical staff is provided from among members of the Southern California Medical, Dntal and Pharmaceutical association. The East Area clinic at 903 E. 28th street is entirely supported by the annual sale of Christmas seals.

PHILIPPA DUKE SCHUYLER of New York City, "prodigy large," concert pianist, composer of over 100 compositions since the age of three, is seen inserting her dimes, in the "March Dimes," to be mailed to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, at the White House, Washington, D. C.

Poly Youth Heads School Publicity

The only Negro youth to ever hold the office in the history of the school, Adolphus Burley was elected Jan. 15 as president of the S'43 board of publicity at John H. Francis Polytechnic High school.

Burley's duties are to head all student and school publicity, including streamers, bulletins and posters. The 8 other members of the board are white.

Boasting a record attesting to his abounding energy, intelligence and goodwill, Burley is boys' league and self-government representative, member of the 28th street Poly Hi "Y," and, in addition, is claiming membership in the Mask and Sandal, and Brush and Palette clubs of Poly.

Topping this off he has earned a C basketball letter, and was first string forward on the championship Poly team. He is again holding down this spot this year.

McNUTT MAY RE-OPEN FEPC RAIL HEARINGS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—By unanimous vote the Committee on Fair Employment Practice today decided to make representations to Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, that it was the committee's very strong feeling that the railroad hearings which were postponed last week should be re-scheduled and held as soon as possible. The committee had a satisfactory conference with Chairman McNutt and received assurance that every consideration would be given to its recommendation.

The committee, in appraising the situation from information available to it, is of the opinion that the policy set forth in Executive Order 8802 continues to be the policy of the administration and that it will be vigorously enforced.

McNutt assured the committee that the postponement of the railroad hearings did not imply that other hearings would be postponed. He emphasized that the War Manpower Commission through hearings, negotiations and all other appropriate means would work toward bringing discrimination to a permanent end.

"Discrimination," McNutt pointed out, "constitutes a waste of manpower. It is, therefore important to the war effort that it be ended."

New York State Hits Navy Negro Bias

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3 (C)—Exclusion of Negroes from certain classes conducted by the Navy in colleges in the state had received the condemnation this week of the State War council.

The council, which met Tuesday with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, as chairman, talked of its "solemn conviction that any departure from the recognized policy of the state of equality of opportunity for all of its citizens regardless of race, color or creed, is inimical to the best interest of its citizenry and to their participation in the war effort."

Copies of the resolution were forwarded to the War and Navy departments, and to the war and navy committees of the War Manpower Commission. A complaint had been filed with the governor, it was learned, by Walter White. The governor declined to name the college or colleges involved.

Marcantonio Defeat Blow to War Effort

NEW YORK—The refusal of the House to approve the nomination of Representative Vito Marcantonio, to the House Judiciary Committee, made by the Committee on Committees, is a definite blow to the war effort. It represents a capitulation to the alliance of the Tory Democrats from the South and reactionary Republicans from the North, who are determined to block all efforts of the War Administration to effect full antional unity.

It is clear that the real issue at stake is the fight of the American people to extend democracy by abolition of the poll tax; elimination of the fascist practice of lynching, and to protect the democratic rights of all American workers, which fight Congressman Marcantonio has consistently championed.

It is no surprise that the opposition to the nomination of Mr. Marcantonio was led by Messrs. Dies of Texas, Woodrum of Virginia, Rankin of Mississippi and Barry of New York, who, by their opposition to everything that is decent and democratic, represent the forces of the domestic fascists whose position in Congress is entrenched by the un-American poll tax.

We are confident that Mr. Marcantonio will accept this challenge of the domestic fascists and redouble his efforts to win the war and destroy fascism abroad and at home.

We sincerely hope that those members of the House of Representatives who showed that they place the welfare of our country first, by supporting the nomination of Mr. Marcantonio to the House Judiciary Committee, such as: Speaker Rayburn, Representatives Doughton of North Carolina, Cooper of Tenn., Lynch and Celler of New York, will continue their efforts to break the power of the reactionary alliance in Congress and thus hasten the invincible unity of our nation for Victory. In this undertaking, they will have the support of the overwhelming majority of the American people.

Farmers to Get Draft Deferment

The problem of getting enough agricultural workers to assure the increased food production goals for 1943 will be partly solved by keeping as many of them as possible on the farms through draft deferment of farm workers engaged in raising essential war crops. Added to the list of "essential crops" are such products as tobacco and short staple cotton, vegetables seeds, honey, ducks, geese, goats, a detailed list of fruits, and most lumber and wood products.

The form in which foods will reach the civilian consumer this year has been partly determined by canning restrictions. Last year, the total pack of canned soups, for example, was about 25 million cases, but this year it will be reduced about one-fourth.

Although soup canners may use almost unlimited of metal cans for packing seasonal soups, such as asparagus, pea, spinach, and tomato, they can pack only three-fourths of their 1942 production of the non-essential soups, chickens, vegetables, clam or fish chowder and the like. Homemade soup stocks—a familiar item in American kitchens a generation ago— ill return to favor, and with them, many other soups made from market-fresh meats and vegetables.

As the point system of rationing divides up the limited supplies of canned fruits, vegetables, and fruits, good cooking of fresh food products will become an ever more vital part of the whole war program.

Another aid to farmers is the increase of 30 per cent in farm machinery production, authorized by the War Production Board. Price ceilings have been set on seven new coffitt substitutes and compounds, some of which may appear on retail shelves in the near future, ration coupon banking, the handling of ration coupons by the nation's banks after they have passed out of trade channels, went into effect on Jan. 27, and will apply to the point ration plan, critical materials of any kind may not be used in making fishing tackle, and scarce metals aren't going into sporting goods except in small quantities, but there'll be enough fishhooks for the average fisherman.

NATIONAL POLL TAX CONFAB SLATED MAR. 9

A national conference to launch a vigorous and successful campaign to abolish the poll tax in this session of congress will be held Mar. 9 in Washington, D. C., the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax announced today.

Leaders of national organizations of labor, church, Negro, women and civic groups will be invited to send representatives. It is also expected that key regional people will also attend to work out specific plans for carrying on the fight state by state and district by district.

Abolition of the poll tax is a prime wartime task, for the poll tax is an obstacle to victory. In a war for democracy, all the American people must have the basic democratic right to vote—without a price tag attached. Ten million people in the South cannot vote because they are too poor to afford that privilege. This condition permits poll tax congressmen and senators to be elected and reelected to office by a small minority of the people and through seniority are now chairmen of the most important committees in congress.

In the recent filibuster in the senate it became clear that the fight against poll tax repeal is the beginning of the reactionary drive against all measures for the security of the people, and therefore against the successful prosecution of the war.

The poll taxers are the spearhead of reaction. The American people will not tolerate obstruction of our war effort. The poll tax is an obstacle to victory and will be abolished in this session of congress.

Abolition of the poll tax will require effective organized action. The national conference Mar. 9 will be a working conference with the purpose of securing maximum support behind the fight. The second day of the conference will be devoted to visiting congressmen to secure their signatures to the discharge petition on the house bill and pledges of support for early passage of the bill.

The introduction of six anti-poll tax bills in the House of Representatives in its first four legislative days, indicates strong support in the new congress for early action to outlaw the poll tax. The National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax, which led the fight to abolish the poll tax in the last congress, announced its support of H. R. 987, introduced by Joseph Clark Baldwin (R., N. Y.) and will conduct a vigorous campaign to secure early passage of the bill.

U. S. Negro Newspapers to Celebrate

During the week of February 28-March 6, 1943, the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association and the Delta Phi Delta Journalists Association will cooperate with the Negro newspapers of America in the promotion of the fifth annual observance of National Negro Newspaper Week and the celebration of the One Hundred Sixteenth Anniversary of the American Negro Press. The theme of the week is to be, "Functions of a Minority Press in a Nation at War."

Cognizant of the significant role of the press in the most critical period of our national history, the sponsors of this project urge the participating papers to take this opportunity to reassure America that they are not unaware of their obligation to promote national unity and restrain from releasing information which might aid the enemy in defeating our forces in the far flung battle areas of the world, making it possible for the Axis to heap devastation upon this land. At the same time, it is hoped that the papers will reemphasize their determination to continue to strive for the perpetuation of the democratic principles in the United States since victory on the battlefront will be without avail if the foes of decency and right are victorious at home.

Since its inception, the American Negro Press has striven for the full integration of the Negro into American life by attempting to familiarize the nation with the contributions made by the race in the development of this Republic. No movement designed to promote the welfare and progress of America has gone without the support of the Negro segment of the nation's fourth estate. Today, the Negro press stands firmly in support of war efforts while at the same time, it joins with all organizations and individuals who are struggling for the Negro's chance to work and fight for the cause in which we are engulfed.

In order that the observance of National Negro Newspaper Week might prove a success, its sponsors seek the cooperation of (1) all Negro newspapers and literary publications, (2) Negro schools and colleges, (3) Negro churches, and, (4) agencies and organizations interested in the welfare and progress of the Negro

Texas D. A. Closes Case Against Soldiers Assailants

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The refusal of a Beaumont, Texas, district attorney to prosecute two white policemen who shot Private Charles J. Reco, July 7th brought from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People this week a request for further intervention by Attorney General Francis Biddle into the prosecution of the case.

In a wire to Biddle the NAA CP stated:

"In refusal of United States District Attorney Steve M. King at Beaumont, Texas, to prosecute assailants of Private Charles J. Reco, may we respectfully suggest and urge supersedence by special prosecutor from Department of Justice at Washington. Failure to prosecute and punish in so clear-cut a case as this would serve as a notice to other peace officers and public that Negro soldiers may be attacked with impunity and without any fear of consequences."

Steve M. King, Beaumont district attorney announced that the case has been closed because it was "lacking in those elements promising a successful prosecution."

The Department of Justice statement previously ordered filed by Mr. Biddle said that Reco had been ordered off a Beaumont bus because he had taken a vacant seat in a section reserved for whites. After he had alighted from the bus one of the police officers struck him several times with a nightstick. The statement added that Reco had not resisted the police officers until after he had been struck several times. Reco recovered from the wounds.

The Billy Lanes (Stella) ob- serve their third anniversary this month, and the Sam Franklins (Vera) their fifth, the Marvin Johnsons observe in Febr., too. AKA's Founders Day is on the 25th. Paul Lawrence Dunbar, dead 37 years on the 9th, the Joe Greenes observe their first anniversary on the 15th (I be- lieve!). Febr. is birth-month for Ernest Whitman, the daughter of the Bert Tuckers birthdays in Febr., Mrs. Hank Armstrong birthdays this month, while "Jo" Cooper (17th) and Marian An- derson (24th), both whom are close friends thru the long years, usually make their birthdays a joint celebration over tea in the latter's hotel suite, for each sea- son always finds her in Calif. on her concert tour royale--Allah be praised.

Harold Jackman is the only tantone Captain in the working contingent at NY's Stage Door Canteen . . . in which role, I'm safely sure, life-goes-to-a-party Harold, bless him, quite fairly does himself well and brilliant . . by the way, who will be the first sepia Captain among the Holly- wood Canteen workers? . . . Al- tho we havent met (I've found hi wife charming), Chester Him- es is a working writer I admire for not heeding our distracting how-dee-do. Occupying a cozy home overlooking Hollywood, I'm told. Himes is a person folk fre- quently ask me of, his career, etc. Follows a vignette published in the Cleveland News;

"Chester Himes . . . was born at Jefferson City, Mo., the son of a teacher in the Lincoln Institute there, and he published his first magazine story in Esquire, "Crazy In The Stir", a sketch of prison psychology. He has written sever- al other magazine articles, prin- cipally fiction. He is a brother of Jos. Himes, blind, winner of the highest scholastic medal award at E. High School in '27, now a Ph. D. from Ohio State and on the staff of the Columbus Urban League. Himes was graduated from E. High in '26. We consider him one of the most talented col- ored persons of this city, which he has viewed with eyes some- times realistic, sometimes poetic, in this series."

And reading Himes career re- minds us we've long appreciated the number of creative artists in our section who won't allow aim- less bridge games, bar-stools and telephone sessions to interfere with their calling!

On our desk, a 24-page copy of The Report on The Work of the East Area Health Program (TB Case Finding Among Ne- groes): an interesting acc't of the tremendous work the pro- gram has covered in 3 years, I wish all could digest the facts. I've long felt the East Area Health Program is not fully ab- sorbed and used by our com- munity. All concerned deserve laurel from this dept. . . . and get it.

Hmmm, isn't Febr. 14th anni- versary day for the Rev. Walter Bryants (Chappie)? . . . To Mar- celita Lenear, Oakland, Cal.: Thanks a lot! . . . In town for 3 wks from NY: Jimmy (Robt.) Smith, who was on the Amster- dam's city desk last time we saw him. Has an impressive new job, etc. with the USS. Come to think, his presence in town gives us an- other Jimmy Smith, and both outve NY! . . . Rev. Clayton Powell, jr. is seriously considering a jaunt this way from NY, soon . . . CHORINE TO WAGE WAR AGAINST SWINGING SPIRITUALS

Because she is adept at trans- fering her thoughts to the printed page, Nadine Cole, clever young dancer, and the wife of Nat Cole, leader of the famous Cole Trio, is preparing a series of articles meant to start a drive against swinging the spirituals. Shocked by the growing tendency by ar- rangers, and composers in sacri- ligiously rewriting some of the race's sweetest spirituals into dance tunes, she hopes to arouse the race radio listeners, and dance fans into greater respect for these hymns.

Mrs. Cole, declares that al- though her husband submitted once to urgings to feature one of the swing spirituals, he too is adverse to its disrespect and has not so erred since. In fact when on one occasion a Jewish patron at the Cafe where he plays in- sisted on one he asked him. "Now how would you like to hear your revered 'Eli, Eli,' desecrated to swing music?"

Dedicate Frederick Douglass Victory Youth Center

Dedicated to the four freedoms of the United Nations; freedom from fear, freedom from want, freedom of religion, and freedom of expression; the Frederick Douglass Victory Youth Center sponsored by the Frederick Doug- lass club of the Young Commun- ist League opened last week.

The dedication ceremony was held on Thursday, January 21, 1943 at the center, 4414½ South Central avenue. The program in- cluded the showing of two sound motion pictures one of which was the speech of Vice-President Wal- lace before the Free World Asso- ciation entitled "The Price of Vic- tory"". Earl Francis, president of the club was in charge of the program.

The program of the Frederick Douglass Club and the Victory Youth Center is dedicated to:

The recreational, cultural, and social activities of the youth of the community.

"All out" support of our coun- try and her allies in their war against the fascist axis.

The abolition of discrimination in the armed forces, in war pro- duction and in the nation.

"All out" support of policies and measures in our country, state and city that will unite and speed victory.

The youth and all the com- munity for any and all activity to hasten victory; Red Cross classes, salvage collection, civilian defense, war industries job infor- mation, dances for service men and many other activities.

Among the campaigns of the Frederick Douglass club is the protesting of the MGM produc- tion, "Tennessee Johnson", which is a contribution to Hitler and the poll-taxers.

WOMEN MUST FIGHT TO IMPROVE STATUS, AID WAR EFFORT

Editor of New Women's Paper Writes for The California Eagle

By MARY INMAN

(Mary Inman is a distinguished authority on the struggle of women. She is the editor of an new publication, Facts For Women, printed in this city. The following article, which appears in its first edition, is considered a "must" for all Negro women just going into the great industrial world.—Ed.)

Failure to carry out the program for women in war work, mapped by representatives of the government and labor, is creating unbearable working conditions for these women, victimizing their children, and slowing up production of war goods.

Some of these "two job" women are working 80 and 90 hours a week. They work, say, eight hours to the factory and on the way home pick up children and shop, then cook for the family, wash dishes, etc., adding three or four hours to their "day," besides doing the family washing on Sunday, their "rest" day.

A hospital supervisor told this writer that they are already getting a great many cases of women who attempted to follow such a routine as the above, which did not permit recuperative rest, and who developed serious heart trouble, and now are unable to wait even upon themselves.

Moreover, it happened in England, and it is now happening in the United States, that an overworked woman often stays home to dig the family out of the accumulated dirt, or to care for a sick child, and if there is no skilled worker at the factory to fill her place her absence frequently ties up a machine. And when a machine is tied up, sometimes a whole process is tied up.

What is the key to this situation?

It is the failure of government and labor representatives to take into account the true nature of the work performed in the home.

For several years in this country wives of wage workers have been slandered and the work they do methodically and intentionally misrepresented by propagandists for employers, aided and abetted by Trotskyites.

They did this partly by confusing basic economic categories, for they wrote about working class housewives as though they were bourgeois women, thus the role of 22,000,000 women who worked only at home, had not earnings or income apart from their husbands' paychecks, and did all of their own work, were refererd to sneeringly by super-radicals as being "kept"; as existing in idleness; as being useless; as having no role in social production.

Actually these women were producing in the homes the labor-power to run industry, and without their work industry would have become paralyzed.

The reactionaries hoped in this way to split these 22,000,000 women off from the rest of the working class, theoretically and organizationally, and use housewives as a reserve labor supply against the rising trade union movement.

They also wanted to prevent housewives from organizing into trade union auxiliaries, a national nursery movement, and a woman's congress, to improve their own working and cultural conditions.

William F. Ogburn, who directed a social research project for the Herbert Hoover administration, and whose report was issued in 1933 as Recent Social Trends in the United States, while stating that on farms less than one meal per week, per person, is taken away from home, and in large cities only an average of two meals a week per person were eaten out, and that most of the work raising children and washing for adults still takes place in the homes, nevertheless sowed the seeds of confusion in this report, concerning the extent that work has left the home.

Ogburn ,a year later, 1934, in You and Machines, creates further confusion as to the degree that machines have replaced the woman's labor in the home.

But, Fortune, magazine of the rich, while dealing with the "servant" problem, March, 1938, deplored the fact that "machines cannot automatically make up 130,000,000 beds a day, cook 400,000,000 meals, sweep and dust, mop and clean, pick up set down the thousands of things, in every street in every town in the land. Or change the baby's diapers."

The theoretical basis for the Trotskyite attack upon the wage workers' wives is laid in Historical Materialism, by N. I. Bukharin (International Pub. N. Y. 1936), published before Bukharin was exposed, as a traitor who plotted with Hitler to open the borders of the Soviet Union to the Fascists, and shot for his many crimes

Bukharn wrote, p. 156: "The worker's . . . 'household' as a consumption economy only; it consumes its wages . . . the city, with its saloons, restaurants, laundries, etc., makes the household largely superfluous." He divides members of the worker's family into "eaters" and workers. Thus the housewife is slandered as an eater only. Thus, in the war setting, she needs no help to eat only!

Those following the Bukharin line contends that there is only one form of production: that which takes place outside the home. But, they slander Marx when they label such "theory" Marxism, for Marx's co-worker, Frederick Engels, states, Orin of the Family, pp. 9-10, that there are "two forms of production." that which produces life (labor-power) and that which produces the "material requirements of life: food, clothing, shelter and the necessary tools," while Marx wrote about the "production of labor-power," and stated that the perpetuation of the laborer is the "sine qua non of capitalist production."

It is futile to argue which of these two forms of production is the most important, since they are inter-dependent, and neither could exist without the other. This does not mean that the present method of producing labor-power is inescapable. Quote the contrary.

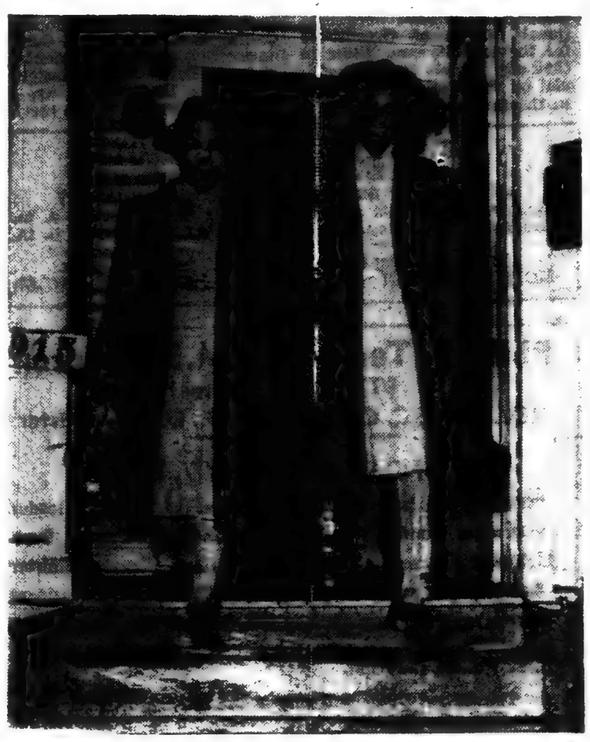
Joseph Stalin stated in 1931, Leninism (International Pub. N. Y. 1942), p. 232: " . . . a liberal attitude towards Trotskyism, even though the latter is shattered and concealed, is stupidly bordering on crime, bordering on treason to the working class.

Thus the background of the present mess involving "two-job" women was laid before the war, by propagandists for employers interested in super-exploitation of workers, and has as its purpose the waging of intense class war.

Those employers who still cling to such a campaign, and further it in a was setting, belong to that category which President Roosevelt characterized as placing their selfish interests first and the winning of the war second.

Now, as before, they immensely like the idea of these housewives producing in the homes the labor power to run their plants, and then coming into those plants and working another full day producing profits for them, without any relief from work performed at home.

Harrison George, editor of the People's World (San Francisco), Jan. 2, exposing the harmful propaganda put out by Jeanne Butcher, "women's counselor" at Moore Drydock (in which she described how Mrs. Merrill Evans, welder at Moore's assertedly had no problem at all in her double job, doing her household work and welding work, too) stated:



"This is the attitude that hampers—and has succeeded, it appears, in completely blocking—the program that would release womanpower for the war. It is in flagrant contradiction, open opposition, to the program of our government for bringing women into industry to win the war."

He states further, referring specifically to the plan to close the WPA Nurseries: "We must insist on a responsibile attitude, and immediate action, from local and state administrations to take the double days work off the Mrs. Evanses, and release for industry the thousands of housewives who cannot and should not undertake a wartime program of two days work in one."

Those unions that have not already set up committees to deal with this problem shoul do so, without delay, and then see that they get the necessary cooperation from the union to prevent the government's and labor's program for women from being scrapped. Such aid from the unions will greatly stimulate their drives for women members.

This issue must have the intensified backing of union auxiliaries, women's clubs, churches, parent-teacher groups, etc., for it is the responsibility of every stratum of the people.

OFF TO JOB

In above photo, Mrs. Dorothy Chaderton (left) a new appointee of the Visiting Nurse Association, is introduced to her new duties, by Mrs. Clara Cassell, first nurse to be appointed in this territory.

ANN ANDERSON . . . of Los Angeles, lovely daughter of Mrs. Addie Walter, is very busy in war work these days, for she has four brothers in the service, Pvtst. James, Eddie, Alvin and Johnnie Walter.

VISITING NURSE ASS'N NAMES ANOTHER NURSE

Attention of citizens of the Eastside community was again focused upon the valuable service being rendered by the Visiting Nurse Association when this organization announced the appointment of an additional nurse to serve in this area.

The new appointee is Mrs. Dorothy Chaderton, who is well known in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

She is well prepared for the duties of the position, having had several years of experience in home and hospital nursing. She has also served the Red Cross as instructor in home nursing.

Much of the credit for the increasing popularity of the VNA in this area is due to the conscientious and efficient service of Miss Clara Cassell, the first nurse appointed by the organization to serve in this territory. Miss Cassell has had several years' experience in hospital nursing in New York before coming to Los Angeles.

In announcing the new appointment, Miss Elizabeth Hill, director of the VNA, stated that interest and work of the Eastside committee is quite outstanding and is a valuable contribution to the visiting nurse service in Los Angeles.

The following citizens constitute the committee: chairman, Geo. A. Beavers jr., vice president of the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance company; secretary, Mrs. Ivory Treadwell; Otto Buss, principal of McKinley Jr. high school; Rev. F. D. Jordan, pastor of First AME church; Miss Dorothy Guinn, executive secretary YWCA; Dr. E. I. Robinson, president of the National Negro Medical association; Dr. A. L. Wallacae, Miss Almena Davis, newspaper publisher; Miss Theresa Dixon, R. N.; and Mrs. Elizabeth Brown.

Several other prominent citizens are expected to become active on the committee in the very near future.

Call DRexel 2251 when you need the visiting nurse service. Tell your friends and neighbors about this servic and you will not only help them but help to raise the health standards of your community. The cost of a call all depends upon the financial station of the patient—nothing if he is unable to pay—10 cents, 25 cents, to a maximum of $1.50 for the first hour of service. After the first call by the nurse to patient, the patien must be under the care of a physician, clinic, or hospital.

Launches Soul-Saving Campaign

REV. ANITA L. EDMONDS

The Universal Evangelical Church, Non-Denominational, 2503 So. Central Ave., is celebrating its 3rd anniversary, beginning Sunday, February 14, by declaring war on the Devil. The soul saving campaign is scheduled to last 2 weeks.

The Rev. Mrs. Blanche Blake, well known evangelist of the CME Church will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Blake is a forceful speaker, and is gifted with the ability to hold the attention of an audience spell bound. You will miss a great message if you fail to hear her.

This church is destined to be one of the greatest soul saving stations in this city. Its pastor, Rev. Anita L. Edmonds, is versatile, being gifted in song and music, as well as in the preaching of the gospel. This Sunday is Communion day. The pastor will preach from the subject, "In This We Serve", at 11 a. m. Sunday night, 7 p. m., "Handwriting On The Wall".

Avail yourself of these meetings and deepen your spiritual depth in God. Now is your opportunity.

Guest Speaker at Sunset Avenue

Rev. F. W. Detamore of the nation-wide Voice of Prophecy broadcat will be the guest speaker Saturday morning, 11:30 a. m., at the Sunset Avenue SDA Church of Pasadena, corner of Sunset Avenue and Pepper St. The music will be furnished by well-known church choir.

Sergeant Nathan Banks, returns to his home town for a brief visit this week. He will address the young people's society at 5 p. m. Sergeant Banks is an assistant chaplain at his camp.

Evangelist E. Wilkins will give the third of his illustrated prophetic lectures, next Sunday evening, 7:45 p. m., at the Canyon Boulevard Chapel, 919 South Canyon Blvd., Monrovia. His subject will be: "The Black Horse and Its Rider."

Church Confab Slated at Second AME

The services at Second AME Church, Rev. Jno. B. Isaacs, minister, continue to be of a very high order; inspite of the inclement weather on Sunday last, the audience was very large and enthusiastic.

Rev. Isaacs delivered a very inspiring sermon, there were two accessions.

A Church Conference will be held on Wednesday evening for the purpose o felecting a delegate to represent the church at the next annual conference. All members in good and regular standing are expected to be present and cast his vote.

The guest speaker for Sunday next will be Chaplain Alvia A. Shaw of the United States Army: who will also assist the pastor in the administration of the Holy Communion.

You are invited to attend services with us and partake of the communion.

New Orleans Church Buys $10,000 U. S. War Bond

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3.—Rev. Gardner C. Taylor, pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist church, was presented with a $10,000 U. S. War Bond for the church here this week.

Dr. J. S. Clark, president emeritus of Southern university, recently appointed director of the proposed state correctional institution for Negro boys, and chairman of the trustee board of Mt. Zion Baptist church, along with William Baker, secretary-treasurer of the building fund, and John B. Taylor, chairman of the deacon board, assisted in pointing out to the church membership the patriotic service that the church would render in the purchase of U. S. War Bonds.

The funds used had been raised and earmarked for construction of a new church building. On account of the inability of the church to secure building materials it was thought wise to invest in the war bond, according to Dr. Clark.

It was reported by Rev. Taylor that the purchase of the bond had been highly praised by the State War Bond department and by leading white and Negro citizens elsewhere. There were many visitors from the leading universities and colleges of the state in attendance at the meeting.

Ernest J. Wright, promotional director of the People's Defense league, and Spencer Elliston, civic leader of New Orleans, visited the church for the special program. Recently Wright and Elliston promoted a bond drive in New Orleans in which $100,000 or more of U. S. War Bonds were purchased by the citizens of the community.

To Do Research in Haiti

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Juliette V. Phifer, first Negro to be awarded an official exchange fellowship for study in one of the other American republics under the Convention for the Promotion of Inter-American Cultural Relations, will leave shortly for Haiti to do research in the field of education.

On leave from her position as principal of Newbold Laboratory school, Fayetteville Teachers college in Fayetteville, N. C., Miss Phifer will rside in Haiti for 9 months to make a survey of education in the rural and village areas of that country.

Pa. Groups to Aid OPA District Office

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Local Negro organizations and leaders in Harrisburg, Pa., will soon be called upon to assist in the volunteer work of the district office of the Office of Price Administration, as a result of a conference between Miss Frances Williams, senior consumer relations oficer in the Washington office of the OPA, and Guy J. Swope, district manager.

Following an adddress by Miss Williams to the 22nd annual conference of the Harrisburg branch of the YWCA on Saturday, Jan. 16, in which she spoke of the rationing and price control programs and their benefits to the consumer, Swope was supplied with a list of active organizations and citizens in the community.

New Pastor Coming to Lincoln

On Sunday, February 14, at the morning worship service, the members and friends of the Lincoln Memorial Congregational Church, located at Vernon on and Hooper avenues, will gather for the purpose of greeting their new pastor, the Rev. Lloyd E. Galloway, who comes from the First Congregational Church of Greensboro, North Carolina.

Rev. Galloway was born in Annapolis, Maryland. He received his college training at Morgan State College, Baltimore, Maryland, and completed his religious education at the Chicago Theological Seminary, of which he is a graduate. He has been active in the Student Volunteer Movement in 1932. And has been a delegate to many Youth Conferences held in Indiana and in New York City.

He has administered in the pastorates of Thomasville and Beachton, Georgia, and at Charlottee, North Carolina, and at Athens, Ala. For 3 years he was associate pastor at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Chicao, under the guidance of the Rev. Harold Kingsley.

Rev. Galloway has been the pastor for the First Congregational Church of Greensboro for the past 2 years. While in that city he has been an official on the staff of the YMCA in the capacity of Boy's Counsellor. He has been an officer of the Juvenile Court.

On January 3, of this year, he received a call to come to Lincoln Memorial to fill the vacancy left by the death of the late Rev. Lightner, who was pastor there for the past 27 years. On the initial day of the appearance of Rev. Galloway, the Southern California Conregational Conference officials, Superintendent, Dr. Nelson Drier, and Pastor-at-Large, Dr. Paul Davies, are expected to officiate at the service.

SCENE OF CELEBRATION

TRINITY BAPTISTS PLAN TRIBUTE TO MINISTER; TRIPLE FETE SET FOR FEB. 18

Announcement was made this week by the Women's Ensemble, representing all of the boards, auxiliaries and clubs of the Trinity Baptist Church, 3500 S. Normandie Ave., that they will signally honor their pastor, Dr. J. L. Caston, with a semi- formal Testimonial Banquet, Portrait Unveiling and Art Exhibit, Thursday night, February 18th at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Caston has just finished a brilliant year of leadership at this church climaxed by the removal of the church from its old location at W. 36th and Normandie.

The members and friends of the church have had a portrait of the minister done in oil by Art Landy of the Otis Art Institute and the Institute is joining with them in presenting an art exhibit in connection with the unveiling of the minister's portrait. It will hang in the Caston Chapel in their Educational building. The Art Exhibit will hang for two weeks and the two buildings which will be necessary to house it will be open each day for the general public. Mrs. Ora Lee Scott is in charge of the interior decoration, assisted by William Gibbs, the church's electrical wizard.

The night of the unveiling semi-formal banquet will be served to two hundred special guests who have been invited to share in this testimonial. Screen Actor Clarence Muse will be toastmaster at the banquet and numerous civic and religious leaders will take part on the program including Mrs. Charlotta Bass, first Negro Grand Jury member in the history of the city. The full program will be given in a subsequent news release.

Banquet plates are one dollar and a half, but the Unveiling Ceremony which will follow the banquet will be free to the general public. Stars of the radio, stage and screen will join with religious and civic leaders to honor one of Los Angeles' outstanding figures and to see at first hand the fine work of this great church which now numbers one thousand members.

Dr. Caston begins his eighth year as pastor of this church this month with a special message this Sunday morning: "The Light Which Darkness Cannot Put Out".

Interracial Service Is Planned

The Hartzell Memorial Methodist church, 2460 Colorado St., Pasadena, Calif., of which Rev. E. Clyde Smith is minister, and the Calvary AME Church, Rev. E. V. Banks, pastor, at Glorietta and Kirkwood Ave., Pasadena, are to observe an Inter-Racial service, Sunday, Feb. 14, at 3:30 p. m., at the CME church, of which Rev. E. Banks is pastor. One can derive from the subject that the spirit of the occasion will be interesting as well as inspirational. No question in regard to the racial problem will be discussed. We are looking forward to a better future, and become one in mind, spirit and in love. Rev. Smith, who is a spontaneous thinker, clear in judgement, and sound in wisdom, has a lare experience in the field of religious education of both races.

The church may be reached by boarding the No. Fair Oaks bus at Colorado and Fair Oaks. Get off on Glorietta St. Walk 2 blocks west. Everyone is welcome. Come out and bring your friends, and let us have a friendly worship together. Rev. E. V. Banks, pastor.

L. A. Texas College Club Has Tea

The Los Angeles Texas College club, had its first affair of the season January 31st, at the Camille Party Den, 848 E. Adams Blvd., in an open house tea. The president, Mrs. Enola L. Chism, and members, have planned to establish in the college a Revolving Fund, to help worthy students to reach their goal, and make useful leaders in their communitys. The tea, carried out in the club colors of blue and gold, was a social high-light as well as a worthy cause.

Letters Ask FDR, Britain to Act to Free India

The British Counsul
448 S. Hill St.
Los Angeles, Calif.
Dear Sir:

Since our two nations are waging war on the Axis powers with the oft expressed purpose of bringing freedom to all peoples, we humbly present the following, for transmission to the British Government, along with a letter which we have already sent to the President of the United States:

Today, Jan. 26, is the anniversary of the "Indian Declaration of Independence". American soldiers are stationed in India with the consent and cooperation of the British government, and our two nations are sacrificing both of men and wealth on the basis of terms agreed upon by them in the "Atlantic Charter", promising freedom to all men. Freedom is man's most cherished dream, and since the freedom of India's millions is a part of this dream, and should be a part of this promise, we earnestly pray that the British government will anticipate the blessings of a better world to come by immediately reopening negotiations with the people of India, looking toward their speedy liberation.

In presenting this petition, we all realize the effect on British economy of such action in the freeing of India, and we will act to interest our own government in helping to bear the burden of the transition period.

Praying that Great Britain will so lead us in the liberation of the oppressed peoples of the world, we are Respectfully yours.

Dr. Calvin Holman, D. S. of the L. A. Dist. of the Methodist Church.
Rev. Allan Hunter, Mt. Hollywood Cong. Church.

Special Series of Sermons at First AME Zion

The minister will deliver the the third in a series of sermons on the 23rd Psalm. Sunday morning, his subject will be "He Leadeth Me Beside Still Waters." Last Sunday's services were well attended regardless of the inclement weather. In days as these men should remember that God the Good Shepherd of all, goes on before us, and protects us from all harm or danger. Come hear this third phase of the Psalm of David.

The minister is preaching each Sunday evening, a series of sermons on the "American Home." His topic last Sunday evening was "Living Our Christianity at Home", which was very enthusiastic. Each person's place and rights will be depicted each Sunday evening. This Sunday he will speak on the "Baby's Place in the Home". Visitors and strangers are always welcome.

SECOND BAPTIST CUTS DEBT BY $11,000; $5000 BY EASTER NEW GOAL

Minister Preaches Special Sermon Sunday; Dr. Mayberry to Be Second Sunday Speaker

Last week Second Baptist church owed $52,000. This week it owes $41,000. With a cash payment of $5000 it settled an obligation of $11,200. Through the efforts of the mniister it was given $1200 and saved $1,957 in interest. When this announcement was made on last Sunday a great cheer echoed throughout the vast audience assembled for worship and to hear the news.

With this note paid, the church is girding its strength to pay off the balance. The mortgage and the parsonage debt total $41,000. The mortgage on the church is now cut to $37,000. The minister's next step is to attempt to reduce it to $30,000 by Easter. Of that amount $2,000 is already on hand and a determined effort will be made to raise $5000 between now and including Easter Sunday. On that Sunday there will be another Great Victory Parade and photographs will be made of all who give the requested $55.

Some people are predicting that the church will raise the needed money before Easter of 1944. The minister is cautioning against over confidence. He is calling upon the people to rally and they are following. He has voluntarily made himself a prisoner to the state until the drive is over and pledged to fast and pray one day out of each week for the full fifteen months. Many members are joining him.

Second Baptist is more certain than ever that it has the right leader. The leader gives credit to loyal boards, Deacon and Trustee, and a host of loyal and sacrificing members.

Worship with us Sunday. Follow the crowds. The public has its eyes on Second Baptist.

Next Sunday the minister will preach a special sermon. "Naaman was a Mighty Man of Valor. But he was a Leper." On the Second Sunday, Race Relations Day, Dr. Ralph L. Mayberry of the City Baptist Mission Society will preach. On the Third Sunday the minister will preach, "Although Naaman was a Leper, he was a Mighty Man of Valor."

BABIES' DAY AT FIRST AME ZION CHURCH

The First AME Zion church will recognize its first Babies' day, which is to be an annual affair. Throughout the day special services, and a special program has been arranged, that wil state the objectives of such an affair.

These are a few of the objectives of Babies' Day:

1. For every child, a home, and that love and security, which a home provides; and for that child who must receive, foster care, the nearest substitute for his own home.

2. For every child a community which recognizes and plans for his needs, protects him against physical dangers, moral hazards, and disease; provides him with safe and wholesome places for play and recreation; and makes provision for his culture and social needs.

3. For every child protection against labor that stunts growth, either physical or mental, that limits education, that deprives children of their right of comradeship, of play and of joy regardless of race, creed or color.

4. Consequently, the one objective above all will be: For every child spiirtual and moral training to help him to stand firm under the pressure of life.

The special dedicatorial service will be at 7:30 p. m. The minister will speak from the subject "The Baby's Place in the Home." The Senior Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Jean Willa Holmes, will render special music.

The persons who desire to help the baby of their choice, will be given space on the program to do so.

A cordial invitation is extended to the general public.

Names of babies may be found elsewhere in the EAGLE.

Meat Crisis Is Phony

Eastside war workers who must stand in line 3-deep at meat counters paying prices which have sky-rocketted way over price ceilings are victims of a pure racket.

It is a vast, respectable racket fitted out with the impressive trappings of the American Meat Institute, which, for latecomers happens to be none other than the Big Four Packing Trust of Chicago.

The celebrated meat shortage which is blustering through the food budget of war workers at the clip of a Kansas cyclone doesn't exist.

Either it doesn't exist or the U. S. government can no longer trust its statisticians, for according to official government figures there were 17.2 billion pounds of meat available for civilian consumption during 1942 as compared with 1.9 during 1943, a reduction of only 10 per cent. Moreover, during the period from 1937-1941 there were 17. billion pounds for civilian consumption, which doesn't compare at all badly with our 1942 allotment.

This means that in "meat shortage" 1942, there was only ten-per cent less meat for civilian consumption than in 1941, despite the side-tracking of 4.7 billion pounds of meat to the armed forces. It is also worth considering that hundreds of thousands of the 1941 meat-eating public were in 1942 out of circulation.

What does this mean?

It means that a phoney shortage has been arranged, apparently with the blessings of the Dept. of Agriculture's Claude Wickard, for the special benefit of high prices,--above ceiling-price, prices,—for that august institution, the American Meat Institute, or the Big Four Packing Houses of the Windy City.

By order of the OPA, there are 15,000 cattle standing in Los Angeles stock yards while the working population of our town ticks in with fabulous meat prices.

Meanwhile, there appears in our metropolitan papers, God Bless 'em!--a half page advertisement instructing the public to tighten its belt (pay big prices without whimpering) because we are at war and the meat industry has nobly given the armed forces 4.7 billion pounds of meat (but not a word about the 17.2 billion pounds left over for civilian consumption.) This advertisement is signed and paid for by--GUESS WHO?--, why, our frend, the American Meat Institute!

So that we are all clear, let's say it again. There is no civilian meat shortage. The big packers have arranged a phoney meat shortage so that they cn extort scandalous prices from war workers. It is a racket that threatens to destroy fundamentals of the whole war economy, making worthless the high wages of skilled industrial labor and defeating the war effort.

While the American Meat Institute wails loud and long about a "meat shortage," war workers should bear in mind this is so much unrationed baloney and that a sweeping investigation of OPA and the meat industry is in order.

Tennessee Steps Forward

Welcome news to America today is the dispatch from Nashville, Tenn., that the State house of representatives has voted to abolish the poll tax, which for half century has denied the right to vote to poor Negro and white citizens.

The repeal measure, which was sponsored by Gov. Prentice Cooper, provides for a statewide system of voter-registration to be set up. Next action on the bill is by the state senate.

Though it should be heartily welcomed, this action by Tennessee should not deflect the Negro people and all progressive, win-the-war forces from a determined drive for early passage of the current anti-poll tax legislation in the Federal Congress. The full power of the Federal government is needed to back any measure which will insure to the poor whites and Negroes of the South the franchise which is their fundamental democratic right and, used today, could become a powerful bludgeon against the band of Dixie native fascists who operate in Congress today with the avowed purpose of destroying every policy aimed at the democratic conduct of all-out warfare.

There is no corruption in the nation hindering our war effort which cannot be traced unerringly to the rotten poll-tax section of Congress. It was this noisy band of Negro-baiters who conducted the fatal assault upon Mr. Roosevelt's Seven Points of Economic Policy for winning the war. And it is this defeat which today reaches into the purse of every war worker as price ceilings crumble before profiteering exploiters and the standard of living of workers whose health and efficiency are the bedrock of victory is shattered, portion by portion.

Synonymous with everything contrary to the principles of the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms are the Messrs. Bilbo, Rankin, Dies, Cox, Whittington, Ellender, Cotton Ed Smith, Connally, and Byrd. These re the handful of most publicized poll-taxers. But there are a hundred more in the Congress, infesting every key committee, from finance, to military affairs, to foreign affairs, with their poisonous Bourbon politics and race hatred.

The removal of this defeatist gang from our Congress is a basic pre-condition for a people's victory and a people's peace.

Keep Up the Fight for FEPC

What began as a rout for the Negro people and progressive America may be turned into the greatest gain in the fight against discrimination since executive order 8802 if present dispatches from Washington pan out.

Paul V. McNutt's order cancelling the hearings on railroad discrimination by the Fair Employment Practice Committee set off such a barrage of condemnation from every section of America that apparently the Administration has been strengthened to the point of taking initial steps toward reinstating the Committee, and even making it stronger.

The prompt resignation of Malcolm S. MacLean, the Committee's chairman, David Sarnoff and Mark Ethridge, its best-known members, coupled with the protest-resignation of William Hastie as civilian aide in the War Department, were significant of a refusal of progressive Ameri- to further back-track in the face of Dixie's ca to further back-track in the face of Dixie's reactionary conspiracy against the all-out war effort.

Of greater importance than even the resignations was the prompt explosion of popular protest from coast to coast which greeted McNutt's scuttling of the FEPC.

No sooner had McNutt acted than the vanguard Negro Labor Victory Committee in New York descended, blitz-fashion, with a delegation of 25 upon the capital. There wasn't a head in delegation that would accomodate a handkerchief.

From Los Angeles came a swirl of telegrams supporting the President's war policies and yet forcefully condemning the surrender of these policies to the Dixie demagogues and their bosses of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Results to date are largely in rumor form. The Pittsburgh Courier's Washington representatives says that the FEPC may be strengthened rather than weakened, that it my be restored to independent status or put in the Department of Justice.

These are indications of the results which a progressive, militant and well organized campaign may secure.

But the main job is yet to be accomplished. A large part of that job rests legitimately upon California, where this state's advanced Negro industrial population must shout its demand for the restoration of FEPC, joining the swelling voice of all patriotic America.

The Fair Employment Practice Committee is an invaluable offensive weapon against those saboteurs of victory who use industrial race prejudice to scuttle America's war production and drive dangerous wedges into her national unity.

MGM Doesn't Give a Damn

The fact that thousands of unions, Negro organizations, liberal bodies,--to say nothing of the U. S. Office of War Information,--have condemned the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film, "Tennessee Johnson," as a morale-buster, doesn't mean a damn to that great studio. M-G-M has proceeded to release the film which disgracefully corrupt American history through rendering a senseless eulogy to the appeasers of the Civil War Period, men who rank as historical equivalents of the current Lindbergs, Wheelers and Bilbos.

"Tennessee Johnson" is a picture which purports to tell the story of President Andrew Johnson, the traitorous successor of Abraham Lincoln, who sought to do business with the slavecracy just as M-G-M's Republican pals would like to do business with Adolph Hitler and the 10,000 German millionaires who operate the fascist state today. In the film Johnson is a great hero.

Its release is a serious blow at the national unity needed for victory. The picture saps the spiritual strength of our nation in its moment of greatest crisis. The very period from which Americans can draw their clearest inspiration for a war against human slavery is distorted by M-G-M into a weak-kneed apology for appeasement.

When shown in Los Angeles, "Tennessee Johnson" will get the picketing it so richly deserves.

★ The WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

BERLIN BOMBING

While we are still rejoicing over the Berlin bombings by the RAF flyers last week, it's good to remember that William Shirer, in his "Berlin Diary" said such bombings would tend to break German morale more than could be imagined. Battered from the air for two successive nights by hundreds of tons of the biggest bombs the world has ever made, Berlin experienced a taste of the "block busting" to which the Axis subjected London in the early months of the war. The British lost one plane on the first raid, 22 on the second--a heavy price for any raid, but not too heavy, the RAF felt, for aiming successfully at the very nerve center of the Axis. The raid on Berlin was the first since November, 1941, and the British felt they caught Berlin unprepared because of the light anti-aircraft fire on the first raid. The Axis attempted quick retaliation with two successive raids on England, some planes crossing the coast and starting up the Thames Estuary. But damage was slight, for the English were prepared, and gave the strongest anti-aircraft resistance yet shown.

16-MONTHS' SIEGE

Last week, too, came the break in the 16-months' siege of Leningrad, Russia's second city. Kamensk, key town on a strategic rail system, fell back into Russian hands at the same time. The German Army, trapped in the Stalingrad area, was nearing the end of its resistance. In the last two months of the historic Russian winter offensive, 89 Axis divisions, 60 of them German, have been badly beaten or destroyed. With these victories in the bag, it's good to know our lend-lease shipments to Russia have included more than 3200 tanks, 2600 planes and 81,000 military vehicles. At the beginning of the German offensive against Russia, who was it said Russia would fall in three weeks?

SPEED LIMIT

The drop in traffic fatalities, countrywide, in 1942, is attributed mainly to the cut in the speed limit to 35 miles per hour. Most fatal accidents occur on open country roads, or in small rural places on heavily traveled highways where cars speed along at 60. Toll for 1942, compiled by the National Safety Council was 30 per cent under 1941. But that 35-mile speed limit, while good for passenger cars--under present circumstances—means death to gears, and tires of trucks and busses. These big fellows are engineered to operate with most economy at speeds ranging somewhere around 45 miles per hour. To hold down to 35 has somewhat the same effect as for a passenger car to operate entirely in second gear. This problem concerns California more than most states, because of the uphill and down dale effect. On the run from San Francisco to Los Angeles, trucks shift 50 per cent more at the wartime speed than at ordinary prewar limits. The heavy machines can't get over humps, and up the tall hills at 35 without shifting, and as all of us who are now rubber-conscious, realize, every time you shift, start or stop, you wear your tires. Truck drivers long have been known for their low accident rate and for their care in driving. So knowing the intense need of adequate transportation these days, we hope trucks will soon be permitted to travel at the rate for which they are geared .That's just good sense.

LEARN AND LIVE

In an effort to supply every possible means of safety, the Coast Guard has studied the experiences of merchant seamen who have been torpedoed and rescued. A bit of metal—part of a tin can fastened to the oar of a life boat and glittering brightly in the sun, attracted the attention of a rescue vessel on one occasion. So now, every life boat will have a metal reflector. Plastic whistles will replace police whistles which tend to freeze to the lips. The American tendency quickly to adopt a new idea saves lives these days.

ITALIAN MOVE

Italian occupation of southeastern France includes every type of soldier from bersaglieri to plain blackshirts. The Italians are said to be applying more stringent rulings to the populace than their German bosses, now withdrawing to reinforce themselves in North Africa and Russia. The Axis refers soberly to Russian successes. One Italian commentator was heard to mutter gloomily that Russia "is not a country but a barracks and an arsenal." They are gradually getting the big idea!

★ SPREADING JOY

BY JOHN FOWLER

Saturday morning, Jan. 30, 1943. This is one of those gloomy, rainy mornings when one is better off indoors. I am wondering how those who are ill and shut in are finding any joy or sunshine in this dreary weather, hence I have thought of a novel way to spread a little joy and I am inviting you my reader to come with me in spirit as we visit some of our friends who are ill and shut in and attempt to bring them a word of cheer and gladness.

First, let's call on our dear friend, Miss Sallie Richardson, and tell her how much we miss her from her accustomed place in the religious, civic and social life of the community. For the past twenty years, no woman has been more consistent in her devotion to the welfare of the race than has Mrs. Richardson, so we want you to know, Mrs. Richardson, that we need you and want you to hurry and get well.

Now, then, let's go around the corner to 1126 East 20th street and see one of my favorite pioneer families, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smith. The Smiths, as you know, came to California as bride and groom over fifty years ago. Many of you will remember when they ran a successful draying business and later became one of our substantial retired families.

Mrs. Smith is remembered and loved for her many years of faithful service to the church and community. She has been ill for a long time and confined to her home. I want both Mr. and Mrs. Smith to know that their lives have been a splendid example to the rest of us and we wish for them a glorious sunset.

Now we will board our magic carpet and sail out to 37th place to the home of that dynamo of energy, Mrs. Betty Hill, and attempt to tell her that we miss her. Try as we may, there is not another that can inspire our women and encourage our men to solidarity as you have. Your pet child, the Political Study Club, is praying that you recover for they need your council and leadership.

Now we are in the comfortable living room of Mrs. Nannie Holt where for nearly a half century has been the gathering place of the oldtimers. We have come to tell 'Miss Nan' as she is affectionately called by those of us who have known her long and love her much, that we miss her from her accustomed seat on the right hand aisle half way down in dear old Eighth and Towne. We are expecting her back real soon. Here we go across town again to the Wilson Sanatorium in Watts to call on Mrs. Myrtle Carter-Crumbly. You remember Myrtle. She is one of the old gang, married the dashing Captain F. M. Crumbly. She has been ill for sometime, and has been compelled to close her home and go to a sanatarium. She needs the kind words of her friends more than medicine. Let's see to it that she ets them. We want you to know that your friends are thinking of you and praying for you.

Now for a hop to the Veterans Hospital out at San Fernando to see that prince of jolly good fellows, Albert Lewis, jr. Bert is a perfect host, has a heart of gold —loves his friends and likes to have his house filled with them. He took ill a short time ago and being a World War veteran, his past Commander thought he ought to go out to San Fernando for a rest. We want you to know that the East 115th street gang misses you and want you to hurry up and come on home.

You remember Harry Frye, a member of the famous family of musicians who lived in San Diego years. Remember Father Frye used to have a blacksmith shop on San Pedro street just around the corner from the Azusa street church. Well, Harry is one of those Frves. He was chef cook on the S. P. for years and one of the best. Harry used to boast about his hot rolls. He is sick now and confined to his home on East 21st street near Central avenue. I m sure he would be glad to see any of the R. R. boys and the old gang. Be of good cheer, Harry, we are thinking of you and praying for you.

I want you to come with me to see another oldtimer, Bill Wells, for over forty years could be seen catching the street car at Washington and Central. All of these years he was in the service of the L. A. Railway company. He was retired some few years ago. No railroad man in L. A. is better known or has more friends than Bill Wells. He has been for a long time We are bringing our best wishes and prayers.

I think we have time to fly out to La Salle street to check up on old Tite Alexander. I heard he was ill but I trust it is nothing serious, for it is hard for me to visualize Titus Alexander taking anything that serious.

Say it isn't so, Tite, and tell us that you will be in there fighting for civilian defense as of yore.

LEADING the Old Sweethearts parade this week is Mr. and Mrs. Will Green, parenst of Mrs. Charlie Broady. By the way, Will Green was the first man to shave me, in Baker's barber shop on San Pedro street. Remember?

★ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FROM A MERCHANT SEAMAN ON THE BOOKER T. WASHINGTON IN NEW YORK CITY

Halifax, Nova Scotia
January 19, 1943

Dear Mary:

Aha' fooled you didn't I? You thought I had joined the Air Force already. But on the contrary I am still sailing the briny deep. A declaration of peace is about all that will make me stop sailing.

All around me I see fellows in their smart RCAF uniforms and I envy them. For that was what I had my heart set on in the first place.

Do you ever see John around any more? You know the Liberator, the fourth estate or fifth estate or some thing of that sort. John Kinloch. Tell him that this is much more exciting than the RAF and much more lucrative. One gets a richer experience in here than in any other field and the job is good for peace time. I think that it will be greater in times of peace than today.

It's not at all boring. Let me see I learned to speak Spanish and dance the Rhumba and Congo in Cuba. That is I learned to speak Spanish in a way, but not

WHAT DOES INDIA MEAN TO CAUSE OF UNITED NATIONS?

By R. Lal Singh

What does India mean to the United Nations?

India is a sub-continent. It extends from the main body of Asia in a southerly direction, commanding almost the entire Indian Ocean, the Persian Gulf, the Arabian Sea to the west and the Bay of Bengl to the east. It commands the entire Burmese west coast and the Straits Settlement which lie south of Burma.

India is approximately 1,930,000 square miles in area. It is populated by 400,000,000 people.

India is said to be second in self-sufficiency only to the United States. Here are a few of the figures regarding her resources:

In leather, hides and skins India leads the world. India has a world monopoly in jute which is used in making burlap bags and cordage. India leads the world in the production of sugar. It produces 45 per cent of the world's supply of rice. It produces nearly as much tobacco as the United States of America. India has vast resources of oil, three-fourths of the world's supply of manganese, 95 per cent of the world's supply of black and sheet mica. India has vast deposits of bauxite. Bengal has a world monopoly in lac, which is used in shellac. India contains, according to geologists, 36 billion tons of coal and 32 million tons of the highest grade of iron ore. Vast grain areas produce enormous supplies of the finest wheat in the British Empire.

Indian industrial magnates, most of whom represent reactionary anti-war forces, have taken advantage of the Indo-British deadlock to organize wholesale sabotage of the meagre war effort of the country. In some cases, notably at Tatas, workers have been paid their wages in advance for several months in order to make it possible for them to stay away from factories on strike. In other plants, the employers have attempted other tactics such as organizing to lock-out willing workers.

We must recognize these actions as disruptive efforts, using the Indian demand for freedom for personal ends, using it indeed as a factor with which to bargain for their own self-aggrandizement, not caring whether these selfish interests lead them to take actions out of harmony with the true interests of the Indian national independence movement, and therefore out of harmony with the ends and objectives of the United Nations in the war.

There have been many occasions in the United States when individuals and some questionable organizations have used India as the dreadful example with which they seek to prove the "insincerity" of the United Nations. These individuals and organizations are godsends to those Axis agents in America and in other United Nations who seize upon and promote these Axis-like declarations.

Let me repeat: Indian freedom is a prerequisite to the earliest possible United Nations victory, in fact to victory itself. Those who speak for and strengthen Colonial Tory policies —"India is not our problem," "Indian freeddom must be delayed until after the war," etc.—throw obstacles in the path of United Nations victory. The people who talk thus are the appeasers, the defeatists, and whether consciously or unconsciously, they help the Axis.

Then there are people who objectively serve the same Axis purpose while using different phrases: These are individuals and self-styled organizations "for Indian freedom" who use the Indian deadlock to weaken and disunite the peoples of India and the United Nations.

They, of course, talk loudest of "Indian freedom". They make the most of the fact that the British Tories have thus far succeeded in delaying a change of policy toward India on the part of the British Government. They utilize the plight of the Indian people to pour oil on those fires which should be put out, to increase the difficulties in the way of a United Nations victory. They attribute all of India's ills to "British imperialism which will never change." They dub Churchill, the leader of the British Commonwealth in the war of liberation, Churchill, who has not seen the necessity of changing British government policy toward India as a war need and as a part of the only adequate approach to fight a people's war-they dub Churchill a "counterpart of Hitler". Such people, too, are defeatists and obstructionists, even though they arrive at their twisted point of view from "different" "premises" than those used by the open defenders of British Tory policy. They are the bazaar-bargainers of their own and our hides. They attempt to thrust India as a spearhead of disunity into the ranks of the United Nation They attempt to entrench their own narrow interests in place of the broadest world interests. As an Indian who wants Indian national freedom, as one who has fought for many years and is fighting now for Indian liberation, I denounce these arguments and state unequivocally here and now that these arguments hinder India, hinder the struggle for victory.

India is a prime military concern of the United Nations, and of necessity should be the fighting ally of the United Nations. The Indian question must not be used to disrupt United Nations unity: India must be made to aid unity and victory.

It has often been asked of me: "Of what concern is India to the people of the United States?"

At the outset one can of course reply simply and directly that because this is a global war and because a Pact has been signed by all of the United Nations including India and the United States pledging our fortunes and our lives together to fight the Axis-India is a concern of the United States. But no such simple statement as this could adequately indicate the importance of India to the United States.

When America committed itself to war it assured all of its Allies of a continuous flow of weapons to every battleground wherever the enemy could be found. It urged each of the signatories to the United Nations Pact to mobilize as rapidly as was possible to insure that there would be as little unnecessary drain upon American production as possible. It was clear from the beginning that the production of war materials and the mobilizing of armed forces in the vicinity of each of the far-flung battlegrounds was a necessity. Such a complete mobilization of resources throughout the world, it was recognized, would assure the rapid development in America of those essential materials of war which America itself might soon be needing.

Among the countries affected by the Pact was India. Her manpower, her raw materials, her factories, all cried out for a speedy development of her ability to produce and to fight. The distance of India from either Great Britain or the United States called for the use of hundreds of ships. These ships could be transferred to the Atlantic run, they could be made use of in supporting the Allied offensive in North Africa and in preparing for the launching of the too-long-delayed second front on the continent of Europe--if only India's ability to produce needed good were greatly increased.

A freighter can make only three round trips between America and India in a year. It is scarcely wise from a military point of view to deny American and British soldiers in the European theatre needed supplies, when the ships to carry those supplies could be made available if a proper development of Indian industry were organized.

India needs the help of American and British shipbuilders and engineers who could aid Indian engineers and their co-workers in war material production and the construction of ships. Doubt-

AN EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA EAGLE SERIAL

"NATIVE SON" ★

RICHARD WRIGHT

They clamped the steel handcuffs on his wrists and led him down the hall. Even before the front door was opened, he heard the faint roar of voices. As far as he could see through the glass panels, up and down the street, were white people standing in the cold wind and sunshine. They took him through the door and the roar grew louder; as soon as he was visible the roar reached a deafening pitch and continued to rise each second. Surrounded by policemen, he was half-dragged and half-lifted along the narrow lane of people, through the gate, toward the waiting car.

"You black ape!"

"Shoot that bastard!"

He felt hot spittle splashing against his face. Somebody tried to leap at him, but was caught by the policemen and held back. As he stumbled along a high bright object caught his eyes; he looked up. Atop a building across the street, above the heads of the people, loomed a flaming cross. At once he knew that it had something to do with him. But why should they burn a cross? As he gazed at it he remembered the sweating face of the black preacher in his cell that morning talking intensely and solemnly of Jesus, of there being a cross for him, a cross for everyone, and of how the lowly Jesus had carried the cross, paving the way, showing how to die, how to love and live the life eternal. But he had never seen a cross burning like that one upon the roof. Were white people wanting him to love Jesus, too? He heard the wind whipping the flames. No! That was not right; they ought not burn a cross. He stood in front of the car, waiting for them to push him in, his eyes wide with astonishment, his impulses deadlocked, trying to remember something.

"He's looking at it!"

"He sees it!"

The eyes and faces about him were not at all the way the black preachers had been when he had prayed about Jesus and His love, about His dying upon the cross. The cross the preacher had told him about was bloody, not flaming; meek, not militant. It had made him feel awe and wonder, not fear and panic. It had made him want to kneel and cry, but this cross made him want to curse and kill. Then he became conscious of the cross that the preacher had hung round his throat; he felt it nestling against the skin of his chest, an image of the same cross that blazed in front of his eyes high upon the roof against the cold blue sky, its darting tongues of fire lashed to hissing fury by the icy wind.

"Kill 'im!"

It gripped him: that cross was not the cross of Christ, but the cross of the Ku Klux Klan. He had a cross of salvation round his throat and they were burning one to tell him that they hated him! No! He did not want that! Had the preacher trapped him? He felt betrayed. He wanted to tear the cross from his throat and throw it away. They lifted him into the waiting car and he sat between two policemen, still looking fearfully at the fiery cross. The sirens screamed and the cars rolled slowly through the crowded streets and he was feeling the cross that touched his chest, like a knife pointed at his heart. His fingers ached to rip it off; it was an evil and black charm which would surely bring him death now. The cars screamed up State Street, then westward on Twenty-sixth street, one behind the other. People paused on the sidewalks to look. Ten minutes later they stopped in front of a huge white building; he was led up steps, down hallways and then halted in front of a cell door. He was pushed inside; the handcuffs were unlocked and the door clanged shut. The men lingered, looking at him curiously.

With bated breath he tore his shirt open, not caring who saw him. He gripped the cross and snatched it from his throat. He threw it away, cursing a curse that was almost a scream.

"I don't want it!"

The men gasped and looked at him, amazed.

"Don't throw that away, boy. That's your cross!"

"Only God can help you now, boy. You'd better get your soul right!"

"I ain't got no soul!"

One of the men picked up the cross and brought it back.

"Here, boy; keep this. This is God's cross!"

"I don't care!"

"Aw, leave 'im alone!" one of the men said.

They left, dropping the cross just inside the cell door. He picked it up and threw it away again. He leaned weakly against the bars, spent. What were they trying to do to him? He lifted his head, hearing footsteps. He saw a white man coming toward him, then a black man. He straightened and stiffened. It was the old preacher who had prayed over him that morning. The white man began to unlock the door.

"I don't want you!" Bigger shouted.

"Son!" the preacher admonished.

"I dont want you!"

"What's the matter, son?"

"Take your Jesus and go!"

"But, son! Yuh don't know whut yuh's sayin'! Lemme pray fer yuh!"

"Pray for yourself!"

The white guard caught the preacher by the arm and, pointing to the cross on the floor, said:

"Look, Reverend, he threw his cross away."

The preacher looked and said: "Son, don't spit in Gawd's face!"

"I'll spit in your face if you dont leave me alone!" Bigger said.

"The Reds've been talking to 'im," the guard said, piously touching his fingers to his forehead, his chest, his left shoulder, and then his right; making the sign of the cross.

"That's a goddamn lie!" Bigger shouted. His body seemed a flaming cross as words boiled hysterically out of him. "I told you I don't want you! If you come in here, I'll kill you! Leave me alone!"

Quietly, the old black preacher stooped and picked up the cross. The guard inserted the key in the lock and the door swung in. Bigger ran to it and caught the steel bars in his hands and swept the door forward, slamming it shut. It smashed the old black preacher squarely in the face, sending him reeling backwards upon the concrete. The echo of steel crashing against steel resounded throughout the long quiet corridor, wave upon wave, dying somewhere far away.

"You'd better leave 'im alone now," the guard said. "He seems pretty wild."

The preacher rose slowly and gathered his hat, Bible, and the cross from the floor. He stood a moment with his hand nursing his bruised face.

"Waal, son. Ah'll leave yuh t' yo' Gawd," he sighed, dropping the cross back inside the cell.

The preacher walked away. The guard followed. Bigger was alone. His emotions were so intense that he really saw and heard nothing. Finally, his hot and taut body relaxed. He saw the cross, snatched it up and held it for a long moment in fingers of steel. Then he flung it again through the bars of the cell. It hit the wall beyond with a lonely clatter.

Never again did he want to feel anything like hope. That was what was wrong; he had let that preacher talk to him until somewhere in him he had begun to feel that maybe something could happen. Well, something HAD happened: the cross the preacher had hung round his throat had been burned in front of his eyes.

When his hysteria had passed, he got up from the floor. Through blurred eyes he saw men peering at him from the bars of other cells. He heard a low murmur of voices and in the same instant his consciousness recorded without bitterness—like a man stepping out of his house to go to work and noticing that the sun is shining—the fact that even here in the Cook County Jail Negro and white were segregated into different cellblocks. He lay on the cot with closed eyes and the darkness soothed him some. Occasionally his muscles twitched from the swept him. A small hard core hard storm of passion that had in him resolved never again to trust anybody or anything. Not even Jan. Or Max. They were all right, maybe; but whatever he thought or did from now on would have to come from him and him alone, or not at all. He wanted no more crosses that might turn to fire while still on his chest.

His inflamed senses cooled slowly. He opened his eyes. He heard a soft tapping on a nearby wall. Then a sharp whisper:

"Say, you new guy!"

He sat up, wondering what they wanted.

"Ain't you the guy they got for that Dalton job?"

His hands clenched. He lay down again. He did not want to talk to them. They were not his kind. He felt that they were not here for crimes such as his. He did not want to talk to the whites because they were white and he did not want to talk to the Negroes because he felt ashamed. His own kind would be too curious about him. He lav a long while, empty of mind, then he heard the steel door open. He looked and saw a white man with a tray of food. He sat up and the man brought the tray to the cot and placed it beside him.

"Your lawyer sent this, kid. You got a good lawyer," the man said.

"Say, can I see a paper?" Bigger asked.

"Well, now," the man said, scratching his head. "Oh, what the hell. Yeah; sure. Here, take mine. I'm through with it. And say, your lawyer's bringing some clothes for you. He told me to tell you."

Bigger did not hear him; he ignored the tray of food and opened out the paper. He paused, waiting to hear the door shut. When it clanged, he bent forward to read, then paused again, wondering about the man who had just left, amazed at how friendly he had acted. For a fleeting moment, while the man had been in his cell, he had not felt apprehensive, cornered. The man had acted straight, matter-of-fact. It was something he could not understand. He lifted the paper close and read: NEGRO KILLER SIGNS CONFESSIONS FOR TWO MURDERS. SHRINKS AT INQUEST WHEN CONFRONTED WITH BODY OF SLAIN GIRL. ARRAIGNED TOMORROW. REDS TAKE CHARGE OF KILLER'S DEFENSE. NOT GUILTY PLEA LIKELY. His eyes ran over the paper, looking for some clue that would tell him something of his fate.

". . . slayer will undoubtedly pay supreme penalty for his crimes . . . there is no doubt of his guilt . . . what is doubtful is how many other crimes he has committed . . . killer attacked at inquest . . ."

Then:

Expressing opinions about Communists' defending the Negro rapist and killer, Mr. David A. Buckley, State's Attorney, said: "What else can you expect from a gang like that? I'm in favor of cleaning them out lock, stock, and barrel. I'm of the conviction that if you got to the bottom of Red activity in this country, you'd find the root of many an unsolved crime."

When questioned as to what effect the Thomas trial would have upon the forthcoming April elections, in which he is a candidate to succeed himself, Mr. Buckley took his pink carnation from the lapel of his morning coat and waved the reporters away with a laugh.

A long scream sounded and Bigger dropped the paper, jumped to his feet, and ran to the barred door to see what was happening. Down the corridor he saw six white men struggling with a brown-skinned Negro. They dragged him over the floor by his feet and stopped directly in front of Bigger's cell door. As the door swung in, Bigger backed to his cot, his mouth open in astonishment. The man was turning and twisting in the white men's hands, trying desperately to free himself.

SPARKY -- AND THE WAR FOR FREEDOM

Navy Urged to Take Race Cadets By State

NEW YORK—The State War Council acted this week on a complaint filed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People against the barring by the Navy Department of Negroes from special training courses at colleges and universities in this state. The Council's action was revealed by Governor Dewey who declined to name the institutions in which discrimination has taken place. Allegedly discrimination is being practiced in the V-1 class of courses under which students in college enlist in the Navy Reserve and are allowed to finish their college careers so that the Navy may have college-trained men for deck officers and other ranks in the Navy. Negroes are not eligible for the Navy Officer Corps, although they can become noncommissioned officers.

The NAACP had asked for an investigation of the V-1 program in both the Army and the Navy departments but according to the Governor's office discrimination has occurred only in courses offered by the Navy Department.

The resolutions which was adopted at a meeting held Jan. 19 by the New York State War Council included the following statements:

"Whereas, the War and Navy Department of the United States have deemed it desirable to utilize the facilities of certain colleges and universities in the State of New York for the purpose of giving special training to men in the armed services, and

"Whereas, pursuant to the State Constitution and legislative enactments it is the declared policy of this State that there shall be no discrimination or segregation because of race, color, or creed in the public schools and colleges or other institutions serving the public, and

"Whereas, colored citizens are freely admitted as students to the universities and colleges of the State for the regular courses of instruction and are members of the student bodies of several of these universities, therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the State War Council of the State of New York express to the War Department and the Navy Department of the United States and to the War and Navy Committee of the War Manpower Commission its solemn conviction that any departure from the recognized policy of the State of New York of equality of opportunity for all of its citizens to enter the colleges and universities in this State regardless of race, color or creed, is inimical to the best interest of its citizenry and to their participation in the war effort."

New Classes at Jefferson Evening High School

Among the new classes starting this week at Jefferson Evening High school are public speaking, home vegetable gardening, and poultry and egg production.

Public speaking meets Tuesday evenings from 7:00 to 9:30, and the instructor is Robert W. Major, a former actor, formerly of the Major School of Drama.

The egg and poultry production class comes Thursday at 6:30 with Mrs. Flossie Norton as teacher.

The hours of the home vegetables gardening class are not yet arranged. Albert Guenzler will be in charge of the class. He is the day school instructor in agriculture.

Classes are also offered in shorthand, typing, technical English, grade work, aircraft sheet metal, custodian training, electricity and radio, power sewing, high school mathematics, chorus, harmony, piano, voice culture, U. S. history and civics, machine shop, arc welding, shipfitting, air raid warden training, aviation cadet mathematics and science, standard and advanced first aid, and beginning and advanced Spanish.

HONOR ROLL IN RACE RELATIONS POLL NEARING COMPLETION

The nation-wide poll for the Honor Roll in Race Relations is nearing completion, according to Dr. L. D. Reddick, curator of the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of the New York Public Library, which conducts the poll each year. The purpose of this poll is to determine those Negroes and whites in the nation, who have, during the past year, done the most for the improvement of race relations "in terms of a real democracy." Twelve Negroes and six white persons will be chosen when the final tabulations are made. The results will be announced as a feature of Negro History Week, which begins February 7.

In previous years artists, labor leaders, authors, athletes and political leaders have won places on this roll of honor by reason of distinguished achievement or as champions of full rights for the Negro.

Everyone is free to send in nominations, though a national committee of 100 representing a cross-section of every field and point of view is specifically requested to send in names. Among Claude A. Barnett, Director of Associated Negro Press, Pres. H. M. Bond, of Fort Valley State Teachers' College, Arna Bontemps, Dr. Ambrose Caliver, of the U. S. Office of Education, Horace R. Cayton, of the Good Shepherd Community Center in Chicago, Rev. R. C. Barbour, ed. of the National Baptist Voice, Dr. Rufus Clement, Pres. of Atlanta University, Dan Burley, Mgr.-ed. of Amsterdam Star News, Ed. I. Willis Cole, of the Louisville Leader.

DON'T
Try to be a physician!

FIRST AID DON'TS

10th in a Series of 10

(This is the 10th and last of a series on "What Not to Do Until the Doctor Comes." Approved by the American Red Cross, we are printing them in the belief that untrained aid can be terribly dangerous. For standard courses in First Aid apply to your Red Cross chapter.—Ed.)

Don't forget that a physician carries a lot more than a black bag filled with instruments. He also carries the skill to use them—and you don't!

So don't practice medicine—even though you think you have some "natural instinct" or "intuition" for things like that. The care of an injured person needs more than "instinct," and intuition won't help you if you are not trained.

Unless you have had special medical, nursing or first aid training, all you must do is call for the doctor and try to stop bleeding, use artificial respiration for asphyxia, and remove burning materials.

Don't treat infections, boils, broken bones or fevers. Don't move the patient, apply splints, "strap up" an injured muscle, or attempt to clean a wound. Don't remove large or deeply imbedded shell fragments, wooden splinters, glass splinters or shrapnel.

Don't use any medicine except iodine on a cut or a tannic acid preparation on a burn.

If in doubt, DON'T DO ANYTHING!

Wait until the doctor comes.

★ BEHIND THE SCENES With Harry

By Harry Levette

I can think of no better manner in which to start the Ol Kolyum this session than to let you read a letter important to both you and me. It comes from Wendell Mallet and Co. Publishers of The Negro Hand Book. It is self-explanatory, and is evidence of the important part the local sepians are playing in the world's affairs. The letter follows:

Dear Mr. Levette:

About three weeks ago I wrote to you in care of the California Eagle asking whether you would be interested in collaborating with us on the 1943 issue of The Negro Handbook by supplying material for the section on the Negro in the movie industry. I have not heard from you up to this time, and I am wondering whether you received my letter.

Mr. Dick Campbell, Dramatic director and Playwright, suggested yau as the ideal person to furnish this information, due to your long experience with Hollywood affairs. I told you in my letter that if you consented to work with us, I would forward you a copy of the first (1942) issue of the book so that you could get an idea of what we are trying to do.

Mr. Campbell is writing up the information on the Negro in the legitimate theatre and concert musicians; while Andy Razaf, top notch song writer, is furnishing material on popular musicians. Other persons outstanding in their fields are working with me on other subjects.

We are all working, however on the faith htat it will become not only an important institution in American life, but will also be able to support itself and to compensate its collaborators.

The book is being sold to important persons and organizations. Practically all government departments and bureaus have ordered copies as well as outstanding white and colored universities, city libraries, educational institutions of research, newspapers, and leaders in various walks of life, both white and colored.

I sincerely hope that you will find time to work with us. I feel that the prestige ained by your name appearing in the book and the press of the nation as one of the staff of The Negro Handbook will compensate somewhat for no larger financial recompense at this time.

Yours very truly,
Florence Murray, Editor

P. S. By the way, quite a few copies of the book are being sold in your city by several bookstores.

Of course I accepted, for nothing pleases me better than to aid in placing the doings of our talented artists on the pages of current history, so watch for the next edition and get a copy for yourself. It will give you information and boost your race pride.

This Is The Army,
Buy More Bonds

SEVERAL MORE local musicians will soon be inducted into the armed forces, not to play music, but to fight for Uncle Sam. They can't all get into that classy 10th Cavalry band, composed of members of Local 767. Several more were up from Camp Lockett for the week end. Soldiers and hostesses will form the canteen chorus, which is preparing for Sunday Vesper Hour, at the east-side canteen, 45th and Central, to take place every week at 7 p. m. Miss Page, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Page, will direct.

News In Dots and Dashes

THE LIFE OF DR. CARVER, with an all-colored cast was recorded last week for release over the air from several stations on Feb. 8 . . . Hattie McDaniel, chairman of the sub-committee of the Hollywood Victory Committee, staged one of her best camp shows for an anti-aircraft unit of both races stationed at San Bernardino a week ago, but the boys are still raving over it . . . Included were numbers by Hattie, Ben Carter, Clarence Muse, Ernest Whitman, the Layson Brothers, Neva Peoples, Nicodemus, Mantan Moreland, Bob Parrish, and Chinkie Grimes . . . Les Hite, who left town to fill engagements with Ethel Waters in the Bay Cities, is happily reminiscing this year over the fact that his band was the first colored organization to play for the President's "March of Dimes" ball shortly after he left here for his first trip invading the east.

Boy Hand Grenades With War Stamps

LENA HORNE has only been loaned to 20th Century-Fox as leading lady to Bill Robinson in "Stormy Weather", now in its second week, with three more to go . . . she is under a 7-year contract to MGM . . . must hurry back to start in new film . . . Stepin Fetchit, pioneer of sepia stars back in Hollywood after several years absence . . . to start his screen comeback at Universal . . . Dooley Wilson "Little Joe" of the stage version of "Cabin in the Sky", will soon see himself in his first picture, Paramount's "New Orleans Murder"; his second was a piano player in Warner Bros. "Casablanca" now screening.

Ben Carter Plays "Young Dr. Carver"

ERNEST WHITMAN will be heard on the air as Dr. Carver the great scientist at the height of his career when the recording made last week is released over several stations on Feb. 8 . . . Ben Carter will portray him as a student just entering college. Bertha Powell, Hall Johnson soprano, will portray a mother relating the story of her son, little Cordell Hickman . . . Chas. Dingle will portray "Uncle Sam". . . . Bette Davis has recovered from a severe flu attack . . . Sepia screen players, and sepia soldiers, all are happy over her recovery as those of her own race . . . Arie Lee Branche, formerly of Eagle staff, and movie player, now in government service in Washington, was the only one that didn't see the story of her experiences in Washington that ran in three issues last month. If you have them she will appreciate you sending them to her at 1630 Florida Ave., N. W., Apt. 201, Washington, D. C. . . . Sends best wishes to all former co-workers in the movies.

C. P. JOHNSON who has made a wonderful record for himself and band since he first arrived on the coast, was honored by having all but four of the musicians in the "Jim Europe" band in Fox's "Stormy Weather" chosen from his fine outfit. This was the result of auditions for 200 musicians including, Noble Sissle, Benny Carter's, Les Hites', Ceele Burke's and other orchestras. . . Joan Douglas, who will be seen as a canteen hostess who takes Caleb Peterson out on the floor to dance, when "Stage Door Canteen" is released should by all means have been given dialogue, instead of the silent bit. She has had dramatic training and reads lines well; besides it is only natural to the story that she would talk to the young soldier, just back from Guadacanal. Latest entrant to the sepia movie colony, Monica Carter, wife of Phil Carter, MGM unit publicist for "Cabin" . . . she's pretty, cute, petite, vivacious, nice complexion, and very intelligent . . . should go a long ways . . . Newest member of Screen Actors Guild, Antelle Davis, clear, brown, photogenic complexion, five feet four of sparkling personality . . . brim full of vibrant activity, and plenty of talent, sure to click, for has the determination to learn and succeed.

ALL THIS AND HORNE, TOO!

ERNEST WHITMAN, portraying the role of Lieut. Jim Europe, late leader if the "Fighting 15th" New York band in World War I, is caught here greeting Lena Horne in an elaborate cabaret scene from "Stormy Weather," now in production at 20th Century-Fox studio. Lena plays the part of Selena Rogers, an entertainer at the cabaret. The musical cavalcade, starring Bill Robinson, is now in its second week. The scene is in 1918 after the return of the AEF. Among other features in which Whitman has had fine roles are "Prisoner of Shark Island," "Green Pastures," "White Hunter," "Among the Living," "Third Finger, Left Hand," "Jesse James," "The Return of Frank James," "Pittsburgh Kid," "Back Street," and "Drums of the Jungle."

'THERE'LL BE FAR GREATER MUSIC AFTER THIS WAR'--W. C. HANDY

NEW YORK (By Dolores Calvin)—The Father of the Blues glanced my way suspiciously, as I was ushered into his beautiful apartment at 400 Convent Avenue, for he can't see very well now. He's an old man, one of the grandest old men in music. As he started first on Negro music: "Well, if they don't bring us something new and of themselves as representatives of our customs, our thoughts, our longings and aspirations, we will lose our status as originators of musical ideas. We're imitating the white people who are imitating us and as a result, we aren't getting any place and America isn't either. There are a few men who can really think in the blues tradition as it was laid down twenty-five years ago. They're doing wonderful things in music and the colored man is capable of doing wonderful things. Every musician almost, says the Negro has a voice nobody has, and yet he'll try to be an Irish tenor or something instead of singing his own music, created for him and inspired by him."

THIS THING, SWING

"Swing is just a commercial word that is used to sell something that otherwise would not be sold," is Handy's definition. Then he went on to explain what this thing swing is. He began to hum a little part of something he wrote which was famous, and said, "See, some white man will come along and take that little part that we used for an ending and make a whole piece out of it which has absolutely nothing in it. The bass will try to do something and even he won't even his two daughters and a secretary stumbled over each other in getting the things he asked for. W. C. Handy seated himself in a fortable rocking chair and immediately began to talk of music, wars and the Negro.

know what chord they're playing so he can fiddle. It's just repetition of that one little part, actually one measure, until they have a grand ending, with drums covering up the emptiness of the music. But that's not music. They steal part of my blues and make other pieces, but they can't do anything with them, because they don't know why I put this note here and that note there."

Then the musician went over to the piano and played a melody he called the "Yaller Dog Blues" in two different keys and asked which one I thouht was the most impressive. I said the former key, D, because, as he put it, "it represented the mood of certain chords. I always write in the key which will express my thoughts most."

URGE FANS TO PROTEST 'TENNESSEE JOHNSON'

NEW YORK CITY—Delegations of Negro and white movie fans in every community to protest the showing of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picture, "Tennessee Johnson," were urged this week, as a part of a nationwide campaign of prootest against the anti-Negro, pro-slavery film, by the National Negro congress.

Trade unions, churches, lodges, fraternal and other organizations were urged to organize such delegations to interview local theatre managers and demand that the film which defames the great champion of the Negro people, Thaddeus Stevens, not be exhibited. Moviegoers should withdraw their patronage from theatres which help to weaken the national unity necessary for victory by exhibiting a film which besmirches the democratic principles which American Negroes have traditionally defended.

As a second point in the program announced by the NNC, organizations were urged to send resolutions of protest to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Hollywood, Calif., and to Lowell Mellett, chief of the motion picture branch, Office of War Information, Washington, D. C., demanding that the film be withdrawn from circulation in the interests of victory and national unity. Telegrams protesting the film and insisting upon its withdrawal have already been sent to MGM and to Mellett by Dr. Max Yrgan, national president of the National Negro congress.

Finally, organizations were urged to call mass meetings and demonstrations protesting further showing of the film.

Outstanding among programs of late was that of the Chicago Charity Club. Mrs. Eva Burton is president of this noteworthy group. Mrs. Lillian Ford acted as chairman of the program committee with Roy Turner as master of ceremonies. On this occasion refreshments were furnished and served by members of this club.

DISCS MADE BY ARTISTS FOR 'STORY OF CARVER'

Scheduled to go on the air over several stations on Feb. 8, an allegorical story of Dr. Carver, will further immortalize the name of one of the greatest scientists of all races and of all times. The program will be the first in a series of five patriotic broadcasts, under the general title of "Your Uncle Sam."

The story is to open with Bertha Powell in the role of a mother telling her little son of the almost legendary tale of Dr. George Carver. Meanwhile the wonderful life drama unfolds over the air waves as portrayed by a number of Hollywood's most famous colored screen celebrities.

The little boy is played by Cordell Hickman, noted for "The Biscuit Eater", and other films. Miss Powell famed as a Hall Johnson singer, also scored opposite Paul Robeson as "Queenie" in the stage version of "Show-boat".

Ernest Whitman will play the part of Dr. Carver at the height of his fame; Ben Carter will create the role of Carver as a student just entering college. Chas. Dingle will be "Uncle Sam". Whitman long a figure in vaudeville and the legitimate stage, served a long engagement on the Maxwell House Coffee Hour from New York. Ben Carter just finished "Crash Dive" at Fox studio in a "Dorie Miller" role best of his many screen successes.

Race citizens throughout the country are eagerly awaiting the forthcoming broadcast founded on the revered Carver.

Pasadena USO House Plays Big Part in Community Affairs

PASADENA, Calif.—For sometime now the Pasadena USO house has been the center of much activity in our community. Under the able leadership of Mrs. Blanche Duncan, president of the executive board, and her staff officers and committees much has been accomplished.

Mrs. Geo. Harris has proven herself to be a likeable and efficient senior hostess and much credit is due her for the many things she does for the welfare of the boys, both local and transient.

The junior hostess, Miss Lilly Turney, has seen to it that the boys have parties crammed with "Pep" and plenty of pretty hostesses to keep them entertained. She has her plans laid for a "President's birthday" party which should be a huge success.

Mrs. Erma Perry, canteen chairman, and her committee, deserve much praise for the manner in which they handle the canteen.

NEW YORK, (C)—"Cabin In The Sky" cut . . . the crap shooting scene in "Cabin In The Sky" which was a feature of the stage production, has been cut from the complete movie adaption to avoid protests . . . It was done by MGM.

This Is News . . . Count Basie, just married to the Cleveland dancer stays over in town . . . gave up his apartment at 555 Edgecombe Ave. to live in Hotel Theresa . . . Parts of "Tales of Manhattan" starring Paul Robeson, Ethel Waters and Rochester, have been cut, including those which Robeson fussed about, as the picture goes over the country . . . W. C. Handy is one of the very few in NY who can ride to a night club . . . it happens to be Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe, Mr. Handy happens to work there and the OPA can't stop him because he's almost blind and needs the car . . . But he did let his chauffeur go . . . Billy Banks, tenor at the Horseshoe, is terribly overworked with his singing and dancing and maybe this is the reason why Billy Rose hasn't gotten any further on 'Carmen Jones".

Talk of the Town . . . All tickets are sold out for Duke Ellington . . . Standing only thing left . . . and the next largest place from Carnegie Hall is Madison Square Garden . . . Abe Lyman's band opening at the Hotel Lincoln Blue Room was "the biggest the trade has even seen" . . . . Among the first-nighters were Jack Benny, Mary Livingston Benny and old Rochester . . . By the way, Jack Benny and Oscar Levant appeared at a Carnegie Hall benefit and it was Rochester's duty to get him a suit . . . Rochester came through all right, but Fred Allen remarked, "First time a violinist combined his debut with his farewell performance . . . " . . . Earl Hines and his band were guests of W. C. Handy at the Horseshoe . . . At the Apollo Theatre, where the Hines band were playing, Billy Eckstein has a beautiful voice but lacks personality and Madeline Green, the opposite, personality but not much of a voice . . . The two that stole the show were comics, Patterson and Jackson, with the latter doing a splendid impersonation of Billy Kenny and Hoppy Jones of the 4 Ink Spots . . . Harold Oxley, Jimmie Lunceford's manager, says that the OP A pleasure driving ban will spell quietus . . .

WHITMAN RE-LIVES JIM EUROPE IN "STORMY WEATHER"

If 20th Century-Fox had overlooked the revered figure of Jim Europe, famous band leader of the old 15th N. Y. Regiment band while making research for their current colored cast film, "Stormy Weather,' it would not have been complete as a cavalcade of Negro entertainment.

After making a great record in France during and after the first World War, Jim returned with his great organization to become the toast of New York and the whole country. But at the height of his fame he was stabbed to death by a recalcitrant drummer he had reprimanded. The whole country mourned his tragic passing and to this day has never forgotten the man who taught France to thrill to jazz music.

Ernest Whitman, long noted stage and screen celebrity, creates the role of Jim Europe in a realistic manner in "Stormy Weather," and screen critics declare that in both acting and appearance the casting of Whitman in the character could not have been better. Long experience on the Maxwell House radio hour and some of the best stage and road shows and a number of screen plays has developed Whitman into one of the best actors in Hollywood.

In an elaborate cabaret scene, Whitman, as master of ceremonies, introduces Lena Horne, Babe Wallace, Shelton Brooks, impersonating Bert Williams, and other famed figures.

ON THE TURF

By GEO. A. RAMSEY

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 3.—Well, my readers, I thought that I was going to announce some good news about the opening of Caliente, but so far it remains for just a few more little details to be worked out by the new generalissimo, Lou Anger, former big boss of the beautiful course. But we are certain that the track will open soon. I received my information from one of the officials the other day.

It and when the track does open it will be a gala day for Southern California sports fans who would rather see the sport of kings than to see the Statue of Liberty do the boogie-woogie.

Bay Meadows spring meeting opens this month for one of the biggest in history for the upstate track. Wm. Kyne, the generalissimo of Bay Meadows, deserves all the success that can come his way as it was he who helped in a big way to get racing back in the golden west. Many big stables are shipping to his track.

The great Whirlaway has a kid sister by the name of Whirlette, but the odds are one millhon to one that she will never be as good as her famous brother. First, very few brothers or sisters in the horse family have two greats. The famous Man o' War had a full brother by the name of Playfellow, and it was hard for him to win a $1,000 claiming race.

Count Fleet, the great three-year old who has been made winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby, is now at Hot Springs, Ark. and trainer Cameron will start him in the Arkansas derby if he trains OK. He reports that the Count now tips the scales at 1034 pounds, altho when he retired last fall from Maryland he weighed only 968 pounds.

The new Hipodromo de las Americas that opens Mar. 6 in Mexico City is said to be the last word. Even fans that are drinking from the bars will be able to see the races run. Nothing has been left out for the public's convenience. The grandstand is three stories, and the clubhouse four stories high. Your writer will try and visit the track when it opens.

Gallant Fox still holds the world's record for money won as a three-year old. He was the winner of the 1930 Kentucky derby and retired at the end of the season with $308,275, which is the record for a single season.

Well, folks, that's the turf news. Remember, a bond a day will bring cheerful ways, and a stamp or two will bring Victory to you. So long, GEORGE.

'Bam Big Five Wins No. 5

The Club Alabam Big Five basketballers kept their season's record clean Saturday night in Inglewood, defeating Hughes News, 34-__ for their fifth straight victory.

With the starting quintet composed of Shaw, Brewer, Watts, Randolph and Christin, the night club five attack was featured by Randolph who walked away with scoring honors, bucketing 9 digits.

Others who saw action Saturday night were Wliliams, Wright and Beavers.

Coached by Halley Harding, sponsored by Curtis Mosby, the Club Alabam Big Five will make their local debut in the near future, using Patriotic or the CYO hall for their home court.

SONJA ON LINCOLN STAGE

Sonja The Great, the magician par excellence, the genius of Pressdigitators comes in person to the Lincoln theatre with his company starting next Wednesday, Feb. 3rd for a limited engagement.

Sonja The Great, has amazed thousands with his uncanny presentations. In one of his thrilling offerings the great magician causes his subjects to be utterly under his spell and while the audience rolls with laughter, the subject cannot move any part of his body without the express wishes of Sonja The Great.

Co-hostesses to L. A. Tri-Y Meet

Misses Barbara McMorris and Constance Smart were hostesses to the L. A. Tri-Y Tuesday. Refreshments were served after an interesting discussion on personal habits.

During a recent engagement in a prominent downtown theatre Sonja The Great performed his powers upon ten sailors and ten soldiers. The lads were helpless to do other than the bidding of this great artist.

Sonja The Great, delivers numerous intricate presentations that run the gamut of the extraordinary in tricks and sleight of hand artistry.

Sonja The Great and two major screen features will be seen at the Lincoln starting next Wednesday, Feb. 3, 1943. Double horror show.

Thomas, Joyce Battle at Olympic

CALIFORNIA EAGLE
SPORTS
Los Angeles, Calif., Wednesday, Feb. 3 1943 Vol. 63—No. 43 Page Three-B

★DOWN IN FRONT
With J. CULLEN FENTRESS

Joyce-Thomas Has Added Significance

Our John Thomas goes to the post Tuesday night at Olympic auditorium against one Willie Joyce in a National Boxing Association-sanctioned 12-round tiff to find a successor to Sammy Angott's vacated lightweight throne.

The Joyce-Thomas tiff is one of several currently being held all over the nation in a series of elimination bouts to find a lightweight king worthy of the royal robes of boss of the 135-pounders. The bout received the blessings of the State Athletic commission last week. Joyce is rated No. 1 behind Beau Jack by the NBA, Thomas No. 8. Although Jack is regarded as champion by New York, the NBA figures he's the outstanding challenger for the vacated title.

At Hollywood Legion stadium Friday night Matchmaker Charley MacDonald put on a Richie Lemos-Vince Del Orto bout, the winner of which also figured to be in the lightweight title race. Well, Lemos was awarded the verdict, but the column disagreed with one judge and the referee who tipped the scales in favor of the former featherweight kingpin.

The point is this: If the Del Orto-Lemos go was supposed to have some bearing on the lightweight picture, then the Joyce-Thomas battle at the Olympic Tuesday night will furnish Beau Jack's opponent in a championship fight. This pillar hasn't seen Joyce in action, but it has seen Thomas in all of his important jousts, and believe us, Thomas would have whipped, and easily, Del Orto or Lemos Friday night.

All of which means, of course, that Olympic matchmaker Babe McCoy's headliner Tuesday night deserves SRO support—and will probably get it.

UCLA Commando Co-Captain Willie Hunter

Ben Person, UCLA's affable and able head of the athletic news bureau, called the column the other day to tell us that Willie Hunter, formerly of Lincoln High, and a Commando lineman, had been named co-captain of that team at the annual football banquet.

The Commandos are a combination of UCLA B squad members and freshmen. Capable of playing either tackle or guard, Hunter is in Mr. Whiskers' army now, so won't get a chance to perform on the Blue and Gold varsity until after the duration.

Hunter played with the Reds (Bruin scrubs), following the Commando season last fall, and Person said, "He would have made a great lineman on our varsity. He is fast, big, rough, and rugged—loves the game."

Notes Picked Up Here and There:

While talking to Ben Person we learned that Jerry Hawley, a former student aide, and an efficient one, is now Lt. Hawley, and stationed in New York as instructor of officers and WAACS in the ways of warfare. Hawley received his training in Miami, Fla., along with cinema star Clark Gable and had one of the highest IQ marks at the camp . . .

State Athletic Commission Rules on Women Wrestlers

The State Athletic commission, through secretary J. M. Genshlea, reported this week that it had taken action in the following cases:

Suspension: Guido Giometti, Vallejo manager, 10 days, from Jan. 18, for unbecoming conduct and violation of rules.

At the Jan. 15 meeting of the commission Rules Nos. 257 and 586 were amended as follows:

No. 257. Except with the express approval of the commission and as hereinafter provided, no license shall be granted to any person other than to a person of the male sex to act in the capacity of referee, boxer, wrestler, second or in any other capacity that requires such person to be actually present in the ring during any professional or amateur boxing or wrestling contest or exhibition in the State of California nor shall any person other than a person of the male sex be permitted in the ring while any such contest or exhibition is being actually engaged in.

No 586. The issuance of a license or the granting of permission of any sort to women for the purpose of engaging in wrestling in California is prohibited, except that any licensed wrestling club may be permitted to conduct wrestling matches in which women are contestants not more than twice in any six months when such women have been duly licensed by the State Athletic Commission of California.

'LIVING GHOST' AT LINCOLN

To an unusual degree, there is an atmosphere of dramatic tenseness in "The Living Ghost," the Monogram drama opened an engagement of 4 days at the Lincoln theatre last night. This condition is achieved through combination of convincing acting and competent directing both of which play an important part in making this strange picture an absorbing bit of entertainment.

James Dunn and Joan Woodbury play the leading roles in the film, and both handle their roles in their usual capable manner. Either singly or together, they are the center of the thrilling situations which follow one another in swift succession as the story unfolds. William Beaudine directed the picture, and throughout exhibits the skill that has maintained his prominence in the directorial ranks since the early days of the screen industry.

In the story, an unknown criminal operates on a millionaire, destroying half his brain and leaving him in a partially helpless condition. The uncovering of the reason for this act, and the unmasking of its perpetrator, make for a dramatic story. The original, written by Howard Dimsdale, was skillfully adapted for the screen by Joseph Hoffman.

ROBINSON IGNORES BACK INJURY TO DANCE IN FILM

His determination that according to the tradition of the theatrical profession "the show must go on", prompting to ignore pain or inconvenience, Bill Robinson is dancing long hours daily in 20th Century-Fox's all-colored fast cavalcade, 'Stormy Weather.' The famous king of all tap dancers was injured by falling over a chair while playing a camp engagement at Newport, Ky. across the river from Cincinnatti.

Vertebrae in his back having been severely sprained just a few days before he was contracted to report and start in the picture founded on his life. The public feared he would be unable to work. But the indomitable Bill left the Catholic hospital, and took a train for Los Angeles, reporting to Hollywood the next day. Although he was taped up with heavy bandages he started rehearsing the same day, doing difficult dips such as those in the old dance "Walkin' the Dog," and the most modern of his originated super taps. He is still under the observation of his physician.

Mike Delia KOs Grant

Fighting in the semi-windup at Hollywood Legion stadium Friday night under the Richie Lemos-Vince Del Orto main event, veteran Archie Grant, 131½, was knocked out in the third round by comebacking Mike Delia, 137½. It was a fairly even scrap until the kayo punch, a short right uppercut.

12-ROUND BOUT RECOGNIZED AS LIGHTWEIGHT ELIMINATION CONTEST

John Thomas, dubbed the "Sugar Robinson of coast lightweights," and Willie Joyce of Chicago, the National Boxing association's No. 1 contender behind Beau Jack, fight next Tuesday night, Feb. 9, over the 12-round route at Olympic auditorium.

It is a lightweight elimination contest and the NBA, California and Illinois commissions are recognizing the Thomas-Joyce natural as an elimination fight.

The natural is by far one of the most important lightweight battles billed locally in years, and it pairs two of the strongest challengers for Sammy Angott's vacated 135-pound title.

Angott has announced his return to the ring wars, but when he dons the mittens again it will be minus any title as both the NBA and the New York commission refuse to honor his claims now.

The ratings announced only recently by the NBA listed Joyce behind Beau Jack, the Georgia boy who stopped Tippy Larkin.

JOYCE IN TOWN TODAY

Listed in order behind Jack and Joyce by the NBA are Allie Stolz, Juan Zurita, Bob Montgomery, Maxie Shapiro, Slugger White, John Thomas and Cleo Shans.

Joyce arrives in Los Angeles this morning from Chicago accompanied by his manager, George Trafton, former Notre Dame football star. Joyce has been training for the past two weeks in Chicago. He is the Illinois lightweight champion.

Joyce punched out a clear cut 12-round decision last September over Slugger White of Baltimore at New Orleans. The referee and both judges gave Joyce the fight by a wide margin.

The Chicago Negro has fought a number of welterweights and took the measure of them. He beat Sammy Secreet, who weighs 148 pounds, and this same Secreet went 10 tough rounds against California Jackie Wilson at Cleveland.

Trafton claims Sugar Robinson rejected an offer of 40 per cent of the gate to fight Joyce just a few months ago at the White Sox ball park in Chicago. Joyce gave Lew Jenkins trimmings twice, and defeated Baby Breese, who knocked out California Jackie Wilson at Hollywood.

EXPECT $12,000 HOUSE

Other fighters whom Joyce has whipped are Harvey Dubs (three times), Joe Peralta, Tony Ferrera, knocked out Ted Christy, and last December Joyce knocked out Leo Rodak in four rounds at Detroit. Rodak is one of the cagiest lightweights in the game.

JOHN THOMAS
. . . in national spotlight.

The Olympic looks for a gate of $12,000 or better for this red hot lightweight battle.

The smooth working, fast hitting Thomas zoomed into national prominence last June at Hollywood stadium by handing Petey Scalzo, former featherweight champion, a sound 10 round beating. It was John's fourth 10-round start. He followed by knocking Toby Vigil into retirement, stopped Lew Jenkins at the Olympic, easily defeated Eddie Marcus and Jimmy Doyle at the Olympic. Thomas gave Cleo Shans a beating in his first six rounder at the Olympic. Shans is ranked as a contender now.

Joyce will do his boxing at the Main street gymnasium; Thomas is prepping at the 43rd street gymnasium off Central avenue.

Reservations are coming in fast at the Olympic box office. They can be made by phoning PRospect 5171, Olympic auditorium.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy plans to sign a banner supporting card under the lightweight classic, featuring the cream of fistic talent in this section.

★ PRO AND CON IN SPORTS
By FRANK T. WARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. (C)—BOXING: The upset at Madison Square Garden recently when the two underdogs, Chalky Wright, former featherweight champion, and Jake La Motta, Italian middleweight, beat their 7 to 5 and 3 to 1 opponents, Joey Peralta and Sgt. Jackie Wilson, respectively, dug a deep hole in the pockets of the wise guys along betting Broadway. Of course, in Harlem, it was a split affair, since Harlemites usually stick to the boys of color thru thick and thin. The upset also had a bearing on the future. Peralta, had he won over Wright, would have been matched against Bob Montgomery as the final stage of the elimination tournament to find an opponent for lightweight champion Beau Jack.

Wilson, had he won, would have been in a position to force a meeting with Harlem's undefeated, uncrowned champion, Sugar Ray Robinson. Wilson had been rated by many as being as good, if not better, than Robinson.

ODDS AND ENDS: Matchmaker Nat Rogers has signed Beau Jack, lightweight (NY State) champion, and Fritzie Zivic for a 10-round non-title bout at the Garden Feb. 5 . . . Pat Comisky, Paterson, N. J. heavyweight, who started his successful comeback recently by KOing Big Boy Corilli of Hartford, Conn., in 2:36 of the first round of a scheduled 8-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena, has been signed for a 10-round bout with Wallace Cross, Jersey heavyweight, at Laurel Garden, Feb. 1 . . . Sepia Jackie Cooper, 150, Brooklynite, scored a verdict over New Orleans' bronzed Al Jolson, 144½, in Al's New York debut at Brooklyn's Ridgewood Grove last week . . .

BASEBALL: The major leagues are finally getting things lined up for spring training, and within the limitations of the ODT rulings. The Yankees will be stationed at Asbury Park, N. J., the Giants at Lakewood, N. J., Brooklyn at Bear Mt., West Point, N. Y., Boston at Willingford, Conn., and all the other clubs are camping near their home grounds. In the last few weeks though the calling of Uncle Sam's local draft boards and the patriotism of many of the major leaguers have created a situation that won't be as easily solved as the transportation problem. The Yank's pitcher, Charley Ruffing, is now a private; Brooklyn's outfielder, Pete Reiser was inducted; Durocher was called for his physical; and maybe by the time you read this, New York's Joe DiMaggio will have joined the Navy. Then, again, the boys such as Brooklyn's Dixie Walker and New York's Lefty Gomez, who became engaged in defense work after last season, and thinking maybe they can help the war effort more by remaining on their defense jobs . . .

TRACK: Frank Dixon, NYU cross-country ace, was selected for the cross-country spot on the All-American All-Star Track and Field Team for 1943, the mythical team selected each year by Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, as a feature of the Official Athletic Almanac and Track and Field Guide. The late John Borican, who died last month, was listed for the fourth time in succession as the leading 880 and 1000-yarder. Dixon was also selected for the All-College Team . . . Leslie MacMitchell, now in Service, lost out in the naming of the All-American team . . . MacMitchell, formerly of NYU, has been replaced at that school by Fran' Dixon.

Yank Hank's Tonsils

Henry Armstrong, former triple crown boxing champion, lost his tonsils Monday morning at Hollywood hospital.

Hank, in the midst of a great comeback campaign, winning 14 of 15 bouts, was forced to wait three weeks for the tonsillectomy because they became inflamed.

Following a rest of three weeks or so to regain his strength Hank will resume his comeback, with bouts with Al Tribuani in Phiadelphia and Beau Jack in New York.

BALLOTS OUT FOR NEW ACADEMY AWARD WINNERS

With sepians hoping for anoth- er "Oscar" winner, achievements in 456 feature motion pictures shown in Los Angeles last year will be eligible for honors in the 15th annual Awards balloting of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, according to lists now being compiled by the Academy.

Nominations ballots were mail- ed January 22 to 3800 creative artists qualified to vote in the preliminaries in the production, acting, writing and direction divi- sions. Technical and special nomi- nations are now being decided by a score of committees and some 8000 members of the industry will take part in the final voting.

Although it is permissable for a star to win the award more than once, Hattie McDaniel, first of the race to reach this great hon- or has little hopes to repeat this year. Not since "Gone With the Wind", has she had the size of role that was sufficient vehicle for her acting ability. However, she has at least three good parts set for 1943.

WHAT DOES INDIA MEAN TO CAUSE OF UNITED NATIONS

By R. Lal Singh

less much of what was produced would go to supply the armies of the Middle East and of North Africa.

Instead of producing one and one-half million tons of steel per year in the great Tata Steel Works, India could undoubtedly quadruple that output.

In brief, the United States, with her freedom from a great colonial empire, or even from any imperialistic ambitions for such an empire, can help change and strengthen British policy towards India's vast re- sources.

It must be remembered that it is not exclusively India's need-- it is a desperate and paramount military necessity of all the United Nations--this matter of Indian independence. India must be given the right to arm herself, the right to send armies into this war of liberation which threatens all mankind. India's immense na- tional energies must be released.

Let us once and for all re- member to keep a global con- cept of the war in mind. Let us never forget that the enemy is strong, and that his defeat must be reorganized at the ear- liest possible date. Let us re- alize that it will take the com- bined energy of every one of us to win. The United Nations cannot afford to take risks re- garding India. The United Na- tions is not wanting in morale nor in weapons; but we are only as strong as our weakest link--India.

L. A. 'TB' Association Reviews Work of 1942

Featuring the December educa- tion program of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health Associa- tion was the timely preparation and distribution of 5,000 posters emphasizing four salient points in safe-guarding against colds, James G. Stone, executive secre- tary, told the Board of Directors at a regular meeting in Clark Ho- tel yesterday. "These posters have been tacked on the bulletin boards of many of the local plants and war industries and have met with wide approval", Stone said in announcing future plans for combating the spread of colds, which he termed "a serious threat to production and an unnecessary health hazard". A large quantity of these posters have been made available to the Health Service Section, Los Angeles City Schools, for display in the schools.

The Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health Association is entire- ly supported by the annual sale of Christmas Seals. Returns from the recent campaign are still com- ing in and have reached the total of $194,407.01, acording to yes- terday's figure from the Com- bined Christmas Seal Fund.

Pasadena Soldier Accepted for Officers Training

SEATTLE, Wash.—M. Sgt. Ray- field Lundy, Port Hq. Det. B, First Avenue Cantonment, a resident of Pasadena, Calif., has been accepted by the local com- mander after having passed a Board of Officers to attend either the Administrative Officer Can- didate School or the Adjutant Generals Officers Candidate School.

Pending processing of his ap- plication by the Adjutant General in Washington, D. C. M. Sgt. Lun- dy will continue in his duties as Regimental Sergeant Major at the Post Headquarters.

M. Sgt. Lundy, who will be re- membered as having been a law clerk with the firm of Attorney Crispus A. Wright of Los Ange- les, has one of the highest intel- ligence scores made by few en- listed men—133. He had complet- ed his 3 years of law study at Howard University, Washington, D. C. He will be the first of the Negroes in this area to be select- ed to attend any Officer Candi- date School.

URBAN LEAGUE BEAUX ARTS BALL FRIDAY

NEW YORK, N. Y.—A long list of popular stars of stage, screen, and radio, headed by: Maxine Sullivan, Hazel Scott, Babe Wal- lace, Belle Rosette, Canada Lee, with Alan Courtney of Station WOV as emcee, will entertain hundreds of guests at the Savoy Ballroom, Friday evening, Feb. 5, when the National Urban League Guild presents its Beaux Arts Victory Ball for the benefit of the National Urban League.

Names of prominent persons are being added daily to the list of patrons. Although all boxes have been sold, a few tables are still available. Tickets and reserva- tions may be obtained through the members of the Guild, the National Urban League, 1133 Broadway, CHelsea 3-1838, or the New York Urban League, 202 W. 136th Street, EDgecombe 4-9600.

Despite the latest ruling of the Office of Defense Transportation limiting the use of motor travel, friends of the Guild have promis- ed to come by foot, buggy, wheel- barrow, and other devious means rather than miss the opportunity to do their share toward helping the Guild to support the League in its effort to build a more se- cure place for Negro citizens in American Democracy.

See Hope in Letter from WMC Chairman McNutt

Discouraged at first over the enforced discontinuance of hear- ings before the FEPC, local citi- zens see a ray of hope that it will again be fully epowered to take up the cudgel against discrimina- tion. This ray was in the form of a letter received by Rev. C. Townsend Tucker, founder and president of the rapidly growing International American Anti- Prejudice Society, in answer by a letter of protest sent to the Com- mission. The letter which speaks for itself, was signed personally by Mr. Paul V. McNutt, chairman.

Mrs. James Long Vacations in South

Mrs. James Long, of 131 East 54th St., prominent matron of this city is spending a delightfully planned vacation, touring the states and visiting friends and relatives in Dallas, Texas, and Wichita, Kansas. This well plan- ned trip of one month, was a surprise gift to Mrs. Long by her husband.

fluently. These jitterbugs around New York--I found them looking on in consternation at the exotic Rhumba.

Say man, who do you think I ran into at the Hotel Theresa in New York but Rochester, Joe Louis, Jackie Wilson, and Gene Buffalo .It seems that I had just left those four on the coast and what makes it so ironic, I met them all at the Dunbar in L. A. Now I find them at New York's Dunbar, the Theresa Hotel.

Rochester was very glad to see me, it's a pity, for he really lik- ed me. He shook my hand for a half hour. What made it so sur- prising, I had my high pressure uniform on and he was over come. By gones became by gones, he kept me with him for the rest of the day. I saw Jack Benny's radio show at the Amsterdam theatre, later we sat around the bar until 5 o'clock in the morn- ing when I had to leave for the ship. He made me promise to write him and his wife.

This New York town really is something. There is never a dearth of entertainment. Night clubs and good ones are in every block.

Another kid and I, both from Southern California made the rounds of Small's Paradise, Elks' Rendezvous, Kelly's Stables, Mur- rains and others.

This kid from California, he is white, college grad, lived in Pasa- dena and is married. This kid has read all the literature that I have and he likes the same sort of things that I like. We hit it off fine, in Panama, Cuba and before we left Calif. we had a great time.

I have some souvenirs for the girls but I am trying to wait un- til I can come back to L. A.

Here, enclosed, is a foto of my- self. "Jack, that's gold braid on that cap, do you dig me, Jack". Gold Braid. You should see the summer outfit. White, gold braid, and such a confusion of imperial- istic taste in colors you have nev- er seen. I have to hire a body- guard to carry a baseball bat around with him to beat these women off. Silly things. My uni- form is just like a Navy Ensign's, except for one small detail, the Maritime ensignia on the epulet instead of the Ensigns star.

Do you ever see Jimmy Lid- dell? Tell that guy that he miss- ed the chance of his life when he didn't go and get his seaman- ship papers with me. Tell him there is a boy on here that hails from California and he and I saw him in Chicago. His name is Bruce Shepard and he is or used to be a fighter. You remember heim, he came in your place one day and told you that he knocked me out in Chicago. He is the Bos'n.

Jimmy was on his way to join the State Guard the last time that I saw him.

I think that I am about to go where I have always wanted to go.

Well this is enough for this time. Say did you get that letter that I wrote from Panama?

RICH DIVIDENDS

No doubt you have known of people, who have always been able to achieve their aim in life. They usually get what they set out to accomplish in no uncertain manner.

Regardless to obstacles, they just keep right on going . . . . . whatever their desires, they did not let anything stand in their way of obtaining them. The se- cret lies within oneself. We all have many opportunities in life . . . to do what we wish with them. Perhaps we have been fool- ish in not using them to our best advantage.

Try turning over a new leaf. First, know what you want and then strive for success. Perhaps it may not work out just right the first time but you will note a decided improvement with each additional effort.

It will require will-power, de- termination and some sacrifice on your part, but the final results will pay big dividends.

V. B.—Dear Prof. Herman: I am a constant reader of your column and find it very interest- ing, and helpful. Would you please advise me about this mat- ter. I am deeply in love with a boy in the U. S. Army, do you think he will marry me?

Ans. Probing into the matter I find that this boy intends to ask you to marry him on his next furlough. He is as fond of you as you are of him.

A. S.—In regards to your prob- lem, I would be more than glad to help you, if you will write in for a private reply.

J. McN.—Will we get the house that I have been wanting?

Ans. — My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals your being suc- cessful in getting this house you have in mind. It may take a lit- tle longer since it is still occu- pied. Just be patient, you will hear good news soon.

P. T.—What can I do concern- ing my problem?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates the fact that you should stop worrying. Nothing is as great as it seems and certainly not worth the emphasis you put on it. I vision everything turning out alright and your be- ing happy again in your home.

A. B. T.—Will I get the money I am looking for?

Ans.—According to your lucky stars and guiding planet, you are destined to be quite lucky, fin- ancially. And it will probably be this sum of money that you have in mind.

R. R.—Dear Sir: Just a line to inform you that my Charm Bag has arrived and I have already noticed a change in my luck. You were right about the person you mentioned could not be trusted, and since I have followed your advice everything is working out much better. Thanks again Prof.

C. L. W.—Why did he leave me?

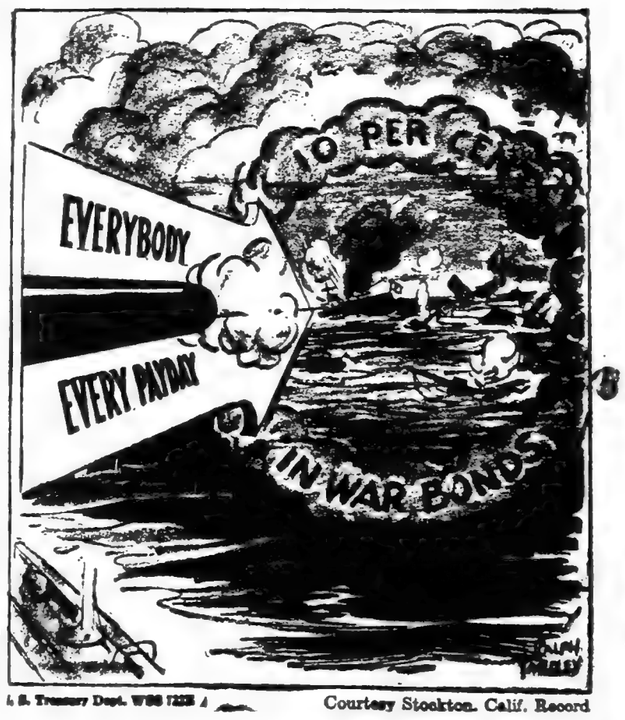
Ans.—It seems that this boy was called away and thought he would get back in time to take you home. However, I don't recommend your going out with him again. He is not reliable, and would not prove the type of boy you should go around with.

E. C.—Does he love me? Will he send me some money? Why doesn't he write?

Ans.—Only one question is an- swered in the column, I suggest that you write in for a private reply sending the required amount.

G. M. R.—Will I do better if I do what I have in mind?

Ans.—According to your Zodia- cal sign, you are due for a change in location, and it will be wise to consider this at once. A change would bring about peace of mind and happiness. So follow your intuition.



C. P.—Can I break the engage- ment?

Ans.—I do not recommend your trying to break up the engage- ment between your former boy friend and the other girl. If he doesn't seem to know his own mind and is just passing time, don't let him break your heart. There are other nice young men that would appreciate you and treat you as you should be treat- ed, don't waste any more time worrying over this fellow.

★ SIDEWALK

lines must never halt.

To meet this challenge, our city possesses every element. We have the physical equipment, the finest, newest factories in the world. We have the workers. We have transportation lines to convey workers to the factories. We have homes in which they can live decently. We have food to feed them. We have a government whose win-the-war policies are right.

But with all these elements for Los Angeles victory on the war production front, there are serious and unanswered problems in all these fields. We possess all the elements for a decisive victory in our production effort, but, in varying degrees, they are not being utilized, to the irreparable harm of our total war effort.

It is important that the common people for whom the war is fought understand clearly why there exists the threat of a fatal gap between potentiality and performance in our war effort.

It is precisely out of the nature of this war that the people's problems in fighting it must flow. It is unfortunately true that powerful sections of American life have announced a clear determination to defeat the war effort—to defeat it through obstructing the measures and policies which are vital to its successful consummation. These forces do not announce themselves as Hitlerite Copperheads, but their actions betray them. From price ceilings to labor-management committees, they range themselves in solid opposition to every win-the-war measure. They meanwhile drape themselves in our country's flag and prove their patriotism by shouting insults at the Axis. As President Roosevelt has warned, as Ambassador Davies has warned, as every Anti-Fascist in the world well understands, their ultimate objective is a negotiated peace with Hitler, or, at least a negotiated peace with those 10,000 German millionaires for whose benefit the Fascist German state exists. These elements in American life, those who oppose loyalist Spain, those who approved Munich, those who told us there was no danger from Japan, are well organized. They are cunning. They play the common people one group against another. Their conspiracy against the war effort already begins to operate with clock-like precision.

Here are some of their accomplishments in our own city during this period of so-called all-out effort.

Because reactionaries destroyed every one of the seven points of President Roosevelt's economic program announced months ago, in a disgraceful exhibition of congressional chicanery, price ceilings and rationing programs are failing miserably.

War workers are unable to secure meat, or, if they can, they must stand in line, often three deep, paying prices which have long since topped every price ceiling.

A wave of anti-Mexican sentiment has been started by the Metropolitan press to drive additional wedges into the national unity which must exist in our city. Sensationalism over zoot suit crimes and criminals has been the window dressing behind which Mexican war workers have faced disgraceful discrimination, behind which the war effort has lost thousands of valuable war workers.

In housing projects, cumbersome quota systems operate by which races are split into various categories with so many housing units going to each of several groups. In effect, the quota system permits precious housing to go unoccupied in that section set apart for one race, while vital war workers or another race live in rat-infested, filthy homes condemned by the City Health Department.

In housing generally, deed and property restrictions, which operate for the profit of unscrupulous real estate interests, further shackle some war workers into vile ghetto communities, while housing units in other sections are vacant.

Further, workers who, by reason of their race, cannot occupy homes near the factories at which they are employed are often forced to spend weary hours daily traveling to the distant ghetto communities in which they live, straining themselves and the city's already seriously over-burdened transportation facilities.

Worse is the scandal of upgrading at many aircraft plants. Workers trained for skilled work, able to contribute immeasurably to Los Angeles victory of production, are bound to jobs as janitors. At one large Inglewood Aircraft plant, the company blankly refuses to upgrade Negro workers capable of jobs in the inspection and other skilled departments. This company, moreover, is willing to pay these workers to REMAIN IN TRAINING SCHOOL where they will be of absolutely no benefit to the war effort rather than permit their democratic integration into the several departments of advanced aircraft production.

This is asuicidal manpower policy in direct opposition to President Roosevelt's executive order outlawing defense industry racial discrimination.

At any rate, this brief outline reveals to what extent the saboteurs of the people's war effort have been succesful in Los Angeles.

The necessity of the hour is clear. Only the people can answer such a defeatist conspiracy. The total organization and mobilization of the people to secure our victory of production is our task.

The broad masses of laboring people, of minorities, of all patriotic Americans must demand the fullest performance of those vital-to-victory policies of our president and our nation.

To end for the duration that sabotage of production which is race prejudice on the assembly line, Americans demand a central war economy as outlined in the Tolan-Pepper-Kilgore bill, to break the back of that defeatist coalition in the Congress which blitzed Mr. Roosevelt's seven economic points, prompt passage of the Anti-Poll Tax Bill is vital, for only thus can we rid our war congress of men who represent only the barest, wealthiest fraction of the people who live in their various states.

Extensive housing reforms to answer war needs, full operation of the Fair Employment Practice Committee, an efficient and thorough price control system,—these are the battlements which the people's army on the home front must capture.

But words, whether mine or yours or those of the president himself, cannot accomplish these ends.

The active, practical organization of the masses of people is essential. Cutting across all artificial lines of race, religion and class, the patriotic Americans of our city must unite to do this job.

Our labor unions, our churches, our people's organizations must unite around an uncompromising win-the-war program.

It was such unity which brought about last week the upgrading of Negro workers of the Los Angeles Railway Company so that they may serve as Conductors and Motormen, breaking a manpower shortage which had cost thousands of war workers precious hours waiting for street cars and busses.

The healthy Anti-Fascist spirit of a fighting city pulses through the statement of Los Angeles Railway president, P. B. Harris. "Boys, I don't care who runs the street cars, white or black, so long as they move."

But this policy was brought about after the people, Negroes labor, government, and progressive management had fought for it.

Truly, the common man must step forward to claim his century!

The death of District Attorney John Dokweiler is a blow to every citizen in the community. He was a man whom the people could depend upon. He was not spectaculer. He was not brilliant. He was a hard-worker day in and out. Hard work killed him. Hard work made him a great citizen.

May I extend my sincerest sympathy to his whole family. We share their loss.

WPSC Holds Quarterly Meet at YMCA

On Thursday, Jan. 28th, the YMCA hummed with the voices of alert women vitally interested in good government, it was the women of the WPSC in their first quarterly meeting of the year.

The morning session was presided over by Catherine Mitchen, president of the Hallie Q. Brown unit of Central Gardens. At which time the budgets for all units for the year in metropolitan Los Angeles, and nearby counties were submitted and discussed, and brought before the units.

The afternoon session was presided over by chairman Beatrice Jones Mason, at which time the regular monthly reports were received, and their problems brought before the body. Housing conditions in Long Beach were discussed, and we feel it will soon be satisfactorily settled.

Our monthly $500 pledge to the YWCA and all current bills were paid. Mr. Timpae of the OPA and Mr. Wilson from Board 540, spoke on rationing. It is interesting to note the enthusiasm carried on by these women despite the prolonged illness of the executive secretary, Mrs. Betty Hill.

The units reported all new officers have been elected and are beginning to get the feel of the work, and are preparing for the coming election. Belle Riley, the campaign manager states that, plans are in the making for a successful spring election. Hats off to these fine women, and their fine spirit of cooperation.

Golden State Social Club Meets

The Golden State club met with Mrs. Mararet Hale of 1837 S. 105 street. Meeting was called to order by the president. Old and new busines was discussed. The highliht of the evening was a surprise birthday dinner honoring Mrs. Elizabeth Harris. A delightful evening was spent at games. Prizes were won. Guests were Mr. and Mrs C. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. G. Jones, Mrs. Thelma Hale, Mr. Nat Harris, and Mr. Frank Lewis. A delightful evenin was spent. Ruth Taylor, reporter.

could help win the war."

BILL GORDON AGAIN

A name becoming increasingly familiar to North American Negro workers, Bill Gordon, company hired race relations troubleshooter, came to talk to the girls.

According to Miss Lugo, "Bill Gordon came down to the training school. He said he was going to try to help us girls out. We kept waiting. He never did anything. Later I talked to him. He said we hadn't gone about it right."

CHARGE RIVETTING DEPT. JIM CROW

From other sources, the EAGLE learned this week that open Jim Crow division exists in the North American rivetting department.

It is a fact that Negro workers trained for inspection have been refused this employment and told by Margaret Long, North American personnel department spokesman, "the white people are not ready yet to take orders from a little colored girl."

Compilation of evidence is underway by this newspaper and the Negro Victory Committee.

The CIO Automobile Workers, who hold a contract with North American, have been in the forefront battling for Negro rights.

The management, however, boasts a long and unsavory race-baiting history. J. H. Kindelburger, president of North American, once vowed that, regardless of qualifications, he would never employ a Negro in other than "a menial job."

Damage to war production of such a policy, and its subsequent jim-crow terrorism is vast, win-the-war spokesmen say.

Sweetheart Held in Poison Death

Miss Russel as the suspect.

The brother related that Alonzo had visited him on the afternoon of Dec. 22 and they had pleasantly discussed the coming holidays, making plans to spend Christmas together, when Alonzo would visit them to exchange presents. However, he did not come, so when he called at Alonzo's home on Dec. 26, found him sick in bed, and Miss Russel who roomed with Mrs. Mary Robinson, at 11513 Croseus street attending him. She declared that Dr. P. A. Orricha of 118 E. 80th Street had came ill. Being late Bryant had his brother's landlady, Mrs. Rogette, 2433 Imperial call the doctor back and sedatives were administered. But although Bryant and his wife remained until 3 a. m. with the suffering and delirious man, before 7 a. m. Miss Russel rang him asking that he return.

Before doing so he called Dr. W. E. Bailey, and had him meet him at his brother's house. Bailey administered sleeping powders, and left, but had to be called back on two other occasions. Because the patient had apparently lost his mind, Bailey arranged for him to be placed in the Psychopathic ward of General Hospital, but when the officers came for him, Bryant would not permit him to be taken. However, a few days later on admission papers signed by Dr. Oriecha, he was taken to General Hospital where he remained until his death.

Wanted Screw-driver For His Head

As evidence of the terrible hallucinations the violent poison, probably administered in systematic doses had brought on the doomed man, he complained that his head was on wrong, and clamored for a screw-driver so he could fix it. He also protested that some one had taken the soles off his shoes and the bottoms of his feet were bare, although of course he had no shoes on in bed. He talked wild and irrationally all during his sufferings.

One of the reasons suspicion was pointed so directly at the accused woman, is that by her own admission she and Smith had been estranged since June after living as man and wife at 140 S. Savannah street, since shortly after she came here from Georgia, five years ago. She claimed the cause of their break was that he refused to marry her, but statements by her employer, G. M. Graham, 1635 S. Rossmore, branded her as an addict to drink, and accused her of theft of wine. They had intended discharging her, just before she quit their employ on Nov. 15.

Another strange angle has been unearthed, by the simple matter of the humble mustard green. She admits that although Dr. Oriecha who had prescribed for Smith previously for gastritis had warned her not to serve him mustard greens, she had done so disregarding his assurance to her that they would act on his stomach as severely as arsenic.

Tried to Kill Him With GunN

On one occasion about Dec. 1, according to Mrs. Vance, a next door neighbor, Miss Russel had cornered Smith in the garage he ran next to his residence and tried to shoot him. He overpowered her and tok the weapon, injuring her jaw in the scuffle. Later he gave the gun back to her landlady from whose room she had taken it without her knowledge.

However, the question of insurance money has also prompted investigators to question the brother, Bryant, closely, the papers being made out to him. According to an aunt of the two, an argument had ensued between them over Alonzo's desire to have the allotment changed and assigned to his son. Bryant refused and so the insurance remained in his name.

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL L. HACKETT SR.

"Let your lights so shine that men may see your good works and glorify the Father which art in Heaven."

Friend permit us to digress for a moment from post office news to honor a great little American woman. It is our pleasure and privilege to present orchids to a very deserving individual in the person of Mrs. Charlotta Bass, Editor and Publisher of the California Eagle.

We do not wish to honor her as the first of her race to achieve certain recognition. This is not in keeping with the President's Executive Order 8802 or his Good Neighbor Policy. Rather let us say that in recognition of her untiring efforts in behalf of mankind, Mrs. Bass has been justly rewarded. An individual should not be heralded as outstanding in some particular race but rather as an American who has made his contribution to society. When we are willing to accept all peoples because of ability, democracy will be a reality.

Mrs. Bass has always championed the cause of the man on the street. We have every reason to believe that she will continue her efforts in the sacred position to which she has been intrusted. The great community of Los Angeles will be benefitted for having included Mrs. Bass on its Grand Jury Panel.

May God bless Mrs. Bass and give her strength and courage to carry on her good work for many years to come.

Back to the post office we find that the overtime provisions recently enacted were by Executive Order 9389. We have copies of that order in its entirity. It is too lengthly to reprint at this time but we will insert Sec. 4 pertaining to annual and sick leave.

Section 4. In the case of an employee to whom the annual and sick leave laws approved March 14, 1936, 49 Stat. 1161, 1162 as amended, are applicable, approved absence, except on leave without pay, during any part of the official established regular workweek shall be charged as annual or sick leave as the case may be, and any absence on approved annual or sick leave shall not be construed to reduce the amount of overtime compensation to which the employee is entitled for employment during the official established regular work-week.

Death Verdict Upset; Attack Story Held Incredulous

RICHMOND, Va. (C)—The State Supreme Court this week reversed a death verdict against Samuel Legions, colored, charged with attacking a young married white woman in her home at Leesburg, on the ground that the failure of the woman and her husband to offer effective resistance or to escape was "unbelievable even to the most credulous or naive."

The court ordered a new trial. The prosecution had charged that the verdict of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Legions entered the house occupied by the couple in a thickly settled part of Leesburg one night in October, 1941, and threatened the woman, her husband and child with death if they made outcry.

The court's opinion said testimony showed the accused had a pocket knife, but did not open it and that the husband did nothing after striking the intruder with a window shade. The court said also that no alarm was given by either man or wife, and concluded that the story outlined in trial court testimony was "so contrary" to human experience and so inherently incredible as to be totally insufficient to justify th tverdict of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

CLUB WOCONSI ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

...At the beautiful home of Mrs Susie Anderson of 1209 East 58th street Sunday, Jan. 24, at 4 p. m., the Club Wiconsi entertained several friends with a delicious turkey dinner. Dancing, pokeno, and Chinese checkers were the features of the evening. The beautiful centerpiece for the table was quite a novel arrangement from which every one including the guests drew gifts and exchanged them. Everyone voteded Mrs. Anderson a delightful hostess and hoped to be among the future guests at an early date.

Those present were Mrs. Elizabeth McNeal, Mrs. Wm. Hans-Mrs. Thomas Spaulding, Mrs. Thomas Fry, Mr. George Clark, Prof. R. C. Jackson, Mr. H. S. Moore, Mr. Jesse Moseleq and Mr. Phil Waller. Mother Washington whom we missed very much was indisposed. Dorothy McDonald, jresident; Mildred Anderson, reporter.

Santa Monica Club Lauds Eagle Editor

The La Monicans extend congratulations to Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, editor of the California Eagle upon her appointment, as the first and only Negro on the Los Angeles Grand Jury.

The Pro-American Group, with Mrs. Greta Wright as the chairman, presented an enjoyable program Sunday afternoon, Jan. 31, at a dedicatory service of a "Hospitality House", for the 73rd Chemical Company stationed nearby. Hoagy Carmichael, noted pianist and composer, was guest artist and received a welcome ovation. He played his immortal "Stardust", and the "USO" song. John Moore rendered the vocal selection, "Today". Hilda Clark, gave the reading "The Negro Soldier". The Gospel Choir of the Calvary Baptist, directed by Miss Morgan, furnished the music. Rev. W. P. Carter was master of ceremonies. Invocation by Rev. A. K. Quinn.

The senior hostesses are: Mrs. Blanche Carter, Miss Edna Heard and Miss Essie Tucker. A variety of refreshments were served. This marks the first milestone in providing entertainment and a recreation center for Negro soldiers in the Bay District.

NOEL COWARD'S "IN WHICH WE SERVE" NOW AT UA
It stand alone as the greatest human drama of our time, "In Which We Serve", Noel Coward's brilliantly told story of a ship, HMS Torrin, a destroyer, and its heroic ship's company, now playing at the United Artists Theatre, 933 So. Broadway, downtown Los Angeles.

Its story, moving and absorbing, bears the seal of utter sincerity; it is wholly free from both melodramatic hokum and cinematic cliches. Natural humor is deftly employed to relieve the intense emotional impact of poignant incidents. And always the accent is upon realism, from opening shot--the laying of the Torrin's keel—to the splendidly conceived and etched finale in which Coward as the destroyer's captain "D" takes leave of his crew's survivors in Alexandria.

Yes, emphatically, from the standpoint of story construction alone "In Which We Serve" is stand-out.

But there is more to the picture's excellence than its story. There is Coward's experimentation with a modified flashback technique. It is highly effective in perfecting the mosaic for, as Coward tells his story, there are essential contributions from the lives of a dozen or so. The required sequences are filled in through the parade across the screen of the thoughts of the Torrin's survivors as they cling to a life raft off Crete.

Ladies, they used to say: "That's TABOO!" Now read these facts
Not long ago, many a woman would prefer to suffer in silence from periodic, functional pain rather than talk about this subject.

Nowadays, women and girls openly praise CARDUI's 2-way help. Taken as a tonic, it usually peps up the appetite and aids digestion by stimulating the flow of gastric juices; thus it often helps build up resistance for the trying days to come. Or taken as directed 3 days before the time, CARDUI may help relieve pain due only to periodic, functional causes.

Try CARDUI. For 62 years thousands of women have said they believed it helped them.

WAR ON NEGRO
TRUTH: For 323 years a war of prejudice, discrimination, lynching and abuses has been waged against us. I began to fight this battle when I discovered that I was a 'made fool.' Mark you, not a fool but a 'made one', like many intellectuals.

Thinking people are asking: What are we—Negroes, olored People or what? What is a NEGRO? No educator has ever given a satisfactory answer. They haven't the courage. The truth has never been told. Why is NEGRO the most disputed name? Because the truth is not known. Truth is The Basis Of Education. I went to a university; spent 5 years in law school in Boston, became counsellor in public schools. Worked in educational sociology at New York University.

After 15 years' investigation, study and research, I found the facts, the history, the truth about the race.

With my discovery, I made money, and gained world respect.

It can do the same for you. I have compiled it in the great book: "HUMAN SIDE OF PEOPLE," 399 pages, 84 pictures by myself, Raphael P. Powell. The demand for this book by thousands proves that it shows the way o success and is helping to win the war against race prejudice. Price $3. Send orders to: PHILEMON CO., 224 West 135th St., New York City, GUARANTEED: The only book which gives the TRUTH about our race.

Move for Race Machinists Members

IAM Lodge Buoys Hopes of Race at Lockheed-Vega

Negro workers at Lockheed-Vega aircraft company who have wondered what the blankety-blank about their status in the International Association of Machinists union, Lodge 727, have cause for celebration today.

In an historic and unprecedented action, the Lodge, representing more than 30,000 local aircraft workers, has requested the national Grand Lodge of the Machinists in Washington to hold a referendum vote of all the 300,000 Machinist members in the U. S., Canada, the Canal zone and the Hawaiian Islands on the question of deletion of a clause in the international Constitution which prohibits the membership of Negro workers.

This action followed a vote in Lodge 727 to determine whether such a request should be made. Before a national referendum on by W. A. B.

There was a meeting this week in the offices of Guy T. Nunn in the minorities division of the War Manpower Commission which holds rich promise for the expansion of Los Angeles' all important war production and for the development of a greater, sounder national unity.

It was called for the purpose of setting up an office in the downtown area to concern itself with the problems of our city's Latin-American population. This project bears the blessing of powerful Washington figures who consider the development of closer cooperation between Anglo and Latin-Americans in the United States an essential part of the good neighbor policy of our great war-time president.

Oust Dean Pickens on Dies' Charge

Texas Poll Taxer Says Veteran Government Man a Red

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives this week fired Dean William Pickens, senior Negro Government employee, from his $5600 per year job in the Treasury department because Poll Tax Rep. Martin Dies of Texas charged that Pickens is a red with Communist connections.

The action must be approved by the Senate.

First signs of an offensive by the Administration against Dixie poll tax reaction prevalent here followed promptly as President Franklin Roosevelt appointed a five-man interdepartmental committee to investigate charges of "subversive activities" by Federal employees.

The action by the chief executive was interpreted as a direct reply to Dies' foray against Pickens, since the President's committee is thus charged to perform the very function for which Dies annually blackmails the American Congress to the tune of several hundred thousand dollars.

Dies secured a House OK for his race-and-red-baiting only after he absorbed a prime spanking from doughty Rep. Will Rogers, jr., of California, whom —praise be!--this newspaper helped elect.

Rogers, unquoted by the major press services, United Press, Associated Press and Hearst's prostitute International News Service, nevertheless told off the poll tax Texan in fine fashion, properly charging him

Boilermakers at Calship Jim Crowed

See Jim Crow Local as Peril to Future of Industrial Labor

With big shot Negro pussyfooters from the North in Los Angeles this week to arrange for establishment of a Jim Crow local of the AF L Boilermakers union at California Shipyards, the EAGLE learned this week that the real motive behind the separate "auxiliary" is the elimination of Negroes from the Boilermakers trade as soon as the war is over.

In other words, Negro Calship workers are being railroaded into an organization whose prime goal is to slice off their whole future as industrial labor.

Scores of Calship Negro workers are now members of the Negro "auxiliary" to the Boilermakers outfit, whose headquarters is at Kansas City, Kans. These workers pay dues to this distant "local," are not permitted to enter the San Pedro Boilermakers union (for white only), and have no opportunity to participate in the democratic function of their union.

"To correct this situation," Negro big-shots, recruited from exclusive fraternal orders in the Bay area, have set about the organization of Jim Crow Boilermakers locals up and down the coast. One exists in San Francisco and another was set up last week in Portland, Ore.

Their line is familiar. It is the ancient hankie-head drool about us Negroes having something of our very own where we can have our own officers, and our own balls, and whyinhell fight for what's due us when we can take a hefty slice of compromise pie, and—by Gosh—we're happier off to ourselves, anyway!

Well, it's a beautiful song, but right now it sounds loud and wrong.

REAL ROLE SHOWN

Real business of the Jim Crow union is to bilk Negro workers of their insurance, which is way below those of white workers in the ofay wing of the union who perform the same work as their dusky brothers in production. But even this racket is a side show.

What the Boilermakers really intend to do with their Jim Crow outfit is to lope off all Negro workers in their trade at the first opportunity. Isolate the Negroes and eliminate them: that's the idea.

One worker at Calship light enough to pass for white was tak-

LARY Trains First of Race as Conductors, Motormen

Triumphant climax of a win-the-war struggle which involved every member of the Negro community, which exhibited exemplary cooperation from the Gov't and AFL organized labor, was registered this mornnig at 8 a. m. as Joseph B. Elliot, of 1615 East 14th street, and Baron Hutson became the first Negroes to take training in the school for conductors and motormen operated by the Los Angeles Railway company, the Los Angeles Victory Committee announced today.

Several false starts had tantalized Victory Committee spokesmen as promised Negro workers failed to appear for training.

At least five Negroes have been upgraded into the skilled sections of the mechanical department.

Men and women are urged to register at the United States Employment Service for work with L. A. Railway by the company this week.

Training period for conductors and motormen lasts from 20 to 25 days, with pay at the rate of 50 cents an hour covering that period.

When on the job, pay is 70 cents and hour for the first year on a 2-man car, 80 cents an hour during the first year on the 1-man cars.

Wage increase negotiations are currently underway.

Rev. Clayton D. Russell, Victory Committee chairman, said today, "Success in this effort was due to the support of the trade unions of AFL street railway workers, the War Manpower Commission minorities division, and, most of all, thousands of Negro and white people who so splendidly mobilized their mass pressure to secure this important success in the path toward our nation's victory."

A copy of President Roosevelt's executive order 8802, outlawing discrimination on the basis of race, creed or color in defense industries, is being circulated this week to all LARY employees.

It is signed by: P. B. Harris, President Los Angeles Railway Corporation;: Jack Rowley, Coach Representative Amalgamated Association, Div. 1277; R. C. Haslam, Mechanical Representative Amalgamated Association, Div. 1277; Lawrence W. Cramer, Executive Secretary President's Committee on Fair Employment Practices, War Manpower Commission; C. Ed. Lentz, President Amalgamated Association, Div. 1277; J. W. Prutsman, Rail Representative Amalgamated Association, Div. 1277.

COMMUNITY FRONT LINE

Members of the Communications Corps assigned to the Southeast control center shown above were highly commended by U. S. Army officers and officials of the Los Angeles Citizens Defense Corps for their efficient work during the recent rehearsals and drills held in this area. Women volunteers in this service have devoted many hours and much effort in perfecting their organization to aid in protecting the lives and property of civilians in case of enemy attack.

VICTORY COMMITTEE HITS FOOD DISTRIBUTION

Weary war workers who must spend tiresome hours shopping for meat and other diet essentials while ritzy Hollywood cafes are overstocked with the plenty of the land swung into action Sunday night, led by the militant Negro Victory Committee, at People's Independent Church of Christ.

Fifteen hundred of the Eastside's war-working population jam-packed the church auditorium, as a full-throated demand for adequate, over-all rationing of meat supplies and other necessary foods was demanded.

The crushing burden of war jobs, child care and shopping for frequently non-existent meat upon women industrial workers was pointed to as a threat to the efficiency of these soldiers of the production front.

Showing that no real meat shortage exists, Victory Committee spokesmen indicated that the meat crisis which engulfs the West coast is the outgrowth of a profit-making scheme engineered by the Big Five Packing Houses of Chicago.

Government statistics showing a decrease of only ten per cent in civilian meat supplies for this year as compared with 1942 were quoted.

The existence of a huge, on-the-hoof, meat reservoir in Los Angeles was also revealed.

But the most startling disclosures concerned the flourishing black markets through which wealthy Hollywood and downtown restaurants gobble up meat supplies, often leaving stores in war essential communities bereft of merchandise.

Failure of local stores to post price ceilings and enforce them was also sighted as a fraudulent invasion of war workers' pay envelopes.

SUPPORT PEPPER-KILGORE-TOLAN BILL

War workers demanded an end to wild profiteering on the meat market, raising a cry for immediate pasage of the Pepper-Kilgore-Tolan bill, which requires an over-all economic mobilization of the nation's war effort.

Kill Fleeing Bandits

After calling on them several times to halt, Police Radio officers last Friday about 11:30 fired at the fleeing figures of two men answering the description of bandits, and one fell mortally wounded. The other escaped, but is expected to be rounded up shortly in the city-wide drag-net thrown out for him. The dead man was identified as Herman Carpenter, address unknown. Deputy Sheriffs R. K. Hall, and E. A. Foster from Firestone Park station are continuing the investigation into the matter. The case is listed as No. A. 23408 in the files of the sheriff's office.

That Carpenter was the right man was proven by a watch found on his body belonging to a hold-up victim, Ira Patterson of Oakley, Kans., who had reported it earlier in the night. As Oakley, a visitor here, was anxious to return home he was not held for the coroner's inquest or further indentification, but was given back his watch, and he left town.

For some time residents in the southeastern part of the city and elsewhere in the county had been reporting the operations of two bandits described as Negroes traveling in a car. Many robberies, and hold-ups had been laid to them, so a county-wide broadcast was made, giving their description, and the license number of their automobile. When they were hemmed up by the officers they had attempted to escape on foot ,but Carpenter failed. He died shortly after reaching the Georgia Street Receiving hospital.

Bias at No. American, So He Quits

"I'll come out plain and tell you that they are not taking any Negroes in the drafting department."

That's general foreman Noah Dickering of North American Aircraft company speaking.

It's the bright, winter morning of Jan. 28 and foreman Dickering is addressing himself to Horace Don Gaunt, 1433 South Union Drive, former Negro North American worker, whose story swelled the list of complaints against the firm filed in the California Eagle office this week.

Discriminated against, Gaunt got sore and quit his job. He shouldn't have. There's nothing that can be done for him now.

A worker who finds discrimination on his job should stick to it, take the matter to his union, demand action, then take it to the minorities division of the War Manpower Commission.

Any other procedure hurts the war effort, hurts the fight for equal upgrading of all industrial workers, and blocks action that might be taken to correct abuses. It's like walking off the field in the middle of a game.

NORTH AMERICAN IS HOTBED

A hotbed of discriminatory practices, North American aircraft company holds a contract with a fighting CIO union which will take up the greivances of Negro workers:—IF THEY BRING THEM TO THE UNION.

All workers at the plant are urged to join CIO, submit to no invasion of their just rights as workers and fight for proper upgrading.

GAUNT'S STORY

Gaunt's story is one of many.

On Dec. 2 he was employed by the firm in its hydro-press department as a general helper. After 10 days, Gaunt's foreman, described as "a man who really believes in democracy" made him a lead man, putting him in charge of the die crib, incoming department and the large hydro press.

"Here's where trouble began," Gaunt relates, "My foreman, a Texan, was almost persecuted by other lead men who objected to my elevation. There was so much furore that I asked to be switched to the draftsman's department, since I am a

POST-WAR WORLD TO BE NAACP TOPIC SUNDAY

The first public meeting of the local branch, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, with its newly elected officers and executive board members will be held this Sunday, with a discussion of topics of vital importance at the Hamilton Methodist church, 18th and Naomi Ave., at the hour of 3:30 p. m.

The Negro's part in building a post war world will be the main topic of discussion with Rev. Paul M. Marshall, pastor of the AME Zion church, Pico and Paloma streets, leading the discussion with the principal address.

Harold S. Prince, newly elected Executive Secretary of the 28th Street Branch YMCA will lead the discussion on the subject of "New Fronts in Race Relations." Although Mr. Prince comes from a well known pioneer family of California, he has recently arrived in the city after a 21 year absence as YMCA Secretary in Chicago and other Eastern cities.

All officers and the 20 members of the Executive Board will be told what is expected of them as officers of the local branch during the year.

Music will be furnished by the Avalon Christian Church Choir under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Massengill, and accompanied by Bernice Lawson. Special soloist will be Charles Matthews, baritone, and little Marlyne Jones, soprano. Current events will be lead by John Kinloch, City Editor of the California Eagle.

Woman Not Jailed in Poison Death Mystery

Contrary to a report that left the impression Miss Flora Belle Russell was in jail charged with suspicion of murder of her sweetheart, Alonzo Smith, she was only under strict investigation last week by investigators Atherton, Garnack, Garland and Case.

According to her Attorney, Ivan Johnson, the accused woman has so far withstood the grilling, by officers, and close questioning by him, so has stuck to her story that at no time did she place the arsenic in his food that was found in his stomach at the autopsy. Two cans of ant paste, one an antrol compound, the other a still more powerful gelatine mixture were found in the bathroom of Smith's house. But the fact that there was a heavy coating of dust on the covers of both convinced the detectives that they had not been opened recently.

Incidently her employer stated that a can of ant-paste she had bought to destroy ants in the house had later disappeared, which gave the investigators suspicion that she had committed the act.

THIS GROUP of boys at Tuskegee Flying field need our help. Mrs. Charlotta A. That bbs was not also fatally in- ed, was because he did not e Beebe fight back when at- ked, be helieves.

The sensational incident oc- rred on Jan. 15, when Stubbs corted his wife to an after- on performance of the Ethel aters-Les Hite show at the rpheum. According to his ory told to Eagle reporters, e foyer was roped off, to revent further entrance, al- ough two girl ushers had at tervals let in other patrons. hen Mrs. Stubbs who was ecovering from a fall com- lained of long standing the usband raised the rope and ent inside to investigate the eating capacity.

Finding plenty of room he re- rned to the door and called Mrs. ubbs. But an usherette at the or tried to bar her, but squeez- g past she joined her husband.

The two started down the aisle t were followed by two men hers summoned by the girl. ne of them explained "Where's at g— d— n—, I'm going to t' them out!"

But remonstrating politely, ubbs explained that since he d paid to see the show and ere were plenty of unreserved ats he did not see why he ould be put out. The ushers ft but twenty minutes later re- rned with a colored cop who ld Stubbs to come outside so e could talk to him. Still desir- us of seeing the show, Stubbs re- used.

About ten minutes later the officer returned again this time with two other officers, both white. When they again insisted that Stubbs come outside "to talk" and he refused, three white soldiers interfered asking the officers, why don't you let that man alone he's not doing anything? Ignoring their plea and the apparent disfavor of other disturbed patrons in the capacity crowded house the colored cop got directly behind Stubbs' seat. Suddenly without warning he smashed the unsuspecting man on the jaw with what witnesses said was a black jack, while the two white officers grabbed his arms and held him He fell over against his wife partly unconscious, bleeding and groaning. His wife begged please don't hit him any more. But they disregarded her and continuing the mistreatmen jerked him up and threw them both roughly into a police car outside.

Ignoring the injured man's pleas to be taken to a doctor, he was rushed to Central jail, the officers cursing and abusing him all the way. After a long time in the dirty drunk-tank filled with foul, disreputable human beings, he was transferred to the police department at the City Hall. Following a whispered consultation among officers superiors, Mrs. Stubbs was permitted to phone Dr. McPherson but found him out. They then agreed to take the suffering man to the Georgia St. Receiving Hospital, but examining surgeons reportedly scoffed at the idea of his jaw being broken and told him he could have an X-ray taken the next day.

From there he was taken to Lincoln Heights and a Bond Broker named Rose had assault and battery charge previously placed on him at Central Station, cancelled leaving only disorderly conduct. He bailed him out at once, and next day an X-ray was taken, under the direction of Dr. C. M. Gordon.

X-RAY SHOWED MULTIPLE BREAKAGE

The X-ray report from the Pacific Medical Laborities follows: Posterors--Anterior and lateral radiographed of right joint of Mr. Stubbs' jaw, shows evidence of a transverse fracture of body right half of mandible slightly anterior to angle.

Fracture angle extends apparently into tooth socket of right molar. Fragments appear to be in good condition.

Partial infection of lower left second molar apparently present. Stubbs' has retained Att'y Thomas L. Griffith to represent him when he goes to court on Feb. 17, 1943.

The ordeal left the victim suffering from shock and weakness, besides his terrible injury. This was because the attack occurring at 5:00 p. m., it was after 9:00 o'clock before he was released so he could be cared for at home.

Oust Dean Pickens in Red Row with fascist connections and branding his attack upon Dean Pickens and Mary McLeod Bethune as unashamed race-baiting.

EXAMINER CHEERS

The Los Angeles Examiner fell over itself Sunday in congratulating Dies on forcing the House action against Dean Pickens. The President's creation of a special committee to perform Dies' job the Examiner condemned in its "news" story as an effort to "whitewash."

Named to the five-man committee created by the President's executive order were Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Herbert E. Gaston; Ass't Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman; Federal Reserve Board Member Rudolph M. Evans; John Q. Cannon, legal adviser to the Civil Service commission, and Francis C. Brown, solicitor of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

First action of the new body will probably be an investigation of Dies charges against Dean Pickens and Mrs. Bethune. Authority was given the committee to review any particular finding upon its own initiative and transmit its recommendations to the employing department in any case where it might determine the internal security of the United States was menaced.

DRIVE AGAINST DIES

Dies outburst against Negro government employees, along with scores of others against whom he raised his familiar red-baiting wail, came just as progressive America voiced its clearest demand that Congress withhold funds from Dies.

The National Negro Congress, the NAACP, the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties all levelled severe blasts at the Dies outfit.

A reasoned denunciation of the Committee's pro-Axis work was outlined to every Congressman in a "Message to the House of Representatives" distributed by the Federation. The fighting document reads:

"January, 1943 sees the birth of a new Congress, the 78th Congress of the United States. It marks the fourteenth month of our fight for freedom. It heralds the year in which victory can be won.

"The year 1943 can be a victorious one for the people of the United States and for their allies of the United Nations. In 1943, a united people of many nations of diverse creeds and races, can destroy forever the tyranny and terror of the Axis aggressors

"We can succeed only if we are united. We know that we must defeat all who would divide us. We know that the unity of America, and the unity of America with its allies, must be complete.

"That is why we express our grave concern over the possible renewal of the Dies Committee by the House of Representatives.

"We have observed the divisive workings of the Dies Committee and its chairman, Martin Dies. It is our belief that, on the basis of its record, the Committee must be terminated, because:

1. The Dies Committee, by allowing itself to become a forum for the proponents of intolerance and hatred, has undermined the very foundations of national unity, and has violated our pledge that all loyal Americans, irrespective of their racial, religious or political beliefs shall be united in common struggle against the enemy.

2. The Dies Committee, by continued and repeated attacks on our great ally, the Soviet Union, has utilized its resources to obstruct cooperation of the United Nations which is a prerequisite for victory.

3. The Dies Committee has attempted, by its unprincipled and unfounded attacks on trade unions and their officials, to destroy the American labor movement which is a vital and decisive factor in the war effort, and which has made the war record of our free workers the pride of the nation.

4. The Dies Committee not only has deliberately suppressed information concerning the activities of Nazi cohorts in this country but has gone out of its way to shield such Axis propagandists as Pelley, Winrod, Viereck, Hudson, Kullgren, Sanctuary, Edmonson, True, and many others now convicted or under indictment for sedition by the Government of the United States.

5. The Dies Committee, to hide its flagrant fraternizing with fascists, has utilized its Congresisonal prestige to continue an undemocratic, un-American and openly obstructionist campaign of vilification against thousands of the staunchest supporters of the war and of the democratic way of life, and has campaigned equally viciously against government employees who have been vigorous protectors of our national interest.

"The actions of the Dies Committee are too dangerous to be allowed to go unheeded by the House of Representatives.

"The American people who are fighting this war for freedom will no longer countenance the shame of the Dies Committee."

Stubbs' friends and a number of interested citizens plan to be present at the unusual trial next week.

professional in that line.

"I discovered, however, that another Negro in my department, Melvin Howard, had completed the company's basic engineering course in drafting at USC but had been demoted from the die crib to the donkey driver instead of being placed where he belonged in the engineering department.

"I went to the company's educational department," Gaunt continues "where I was referred to Bill Gordon, the Negro educational director.

"I told him I wanted to take the company course in drafting but that I knew of another man who had taken it and had been demoted for his pains.

"Bill says bring that fellow to his office.

"I went downstairs and got Melvin.

"First thing Bill Gordon wants to know is how old he is. 'Twenty,' says Melvin.

"Bill says, 'Well, there'd be no use of trying to transfer him to any other department because he'll be in the army soon.'

"So what?' I ask, 'wouldn't it be better for him to go to war out of the engineering department so that he might get a chance to get back in it when he comes back?'

"He didn't have any answer, so we left and I went over to department 15 and saw general foreman Dickering.

"Dickering doesn't play around. He tells me, 'I'll come out plain and tell you they are not taking any Negroes in the drafting department.'

"I decided to quit that job. I went over to the interviewing department, told them I was leaving and why. They said there was no discrimination, that there is ONE Negro in the engineering department now.

"I quit,' I said."

URGE UNION ACTION

This story is similar to many from the training department and other sections of the firm, where Negro workers report a

Numbers of cases have been successfully fought by the United Automobile Workers, CIO. but it must be brought to the union for action and that workers who quit —no matter how justified they feel— do not contribute toward solution of the problem.

The bill would further centralize all war production, strengthening Federal regulations against discriminatory practices in industry and snatching the country's economic initiative from its war profiteers and the poll tax Dixie demagogues.

RUSSELL HITS REACTION

Fighting Rev. Clayton D. Russell, chairman of the Victory Committee, launched a blistering attack at the "wave of reaction" which has hit the nation's capital.

"The coalition of reactionary Republican and poll tax Democrats out to scuttle our President's win-the-war program in Washington demands the utmost unity of the Negro people, the labor movement and all progressive forces in our society," the minister stated.

"We know what terrific pressure was exerted by the poll taxers to smash the Fair Employment Practice Committee. We know it's time to fight when poll tax Rep. Martin Dies can stand on the floor of Congress and fire Dean William Pickens from the Treasury department. We know it's time to fight when that same Dies can smear the reputation of Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, one of the fifty great women of contemporary America.

"Every gain that our people have secured since the beginning of the war today hangs by a thread. More than that, success of the country's whole war production is basically threatened.

"This situation demands the fullest unity of action, nationally and locally. Negro ministers, regardless of denomination or size of church, must get together now! Negro newspapers must get together now! Negro business, Negro leadership must get together now!

"There must be the fullest working unity between the progressive forces of our white citizens and ourselves.

"We, all of us, the win-the-war millions of America must out-pressure reaction!"

LOCAL FIGHT

Urging that more Negro men and women apply for training as conductors and motormen on the Los Angeles Railway lines and asking that they also register with the Negro Victory Committee so that a record of their treatment may be kept, Russell sounded a new call to action.

"We are fighting for a principle in Los Angeles, the principle of victory for this nation. We are not going to stop until every public utility in this city is opened to Negroes, until every hand, black or white, is contributing to victory everywhere!"

LAUNCH MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

With over $1,000 raised or pledged Sunday night, the Victory Committee announced a broad membership drive.

Claude E. McKinney, chairman of the finance committee, told the immense gathering, "If we're going to fight for it, we've got to pay for it, too!" McKinney said that "a fighting organization of the people must be supported directly by the people. We want no hand-outs from any other quarter."

McKinney is chairman of the local Negro Business Men's League. All citizens, he stated, may send contributions to the Los Angeles Negro Victory Committee at the Victory Committee Office, 4073 South Central Ave., or they may come to the office and personally deposit their money.

SIGN PETITIONS

Not all the action Sunday night took place on the church platform. The people filled out petitions demanded the reinstatement of the Fair Employment Practice Committee, petitions demanding higher wages for the employees, black and white, of the Los Angeles Railway Company, petitions for the re-election to the L. A. Board of Education of Mrs. Faye E. Allen, only Negro member.

OUTDOOR ADVERTISING

A striking new project of the Victory body is the invasion of the billboard advertising field.

The Victory Committee plans taking ten billboards to present a War bond plea to Americans. "We've objected to our Aunt Jemimas and our watermelon-eating Negroes on the billboards. Now we're going to show everybody what we DO want," Rev. Russell said, Welford Wilson, prominent Victory Committee figure, urged that rank-and-filers write to Washington commending the militant action of the local War Manpower Commission Minorities Division to strengthen it against possible attack from reactionary sources.

Card of Thanks

The family of the late Mrs. Mamie Bolds wishes to thank their many friends for the expressions of kindness and sympathy during our recent bereavement. We wish especially to thank Mr. Aramis Fouche and Mrs. Zenobia Allen for the beautiful way the arrangements were handled, and to Reverends Allen Jackson and Roberts for words of comfort. Also Mrs. Wadie Pickens, Martha Larkins, Christine Thorne and Roberta Hyson for their songs and readings.

May God bless each and everyone.

Machinists Move for Race Members

the issue can be held, ten percent of all I. A. M. locals must request it. The Lockheed-Vega Lodge has taken on the terrific task of circularizing the entire network of I. A. M. Lodges in an effort to secure that needed ten percent.

Following this and if successful, the Grand Lodge must hold a referendum in which every member of the Machinists body will cast a ballot on the question of permitting Negroes entrance into the union.

GREW OUT OF STRUGGLE

These developments grew out of the struggle of Negro workers at Lockheed-Vega dating back to the first days of their employment at the great Burbank plant. At that time, union organizers, unaware of the Constitution's anti-Negro clause, signed up scores of Negro workers in the union.

A handful were fully initiated into the union, following action taken by the Junior Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

International Representatives of the union decided, however, that this entrance was illegal and the local body was forced to suspend induction of Negro workers.

Negroes in the plant then organized a movement to press for entrance into the union, stressing that Negro workers felt that the union itself needed the full and undivided strength of the plant's personnel and that full mobilization of all working men in responsible labor organization was —and is--a vital win-the-war necessity.

It was out of the activity of these workers that Lodge 727 has moved to the forefront as the first I.A.M. body to raise the question of Negro participation as a matter for an international referendum. It is the first referendum 727, largest single Lodge in I.A.M., has ever requested.

PRESENT SITUATION

Negro workers at Lockheed-Vega have been treated to a bewildering succession of events in their labor life. It is still a fact that many union organizers are not aware of the anti-Negro clause and sign up colored members. They then discover their error and must refund the Negro members' dues.

It is forcefully urged, however, that Negroes who have become dues-paying members of the union maintain that position, continue to pay dues and refuse to accept refunds. Labor observers point out that the struggle to secure full and equal membership in the union is strengthened, when Negroes are already, technically, members; but that a fight as total outsiders is much more difficult.

All Lockheed-Vega Negro employees are urged not to accept refunds of their union dues.

REED'S STATEMENT

In an exclusive statement to the California EAGLE yesterday, Dale Reed, progressive president of Lodge 727, outlined the present stage of the referendum drive in detail. His summation follows:

"In accordance with the democratic proceedure of the I. A. of M., it is necessary that a request for a referendum on any subject affecting a change in the Constitution of the I. A. of M. must be submitted to the entire membership of the I. A. of M. for their vote.

"Between conventions, in order to change the Constitution of the I. A. of M., it is necessary that at least 10 percent of the local lodges of I. A. of M. request our International to instigate a referendum before our International may do so. A vote of the members of the Aeronautical Industrial District Lodge 727 of I. A. of M. was to request our International to instigate a referendum on the question of deleting from our Constitution that portion prohibiting the acceptance of applications of Negro employees. Such a request has gone forward to our International office. The Lodge, 727, is also following the next step of the referendum proceedure by addressing communications to all other I. A. of M. local Lodges requesting that they support the action of Lodge 727 by also requesting our International to instigate this referendum. Upon the receipt of such a request from the necessary 10 percent of Lodges, a referendum vote of the entire membership of the I. A. of M. will be held on the subject."

en in the ofay Boilermakers outfit. Before his race was discovered, a union official told him that the Jim Crow body was maintained to keep the colored workers apart for the duration. They would then be eliminated from the trade, he said.

WHAT TO DO?

Negro workers at Calship, fiercely opposed to the Jim Crow set-up, must either kick in to the Kansas City gang or face a risk of losing their jobs. The immediate, practical problem is what should they do?

Key to the whole situation is the fact that the Boilermakers are out in the cold. Their Jim Crow policy is opposed to that of the national government and the organized labor movement.

The first thing Negro workers MUST DO is to dispatch full details to the War Manpower Commission in Washington, D. C., and the Fair Employment Practice Committee. Immediate contact with the Minorities Division of WMC in Los Angeles should be made.

MUST RALLY COMMUNITY

To all workers at Calship, the California EAGLE volunteers fullest cooperation in developing a city-wide campaign against the Boilermakers policy.

Progressive AFL trade unionism in Los Angeles is way ahead of the Boilermakers and their chocolate hankie-head helpers.

Condemnation of the Calship scores of local—and powerful—situation can be secured from AFL organizations who have trailblazed in the integration of Negro workers.

It is the Amalgamated Street Car and Electric Railway Employees, AFL, who were the unbreachable labor bulwark in the fight of the Negro people to se-

NNC TELLS 10-POINT LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Edward E. Strong, National Secretary, announced here today a ten-point Victory Legislative Program of the National Negro Congress of 1943 and called upon Negro people and their allies to join in support of the program. An emergency meeting of the National Executive Board of NNC has been called to ratify this program and to mobilize 15 million Negro Americans and their allies to support it in order to secure full participation of the Negro people in the war program of our Nation.

Complete text of the NNC Legislative Program follows.

1. Support of the win-the-war policies of the Administration. The National Negro Congress pledges its strength and resources towards the full mobilization of 15 million Negro Americans to back the win-the-war domestic and foreign policies of President Roosevelt as indispensable for the victory of our Nation over fascist aggression and for the realization of full citizenship rights fo rall minority groups.

2. Repeal of the Poll-Tax. With the key Congressional Committees headed and dominated by Poll-Tax Congressmen, a primary issue confronting all win-the-war forces in the nation today is the immediate repeal of the poll tax laws which prevent 10 million people in the South from voting.

3. Centralized war economy. The NNC joins the organized labor movement in full support of the Pepper-Kelgore Bill, and further calls for:

a. Maximum use of all available manpower

b. Democratoic enforcement of rationing of essential commodities, price and rent control.

4. Enactment and enforcement of Anti-Lynching Legislation. The curse of lynching still threatens the lives of two-thirds of the Negro people who reside in the South. The very existence of this threat is inimical to the democratic aims of the war of liberation which is being fought, and jeopardizes the complete faith in the Government of the United States which the millions of oppressed peoples throughout the world must have in order to give full support to the United Nations.

5. War Social Legislation. A war-time program to keep the home-front in tact which will include:

a. Housing, health and recreational program.

b. National child-care program.

c. Adequate schools and equalization of teachers' salaries.

6. Food for Victory Program. We call for the more rapid extension of the policies of the Farm Security Administration (which provide for loans and other forms of assistance) to allow sharecroppers, tenant farmers and the small farm owner to make their maximum contribution to the Food for Victory Program.

We oppose present efforts of the spokesmen of monopoly farm owners to scuttle the work of the Farm Security Administration as a part of the anti-war conspiracy of the reactionary forces at work in Congress in the Department of Agriculture.

7. Labor. One of the strongest forces in support of freedom and opportunity for all people and therefore one of the strongest allies of the Negro people is the organized labor movement in this country. In order to effectively mobilize the American people for victory in the war and full citizenship rights, labor's rights must be safeguarded through:

a. Preservation of the 40 hour week.

b. Full power and authority to the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice.

c. Opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment.

d. Opposition to the Dies Committee, the Hobbs Bill and all other fascist anti-labor legislation.

8. Taxation. The NNC supports a just and equitable program of taxation which is based upon ability to pay.

9. Unequivocal enforcement of the 13, 14, and 15th Amendments to the Constitution. We call for stringent enforcement of the Federal Civil Rights Statutes and demand that the Department of Justice take necessary action to outlaw the Ku Klux Klan, the White Supremacists and other fascists movements.

10. Full and Equal Participation of the Negro People in all phases of the war effort. We call for adequate representation of Negroes in executive positions in all federal government agencies which is designed to destroy protective social legislation for women.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT, RACE LEADERS CONFER

Arthur Creech Jones, the outstanding member of the British Parliament who has stood up for the rights of the African people, met last Tuesday with a group of Negro leaders to exchange view on the whole question of colonies and colonial policy. Mr. Jones, who is a representative of the British Labor Party and is parliamentary private secretary to Mr. Ernest Bevin of the British Cabinet, was accompanied by Colonel Rex Benson of the International Labor Office of the League of Nations. The meeting was arranged by Dr. L. D. Reddick of the New York Public Library and took place in the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of the Library.

Mr. Jones outlined the new developments of British Colonial policy in Africa and the West Indies and held out hope that the constantly expanding progressive sentiment in England would assure the development and welfare of the so-called colonial peoples. However, he did not minimize the difficulties of rooting out vested interests and Churchill conservatism. Neither did he gloss over what he termed the "black spots" in British policy and practice, past and present.

The Negro leaders, who represented several of the weekly newspapers and the large national organizations like the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, The National Urban League, The March-On-Washington-Movement, The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and the YWCA affirmed the interest of Negro Americans in what was taking place in Africa and the West Indies. They thanked Mr. Jones for his efforts in the British Parliament, where he is considered the champion of the cause of the African Colonials.

In the exchange of views there was a show of deep disappointment that British policy, as well as that of the other European nations, had not been specific in outlining the stake of the African peoples in the war against fascism. There was criticism of the failure to promise dominion status and self government to advanced areas in West Africa and in the Indies where a sufficient body of educated colored leadership already exists. There was a general agreement that American opinion should be more active in its constructive criticism of colonial policy in England and elsewhere. In this way the progressive forces would be strengthened.

Among the Negro leaders present were Mr. Roy Wilkins, of the NAACP, editor of the Crisis; Mr. B. F. McLaurin, of the March-on-Washington-Movement and The Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters; Mr. Llewellyn Ransome, of the People's Voice; Mr. A. M. Wendell Malliett of the Amsterdam-Star News; Mrs. C. C. Saunders, of the Harlem YWCA; Mr. Edward Lewis, of the New York Urban League; Mr. Kinsley Moadiwe, of Nigeria, West Africa; Mrs. Dorothy Homer, of the 135th Street Branch of the New York Public Library; Rev. S. H. Sweeney of St. Marks AM E Church; Mr. James E. Allen, of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History; Mrs. John Hope, wife of the late president of Atlanta University; Miss Thyra Edwards, of the People's Voice; Mr. Eugene Gordon, of The Daily Worker; Mr. Charles Granison, of PM; Mr. Angelo Herndon, editor of the Negro Quarterly; Mr. Geo. S. Schuyler, of the Pittsburgh Courier; Mrs. Catherine Latimer; Mrs. Ernestine Anthony; Mrs. Robert Thompson; and Dr. L. D. Reddick, of the New York Public Library, who served as chairman.

'Minister' Testifies in Favor of Biased Restauranteur

Los Angeles can now claim the dubious distinction of having an eligible candidate for the Warren (Hanky Panky) Brown club.

Mrs. Evalynn Blair and Mrs. Eleanor Taylor were suing Joe Cragelo, owner of Cragelo Pharmacy at 1500 East Florence Avenue, for his refusal to serve them at his lunch counter. The case, being heard minus a jury in Div. 21, Judge Frank Tyrrell presiding, was highlighted by the appearance on the witness stand of one Rev. A. L. Glover as witness for the defendant. Decked out in ministerial raiment the bland gospel spreader testified he knew Cragelo for years; that he was "a fine gentleman"; that he had patronized the store for years and had seen Negroes eat at the counter.

Fortunately, efficient Att'y Marshall Denton, jr. representing the plaintiffs, quickly convinced the court Rev. Glover was not even near the establishment on the date the incident happened.

Judge Tyrrell, prior to taking the case under submission, strongly condemned all instances dealing with race discrimination and cited the necessity for immediate abandonment of such vicious un-American practice.

Decision granted $ 50 to each plaintiff and court costs.

(Editor's note: If Cragelo and his African-Methodist Episcopal church crony are at present loss for something to do, we suggest Joe hire Glover as bus boy. He can dry his hands on his bandana.)

ROLAND HAYES TO SING

SAN FRANCISCO — Roland Hayes, the great American tenor, has heard the appeal of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee: Help us to save the anti-Fascist who are still prisoners in North Africa!

"From their ranks came some of the staunchest anti-Fascist fighters the world has ever seen", said the committee. "From their ranks came some of the British Commandos. From their ranks came some of those in the French underground movement. From their ranks came Kosta Nadji, the leader of the true people's movement in Jugoslavia. From their ranks will come the future leadership of Europe. Help us save them now!"

He has offered in this cause his most valuable gift—the gift of his song.

On Tuesday evening, Feb. 9, at the Veteran's Auditorium, Hayes appeared in concert for the benefit of the work of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, presenting music by Schubert, Wolf, Bach and Debussy and a number of spirituals.

Hayes has an understanding of suffering and struggle, for he was born of an ex-slave, and he was farm boy, iron foundry helper, waiter, office boy. He had all his life to fight the restrictions that face a Negro in this country, no matter how great his ability.

Headlines of the past season acclaim his power as a singer. "Roland Hayes Scores in Recital," says the San Francisco News, and speaks of his great artistry. The Boston Evening Transcript speaks of his mastery of style, artistic insight. "Superb Recital," says The Springfield (Massachusetts) Union. "Rich tone, wide range, excellent diction," says The Los Angeles Examiner.

Differentials in Salary Held Unfair

NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—A decree in favor of Dorothy E. Roles and the Newport News Teachers Association in which the court declared that discrimination evidenced in teachers salary discrepancies here is based solely on race and color has been signed by Judge Luther B. Way of the Eastern District Federal Court of Virginia, Oliver W. Hill and Dr. Leon A. Ransom, members of the NAACP legal staff announced this week. The suit was filed on December 24, 1941 against the School Board of the city of Newport News to equalize the salaries of Negro and white teachers.

Dr. Ransom said that this decree was the first to be issued on any of the school teachers' salary cases brought by the NAACP throughout the south in which the judgment was based upon the finding of fact. In all other school teachers' salary cases the school board had themselves eventually agreed to salary increases. The Newport News School Board in defending itself offered as one explanation of the paying of less money to Negro school teachers than to whites the reason that the cost of living of white teachers is substantially greater than that of colored teachers.

WALTER WHITE, NAACP EXECUTIVE, CALLS FOR FEPC INDEPENDENCE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Unless the Fair Employment Practice Committee has the full backing of the government such as was given to the Securities and Exchange Commission and the National Labor Relations Act when they were under fire at their inception, the FEPC can never be of much value," asserted Walter White, Secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People at the John Wesley AME Church here January 29.

"The Committee", White said "must have effective sanctions such as the right to impose money penalties and prison sentences and to hold public hearings when war contract holders, labor unions, or government officials refuse to comply with Executive Order 8802 prohibiting discrimination on account of race, creed, color, or national origin. Whether the Committee members are paid or not is a minor issue in comparison with this more fundamental issue. Even if they were paid munificent salaries they would be just as ineffective as they now are on a voluntary basis unless they are backed unequivocally and given real authority.

"The Committee to date has been unwanted stenchild kicked about from pillar to post whenever the professional bigots saw fit to give it the boot.

"The fundamental needs of the Committee are first, complete independence as an investigatory and corrective agency which should be located in the executive offices of the President with responsibility solely to him as Commander-in-Chief.

"Much more is involved in the decision made on FEPC than the mere existence of this one agency. Its abolition or any status other than full authority will induce a pessimism among minorities, particularly the Negro, which may be disastrous to the winning of the war. Vicious reaction rules Washington today, and a bad case of jitters is affecting hitherto intelligent and courageous officials. When the country awakes to the menace of the Southern Democratic--reactionary Republican bloc, there will be a revolt against those who today are trying to set back the clock. An appropriate emblem for this coalition which menaces all of the social gains of the last decade would be one with bigotry rampant and freedom couchant. This constitutes a menace not alone to the Negro minority, but for all the ideals for which we profess to be fighting this war."

"White concluded," Just as Hitler used Jews as scapegoat to bring the Nazis into power in Germany, so similar forces today are attempting to use the Negro question in the United States. The things the Negro asks of his government are in no wise different from those he has been seeking since the Civil War--the abolition of lynching, disfranchisement, economic and educational discrimination, and the abolition of the casts system based on skin color. If any of these are improper or disloyal for the Negro to ask them, all the announced war aims of the United Nations are a mass of hypocrisies and lies. Not being able to answer these demands, a frenzied effort is being made by the Talmadges, Dixons, Rankins, and Bilbos on the one hand, and the scared Southern ex-liberals on the other to place the blame for "racial tension" on the Negro himself."

'ROCHESTER' IS GUEST OF OHIO GOVERNOR

"Rochester", (Jack Benny's radio team mate) in an unprecedented and probably the most momentous celebration ever given a radio star was held this week in the capital of Ohio, for the Negro showman, Eddie Anderson.

Defying cold weather; a five show day, "Rochester", dropped in the capital to greet the Governor of Ohio, John W. Bricker, after a barrage of photographs by newspaper men, and greetings from the dignified Governor. Standing before a patriotic pageantry,--the flags of all nations, the Governor expressed hope to Mr. Anderson that "Ohio would move into top position in war production by making every added effort to win the war." "Rochester" replied, "My! My!"

From the executive offices "Rochester" was ushered to the House of Representatives. He was escorted to the Speaker's platform at the request of the House Speaker, Hon. William McCulloch, by the three Negro legislators, Dr. Turpeau, of Cincinnati, Chester Gillespie, of Cleveland and Sandy F. Ray, of Columbus, Ohio. After a deafening applause from the House members, the Speaker presented "Rochester" with the gavel to preside. Virtually the first time in al Ohio's history such a democratic act of friendliness to a race or screen star had ever been committed.

Rochester spoke briefly, left a few signatures, then visited the offices of several high state officials and waded through a crowd of state employees who dropped their work for a few moments to pay tribute to Jack Benny's co-star while en route to the theatre.

Charming Mrs. Anderson accompanied her husband on the State House tour.

LOS ANGELES RAILWAY

AN INDUSTRIAL ARMY RIDES TO WORK

★ Day and night, day in and day out, thousands of men and women ride the Los Angeles Railway streetcars and coaches to reach their benches and desks where they are busy turning metals and materials into guns, ammunition, tanks, planes and ships.

The Los Angeles Railway, for the duration, has dedicated every piece of its equipment for primary use for this service to the workers in the war plants, and has extended every effort to make this service as dependable and as comfortable as possible.

The Los Angeles Railway has the streetcars and the coaches to meet most of the demands. It lacks only the necessary man power to keep the equipment on the streets, because so many of its former employees have entered the armed services or have shifted to other essential industries.

MEN WANTED

Immediate employment is offered for men to work as Motormen, Conductors or Mechanics' Helpers. This is an essential industry which offers work after the emergency. No experience necessary. Your wages start while you're learning.

WOMEN WANTED

Positions are now open to women to work as Conductorettes on streetcars. Good wages right from the start. Exceptionally good working conditions.

This is a genuine opportunity to help in the war effort.

*Applications are being accepted at the Los Angeles Railway Building, 1038 South Broadway, Monday through Friday, between 8:30 and 4.00.

If you yourself are not interested in this offer please tell your friends that good jobs for both men and women are now open in almost every branch of our train service.

Servicemen in Homes Brings Change in Technique of Hostesses

OAKLAND, Feb. 10.—With thousands of men of our armed forces being entertained in American homes, the ordinary usages of hospitality are being revised to meet new conditions, according to George F. Hamilton, West Coast USO regional director.

Through the offices of the 1200 USO clubs and units throughout the country arrangements are made for upwards of 100,000 service men to be entertained each month in private homes.

"Entertainment of service men in the home is bringing wide changes to the usual practices of home hospitality," Hamilton said.

"For instance, ordinarily the good hostess knows she can create interest among her guests by discussing subjects which are akin to their business or profession. This is not true with servicemen. In the first place, they are not permitted to talk of their duties, and in the second place when off duty, they are not anxious to talk of the war.

"Under normal conditions a hostess never expects her guests to participate in the affairs of the household, but servicemen enjoy such privileges. Some of them even like to go into the kitchen and others enjoy fixing that loose electric connection or even working on repair of the furniture. The servicemen who are invited into a home likes to do in the home those things they did in their own homes.

"Good hostesses often like to provide 'lions' for their parties, usually some celebrity or interesting personality. This particular peacetime custom doesn't necessarily make the party better. The man who has just returned with a convoy from Murmansk is not much impressed by local celebrities; he prefers home folks.

"Subtle organization of the guest's activities after dinner has been practiced by many hostesses in the past, but the serviceman is apt to shudder at the slightest suggestion of being organized into a bridge game. He gets plenty of organization while on duty and when off duty likes to follow his own inclinations.

"The best rule for the hostess of servicemen is to open her home and say, 'Men, here it is—make it your home while you're here and do what you would do if you were in your own home'."

And this is what we do at the DeFremery USO club. Only last week a fellow repaired our juke box. Some enjoy addressing invitations, decorating the place for our dances, designing card signs, building book shelves, painting a kitchen chair or sawing up the wood in the cellar. You've just got to let a fellow find the thing that interests him and let him go to it.

Birthday Inspires Business Drive at Golden State

Announcing $360,228 of new business as the results of its first 1943 production drive, the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company report shows that its agents continue in every contest to exceed all past performances, changing conditions notwithstanding.

This latest drive was known as the President's Birthday celebration in honor of President William Nickerson jr., and covered 12 days of intense solicitation that resulted in the surprise birthday gift being presented to the insurance executive at a special meeting held Jan. 26.

Like other drives and contests for the past 12-month period the competition created a new set of increased figures. Underwriter Alvin D. Nurse of the San Francisco district, led all of the Golden State Mutual agents, writing $18,760 in insurance as his contribution to Nickerson's birthday celebration. The amount was over a 100 percent increase over the turn in of last year's top producer.

Los Angeles district No. 111, Milton Alleyne superintendent, registered a $46,033 total for the 12-day drive compared with last year's leading district that amassed $32,215 worth of business over a 10-day period.

The San Francisco district, J. F. Curry, superintendent, was a close runner-up with a fine $45,325 total accounted for. Anton Perry, of Los Angeles district No. 113, was the second largest individual producer, his solicitation accounting for $16,705.

Jolly Twelve Matrons Club Holds Session

The Jolly Twelve Matrons club met on Sunday, Jan. 17, at 2 p. m., at the home of Sister La Gulia Shaw as hostess.

It was the close of their third year as a club and the election of officers also took place.

The home was beautifully decorated with artistically arranged flowers throughout the house.

Every member was enthused over the year's first meeting. Members had an interesting time listening to the yearly reports from the efficient secretary and treasurer and all committees. They found their club prosperous and progressive and members responded with eager determination to continue.

The presence of G. W. M. Sister Vivian Marsh of Berkeley was a pleasurable surprise. Business was temporarily stopped to accord her courtesy.

Following business, election of officers took place. President Sister Ossia L. Harrison graciously asked the grand matron to conduct the election. After warm words of encouragement from the latter, proceedings went on. It was unanimously voted and carried that all officers be retained in office another year.

The retiring address of the president followed. It was most interesting and far-reaching in scope. A nice, useful gift purchased by Sister Gabrella Farley and presented to the vice president, Sister Harrison, by Sister E. Jones, was a gift from the club.

After adjournment and the Mizpah, it was announced the next meeting will be held at the home of Sister Frankie Bowdoin on S. Harvard.

Guests arrived later, and the house was filled rapidly. The occasion developed into a surprise anniversary party for the club given by Sister Shaw. Tables for the 30 guests were set up artistically, and delicacies followed.

Honor guests were grand worthy matron, Sister Vivian Marsh, the 1943 Matrons, and Past Matrons Arena Maddock, Geraldine Johnson and Olivia Van Meter, all of Deborah chapter.

After enjoying a three-course luncheon, dessert was served. On the specially baked cake was the inscription, "Jolly Twelve," and three candles. The cake was placed before the president, who cut and served it.

During lunch G. W. M. Sister Marsh made most interesting remarks, as did other guests, all of which was responded to by club members.

As the banner for 1943 of the OES is held high, everyone is sincere to help and encourage and wish the 1943 Matrons everything fine and lofty.

Everyone agrees Sister Shaw is a splendid hostess.

Paths Cross for First Time in 15 Years at Oakland USO

Private First Class James W. Fenderson met his cousin, Milton Jones, at the DeFremery USO in Oakland, Calif. after an absence of fifteen years. They had attended the P. M. Moore High School in Elizabeth City, N. C. for over nine years. Over fifteen years ago they separated and had not heard from each other until they met by chance at the USO. There as a dance there that night, and both Anderson of the Army and Jones of the Navy went.

Jones, a resident of Elizabeth City, N. C., had entered the Navy several years ago and Fenderson, a resident of 906 Edmondson Avenue, Baltimore, Md., was inducted into the army a short time ago from the city of Baldwin. Fenderson is an only son of Mrs. William Pallin, who has since remarried.

Twenty-six Junior Hostesses and six chaperones, helped the Del Monte Avenue USO at Monteray to celebrate their firts anniversary on Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 25-24.

They received a hearty welcome from soldiers and speedily dressed in formals and danced to hot music from an orchestra pit enclosed in a bower of roses. Frappe and cookies were served.

The girls spent the night at Ocean View hotel, then to Fort Ord where Co. B. 256 Q. M. gave the afternoon dance in the recreation hall which was attractively decorated in red, white, and blue color scheme. Balloons of varied colors were suspended from the ceiling. The orchestra pit was decorated with red, white, and blue crepe paper arranged in a pleasing effect.

On a table in front of the orchestra pit, were two vases of beautiful red roses. During the dance, each hostess in the house was given a rose.

After dance, supper was served in the mess hall. Some of the boys ate with the girls, very cheerful and informal.

During the last week voice recording continued to dominate the activities at the DeFremery Club. The fellows get a great kick out of hearing their own voices. They are seldom satisfied with one recording they always want to improve on it; and they usually do.

Sunday night, the USO Mobile service brought us a real movie for the entertainment of the boys. You can imagine they joy at seeing "Too Many Blondes." There was a large attendance of both soldiers and sailors.

GOOD NEWS

The club was informed that the contractor has received approval of its application for priorities, and that actual renovations have in progress in a very few days. "When the renovations have been completed," said the director, "the club will be able to render greater services to the men. Showers, shaving and pressing facilities, so greatly needed will be provided for. And there will be dormitory space for sleeping facilities. If you could see a service man scrubbing his underwear on a concrete floor and pressing his trousers by placing them under his mattress and sleeping on them, more of our hearts would be moved to help and we might be encouraged to send over a washboard or two, and an electric iron and a few of dad's old razors. I feel sure the servicemen's friends in this area will go 'all out' for the boys."

Poinsettia Club in Bridge-Supper Meet

Poinsetta Club met Sunday, Jan. 17 at the home of Mrs. Robbie Brownlee. Bridge followed buffet supper. Prizes went to Helen Jackson, Sadie Fields, guest prize tto Willie Lee Wright, Lessie Madison shared guest honors, both she and Mrs. Wright being guests of the hostess. Next club hostesss will be Sadie Fields, who will entertain at the Clark Hotel's Blue Room.

Mrs. Bass, publisher of the California Eagle, is well known for her activities in national and civic affairs, and has established a splendid reputation as a forceful speaker.

This forum wil take place at the Victory Youth Centre, 1546 West Jefferson Blvd. Everyone is welcome.

YMCA Gives Annual Kick-off Dinner

Marking the start of the annual membership campaign for 1943, committee members of the YMC 9 gave their dinner at the "Y" Monday night. Originally planned for a downtown cafe, food scarcity made it necessary for the combined branches of the organizations to give their annual dinner within their own neighborhoods.

This campaign promises to be one of the group's best efforts, spurred by the ambitious words of Mr. Harold Prince, new incoming secretary. Report nights will be limited to one a week during the effort to enroll new memberships.

Three hundred guests bidden by the hostesses called and were received at the door by Mrs. Echo Robinson, Grand Ruth; registered by Mrs. Willa Cowans, Grand Chairman of Jurisprudence, introduced by Mrs. Josephine Cummings, Grand Conductress, and served by Mesdames Martha City, Grand Treasurer and La Gulia Shaw, Deputy Grand Lecturer, assisted by Mrs. Mary Kitt, P. Matron, and Mrs. M Carter, Warder of Electa Chapter.

The members and officers of the club formed a beautiful and entrancing picture as they stood in their receiving line greeting their guests. Each was attired in a flowing white evening gown, wearing red velvet bows in their hair and holding exquisite large, white daintily trimmed handkerchiefs. The guests were first introduced to Mrs. Vivian Osborne-Marsh, club reporter, then to Mesdames Ruth Williams, club advisor; Marie Sheffield, secretary; Peggy Hunt, treasurer; Claribell Ashcraft, chaplain; Izetta Allen, president, and Amanda Bond, club mother. Mrs. Beulah Johnson, vice-president, was absent due to illness.

Dainty refreshments of chicken salad, cheese puffs, sandwiches, coffee, tea, mints, nuts and cookies were served with club monogramed napkins. Mrs. Cullie Hubert presided at the piano. The hundreds of guests, who called, rated this affair as the most outstanding social event of the new year.

rinity Baptist Has ecord Year

The annual meeting of the nity Baptist church, 3500 So. rmandie, Dr. J. L. Caston, pas- which was held last Thurs- night, revealed that the rch had the banner year of its tory last year.

There were 183 additions to church, bringing its member- p up to 917, which is a mem- rship increase of 600% during 7-year pastorate of Dr. Cas-

The income of the church was 000 over last year's record to- and the treasurer repored a lance in the treasury of $1,000 cash and government bonds.

During the year, the church aid off its mortgage and fin- hed paying for its organ nd plans are laid for a $20,- 00 budget this year. Ten housand dollars of this will e set aside for their building nd and $1,000 for missions.

The meeting was one of the ost harmonious and delightful er held, according to Gus mith and Paul H. Cassell, airmen of the deacon and ustee boards, respectively.

ESTIMONIAL BANQUET

The testimonial banquet to be ven in honor of the pastor, at hich time an oil portrait of the inister will be unveiled, will ke on the nature of an all- hurch celebration with all of e boards and other groups par- icipating.

St. Paul Marches on Under Banner of the Holy Ghost

PASTOR S. A. WILLIAMS

Sunday, Feb. 7th was a big day in St. Paul, we launched our pledge system, for the $40.000 drive, we were greatly inspired by the financial showing made, when several thousand dollars were pledged and more than $2.000 collected; we have every reason to believe that we will have a decisive success and vic- tory in our effort.

It is conclusive that the people have a mind to work, for the pledges ran from $25 up to $500 per individual.

At the evening service pastor Williams was the speaker, he preached a demonstrative ser- mon, from the subject, "Prayer with three legs", or phases, name- ly: Prayer is a--Reality; Prayer is a—Power; Prayer—Changes Things.

He very aptly compared pray- er with the wind, in that it, al- though being a reality, cannot be seen, yet we in many ways can see the results of it; we can see it in the uprooted trees, in over- turned buildings, in the tossing of ships at sea, and in many other ways did he demonstrate the re- sults of the wind that are visible, he also explained the purifying properties of the wind where-in it clears the air of various in- sects, that would become un- bearable were it not for the power of the wind.

He dealt extensively on the properties of prayer, in its action in the lives of men, comparable to the action of the wind on the physical angle of life, he demon- strated by example, how prayer had reacted on him, by cleans- ing from Vice, of all kinds some of which were, chewing smok- ing, drinking, card playing, gamb- ing in its various forms, dancing, and lust.

Pastor Williams in demonstrat- ing his sermon on prayer, used in the pulpit dice, cards, whisky, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, full evening dress and two beautiful young women. The congregation was excited, bewildered and amazed from the beginning to the end.

Many favorable comments have been made on the sermon, which is proof that men can appreciate modern sermons in our group, as well as those offered by the oth- er group.

Next Sunday, Feb. 14th the ser- vices will be under the auspices of the two churches, i. e. Bethany Chapel and Olive Temple will be preaching from the subject "More and More" at the same hour. El- der B. C. Cook of Bethany Chapel will be preaching, from the sub- ject "The People Had A Mind to Work." The public is cordially in- vited to attend the services in the church of your choice, and hear the gospel expounded by these two young preachers who are imbued with outstanding preach- ing profundity.

S. A. Williams, pastor; S. E. Buxton, reporter.

Independent Church to Honor Pastor

With the community being in vited to join in the celebration Sunday, Feb. 14, will mark th. celebration of the 7th anniver- sary of Rev. Clayton D. Russell as pastor of People's Indepen- dent Church of Christ.

The official board, with E. J. Porter, chairman, has outlined a fitting program with representa- tion from various religious, civic, and business organizations.

Among the speakers will be Supervisor Gordon M. McDon- ough, L. G. Robinson, Atty. Cris- pus Wright, Mrs. Charlotta Bass, Rev. S. A. Williams, Dr. P. P. Cobbs, and representatives from the labor unions, Mr. Conley.

The choir of the church will bring musical selections togeth- er with guest artists.

Atty. David Williams will serve as master of ceremonies, and Dr. M. C. Cooley will rep- resent the church. The mass testimonial will be held in the auditorium of the church, Sun- day afternoon, Feb. 14, 4:00 o'- lock.

As a tangible expression we ve set a goal of $1000 to be resented to this fearless leader nd minister. We invite you to come nd assist in realizing this amount. Special envelopes will be furnished for your love offer- ing.

CASABLANCA CONFERENCE

However divergent the opinions of people, newspapers and commentators on the Casablanca Conference which blared forth in the headlines last week, the good aspects of the affair are several. The showmanship displayed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in flying to North Africa in the teeth of Axis espionage definitely gave Berlin the jitters. It was stealing Hitler's thunder with a vengeance Furthermore the Allied showmanship was better done and was not based on personal bluster. It had sound political motives. We only regret the fact that no supreme war council came to pass, that the Chinese and Russian Allies had no personal part in the Anglo-American-Free French proceedings. But the inference that much may be brewing behind the words "Unconditional Surrender" that will forward an earlier Allied victory, can safely be drawn. Political understandings will always be better than the drawn sword. Europe used to be able to blunt our purposes with subtler and subtler statesmanship. We were diplomatically a young country. Now we are growing up and learning the value of meeting fire with fire both literally and figuratively.

MACARTHUR WORKS

General Douglas MacArthur observed his 63rd birthday last week, celebrating it by working hard at Allied Headquarters in Australia. Just back from his successful campaign in Papua, he appeared in excellent health. Last year, he spent his birthday in a tunnel on Corregidor, following the defeat in the Philippines. His times are looking up.

FUEL OIL

The Council of State Governments was told last week that the time is not far distant when fuel oil will be rationed throughout the country. The submarine warfare has taken deadly aim at our tankers on both coasts, and the shortage may spread rationing to our own West Coast. In the 30-state rationing area, a 50-gallon sale of fuel oil for emergency purposes has been authorized even without coupons. Such a plan will make many feel safer—but the oil will be deducted from future coupons. The Council was given a fairly gloomy picture of the future of gasoline, as well a picture which might well place California under the same stress of circumstances which has banned all pleasure driving in the East. In our State, such stress could be serious indeed, where motor transportation constitutes the lifeline of the war production industries and where 1,863 communities depend entirely on gas and tires to keep their contacts with the rest of the world. Los Angeles has the largest square mileage area of any city in the United States with 450 square miles to its credit. Our thousand mile long coast line of itself means a special problem in distances to cover. The Council was told that the Pacific Coast situation could become worse because of military demands, in addition to the needs of farm and war production to keep the highway carriers moving in the interests of the war effort.

AMERICA BOMBS

"It's a cinch bombing Germany," declared crew members of the American large scale attack on the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven. This was the first all-American blow at Germany proper, struck last week. At the same time, RAF flyers bombed Copenhagen, Denmark, aiming for the shipyards of the Danish capital now working for Germany. That night, bombers struck at Lorient and Bordeaux, on the south French coast. Both at Wilhelmshaven, where the Americans struck, and at Copenhagen where the English worked, the aim was one—the submarine building that has worked such havoc for our supply lines, downed so many oil tankers.

CHINA VIEWS

The Chinese have now been at war with Japan since 1937. Japan is entrenched in Asia, from Manchuria to Burma, as a continental power, and it will take a continental offensive to oust her. Fortunately long stretches of the Chinese coast are in the possession of Chinese guerilla forces. These areas, though blockaded by the Japanese navy, remain potential bases for air and sea attack against Japan. When sufficient Allied aid can reach China, she will throw her millions of men and years of Jap-fighting experience into recapture of the Burma Road. General MacArthur spoke recently of the possibility of massive co-ordinated air and land attacks rather than a slower "island-by-island" conquest. More attention to the Pacific theatre is discernible since the Casablanca Conference.

HONOR ROLL POLL IN RACE RELATIONS IS BROADCAST

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The results of the nationwide poll for the honor roll in race relations was announced Sunday, Feb. 7, over the Columbia Broadcasting System, coast-to-coast hookup. "Wings Over Jordan" program.

At the same time the list of the 18 Americans, Negro and white, who have done the most for the achievement of full rights and recognition for the Negro will be released to the daily and weekly press.

Each year the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of the New York Public library conducts this poll. The announcement, to be made by L. D. Reddick was a feature of Negro History Week which began Feb. 7.

WEST COAST USO DIRECTORS CONFER

Front row: Thomas Jackson, Tucson, Ariz.; Cornelia Branch, Temple, Tex.; J. C. Thomas Oakland; Grace Logan, Monterey; Willard McCleary, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.; William H. Payne, San Diego; T. Lloyd Hickman, San Bernardino.

Top row: Jefferson A. Beaver, San Francisco; Jefferson B. Brown, San Luis Obispo; W. Burdette Hockaday, Portland, Ore.; James E. Stratton, area director, West coast; M. Alfred McNeil jr., Pittsburg; Ray L. Vaughn, Tacoma, Wash; Nathaniel George, Monterey; L. H. Spivery, Houston, Texas.

James E. Stratten, West coast area director for special services, and 14 directors were among the 178 USO delegates attending the recent Western Area Conference Army and Navy YMCA at Santa Cruz.

This second annual conference brought together delegates from the principal western and southern states of the union, with a view of further training, and the exchanging of experiences of the various directors in their particular fields.

These directors have a very vital part in ths gigantic program of bringing wholesome recreational and relaxation conveniences to the servicemen and women in the armed forces. In many communities the industrial workers are embraced within the program.

The four-day conference was instructive and offered a bit of needed relaxation and pleasure from the exacting duties of a director. They are rendering a very necessary, vital and satisfactory service.

Clark, chairman of the Trustee Board, and William Baker, secretary-treasurer of the Building Fund, were photographed during the presentation of the $10,000 of U. S. War Bonds to the church ceremony.

MT. ZION BAPTIST CHURCH BUYS $10,000 OF U. S. WAR BONDS

BATON ROUGE, La.—One of the greatest patriotic gestures made by any religious institution in America was carried out on Sunday morning, January 31, at the Mt. Zion Baptist church here. Dr. J. S. Clark, President Emeritus of Southern University and recently elected director of a state correctional institution for Negro boys, and chairman of the trustee board presented Rev. Gardner C. Taylor, pastor of the Mt. Zion Baptist church, with a $10,000 U. S. War Bond in behalf of the church congregation.

In making the presentation Dr Clark said (1) This is a measure of our faith and our ability, not only to do things that would help the church but America in the winning of the war. (2) It is an evidence of our confidence in Christianity and in a larger program for America. (3) It is a demonstration of our patriotism The Negro has always been patriotic in war and in peace. (4) It is a measure of our loyalty. No one needs to doubt the loyalty of the Negro because, his loyalty has been proven in every war.

Rev. Gardner C. Taylor in behalf of the church congregation said that he recognized the untold sacrifices that had been made in accumulating the $10,000 to build a church, but he also recognized the devastating war that America is engaged in, and the responsibility and sacrifices that every loyal American must make on the home front in the successful prosecution of the war effort. Therfore, it is his hope that the action taken by the Mt. Zion Baptist Church membership will inspire other church groups to do likewise. Messrs. John Taylor, chairman of the deacon board and William Baker, secretary-treasurer of the building fund assisted Dr. Clark in the purchase of the U. S. War Bond. Mr. Baker has served in this capacity for several years, faithfully.

WHERE ARE YOUR PRISONERS?

By HARRY LEVETTE

'Private Jackson reporting, sir. Sergeant told me to bring on in.
Six of the Nazi prisoners, sir, and I tried to sure as sin.
But Captain here are their helmets all;
Their bodies are back of that old stone wall;
But I just couldn't stand the names they'd call
And laugh it off with a grin.

"They called me 'black swatsi devil'; demanded I let them go;
Tried to tell me that back home I have no rights; then tried to jive me, you know.
Said Der Fuehrer would win and treat me fine,
But when they tried to grab my gun, the swine,
So I had to lay them low."

"I am sorry but we are not allowed to play requests", Horace Willard, CBS Negro technician, solemnly states in this photo.

HORACE WILLARD FULL-FLEDGED CBS TRANSCRIPTION OPERATOR

For years Horace Willard has been known in Hollywood radio circles as the young Negro janitor, actor, writer, employed at the CBS-KNX studios in Columbia Square as a maintenance man during most of the daylight hours, and carrying on his acting and writing during his off-hours.

Starting a few months ago he dropped the "janitor" part of his description, for Willard has been promoted to transcription operator, handling the "swing shift" in the transcription department.

Willard, now 28 years old, has been at the KNX Studios in Hollywood for the past seven years. He has done just about everything in radio. A member of the KNX-CBS Hollywood Radio Workshop Group, he once wrote, produced and started in a transcontinental show titled "One Way To Glory" and presented as one of a series of "Young Ideas" programs.

As a professional actor he has appeared on such famous radio programs as the Lux "Radio Theatre" with Wallace Berry, Marjorie Rambeau; on "Big Town" with Edward G. Robinson, "Silver Theatre" with Adolph Menjou and Veree Teasdale, "Screen Guild Theatre", "Amos 'n Andy" and many others. But the show Willard says he enjoyed doing most was the heroic episodes from the life of seaman Charles J. French who swam seven miles towing a life raft with eleven of his comrades aboard. This program was broadcast over NBC's "It Happened in The Service." During recent weeks he has appeared on several War Department programs, such as "Mail Call", "Jubilee" and others. These shows are recorded and broadcasted at a convenient time for service men over seas they are not heard in this country.

Willard's new job as transcription operator comes under the production department at the CBS-KNX studios, making him the first Negro, to our knowledge, to hold a staff radio production job. He goes on duty shortly after midnight and remains until the early morning "live programs" go on the air.

When the "swingshifters" from the hundreds of Pacific Coast plants, driving to and from their work, turn on their car radios—it'll be Willard who handles the transcriptions they hear. The job depends on splitsecond timing between Willard, handling the record programs, and an announcer making the announcements.

Getting back to Willard's off-hour chores, he's still handling his own class in radio acting and production at the "Music Town" establishment in West Los Angeles, still trying his hand at writing plays and only recently completed an extension course in radio dramatics through the University of California at Los Angeles. Yeah—he's kinda busy!

"The preparations of the heart in man, and the answer of the tongue, is from the Lord." — Proverbs 16:1.

The Capital Plots; The People Answer!

Behind the doors of a dozen smoke-filled hotel rooms in the nation's capital this week the most dangerous enemies of the United Nations conspire.

They are the enemies from within, the Fifth Column.

they are the "distinguished legisators" heralded far and wide by the William Randolph Hearst press.

They are poll taxers, elected by fraud. They are reactionary Republicans from the North, elected by corrupt political machines, by base demagogy.

Their program is the defeat of the United Nations and the People's War, because the future of that war involves the unleashing of vast people's movements, on every continent of our earth, which will inevitably sweep aside the rotten structure of imperialist exploitation, of race-hatred, of religious bigotry, which to our appeasers represent all that is worth saving in the world.

The conspirators, poll taxers and reactionary Republicans, possess immense legal power. They stand astride the Congress of the United States spewing a vile stream of defeatist propaganda in which they hope to drown America's war effort.

Hiding behind a false "patriotism" front, the conspirators aim at dismantling every program necessary to the conduct of all-out warfare.

They wish to destroy the brave outlines of industrial democracy which had become visible to the nation's vast minorities through operation of the President's Fair Employment Practice Committee. For without the employment of every hand and mind in America at the job for which it is best fitted, our battle of production shall be lost.

They wish to destroy the mounting wave of national unity which has swept aside huge barriers of race hatred throughout America.

They wish to undermine the fighting morale of huge sections of our population, hoping to raise among them the suicidal slogan, "What are we fighting for, anyway?"

The final, shattering blow from these errand boys of fascist America would be negotiated peace with Hitler,—or as that billious buzzard of appeasement, Herbert Hoover, terms it, "conditional peace."—a refutation of the people's war and its principles, a world-wide solidification of the imperialist ruling classes: open floodgates of anti-semitism, race-hatred, and red-baiting.

This is the program of American reaction. It is no pipe dream. It is a reality which threatens every man, woman and child in the nation.

Witness American reaction's record during the past several weeks. The Fair Employment Practice Committee, bulwark of unbiased, unlimited war production, has been killed. Martin Dies, elected by less than ten thousand people from a disfranchised Texas poll tax district, can stand in the U. S. Congress and dictate the discharge of responsible Federal employees at will. The Hearst press blatantly announces that "Republicans and conservative Democrats" intend to take back the reins of government from the President. Poll taxers have packed every ranking committee in both Houses. The army has retreated from its unsegregated officers training program.

These are hard facts.

They are a challenge to all America. Just as it is true that reaction rides rough-shod at Washington, it is also true that the American people are an anti-fascist fighting force determined to destroy the Axis, militarily, economically and politically, and ready to sweep aside the den of conspirators which would block them from this path.

In the forefront of this American nation, once again, as in the epic period of Lincoln, Negro-America stands. Nerves taut, instinctively attuned to the nature of the national danger, Negro Americans from coast to coast are militantly organizing to smite the enemy from within. No other rank-and-file segment of the national life is so keenly conscious of the threat to our country.

In Los Angeles, the Negro Victory Committee, triumphant organization of our vast industrial population, sounds the clarion call. Within three weeks, the Victory Committee plans a five-county conference of Southern California minority groups, labor bodies, and progressive organizations to consider forceful, joint action against the Washington conspirators.

Fifteen hundred enthusiastic Victory Committee members gathered Sunday nite at People's Independent Church of Christ —shouted the impassioned cry of alarm to the Americans of the Southland, challenging them to the fulfillment of those historic tasks which rest at our hands.

Every Congressman from the five counties of the Southland will know of the mass action of our Victory Committee. Its conference of all win-the-war groups, labor, church, business, Mexicans, Negroes white people: Americans,—will determine a fighting program of mass action that will mold great links in the chain which must bind fascist America in submission to the necessities of a people's war.

Support the Red Cross

Somewhere on a battlefield in this world the life of a young soldier you know has been saved because of the Red Cross.

Somewhere the self-sacrificing, truly noble service of Red Cross doctors and nurses is saving the lives of men who preserve the future and the freedom of mankind.

Have you contributed blood to the Red Cross blood bank? If not, do so, Now. There is a great need for these contributions. They should need no sales talk.

Surely, we at home can give our blood through transfusion when we remember that those abroad give theirs through pain and suffering.

A drop of blood flowing in your own body this minute may save the life of a soldier thousands of miles away fighting your war.

GIVE NOW TO THE RED CROSS!

Trouble at Calship

The effort to railroad Negro workers at Calship yards into a Jim-Crow Negro union run by the Boilermakers AFL outfit and a curious band of Negro stooges should be militantly resisted by this community.

Despite the fact that this pussyfooting Jim Crowism has been put over in San Francisco and Portland is no argument whatsoever that we of Los Angeles, the vanguard of the West's labor movement, must also submit.

The Boilermakers union is not only out of step with the times. It is out of step with prevailing democratic tendencies of the AFL. At Lockheed aircraft, the International Association of Machinists is sponsoring a national referedum to secure integration of Negro workers inthe union. The AFL Street Car Workers union has fought side-by-side with the Negro community to secure employment of qualified colored labor by the Los Angeles Railway Company. What's more, a convention at Birmingham, Ala., where representatives of 300,000 Southern AFL workers gathered last week denounced segregation and discrimination, declaring:

"The CIO took the Negroes in and made us like it. Now we'll take the Negroes in and make everybody like it!"

Los Angeles Boilermakers had better get in step!

Dark Laughter . . . . BY OL HARRINGTON

"MY FRIEND BOOTSIE DREAMED HE WAS A CAPTAIN. HE WANTS TO BE EXAMINED TO FIND OUT IF THERE IS ANYTHING WRONG."

FREDERICK DOUGLASS PAYS A VISIT TO THE PRESIDENT

ANDREW JOHNSON

WHY NEGROES SHOULD FIGHT METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S MUCH-DISCUSSED FILM, "TENNESSEE JOHNSON"

On February 7, 1866, a delegation of Negro leaders from various states came to Washington. Their purpose was to urge the interests of their newly freed people before the government. Specifically, they came to secure voting rights for Negroes. Without the franchise, they believed, freedom is delusive. As the most distinguished member of the delegation, Frederick Douglass, put it in his autobiography, "The liberties of the American people were dependent upon the ballot box, the jury box, and the cartridge box".

And so they came to Washington, ten men besides Douglass. The Great Emancipator had been assassinated the year before, and they must now deal with the new President from Tennessee. Up to February 7, as Douglass later observed, the country was not fully aware of Johnson's intentions and policy with respect to Reconstruction, particularly as it affected the Negro people. The whole world waited anxiously for a clear declaration that would show whether Johnson was to fulfill the democratic aspirations of the Civil War or frustrate the principles for which so many hundreds of thousands in the Union had fought and bled.

A momentous occasion, therefore, this interview between the colored delegation and Johnson, a possible turning point in American history.

After an exchange of greetings, George T. Downing presented the views of his colleagues: "It is our desire for you to know that we come feeling that we are friends meeting a friend . . . We come to you in the name of the colored people of the United States. We are delegated to come by some who have unjustly worn iron manacles on their bodies—by some whose minds have been manacled by class legislation in states called free."

The Negroes of this country, continued the spokesman, are not satisfied with an amendment prohibiting slavery. This amendment must be enforced with appropriate legislation: the right to vote. "We respectfully submit", said Downing, "that rendering anything else than this will be rendering to us less than our just due; that granting anything less than our full rights will be a disregard of our just rights and of due respect for our feelings."

A speech modest, respectful, but firm. And when Downing concludes, Frederick Douglass steps forward and addresses the President. He has no set speech for the occasion, he explains, merely some observations that express the feelings of the delegates and the millions they represent: "Your noble and humane predecessor placed in our hands the sword to assist in saving the nation, and we do hope that you, his able successor, will favorably regard the placing in our hands the ballot with which to save ourselves. We shall submit no argument on that point. The fact that we are the subjects of government, and subject to taxation, subject to volunteer in the service of the country, subject to be drafted, subject to bear burdens of the State, make it not improper that we should ask to share the privileges of this condition."

Again a talk that is modest, respectful, but firm.

Will Johnson's answer be in the same vein? Will he live up to his "noble and humane predecessor?"

The President begins. "I am a friend of humanity," he announces, "and especially the friend of the colored man." With virtuous emphasis he tells the delegates that he has given up everything for the colored man: "I have owned slaves and bought slaves, but I never sold one." (The President does not indicate how this proves he is a friend of the colored people.) ". . . I have been their slave instead of their being mine." (The President does not explain this cryptic remark.) But —and this is the first of endless but's—"I do not like to be arraigned by some who can get up handsomely-rounded periods and deal in rhetoric, and talk about abstract ideas of liberty, who never periled life, liberty, or property."

This is beginning to sound ominous. Did not Garrison risk his life when he defied the broadcloth mob that dragged him with a rope through the streets of Boston? Did not Wendell Phillips sacrifice his high social position and his law career? Lovejoy had lost his life at Alton, and Birney his newspaper at Cincinnati, and Follen his job at Harvard. And John Brown at Harper's Ferry? Denmark Vesey, Nat Turner, Frederick Douglass himself? And Sumner caned into unconsciousness on the Senate floor by Brooks of South Carolina? "Abstract ideas . . . never periled."?

Let us be practical, the President goes on, continuing a harangue which, as Douglass later noted, was a lengthy set speech clearly intended for the morning papers rather than for the delegation. It's all very well to talk about "the Declaration of Independence and equality under the law." I repeat, I am against slavery, but—but to give Negroes the vote would result in a "contest between the races" and "extermination". Besides, "let us look each other in the face," suppose we give the Negroes the vote tomorrow, "how much would that ameliorate their condition at this time?"

As the stenographer notes in a bracket, Johnson now approaches very near to Mr. Douglass, who tries to speak: "Mr. President, do you wish—" But Johnson holds the floor. And then with staggering ignorance for a friend of the colored man he asked the slave-born Douglass:

"Have you ever lived upon a plantation?"

"I have, your excellency."

"When you would look over and see a man who had a large family, struggling hard upon a poor piece of land, you thought a great deal less of him than you did of your own Master's Negro, didn't you?"

"Not I!" Douglass exclaims.

The discussion goes on in this manner, with Johnson shifting, weaving, cutting off answers to arguments that he has provoked. He now begins to explain that after all majority rule is majority rule, and the people of the South do not want the Negroes to vote.

"Do you deny," asks Johnson, "that first great principle of the right of the people to govern themselves? Will you resort to an arbitrary power, and say a majority of the people shall receive a state of things they are opposed to?"

Douglass reminds the Republican President that this was just what the pro-slavery Democrats said before the war.

"I am now talking about a principle; not what somebody else said," Johnson barks.

At this point Mr. Downing interposes with a sentence meriting immortality:

"Apply what you have said, Mr. President, to South Carolina, for instance, where a majority of the inhabitants are colored."

And Tennessee Johnson, by a miracle of strategical evasion, begins to talk of Ohio! "Each community is better prepared to determine the depositary of its political power than anybody else, and it is for the Legislature, for the people of Ohio to say who shall vote and not for the Congress of the United States."

"Is there anything wrong or unfair in that?"

And Douglass, "smiling," as the stenographer reports: "A great deal that is wrong, Mr. President."

Johnson keeps repeating: "God knows I have no desire but the good of the whole human race . . God knows that anything I can do I will do." But Douglass, Downing, and the others are not impressed by these global affirmations.

Douglass turns to the delegates. It is clear that the President has taken strong grounds in favor of a policy opposed to theirs. He does not trust his own ability to change Johnson's mind. "But," turning to the President again, "if your excellency will be pleased to hear, I would like to say a word or two in regard to that one matter of the enfranchisement of the blacks as a means of preventing the very thing which your excellency seems to apprehend—that is a conflict of races."

Johnson curtly turns down this request, and the interview ends as follows:

Johnson: "I think you will find, so far as the South is concerned, that if you will all inculcate there the idea in connection with the one you urge, that the colored people can live and advance in civilization to better advantage elsewhere than crowded right down there in the South, it would be better for them."

Douglass: "But the masters have the making of the laws, and we cannot get away from the plantation."

Johnson: "What prevents you?"

Douglass: "We have not the single right of locomotion through the southern states now."

Johnson: "Why not? The government furnishes you with every facility."

Douglass: "There are six days in the year that the Negro is free in the South now, and his master then decides for him where he shall go, where he shall work, how much he shall work—in fact, he is divested of all political power. He is absolutely in the hands of those men."

Johnson: "If the master now controls him or his action, would he not control him in his vote?"

Douglass: "Let the Negro vote once understand that he has an organic right to vote, and he will raise up a party in the southern states among the poor, who will rally with him. There is this conflict that you speak of between the wealthy slaveholder and the man."

Johnson: "You touch right upon the point there. There is this conflict, and hence I suggest emigration. If he cannot get employment in the South, he has it in his power to go where he can get it." (Has he or hasn't he been listening to Douglass?)

So this is what it has come to: emigration! The Pharaohs: emigration. Hitler: emigration. Johnson: emigration.

Chickamauga, Shiloh, the Wilderness, Gettysburg—"He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible swift sword"—"Government of the people, by the people, for the people"—"Shouting the Battle Cry of Freedom." All this and these years of blood and tears and heroic effort, for the exalted right of "emigration"! Booth's bullet had done its work too well.

On turning to leave, Douglass tells his fellow-delegates: "The President sends us to the people, and we go to the people." And Johnson, with words that he is later to regret bitterly: "Yes, sir; I have great faith in the people. I believe they will do what is right."

Years later Douglass recalled that "What was said on that occasion brought the whole question virtually before the American people. . . . From this time onward the question of suffrage for the freedmen was not allowed to rest."

For Douglass did go to the people. That very night of Feb. 7, 1866, the delegation instructed Douglass to draft a reply to Johnson's remarks, which as they correctly surmised were spread over the next morning's papers. It was a memorable document. The President's opinions, it stated, "are entirely unsound and prejudicial to the highest interests of our race as well as our country at large," and "we cannot do other than expose the same, and, as far as may be in our power, arrest their dangerous influence."

Cogently, it pointed out that existing hostility between Negroes and whites had its root and sap in slavery, that it was "incoted on both sides by the cunning of the masters . . . (who) secured their ascendency over both the poor whites and the blacks by putting enmity between them." And now that slavery has been abolished, the root cause of the antagonism is removed, and it is illogical to legislate "from slave-holding and slave-driving premises for a people whom you have repeatedly declared your purpose to maintain in freedom."

Moreover, granting for a moment the President's contention that this hostility will increase in freedom, "how can you, in view of your professed desire to promote that welfare of the black man, deprive him of all means of defense, and clothe him whom you regard as his enemy in the panoply of political power?"

"Can it be," the delegation asked, "that you would recommend a policy which would arm the strong and cast down the defenseless? Can you, by any possibility of reasoning, regard this as just, fair, or wise? Experience proves that those are oftenest abused who can be abused with the greatest impunity. Men are whipped oftenest who are whipped easiest. Peace between races is not to be secured by degrading one race and exalting another, by giving power to one race and withholding it from another; but by maintaining a state of equal justice between all classes."

And as to your emigration and colonization theories, Mr. President: "It is impossible to suppose, in view of the usefulness of the black man in time of peace as a laborer in the South, and in time of war as a soldier in the North, and the growing respect for his rights among the people, and his increasing adaptation to a high state of civilization in this his native land, there can ever come a time when he can be removed from this country without a terrible shock to its prosperity and peace. Besides, the worst enemy of the nation could not cast upon its fair name a greater infamy than to suppose that Negroes could be tolerated among them in a state of the most degraded slavery and oppression, and must be cast away, driven into exile, for no other cause than having been freed from their chains."

Is there in our annals a more glorious expression of justice and common sense than this all but forgotten open letter to the President which George T. Downing asked the editor of the Chronicle to insert in his columns?

They went to the people. And Johnson, with all his great 'faith', placed every conceivable obstacle in the way of the people. The battle had adjourned from Appomattox to Washington, as the President's role was immortally expresed in Wendell Phillips' "Jefferson Davis Johnson." As the great wit of the day, Petroleum V. Nasby, put it: "The President does not believe that power should be concentrated in three or four hundred men in Congress, but thinks it ought to be safely diffused throughout the hands of one man—A. Johnson."

They went to the people, and the people answered with the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. And this voting rights Amendment was proclaimed not by Johnson, but by the man whom the people had elected in his place, their great war general Grant. On March 30, 1870, Douglas and Phillips could shout: "Lo! Triumphe!"

But "We sheathe no sword," a celebration gathering at Steinway Hall was told. "We sheathe no sword. We only turn the front of the army upon a new foe."

Almost a century later we are violently reminded that the sword of Johnson has not been sheathed either. Burnished by MGM, it is turned upon the same foe, the people, national unity, truth, at a crisis of our national existence even more acute than that which tore our land in the last century.

★ LETTERS TO EDITOR

Montone, Calif.
Editor California Eagle,
Los Angeles, California
Dear Madam:

For the enclosed five cents in stamps please send me a copy of your paper. It came to my attention through the good words spoken for it by the People's World.

I am a white man of middle-age who was sent to the mountains for a heart and nerve ailment. These details are set down because an interesting situation has developed here--one that might interest you somewhat.

During the summer months my wife and I had a summer camp not far from the Mill Creek Army Camp. Early in October a draft of Texas Negroes reached the camp: some two hundred and fifty of them. During the next few days a few couples of the boys strolled through the U. S. Forest Camp where we were located. I always greeted the somewhat bewildered conscripts, of course, and held a little conversation with them.

One day a couple of the boys came through--I had met them once before. I was stretched on a sleping bag bothered by a nervous heart. But we had quite a long talk in spite of that. These two were farmer boys, as were most of the group. I mentioned that this was a liberation war, and that this fact placed heavy obligations on all Americans, not only white but colored as well. To make my meaning clear beyond doubt I ended my explanation with this comment: "Now you two boys may be thinking right now (for being Texas Negroes they had learned to listen, but remain silent when a white man talked on 'dangerous subjects'); you two may be thinking right now, 'this s— thinks we are as good as he is . . . He must be a little screwey!' If you were thinking that," I said, now who would be screwey--you or me! That got the boys, and you know what their answer was. I believe that those colored country boys from Texas never forgot that conversation.

The boys, there are only 21 left there now, come one or two at a time to the house to visit me every few days. With genuine humility I assure you that I have learned much from them. Yet I have lived at times in the south, and always as a poor man.

I respect these men, for as men they have behaved. I am much attached to them too. I tell them that my interest in their race is comparable to the interest we of us have in youth--above all or middle age. Because youth and their race is going somewhere. Hope this has not been an imposition on busy newspaper people. I was once on the copy desk of the N. O. Times Picayune.

Mrs. Charlotta Bass,
Editor California Eagle,
Los Angeles, Calif.
Dear Mrs. Bass:

Please accept the hearty congratulations of myself and The Neighborhood Church, to which I proudly administer, for the timely and worthy appointment of yourself to the powerful body, known as The Grand Jury.

We regard it as of distinct worth both to yourself and the race. While the race should not enter the equation because you are a worthy American citizen we must confess these opportunities are not always given to race members, we therefore look upon it as having racial value in this fast growing age of democracy.

We look forward to a better day in our civic life when persons of your calibre are given such opportunity, for we know your work and worth will leave an open door that others might enter, and the race might receive further recognition.

No better choice could have been made, for your past record, which has been most unselfish, bespeaks better things. And we are justly proud of you.

Remember we are praying for your continued success in civic and racial affairs.

Faithfully yours,
H. Mansfield Collins

AN EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA EAGLE SERIAL

"NATIVE SON"

From the book by
RICHARD WRIGHT

"Turn me loose! Turn me loose!" the man screamed over and over.

The men lifted him and threw him inside, locked the door, and left. The man lay on the floor for a moment, then scrambled to his feet and ran to the door.

"Give me my papers!" he screamed.

Bigger saw that the man's eyes were blood-red; the corners of his lips were white with foam. Sweat glistened on his brown face. He clutched the bars with such frenzy that when he yelled his entire body vibrated. He seemed so agonized that Bigger wondered why the men did not give him his belongings. Emotionally, Bigger sided with the man.

"You can't get away with it!" the man yelled.

Bigger went to him and placed a hand on his shoulder.

"Say, what they got of yours?" he asked.

The man ignored him, shouting.

"I'll report you to the President, you hear? Bring me my papers or let me out of here you white bastards! You want to destroy all my evidence! You can't cover up your crimes! I'll publish them to the whole world! I know why you're putting me in jail! The Professor told you to! But he's not going to get away with it . . ."

Bigger watched, fascinated, fearful. He had the sensation that the man was too emotionally wrought up over whatever it was that he had lost. Yet the man's emotions seemed real; they affected him, compelling sympathy.

"Come back here!" the man screamed. "Bring me my papers or I'll tell the President and have you dismissed from office . . ."

What papers did they have of his? Bigger wondered. Who was the president the man yelled about? And who was the professor? Over the man's screams Bigger heard a voice calling from another cell,

"Say, you new guy!"

Bigger avoided the frenzied man and went to the door.

"He's balmy!" a white man said. "Make 'em take 'im outta your cell. He'll kill you. He went off his nut from studying too much at the university. He was writing a book on how colored people live and he says somebody stole all the facts he'd found. He says he's got to the bottom of why colored folks are treated bad . . d he's going t tell the President and have things changed, see? He's NUTS! He swears that his university professor had him locked up. The cops picked him up this morning in his underwear: he was in the lobby of the Post Office building, waiting to speak to the President . . ."

Bigger ran from the door to the cot. All of his fear of death, all his hate and shame vanished in face of his dread of this insane man turning suddenly upon him. The man still clutched the bars, screaming. He was about Bigger's size. Bigger had the queer feeling that his own exhaustion formed a hair-line upon which his feelings were poised, and tha. the man's driving frenzy would suck him into its hot whirlpool. He lay on the cot and wrapped his arms about his head, torn with a nameless anxiety, hearing the man's screams in spite of his need to escape them.

"You're afraid of me!" the man shouted. "That's why you put me in here! But I'll tell the President anyhow! I'll tell 'im you make us live in such crowded conditions on the South Side that one out of every ten of us is insane! I'll tell 'im that you dump all the stale foods into the Black Belt and sell them for more than you can get anywhere else! I'll tell 'im you tax us, but you won't build hospitals! I'll tell 'im the schools are so crowded that they breed perverts! I'll tell 'im you hire us last and fire us first! I'll tell the President and the League of Nations . . ."

The men in other cells began to holler.

"Pipe down, you nut!"

"Take 'im away!"

"Throw 'im out!"

"The hell with you!"

"You can't scare me!" the man yelled. "I know you! They put you in here to watch me!"

The men set up a clamor. But soon a group of men dressed in white came running with a stretcher. They unlocked the cell and grabbed the yelling man, laced him in a strait-jacket, flung him onto the stretcher and carted him away. Bigger sat up and stared before him, hopelessly. He heard voices calling from cell to cell.

"Say, what they got of his?"

"Nothing! He's nuts!"

Finally, things quieted. For the first time since his capture, Bigger felt that he wanted someone near him, something physical to cling to. He was glad when he heard the lock in his door click. He sat up; a guard loomed over him.

"Come on, boy. Your lawyer's here."

He was handcuffed and led down the hall to a small room where Max stood. He was freed of the steel links on his wrists and pushed inside; he heard the door shut behind him.

"Sit down, Bigger. Say, how do you feel?"

Bigger sat down on the edge of the chair and did not answer. The room was small. A single yellow electric globe dropped from the ceiling. There was one barred window. All about them was profound silence. Max sat opposite Bigger and Bigger's eyes met his and fell. Bigger felt that he was sitting and holding his life helplessly in his hands, waiting for Max to tell him what to do with it; and it made him hate himself. An organic wish to cease to be, to stop living, seized him. Either he was too weak, or the world was too strong; he did not know which. Over and over he had tried to create a world to live in, and over and over he had failed. Now, once again, he was waiting for someone to tell him something; once more he was poised on the verge of action and commitment. Was he letting himself in for more hate and fear? What could Max do for him now? Even if Max tried hard and honestly, were there not thousands of white hands to stop Max? Why not tell him to go home? His lips trembled to speak, to tell Max to leave; but no words came. He felt that even in speaking in that way he would be indicating how hopeless he felt, thereby disrobing his soul to more shame.

"I bought some clothes for you," Max said. "When they give 'em to you in the morning, put 'em on. You want to look your best when you come up for arraignment."

Bigger was silent; he glanced at Max again, and then away.

"What's on your mind, Bigger?"

"Nothing," he mumbled.

"Now, listen, Bigger. I want you to tell me all about yourself . . ."

"Mr. Max, it ain't no use in you doing nothing!" Bigger blurted.

Max eyed him sharply.

"Do you really feel that way, Bigger?"

"There ain't no way else to feel."

"I want to talk to you honestly, Bigger. I see no way out of this but a plea of guilty. We can ask for mercy, for life in prison . . ."

"I'd rather die!"

"Nonsense. You want to live."

"For what?"

"Don't you want to fight this thing?"

"What can I do? They got me."

"You don't want to die that way, Bigger."

"It don't matter which way I die," he said; but his voice choked.

"Listen, Bigger. you're facing a sea of hate now that's no different from what you've faced all your life. And because it's that way, you've GOT to fight. If they can wipe you out, then they can wipe others out, too."

"Yeah," Bigger mumbled, resting his hands upon his knees and staring at the black floor. "But I can't win."

"First of all, Bigger. Do you trust me?"

Bigger grew angry.

"You can't help me, Mr. Max," he said, looking straight into Max's eyes.

"But do you trust me, Bigger?" Max asked again.

Bigger looked away. He felt that Max was making it very difficult for him to tell him to leave.

"I don't know, Mr. Max."

"Bigger, I know my face is white," Max said. "And I know that almost every white face you've met in your life had it in for you, even when that white didn't know it. Every white man considers it his duty to make a black man keep his distance. He doesn't know why most of the time, but he acts that way. It's the way things are, Bigger. But I want you to know that you can trust me."

"It ain't no use, Mr. Max."

"You want me to handle your case?"

"You can't help me none. They got me."

Bigger knew that Max was trying to make him feel that he accepted the way he looked at things and it made him as self-conscious as when Jan had taken his hand and shaken it that night in the car. It made him live again in that hard and sharp consciousness of his color and feel the shame and fear that went with it, and at the same time it made him hate himself for feeling it. He trusted Max. Was Max not taking upon himself a thing that would make other whites hate him? But he doubted if Max could make him see things in a way that would enable him to go to his death. He doubted that God Himself could give him a picture for that now. As he felt at present, they would have to drag him to the chair, as they had dragged him down the steps the night they captured him. He did not want his feelings tampered with; he feared that he might walk into another trap. If he expressed belief in Max, if he acted on that belief, would it not end just as all other commitments of faith had ended? He wanted to believe; but was afraid. He felt that he should have been able to meet Max halfway; but, as always, when a white man talked to him, he was caught out in No Man's Land. He sat slumped in his chair with his head down and he looked at Max only when Max's eyes were not watching him.

"Here; take a cigarette, Bigger." Max lit Bigger's and then lit his own; they smoked awhile. "Bigger, I'm your lawyer. I want to talk to you honestly. What you say is in strictest confidence . . ."

Bigger stared at Max. He felt sorry for the white man. He saw that Max was afraid that he would not talk at all. And he had no desire to hurt Max. Max leaned forward determinedly. Well, tell him. Talk. Get it over with and let Max go.

"Aw, I don't care what I say or do now . . ."

"Oh, yes, you DO!" Max said quickly.

In a fleeting second an impulse to laugh rose up in Bigger, and left. Max was anxious to help him and he had to die.

"Maybe I do care," Bigger drawled.

"If you don't care about what you say or do, then why didn't you re-enact that crime out at the Dalton home today?"

"I wouldn't do nothing for THEM."

"Why?"

"They hate black folks," he said.

"WHY, Bigger?"

"I don't know, Mr. Max."

"Bigger, don't you know they hate others, too?"

"Who they hate?"

"They hate trade unions. They hate folks who try to organize. They hate Jan."

"But they hate black folks more than they hate unions," Bigger said. "They don't treat union folks like they do me."

"Oh, yes, they do. You think that because your color makes it easy for them to point you out, segregate you, exploit you. But they do that to others, too. They hate me because I'm trying to help you. They're writing me letters, calling me a 'dirty Jew'."

"All I know is that they hate me," Bigger said grimly.

"Bigger, the State's Attorney gave me a copy of your confession. Now, tell me, did you tell him the truth?"

"Yeah. There wasn't nothing else to do."

"Now, tell me this, Bigger. Why did you do it?"

Bigger sighed, shrugged his shoulders and sucked his lungs full of smoke.

"I don't know," he said; smoke eddied slowly from his nostrils.

"Did you plan it?"

"Naw."

"Did anybody help you?"

"Naw."

"Had you been thinking about doing something like that for a long time?"

"Naw."

"How did it happen?"

"It just happened, Mr. Max."

"Are you sorry?"

"What's the use of being sorry? That won't help me none."

"You can't think of any reason why you did it?"

Bigger was staring straight before him, his eyes wide and shining. His talking to Max had evoked again in him that urge to talk, to tell, to try to make his feelings known. A wave of excitement flooded him. He felt that he ought to be able to reach out with his bare hands and carve from naked space the concrete, solid reasons why he had murdered. He felt them that strongly. If he could do that, he would relax; he would sit and wait until they told him to walk to the chair; and he would walk.

"Mr. Max, I don't know. I was all mixed up. I was feeling so many things at once."

"Did you rape her, Bigger?"

"Naw, Mr. Max. I didn't. But nobody'll believe me."

"Had you planned to before Mrs. Dalton came into the room?"

Bigger shook his head and rubbed his hands nervously across his eyes. In a sense he had forgotten Max was in the room. He was trying to feel the texture of his own feelings, trying to tell what they meant.

"Oh, I don't know. I was feeling a little that way. Yeah, I reckon I was. I was drunk and she was drunk and I was feeling that way."

"But, did you rape her?"

"Naw. But everybody'll say I did. What's the use? I'm black. They say black men do that. So it don't matter if I did or if I didn't."

"How long had you known her?"

"A few hours."

"Did you like her?"

"LIKE her?"

Bigger's voice boomed so suddenly from his throat that Max started. Bigger leaped to his feet; his eyes widened and his hands lifted midway to his face, trembling.

"No! No! Bigger . . ." Max said.

"LIKE her? I HATED her! So help me God, I hated her!" he shouted.

"Sit down, Bigger!"

"I hate her now, even though she's dead! God knows, I hate her right now . . ."

Max grabbed him and pushed him back into the chair.

"Don't get excited, Bigger. Here; take it easy!"

Bigger quieted, but his eyes roved the room. Finally, he lowered his head and knotted his fingers. His lips were slightly parted.

"You say you hated her?"

"Yeah; and I ain't sorry she's dead."

"But what had she done to you? You say you had just met her."

"I don't know. She didn't do nothing to me." He paused and ran his hand nervously across his forehead. "She . . . It was . . . Hell, I don't know. She asked me a lot of questions. She acted and talked in a way that made me hate her. She made me feel like a dog. I was so mad I wanted to cry . . ." His voice trailed off in a plaintive whimper. He licked his lips. He was caught in a net of vague, associative memory; he saw an image of his little sister, Vera, sitting on the edge of a chair crying because he had shamed her by "looking" at her; he saw her rise and fling her shoe at him. He shook his head, confused. "Aw, Mr. Max, she wanted me to tell her how Negroes live. She got into the front seat of the car where I was . . ."

"But, Bigger, you don't hate people for that. She was being kind to you . . ."

"Kind, hell! She wasn't kind to me!"

Boilermakers

cure employment from the Los Angeles Railway Company as conductors and motormen.

Jack Rowley R. C. Haslam, E. Ed Lentz and J. W. Prutsman are railway union leaders whose names are affixed to a copy of the President's Executive Order outlawing defense industry discrimination which is being circulated to all employees of the Los Angeles Railway Corporation this week.

--These men and the rank-and-file of their union have fought for Negro rights as a vital means of winning the war. What can the Boilermakers say to them?

At Lockheed aircraft company, the International Association of Machinists, Lodge 727, whose national organization has barred Negroes for over fifty years, has asked for a national referendum by the union's Grand Lodge on the question of breaking the bars for Negro workers.

There are thousands of progressive Negro AFL trade unionists in the local railway unions who must speak out clearly in condemnation of the Boilermakers stand.

All these AFL unions, actually leading in the fight for a total war effort and the unbiased integration of all workers as a part of strengthening labor's contribution, must be galvanized into action.

SOUTHERN AFL SPEAKS

Of huge importance was the recent AFL Southern conference held at Birmingham, Ala., home state of Gene Talmadge, which unequivocably condemned racial bias in industry, demanded the full employment of Negroes and struck a death blow at Dixie union segregation.

The convention represented 300,000 unionists of the deep South in 12 states. 300 delegates to the convention were Negroes. They were seated upon the convention platform and wrote the resolution which triumphantly placed Southern AFL labor behind the President's executive order 8802.

President of the Carpenter's union sounded the Dixie AFL keynote when he said, "The CIO took the Negroes and made us like it. Now, we'll take in the Negroes and make everybody like it!"

BOILERMAKERS AINT NOWHERE

What is this Jim Crow mania, then, of the Boilermakers way up North in San Francisco, Portland and--God forbid!--Los Angeles?

It is not only out of step with the national war effort, but clashes sharply with the prevailing democratic trends in the AFL itself.

Further, there are large sections of progressive white workers in the Boilermakers Los Angeles outfit who will join with Negro Calship men to take the offensive against the ruling clique who apparently think they're fighting the last war instead of this one.

Jim Crow has no place at Calship. Negro stooges as well as the Boilermaker reactionaries had better understand that.

This newspaper offers its columns to all Calship workers who want to fight for their right to wage war against fascism as members of a free labor movement rather than the pinheads of a Jim Crow auxiliary.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bruce were hosts to fifty friends and relatives with a cocktail dance at their lovely home on Folsom St. February 7th. They honored their cousin, Sgt. William F. Sease, who was observing his birthday. Sgt. Sease is the house guest of his aunts, Mrs. Mae Skinner and Mrs. Dorothy McDonald. He is a cousin of Mrs. Mamie Jewell and Mrs. Nonie Wiggins.

With the help of friends and other relatives they are ably helping Sgt. Sease do a good job of renewing old friendships after nine years in New York. He is stationed at Morris Field, N. C. with the 459th Signal Battalion, (AVN).

★ BEHIND THE SCENES With Harry

By Harry Levette

"NEXT TIME WE MAKE AN ALL-COLORED picture, we'll bring everybody from New York" was a remark overheard on the "Stormy Weather" set at Twentieth Century Fox Studio last week made by one of the studio officials. With a group of producers and directors he was discussing the obstinance of three players, already working under $85 per week contracts, in refusing to aid in a simple scene, without additional adjustment to increased pay. The scene was merely sit in a prop tree on the stage, with, according tothe speaker, no danger attached to it.

Finally after the filming was held up too long Milton Shockley, stand-in for Bill Robinson, agreed to do it, and out of appreciation, the director raised his check to a $16 adjustment for the day's work.

NOW LISTEN movie players, being one of you I'm for you, as long as you're right. But remember, the men who have invested thousands of dollars in such a picture have their rights also. "Don't Kill The Goose That Lays The Golden Egg". Remember they can bring players from New York, and the Screen Actor's Guild will allow them to do it. I'm not trying to preach to you but here are a few other don'ts it will be well to obey at this time, for fear the studios may again make a cycle of pictures, without Nero characters, instead of a number of colored cast features now planned if "Cabin", and "Stormy Weather" click:

Don't keep the directors yelling "QUIET" after they have once asked.

Don't fail to be on time, both when reporting, and returning after a recess.

Don't engage in disorderly conduct, use profane or vulgar language on the set. Wait until you get home.

Don't miss paying your dues, instead of letting them lapse, then squabbling because Charlie Butler can't let you work. Don't blame him; blame your self and the very fair rules of the Screen Actors Guild that protects you and your wages.

TWO FIGURES of the opposite race, that were unusually friendly to colored screen players passed last week, and all who have since learned of their deaths, have expressed deep regret. The column bows also in deep respect to them.

Harry Alwyn was the first. He was in Central Casting Bureau back in the days when the office was down on Temple and Hill streets. He always tried as far as possible to throw as much work permissable to the colored group, and was always friendly and obliging to them. Chas. Butler, still casting director for colored and agent for special talent, and Jesse Graves, featured movie player attended Alwyn's funeral at Pearce Bros.' Funeral Home, and bestowed a floral tribute.

W. S. Van Dyke was the second. He was for a number of years one of Hollywood's foremost directors, and whenever posible used large numbers of colored players. One of the greatest of his pictures, and in which nearly 200 colored men, women and children had long work, was "Trader Horn", starring Harry Carey, and Edwina Booth. Van Dyke started as an assistant to D. W. Griffith, in the old silent "Intolerance."

ALGIERS IN AFRICA, scene of fierce fighting at present was the birthplace of C. P. Johnson, one of the best, and most colorful band leaders on the coast, watch for a story of his life, and his rapid rise since making his debut at the old Sunset Cabaret, in next week's issue. . . . Vesper Hour at the Central Avenue Canteen is going to be one of the most popular musical treats of the community: Fats Waller finished his two weks at Fox Studio for his special sequence in "Stormy Weather", and returned to New York last week . . . Richard Bates, classy piano player, formerly of the radio team with Buck Woods as "Coal Dust and Ashes," is scoring at the Dude Ranch near Long Beach. Buck is now marching for Uncle Sam . . . Others in the Dude Ranch combo are Wm. Griffin, saxaphone, Walter Martin, drums, and Lowell Howell, singing master of ceremonies. Johnnie Lee, partner of Flennoy Miller, on the "Shuffle Along" camp show, was formerly on both Bill Robinson's Hot Mikado, and the later Swing Mikado. He was for some time a headliner at the Cotton Club.

BILL ROBINSON was an honor guest at the Hollywood canteen last Saturday night. No need to mention the fact that no one is more popular than Bill at this famous spot, both among the stars, and the visiting servicemen. They know of the many camp appearances Bill has made since the war started. . . . King Cole Trio, is going to be a real treat for dance fans at the Elks this week. For years they have been the sensation of Hollywood and Vine, heart of the movie capital. And now for a few odds and ends from the studios.

MGM Gives Hollywood Style Hint

That attractive evening hat Ann Sothern is sewing on between scenes of MGM "Swing Shift Maisie" is fashioned after hats worn by girls in defense work. The new bonnet is created in black velvet and features a semi-snood of tulle. On the assembly line, the snood is a safety measure, while for evening wear, Miss Sothern claims, it affords one to have the effect of a short-hair do, without actualy bobbing your long tresses.

Universal Has Famed Actors in Service

Two more Universal actors will be in service when Jon Hall reports to the Army after finishing his role in "White Savage" and Lon Chaney dons an Army uniform on completion of "Destiny".

"G-String Murder" Finished

Director William A. Wellman has ordered 'Lights Out' on "Lady of Burlesque" starring Barbara Stanwyck and the Hunt Stromberg film which introduces a new entertainment cycle is now in the hands of film editors and musicians preparatory to early public showing.

Musical Director Arthur Lange has assembled an orchestra of 64 musicians to record to widely varied musical background for this distinctive backstage comedy-drama. As relaxing, inviting comedy "Lady of Burlesque" ranges from slap-stick to brittle streamlined satire, much that is a new language. As drama it is suspenseful and exciting and musically its range is from the ballad "So This is You" and the snappy production song introduced by Miss Stanwyck--"Take It Off the E. String, Play It on the G String" to a bright Irish theme or Michael O'Shea.

"Leopard Man" Liberian Thriller Starts at RKO

Casting for RKO Radio's "The Leopard Man" was virtually completed today with assignment of five players to important roles.

"The Leopard Man" starts htis week, is the third of a series of unusual chillers scheduled by Producer Val Lewton, Director Jacques Tourneur. First of the group, "Cat People" is already giving goose pimples to unprecedented crowds of movie-goers in key cities and the second, "I Walked With A Zombie," will be released shortly. It has a large colored cost with Haitian dances and songs technically directed by Leroy Antoine. Darby Jones is featured as the Zombie that comes back from the deed.

Added Brief, Brief Brevities

MAGGIE HATHWAY, well known movie player is doing an excellent job as stand-in for Lena Horne in "Stormy Weather" at Fox. This is one of the most trying and exacting jobs in motion pictures, for to save the star, the stand-in has to pose for long and frequent sessions in the hot, glaring lights, as they are being adjusted for the next shot. Maggie has been so willing and cooperative that the directors have permitted her also to work as one of the beautifully dressed showgirls in a cabret sequence . . . . Madam Sul-Te-Wan, the grand old lady of Hollywood pictures, will within a few weeks be seventy years old. Spectators and film folk alike were surprised at this while watching her out-prance the teen age girls in the cake-walk scene of "Stormy Weather." Let's give her a big birthday. I'll publish the date next issue. The Negro Motion Picture Players Association is still carrying on, thanks to its faithful officers who meet regularly, but far too few members turn out. The Association, quietly did more than you know toward bringing Hollywood's attention to the fact that Negroes were not getting enough work. If you don't belong, get in touch with Mrs. Bessie Marie Reed, executive secretary.

FOURSOME FETED AT HOME OF PAULINE SLATER

Mrs. Bell O'Neal, Mrs. Dorothy Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Van Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse H. Graham and Miss Pauline Slater were joint hosts last Sunday afternoon at the Slater residence in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James L. O'Neal jr., Miss Margaret Bonds of New York and Mrs. Jane Chandler Dover of Seattle.

Mrs. O'Neal, AKA soror and niece of Booker T. Washington, met her husband, local policeman, when she came here for the launching of the USS Booker T. Washington recently.

Miss Bonds and Mrs. Dover are house guests of the Grahams. The latter is the only race member enrolled in the three months course in the WOW program.

YMCA secretary Harold Prince and daughter were among the guests. Assisting were Mesdames Henry McPherson, Wm. Saffold sr., Madelyn Osborne, Aurora Hoskins, Miss Violet McDowell and Jimmy Cowan.

Idle Wild Social Club Holds Meeting

The Idle Wild Social Club met Sunday at the home of Mrs. Helen Rodgers, 1417 East 43rd street. After club business, the club honored the presence of Mr. William Seals, of Oakland. Mr. Seals, who has travelled abroad extensively, entertained the club with pictures and comments on his thrilling experiences. He is now foreman at H. Muehlstine and Co.

nation should bind the common folk of our two countries in genuine sympathy.

But it is entirely consistent with a determined prosecution of our war effort to point out that Mexican-Americans have been and are faced today with special persecution in many areas of our country, especially in California, particularly in Los Angeles.

As the spokesman of another minority people, the American Negro, I can testify that the privations of our Mexican citizens as the result of racial prejudice far exceed those suffered by my own people in this area.

In the words of a writer for the Los Angeles Daily News, there are parts of California where the treatment and general condition of the Mexican people can be compared only with that meted to the blacks of the deep South.

Today we are engaged in one of the great, progressive struggles in the history of mankind. Regardless of the shortcomings of various members of the United Nations in their treatment of minorities, in their possession of colonies, and the continued practice, even in war-time, of many injustices,--Despite all these, the over-all, decisive, liberating nature of this war is crystal clear to the common man everywhere on earth.

Precisely because this is not a war being fought for the special interests of any clique or group of special interest, precisely because this is a war which sets in motion a vast, world-wide movement toward liberation of all men, this war is bitterly opposed by those forces in our society which have profitted from the degradation of huge sections of humanity. These forces find their natural ally in the Fascist Hitler world, which, by a monstrous trick of fate, they must pretend to oppose.

Even today we see the first manoeverings of the appeasers who wish a negotiated peace with Hitler, who red-bait our gallant Soviet Ally even as the Russian armies inflict death blows upon the common enemy.

It is a time in which the common people must rely upon their common sense. We must understand clearly that the man would rather cling to the wealth, prejudice and prestige of the past than boldly move toward winning for all mankind the epic Four Freedoms which our President has given us.—That man is the millstone round the neck of our war effort.

Every hand, every mind, every soul is necessary to secure the defeat of our barbaric and vicious enemies. Shortages on the assembly line must be filled with competent men and women, regardless of race, creed or color.

This is the common sense of the common people. But what of the Mexican workers in Los Angeles? Only a fraction of them have been integrated into our war industries. Thousands are still without essential jobs. The Mexican people as a group still face special discrimination in violation of their civil rights and to the everlasting detriment of national unity behind the war effort.

At any other time we might pigeon-hole this as a "Mexican Problem" and forget it. But not now. The waste of war workers today is an offense against the people's war. Discrimination on the basis of race, creed and color is an unwarranted and suicidal depletion of our moral strength in fighting the war.

Establishment of an office in Los Angeles to insist upon the proper, democratic of our Mexican citizenry is a vital, encouraging step in the direction of all-out warfare against our Fascist and their native American Allies.

But even more important is the mobilization of the freedom-loving instincts of all our citizens to make this job swiftly done. It should have been accomplished in peace. In war, it MUST be.

Each of us must guard against the prejudice of ignorance. We must remember that we stand for a national anthem which proclaims ours the land of the free.

We must remember that the greatest thing our greatest citizen ever said was, "This Nation cannot long endure, half-slave and half-free."

Today our world cannot exist half-slave and half-free. Neither in Paris, or Rangoon or Los Angeles.

PIONEER CLUB WILL MEET TUESDAY

Pioneer Club No. 1 will meet at the home of Mrs. Martha Barr, 718 E. 43rd street, Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 8 p. m. All Pioneers are welcome. As this is election of officers, all members are urged to attend. Cora Buck is president; Laura Young, secretary.

NNC Backs Campaign of 'Must' Action to Save FEPC

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10.—The War Department announced today expansion of the program for training Negro combat fliers.

A group will be formed, composed of one squadron now being trained and two new ones which are in the process of organization. It will be provided with all the supporting services, not only those of the Air Corps, but of other arms and services such as Signal Corps and Quartermaster Corps.

Negroes are being trained throughout virtually the entire Technical Training Command of the Air Forces, as well as at the Air Forces Officers' Training School at Miami.

The Army now has a number of large Negro units, including several Negro Infantry and Cavalry regiments; tank and tank-destroyer battalions; and important units of Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, Anti-aircraft, Engineer, Medical Corps, Chemical Warfare, Signal Corps and Quartermaster troops.

In addition to the major units, there are innumerable smaller ones of great aggregate importance. Substantial Negro contingents are to be found in all arms and services of the Army at home, in all major Expeditionary Forces abroad, and in almost all the technical and service schools, military and civilian, run by the Army or under contract to it.

The role of the Negro in civilian War Department employment is also an important one. Statistics from the field installations are not available, but figures of the Departmental Administrative Services show that of a total of 47,644 civilian employees at the present time, 569 are Negroes.

Army to Expand Program for Training Race Fliers

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Formation of a nationwide coordinating organization to save the Fair Employment Practices Committee and to be known as the Associated Organizations on Manpower and Fair Employment Practices was undertaken with the support of the National Negro Congress and 17 allied groups as part of a sweeping five-point program to end job discrimination in war industry.

"America is flirting with defeat so long as she fails to mobilize the energies of her millions of Negro workers for war production," Edward E. Strong, newly-elected executive secretary of the congress, declared in a pointed statement urging Negro and white organizations throughout the country to affiliate with the new body.

"The attack upon FEPC is not alone a Negro problem as those who are attempting to destroy it seem to make it. The attack upon FEPC is an attack not only against the Negro people but upon the war effort itself. It is an assault on the war program foreshadowing the drive of the reactionaries, poll taxers, and two-faced opponents of the war effort in the 78th congress. The fight to save FEPC is a fight to save the unity and morale of the American people."

Other steps in the program mapped at an emergency meeting of spokesmen from 20 organizations called by the Negro Labor Victory committee and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, held in the Hotel Biltmore, New York, this week, include:

1. An emergency national conference of outstanding leaders of both races to be held in Washington during the next three weeks.
2. Local conferences on war employment and discrimination to be held in key cities throughout the country.
3. A representative delegation, qualified to speak for the entire nation, to go to Washington to give support to the FEPC as well as to demand that it be made a completely independent agency with sufficient funds and powers to do the work expected of it under Presidential Executive Order 8802 which set it up.
4. Special radio broadcasts over national hookups to mobilize support for the FEPC and to expose the attempts of the tax bloc to hamper the war effort by creating color divisions among the American people.

Hairdressers, Wardrobe Attendants Get Film Breaks

Another welcome sign of the changing tide in recognition of the Negro in Hollywood, aside from the evident betterment of parts for the actors, has appeared in other divisions, to date kept a closed shop (to colored) by the unions under which they operate. One of the most important and best salaried of these is the hairdressers.

At present at 20th Century-Fox studio where its mammoth musical cavalcade starring Bill Robinson, and Lena Horne is under way, three of the coast's best hair stylists are performing all the various coiffeurs, called for on the heads of scores of girls and women. The gamut of the story runs some thirty years back, up to the present day, and both costumes and hair-do must correspond with it.

Head in this department is Miss Addie Baker(long experienced and originator of a number of new ideas in hairdress. She was personal hair-dresser to Ethel Waters, all during long filming of "Cabin In The Sky", at MGM recently. To others are Essie Gipson and Louaida Haniger.

"A SONG OF PRAISE"

(To Tun eof "Auld Lang Syne")

To you who in seven long, long years have lead us toward our goal,
We lift our voices very loud, in praise to unfold.

2 We do not praise you as we would our Father on high,
But as a man who has accomplished much as days go swiftly by.

3 The faith we have in you is strong—As you stand up to fight,
Shoulder to shoulder against the wrongs, to get us our rights.

4 So we have now this day resolved—To get up and hustle,
And a million strong we will unite and fight with Clayton D. Russell.

It isn't TABOO any more for girls to know these truths

Girls today can be grateful that some subjects are discussed more frankly than they used to be.

That's one reason why thousands of women have come to know about CARDUI's 2-way help. Some take it, as directed, three days before "their time" to help relieve periodic pain due only to functional causes. Others take it as a tonic to stimulate the appetite and aid digestion by increasing the flow of gastric juices, thus helping build up strength and energy for those demanding days to come.

A 62 year record says CARDUI may help. Try it, won't you?

ASTAIRE, HAYWORTH IN LINCOLN PIC

Beginnig Wednesday, February 10th, for three days, the Lincoln theatre will bring to its screen the sterling dance and song work of Hollywood's top-drawer team of the tap, Fred Astaire and Rita Hayworth, in "You Were Never Lovelier." Beginnig Saturday, February 13th, and running thru until Tuesday, Warner Bros' sensational film, "Now, Voyager," starring Bette Davis, occupies the Lincoln screen. iWth it wi llbe "Rhythm Parade", which features among the star players the Mills Bros.

BARITONE PANKEY BACK IN U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Culminating a brilliant good will tour of the West Indies, Central and South America with several appearances in Panama, Aubrey Pankey, internationally famous Negro baritone, returned to this country this week via the Pan-American Airways, singing praises of the culture of the people "south of the border."

In several of the countries he visited during his 8-month tour, Pankey was the first American Negro ever to appear as a concert artist. Not only did he win the plaudits of the people themselves, but also from the president of the Republic of Bolivia, Clifford E. Van Hook, head of the 15th Naval District in Panama, the coordinator of inter-American affairs in Peru, and Col. Owen Summers of Fort Read, Trinidad.

LENA HORNE STAGES PARTY FOR PRESS

Kept so busy by her swinging from one picture right into another, long rehearsals, hours with costumers, hairdressers and make-up artists, that she has had no time to play, Lena Horne, Hollywood's newest glamour girl, finally gave a long planned party for the members of the Fourth Estate.

Anxious to personally meet both publishers and reporters of the publications that have been so unsparing in their plaudits of her, she took this means to show her appreciation, and become acquainted with them. All voted her as one of the most unspoiled screen personalities of any race that they have ever met.

Dorie Miller Hero Club Meets

The Dorie Miller Hero club held its regular meeting, Sunday, Feb. 7, at the lovely residence of our member, Mrs. Florida Johnson, 3346 Folsom.

The meeting was well attended and the business discussed was of tremendous importance. After the adjournment we were recipients of a full course turkey dinner served by our most cordial hostesses, Mesdames F. Johnson and Essie Carmel. Our president presented each member with a Valentine greeting card. Felicitations were the mode of the day, as all members acclaimed.

Mrs. M. E. Goins is president; Mrs. Jean A. Smith, assistant secretary.

SUSIE MINGLETON FETES THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES

Mrs. Susie Mingleton, 1515 E. Adams Blvd., entertained the Thrifty House Wife Club for the month ending. All plans were made for the 17th anniversary of the club given at the home of Mrs. Wylma Windsor, 4227 Woodlawn Avenue last Thursday.

Mrs. A. W. Jordan, the brilliant speaker, made very impressive remarks on service. The guest soloist was Mrs. G. Wallace. Mrs. Mary Grimes gave tribute to former members and Mrs. Eddie V. Leonard made brief remarks on the history of the club. Refreshments were served. Those who enjoyed the evening were: Mrs. A. W. Jordan, Mrs. G. Wallace, and Miss M. Watkins. The DOOTSIE WILLIAMS, local band leader now welding ships for Uncle Sam, brings his new 14 piece orchestra composed of defense working musicians to the Elks Ballroom, Saturday, February 13th to play for the Calship Welders Dance. The featured attraction however, is The King Cole Trio recording artists of "That Ain't Right"; "Hit That Jive Jack"; "All for You", etc. They are making their first and last appearance on the coast before going East and should not be passed up according to Thomas E. King, chairman of the dance.

Atlanta Matron to Remain on Coast

Mrs. Allene Wardlow, of Atlanta, Ga., plans to stop in Southern California indefinitely to be near her husband, Walter C. Wardlow, who is stationed at Camp Lockett, San Diego.

Mrs. Wardlow (nee Dixon) is stopping at the home of her school chum and former Georgian, Mrs. Aileen Lewis, 2006 18th street, Santa Monica.

★DOWN IN FRONT

With J. CULLEN FENTRESS

That Dr. Charles Richard Drew cartoon you see on this page was drawn for OWI by Charles Alston . . . The Olympic's boxing cards continue to improve by the week, the club beginning to offer serious competition to Hollywood Legion stadium. The town can support two major boxing stadiums—with ease. All the fans want are top-notch attractions . . .

The column likes this lad Terry Gibson. He and Villa Vicencio fought a thriller of a six-round semi at the Olympic last week and should be due for a rematch. Gibson was inked recently by Norman Saunders, who has done such an excellent job with Henry Armstrong, the Comeback Kid . . .

Matchmaker Charley MacDonald at Hollywood Legion comes up with a dandy Friday night with Lloyd Marshall, Sacramento, and Costello Cruz, Mexican star, in the spotlight. Both are dangerous punchers. But of the two, we think those honors should go to Marshall. In his bout with Charley Burley several months ago in the same place, Marshall displayed some of the most potent leather-throwing we had seen in some time. Friday's bout should do swell business; it's an A-No.-1 fistic dish.

Say what you please about the veteran Jimmy Garrison. But fight in and fight out he seldom disappoints a legion of admirers. When the wiseacres are ready to bury him among the has-beens up he comes with scintillating performances, as witness his lopsided win over young Max Hutchins, and his stand-off battle with good Rodolfo Ramires last Friday at the stadium. Ramires justly received the decision, but it wasthatclose.

GIRL FOR SGT., MRS. JOE LOUIS BARROW

CHICAGO—It's a girl at the Joe Louises! Mrs. Louis, the mother, the former Marva Trotter, presented Joe Louis, world's heavyweight boxing champion with a 7½ pound daughter at 6:04 a. m. Monday at the Provident Hospital.

Dr. W. W. Gibbs, the doctor in charge said the mother was doing splendidly and that the infant was perfect.

Sergeant Louis was on duty at Fort Riley, Kans., unable to obtain leave because he was given a furlough a month ago when his mother in Detroit was suffering from pneumonia.

Romero

SAN DIEGO, Feb 10—Sailor Jack Coggins, 175, regained the California light-heavyweight championship here Friday night when he technically knocked out veteran Johnny Romero, 175, in the 13th round of a scheduled 15-round bout.

Staggered and on the verge of a knockout in the 5th and 12th rounds, the 33-year old Romero ran into left and right hooks to the face and a vicious right uppercut in the 13th and fell flat on his back. The referee raised Coggins' hand in token of a technical knockout but Romero was clearly down for the full count.

Coggins, 24, lost the state title to Romero by decision in a 12-rouond battle last October.

ON THE TURF

By Geo. A. Ramser

SAN DIEGO—Well folks here is the news that you have been waiting for and also your writer, Lou Anger, formerly Generalissimo of Caliente in years gone by, has announced the opening of Beautiful Caliente Track, March 14th, for Sunday racing only, as in the past, under the management of Walter Marty, who has now retired from the sport of kings. Mr. Anger is no stranger to the border course. In the days when gambling was permitted Mr. Anger was the big boss, so again he takes up where he left off. Although we hear that a new innovation will greet the fans in the new line of betting, only two books will operate. The mutuels will be the main betting course, which is a good thing for the fans, as it is always the public that make the favorites. So barring no further complications the Southern part of the state will enjoy the same privileges that Tanforan will have after on-again, off-again, on-again Wm. P. Kyne, the big boss of the Northern track, was informed that he could go ahead with the meeting of 50 days, or more, starting February 20th. But certain restrictions were placed upon the conditions that must prevail. Mr. Kyne informed the officials that he would live up to the restrictions.

Now a little more about Caliente: More than 300 horses are quartered on near by farms and will start moving across the border this week in order for the trainers to get them in condition for opening day. When the opening was announced it was hailed as the best news the fans have heard in many months, so now with chills, spills and thrills, one can relax in the beautiful sunshine of south of the border, down Mexico way, and enjoy the many things Mexico has to offer to the working man and woman, who only have Sundays off. This will be a great thing to keep the morale up and chase the blues away. My old friend, Robert (Kid) North, assistant to manager Wm. Kyne of the Northern track, spent a few days in San Diego visiting old friends, but spent quite a little time with that master handicapper, Grant Edison, and yours truly.

Well, folks, that's the news for this week, so keep smiling, buy more U. S. Stamps and War Bonds. A Victory now means, security later for the children, and peace on earth for all humanity. Are you helping? Think it over.

So-long. —George

Olympic Bills Twin '8s' for Tuesday

The Olympic stages a red hot double headliner next Tuesday night.

In one of the 8-round battles, Watson Jones, hard-hitting Negro 165-pounder, who hits with the efficacy of a machine gun, faces Bob Ford, strapping Arizona heavyweight, who has defeated some of the best fighters on the coast.

Matchmaker Babe McCoy has paired popular featherweights in the second feature with Chuckie Garcia meeting Al Medrano over the 8-round route.

Garcia recently punched out a clean-cut 8-round win over Nat Corum at the Olympic. Chuckie, protege of the veteran instructor, Art Martell, won 7 of the 8 rounds from Corum in a rapid fire, exciting contest.

KO'D COGGINS

Medrano is fresh from a blazing 10-round main event with Carlos Chavez at Hollywood Legion stadium. Fight critics said Chavez' last round rally earned him the nod. It was a sizzling battle. They were set for a rematch but Chavez was inducted into the Army. He is now in Florida.

Fans like Jones' punching. Olympic patrons have seen him in several sterling battles. Just a few weeks ago Jones stopped Al Callahan in a great battle. Watson holds a one-round knockout over Jack Coggins, state lightheavyweight champion, registered in less than one minute at San Diego. Ford holds wins over Sonny Boy Walker, Hardy Williams and Pio Pico and drew with Tommy Garland.

Freddy Long and Manuel Villa clash in the four-round special at 137 pounds. Don Getchell meets Mike Dundee at 142, and Dallas Sessions encounters Jimmy Mercier, 150-pounders. Long and Getchell are employed at Northrop Aviation corporation. Al McCoy, former middleweight champion, manages Dundee.

...EIN' OFF on the Axis now is Sgt. Cliff Strickland, one of the famed golfing brothers of Riverside. Sgt. Strickland is stationed at Port Headquarters, Detachment B, First Avenue Cantonment, Seattle, Wash. Inducted July last, Sgt. Strickland, well known here, writes friends that "the Army agrees with him; he never felt better in his life."

Tuskegee '5' Wins, Loses

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala., Feb. 10.—Tuskegee's Golden Quint had a comparatively easy time defeating the Hornets of Alabama State Teachers college in Logan hall here Wednesday night, turning back the visitors, ... 26.

Tuskegee held Bankhead, the backbone of the State team, to five field goals for a total of 10 points.

Lloyd Robinson led the scoring for Tuskegee, sinking five baskets and one free throw.

Against Fisk university the following night, the Tigers reversed the form and lost to the Nashville team, 49 to 28.

The lanky Chambless was the sparkplug of the Tennessee team, scoring 19 points. Hill and Seal's shared scoring honors with 10 each.

George, star forward for Tuskegee, was held to 8 points.

HALL JOHNSON AN EX-VIOL PLAYER WITH STAGE SHOWS

Known to but few coast music lovers who marveled at his abilities as a singing director, since when they first heard his famous choir here several years ago, is the fact that Hall Johnson, started out in life as a player of the viol. In this capacity he toured on a number of the stage shows that were in their hey-day at that time.

Ring Body Suspends 3

J. M. Gensihea, secretary of the State Athletic commission, today said the commission had taken action in the following cases:

Ill and Unavailable—Douglas Wilson, San Francisco boxer, indefinite, injured eye.

Suspensions: Jimmy Florita, Stockton boxer, three weeks, failure to honor contract; Ashley Bob Smith, Oakland boxer, 60 days, non-appearance; and Vernon Greenwood, Bakersfield amateur boxer, indefinite, violation of rules.

Suspensions imposed by Illinois, Missouri, Pennsylvania and all states affiliated with the National Boxing association are recognized by the California Athletic commission.

LES HITE BREAKS OAKLAND RECORDS

With the theatre risking action by the Fire Department, by placing seats along the walls, and in the aisles, Les Hite, and his famous Cotton Club band broke all existing records at the Orpheum theatre during their week's appearance there a week ago. Combined with Ethel Waters, and a cast of outstanding vaudeville headliners, he opened there, after a week of capacity houses at the Orpheum here.

NEWS VIEWS By HARRY MORGAN

As a change from our usual profound meditations on international affairs, and on the advice of several feminine readers, we are beating the drum this week for St. Valentine's Day, February 14. So many people are so busy what with one thing and another during the year that they sometimes forget to say a kind word now and then to the little woman or the little man—depending on which you are. Valentine's Day is a chance for every husband to turn Romeo for a few hours—and every wife to play the part of Juliet. So don't be afraid to put your tag on a lacy Valentine. It's no crime to have a heart—even if you're a butcher and it's Tuesday.

A Los Angeles butcher shortweighted a customer 26 ounces on a roast. He must have weighed his arm as well as his thumb in that one.

The customer had a "beef" coming on that transaction, but you'll find perfect satisfaction when you deal with Harry Morgan, 2729 Central Ave. We specialize in supplying you with only the highest quality liquors, wines and beer at lowest possible cost. You'll like and appreciate our excellent selection — our prompt, friendly service.

"DIAL Direct FOR FASTEST SERVICE!"

Use of the telephone in its most effective way means speed for the user—and it helps to keep the lines clear for the calls of war production.

Suggestions:

Have the right number.

Dial local calls direct, rather than by dialing Operator.

Operators are provided in dial exchanges primarily to handle calls which are not in the local dialing area . . . and to render assistance when needed.

Your cooperation, in these times of unprecedented telephone traffic, is sincerely appreciated. It enables us to serve you faster and to do our vital war job better.

● "Toughen up, Buckle down, and Carry on to Victory", is the Boy Scout major task this year. Their 1,570,000 members are in the conflict to the hilt on the home front, doing everything boys of Scout age can do to help win the war speedily and a just peace permanently.

Hold Rites for Telephone Company District Manager

Loved and respected by many in this area, Henry Allan Glass, district manager of the Southern California Telephone company and a leading figure in commercial activities in the southeastern part of the Los Angeles exchange, died Suddenly Sunday.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon in Grace chapel, Inglewood Park cemetery, followed by cremation. Arrangements were under the direction of the Larkin mortuary.

Glass was born in Caldwell Parish, La., Jan. 26, 1885. He began his telephone career in 1912, working in the commercial department. Prior to becoming district manager here, he held various posts of responsibility, including the managerships of the Ventura and Riverside exchanges. He took charge of the company's commercial activities in this district in 1924.

During his managership, Glass saw the district grow and prosper. Throughout, he played a quiet but important part in the development of the entire southern part of the Los Angeles exchange. He was a charter member and president of the Florence Rotary club and was active in numerous other organizations interested in the improvement of the area, including the Florence chamber of commerce.

Glass is survived by his wife, Bessie Thompson Glass; four brothers, Floyd M., Harry H. and Thomas A. Glass, all of Los Angeles, and Bennett S. Glass, of Santa Monica, and two daughters, Sidney Allan and Mary Glass.

At the offices of the Southern California Telephone company, it was said that a successor to Glass has not been selected as yet.

Last Rites Held for Woman Found Dead in Bed

Funeral service for Mrs. Allean Gordon, of 1808½ Central avenue, were held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the People's Independent Church of Christ, of which the deceased was a popular, long-time member. Rev. Clayton Russell gave the funeral sermon.

Mrs. Gordon's sudden death came as a deep shock to her friends and to members of Independent, in whose choir she sang for many years. Her body was found in her bed at her home on Jan. 26, after one of her coworkers, noting her unexplained absence from her job for two days, telephoned to the sister-in-law of the deceased, Mrs. Pearl Hughes.

CALL POLICE

Alarmed, Mrs. Hughes summoned police and accompanied them while they forced an entrance to Mrs. Gordon's home. According to coroner's physicians, the woman had been dead two days as the result of a heart attack which probably struck her while she was asleep. A widow, Mrs. Gordon was alone at the time of her death.

WAS A TEXAN

Mrs. Gordon was a native of Clarksville, Texas, and had lived in this city for 32 years. She is survived by two brothers, Perry and Paul Hughes, of the city; three cousins, Mrs. Katy Smith and Miss E. Hughes, of Dallas, Texas, and Mrs. Leonard Warren of the city. Mrs. Smith and Miss Hughes came here to complete funeral arrangements.

The People's Funeral Home was in charge. Burial was in Lincoln Memorial cemetery.

Point Rationing to Provide Equal Food Distribution

The point system of national rationing of food will not only provide each individual in the United States with "share and share alike," but will eliminate some existing shortages, according to a statement issued today by B. B. Bratton, chairman of the local War Price and Rationing board.

"When the point system becomes effective; probably in the latter part of February," he said, "foodstuffs now unavailable, because unusual buying has cleaned the shelves, will be back on the market. When meat is rationed, this commodity, so scarce in some parts of the Pacific coast, can again be purchased but in equal shares."

Bratton explained that the point system is the fairest method yet devised to provide for everyone, and at the same time insure adequate food for our fighting forces. Should the demand of our armed forces create a shortage of commodities for civilians, the point system will insure that what is left for civilians will be distributed fairly to all, he stated.

It was explained that "point rationing" is a system of rationing a group of related or similar commodities which can be substituted for one another in actual use. The system will become effective immediately upon the distribution of War Ration Book Two on a date not yet announced but believed to be in the latter part of February, Bratton said.

Councilman Allen Files for Reelection

Councilman Charles A. Allen filed this week for reelection to the city council from the 8th district, at the coming primary election.

In announcing his candidacy, the councilman stated:

"It always has been my thought that government exists solely for the purpose of doing for the citizen that which individually he cannot do for himself. With that thought in mind, I assumed the duties of city councilman nearly two years ago, and have diligently endeavored to translate that concept of democratic government into all my councilmanic decisions."

In Memoriam

Arnold W. Bankston, sr., departed this life February 9, 1942.
I miss you "Deedy" from our home
I miss you from your place
A shadow o'er my life is cast
Without your beaming face.
I miss your fond and fervent smile
Your kind and earnest care
My life is black without you
I miss you everywhere.

The drowning man, though he may be the owner of millions in money and estates, thinks nothing of them at such a crucial moment. His main objective is the saving of his life. At that particular time he would gladly surrender all just for the assurance of life.

It is heartening at this period of the world's history to note how little the really great men of the world regard their material wealth as measured against their freedom and their liberty under a form of government that instills into the poorest born, a fair chance, and the incentive to rise to any height, equal to their work and ability.

The true values and real wealth of the world is not in land, estates or gold, but in the character of people. He owns most, who appreciates the finer values of life, and helps to spread sunshine with his mite, is much happier than the miser.

E. E.—Dear Prof. Herman: What a relief to know that my worries were in vain, and that my suspicions were wrong! You will never know how much your letter did for me and how much better I feel. Thanks again for the splendid advice. I shall be writing you again next week.

D. D.—Will the young man I love, marry me?

Ans.—Your lucky stars and guiding planet indicate marriage within the next 6 months. He is very fond of you, and it is his intentions to make you happy.

T. M. B.—What can I do to clear myself?

Ans.—It appears to me that your host does not think you took the money. As there were several people there, you should not feel as you do about it. The best way to make the situation easier for all concerned is simply to forget the matter.

Mrs. A. J.—Will he ever return?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find that it is his intentions to return home at his earliest convenience. Don't be discouraged because he seems to be delayed. That cannot be helped. Interest yourself in various activities that will help you pass the time and it will soon be over.

A. I. K.—Will I get the scholarship if I take the subjects I have been advised to take?

Ans.—I see no reason why you should not get this scholarship, if you apply yourself, study hard and strive toward that goal. You will find that help will come from many sources, if you show interest and ambition.

V. M.—I have been reading your column in the California Eagle and find that your advice to other people is true. Now I would like some advice concerning my problem. Which of the two boys thinks the most of me?

Ans.—It seems that both J. B and J. S. think a great deal of you but J. S. is more your type, and most sincere.

T. McB.—Is it true"

Ans.—Concentrating upon your question, I suggest that you consult a good physician for medical advice and attention. I don't feel that you have anything to worry about, but it is best to check the matter now, rather than wait.

I. S.—Will I get the money I am looking for?

Ans.—According to your Zodiacal Sign, you are destined to receive a sum of money soon. It will probably be the money you have in mind.

W. B. W.—Will I be successful in changing towns for a while?

Ans. — My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals your ambitions and desires, and since this has been on your mind for sometime, I vision your being able to make this change soon.

Mrs. L. P. M.—What do you think about my husband and a woman friend of mine?

Ans.—I find that your suspicions are unwarranted, and sug- your mind entirely. If you wish gest that you put them out of peace and happiness in your married life, you must develop more confidence in your husband and faith.

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL L. HACKETT SR.

"God must have loved the common people, or else he would not have made so many of them." —Abraham Lincoln.

Words spoken thus could have only been spoken by one who possessed a keen knowledge and understanding of the common people. Reared in adversity and beset with many sorrows which temper man's soul, Lincoln had a deep appreciation of the struggles of man. Today as never before America has need of a strong man with a vision that was Lincoln's.

The poet has so aptly described Abraham Lincoln in these lines:

"A prophet eye that turned across the night
Of bondage and disunion, woe and tears,
And saw afar the coming of the light
That marked the dawn of gladder, juster years.
A heart that dwelt among the shadows much,
Yet covered all its dismal brooding o'er
With laughter and preserved the human touch
Despite the heavy burdens that it bore;
A hand assigned to labor by the fates
And by labor rendered great and strong
Too lay its hold upon the iron gates
And rend the walls of deep intrenched wrong."

We wish that it were possible for every man, woman, and child to visit the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D. C. There is a certain inspiration one receives which is uplifting and makes one depart with a more humble resolve toward his fellowman. Lincoln's inaugural address which is inscribed to the right of his statue is one of the greatest speeches of all times. Every American should read it and study it until he knew its substances by heart.

It is unfortunate that the national officers of the postal unions are asking for a separate pay raise for postal employees. We had hoped that the unity evinced locally could be accomplished on a national scale.

It seems as if we were a little premature. There is an old saying that Rome was not built in a day, but some of us would like to see a little more unity in our day.

Gus Garnichaud, formerly of the terminal custodial laborers, and recently of main post office lampist, will return to the terminal as a post office clerk. Virgil Earl, who inspects your badge at the employees entrance at the terminal, has decided to try his hand on sticking mail. More schemes to you fellas.

Notices have been received by various eligible applicants for the clerk-carrier positions that the list is expected to be deplete within the next few weeks. It is expected that all making passing marks will be called or given the opportunity to try for these positions.

LARY Appeals for Help

In the regular advertising columns of this paper today the Los Angeles Railway calls attention to the transportation conditions in Los Angeles, tells of the earnest effort of the company to meet them and asks for more men and women workers so as to be able to give the service it wishes to give.

The Railway asks for men to work as trainmen and mechanics' helpers and for women who wish to become conductorettes on its lines. It offers good pay while learning an essential industry, and asks the readers of this paper to call attention to its appeal for help to friends or members of the family who might be interested.

The armed forces have nearly 500 L. A. Railway employees and some 1500 others have changed to other essential work. This loss of some 2,000 employees is being somewhat daily, but, up to this point, the total number of those leaving for other work and to join the army, navy, and marines, has exceeded the new employees who have enrolled.

The company has the street cars and the coaches and everything else needed to care for the situation with the exception of the necessary number of men and women to run the equipment.

Boy, 13, Noon Patrol Chief at Belmont High

That democratic practices and mixed schools tends to brin out latent abilities and ambitions in the youth of the race, is well exemplified here in the case of 13-year old Irwin Thompson of 507 N. Virgil Ave. He graduated a week ago from Virgil Junior High, with high honors after having earned the distinction of the first colored boy to serve as chief of the noon patrol. He is now a freshman at Belmont High School.

The noon patrol organization consists of some fifty students of all races, and helps to keep order on the grounds, serve as escort to visiting school board officials, etc., so it reflect credit on Irwin, who being so young could rise to the position in charge of all the rest.

Irwin's father is B. T. Thompson, in the Adult Evening School at Jefferson High School.

Report 7 Million Pounds of Scrap

The salvage for Victory campaign in the Los Angeles city schools netted approximately seven million pounds of scrap metal, rubber, and rags. Of this amount, five million pounds were of metal; 150,000 pounds were rubber; and 650,000 pounds were rags.

★ SPREADING JOY

JOHN FOWLER

In recent weeks two outstanding characters have crossed the bar. I speak of Rev. J. Beyers of San Mateo and John Taylor of Frisco. Although of two widely separated vocations, both had hundreds of admirers. Rev. Beyers was a religious leader and for the past forty years was an AME Zion Church pastor, a builder of material and spiritual value.

He served here at Pico and Paloma, in San Jose, in Vallejo and at San Mateo, where he was pastoring when he died. We were very good friends. I visited him in '38 in Vallejo where he was most progressive. His greatest work I think was with the young people. He was very proud of his interracial baseball club. He took us out to see them play and it was a treat to see the way both teams idolized him.

In the evening he invited me to address his Junior Church, a fine group of boys and girls. In the passing of Rev. Beyers one of God's noblemen has gone home.

John Taylor was one of the picturesque characters of Old Frisco. An important part of the color and background of racing history, for years he was a leading figure at both tracks around Frisco. He was a shrewd politician as well. In the days of famous jockeys like Willie Sims, Felix Carr, Willie Blake, Charlie Mackem and others, it was Taylor who was track steward assistant when the winner had to be taken care of.

In the days when the shoeshine concession in the Ferry Building and on the boats was a chief morsel for our group, Taylor always swung it for the lucky one. Many a dollar was made.

John Moore, father of the famous family of musicians, was one of those who made a fortune out of the concession. Another Oaklander to do likewise was John Rivers. I understand John is confined to his home and if he's listening I wish to pat him on the back.

But back to John Taylor, the last time I saw him Gov. Young had just appointed him Inspector of Barbers. He was a gentleman, his word was his bond. Hail and farewell, Honest John Taylor.

My, how times fly. I wonder if I really am getting old. When I see so many boys who just a few years ago were in my Sunday School class, now prominent in fraternal, civic and political life, I realize that time does march on.

Just a few years ago Past Master George Vaughn was a member of said class in old Fifteenth St. Church in Oakland. I think his success is due largely to his church activity.

Att'y H. Lemond Richardson is another of my boys and one I feel proud of. Then there are the Crawford boys, Charlie and Nat. Another favorite is A. Nurse. I wonder what has become of him and Errol Jones, the last time I heard of the latter he was in New York.

I wonder where Leroy Smith is, and Bob Smith, too? Some of the other SS class members were the Edwards boys, Willie Shoary, Vernon McCalla, Charlie Cashen and others.

Leading my old sweethearts parade this week is that youthful pair of old dears, Mr. and Mrs. William Nickerson, Jr.

★ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mrs. Bass, Editor:

May I take occasion before I leave your beautiful and interesting city, to offer to you my sincere and personal congratulations on the special honor that has recently come to you by being chosen as one of the number named to constitute the Grand Jury of this rapidly growing community. Your outstanding capabilities easily merited the considerations you have received, and I am sure you in your able way, will reflect credit upon all of us.

Mrs. Evans and I have greatly enjoyed our rather lengthened stay among the fine, hospitable people of the "City of the Angels". We offer our thanks to the churches and their splendid pastors, and to our many friends for every kindness shown us.

We go back to our home and field of labor in Chicago, Ill., with renewed strength and very pleasant remembrances of our happy and profitable stay in Los Angeles, and Pasadena, Calif.

Yours gratefully,
Rev. and Mrs. Jos. M. Evans
Minister of the Metropolitan Community Church of Chicago, Illinois.

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass
Editor, The California Eagle
4075 So. Central Avenue
Los Angeles, Calif.
My dear Mrs. Bass:

May I take this opportunity of expressing the sincerest congratulations of the Los Angeles Urban League and the members of the Leadership Round Table for the honor conferred upon you by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury. We are pleased to know that you have been privileged to break the long dry spell of no Negro members to this very important body.

We wish for you the greatest of success in this challenging capacity for an enlarged service to your community.

Very truly yours,
Floyd C. Covington
Executive Director

★ LIBRARY NOTES

Helen Hunt Jackson Branch

New books at the Helen Hunt Jackson branch library, 2330 Naomi avenue, include the following, it was announced today.

THE FLYING GUNS
—Dickinson

This is a cockpit record of a naval pilot who fights from Pearl Harbor through the Midway battles. Dickinson says that the coming of the dive bomber and the torpedo plane and their use at sea has completely changed the capabilities of the old style naval vessel. A condensed version of this tale was published under the title, "I Fly for Vengeance" in the Saturday Evening Post.

BOOK OF BAYS
—Beebe

William Beebe is the best modern writer of scientific travel in the jungle and on the sea. For five months of 1937-1938 on the slim black yacht, Zaca, he and his associates prowled along 3000 miles of Pacific coast from Mexico to Colombia, and their findings make fascinating reading. Sea-elephants and ghost moths, spider monkeys and deep-sea angler fish, sea-snakes, eels, and all kinds of life are found in the tiny bays.

YANKEE FIGHTER
—Hasey

John Hasey, a 25-year old American salesman, was the first Amercain to shed his blood for Free France. In France at the outbreak of war, Hasey went into the ambulance corps and saw action in Finland. After the fall of France, he joined the Free French fighting forces and was severely wounded and sent home to America to recuperate. His experiences in Finland, Africa, and Syria make exciting reading.

WE TOOK TO THE WOODS
—Rich

Mrs. Rich's childhood ambition was to live in the Maine woods alone. In later life her wish comes true, but she does not live alone. She and her husband, Ralph Rich, have a cabin in the heart of the Rangeley Lake region of Maine. In this book are the answers to her friends questions of: How do you make a living? Do you really live here all the year round? Isn't housekeeping difficult? Aren't the children a problem? Didn't you get terribly bored?

H. A. REEVES, SUPERVISOR

Over 36 years in business in Los Angeles

Founder's Day at 8th, Towne

One hundred and fifty-six years ago in the city of Philadelphia a little band of Americans of African descent assembled to consider ways of achieving for themselves the religious liberty which other Americans seemed to enjoy.

Their leader was Richard Allen, at that time a class leader in St. George Methodist Episcopal church of that city. In 1816 Richard Allen was elected the first bishop of the church which he had founded. In this office he and his successors became the symbol of the religious emancipation of the American Negro.

This coming Sunday 7000 churches, with nearly a million members, will celebrate the birthday of this remarkable little man.

At the First African Methodist Episcopal church of this city Dr. Frederick D. Jordan, pastor, announced that all the resources of their great church will be utilized to the fullest to give appropriate observance to this significant day.

The sermon subject for the morning hour will be "A Man Sent from God." The soloist will be Ernest Whitman, star of radio, stage, and screen. A number of the theatrical celebrities who are in Los Angeles working on current productions have accepted personal invitations to be present for this service. The senior choir will sing "The Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Mount of Olives."

The Founder's Day observance for the past two years of Rev. Jordan's administration at Towne avenue has been correlated with the support by the local church of the world-wide program of the denomination. The First AME church of this city is one of the largest contributors within their entire denomination to these funds. Last year their contributions totaled more than $3000.00. This assists in supporting the 12 schools which the church operates in this country; missions in Africa and South America; the publishing houses and periodicals of the church; and the work in religious education.

YOUNG ARTISTS MUSICAL

The Clef club of the church, Mrs. Jessie Cole Grayson, president, presents three of the younger musicians of the community in a Twilight Musical this Sunday afternoon at the Woodlawn avenue branch YWCA, 4260 Woodlawn avenue.

Yvonne Cole, pianist; Yvonne Cummins, soprano; Joella Hardiman, violinist, have each demonstrated definite talent and will give an entertaining program.

VALENTINE TEA

The Utility club, Mrs. Ruby Lee Walters, president, will have their annual Valentine tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charle Henderson, 1564 E. Santa Barbara avenue, from 3 to 7. An entertaining program will be rendered and appetizing refreshments served.

Reader's Digest Editor Defends Brown Article

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Alfred S. Dashiell, managing editor of the Reader's Digest, voiced his disagreement this week with the statement of Walter White, NAACP executive secretary, that the Warren Brown article, "A Negro Warns the Negro Press," would be used to deny the Negro's just claims to a share in the democracy for which he is being asked to fight.

Answering Dashiell, White said, "The avidity with which the article is being used by certain Negrophobes in official positions in Washington and other parts of the country to prove that the Negro's complaints are imaginary is the reason I cannot agree with you."

WORK AT CALSHIP .....

Have you a problem at the plant? In transportation? In housing? In food? If so, bring it to the California EAGLE. We'll fight for you!

SGT. GEORGE H. DANIELS, JR., on a ten day furlough from Camp Swift, Texas was the recipient of many social activities given in his honor while in the Angel City. Says Sgt. Daniels, "My one desire is to be on the fighting front marching to Berlin or Tokio".

Sgt. Daniels is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Daniels, sr., of 1513 E. 21st Street, Mrs. Geo. H., jr. accompanied her husband to the station, from which he left Monday, February 1st.

Seek Homes for Working Mothers in Westside Area

Dr. Ruth J. Temple is acting on the emergency committee of the Child Care Committee of the Council of Social Agencies, which will make a survey of Westside areas seeking boarding homes for working mothers with children, children only, and for day care.

Directly under Dr. Temple's charge will be the house-to-house canvass of volunteers in the district lying between Jefferson and Exposition, Normandie to Western, and which will begin on February 16th. Any who will help with the work, which will require but one day's service between February 16th and 20th, are asked to communicate with Dr. Temple.

The need for boarding homes for mothers and their children is reaching a critical state in the Los Aneles area, Dr. Temple states, and will grow more serious as additional women must enter war industries to add to family income.

"We have a grave duty to do everything possible to aid these families, the fathers of which in many instances are in the fighting forces. We must give to the child the sense of security which comes from having at least one parent with him during these perilous days," Dr. Temple stated.

She appeals to all who have a spare room to open their homes and board mothers, giving supervision to the children during her working hours. She said:

"Those who will give this care will perform a double patriotic duty in adding to the protection of our children and freeing another pair of hands to work for the nation."

Mrs. Fred B. Marquard is chairman of the emergency committee. Serving with her in addition to Dr. Temple are Mrs. Roy E. Gardner, president, Exposition P-T A Council; Mrs. H. F. Kinnera, president, Olympia P-T A Council; Mrs. Roy Musser, president, University Council; Mrs. Robert Pettingill, Protestant Church cooperation; Mrs. George Shedden, Catholic Church cooperation; Mrs. Albert Leland, and Mrs. Robert Niven.

Ex-Officio members are Mrs. O. H. Spalding, chairman of the Child Care Committee of the Council of Social Agencies; Chas. Bonapart, director, Vista del Mar, and Mrs. Blythe W. Francis, director, Family Welfare Association, the two agencies being members of the Community Chest.

County Communists Plan Lincoln-Douglass Program

Honoring Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass outstanding American heroes, the Los Angeles County Committee of the Communist Party is sponsoring a celebration on Friday, Feb. 12th, 8 p. m. at the Unitarian Church, 8th and Vermont.

Pettis Perry, County Chairman of the Communist Party, will speak on the contributions of Lincoln and Douglass as fighters for a united nation and a free people, whose example is serving today to mobilize the Negro people, together with all Americans, for victory over Hitlerism in 1943.

Carl Winter, County Secretary, will greet new members who are joining the Communist Party on this occasion of launching its national membership campaign of February 12th to May 1st.

The Communist Party cordially invites all friends and persons interested to participate in celebrating this patriotic occasion of the birthdays of these two great Americans, Lincoln and Douglass. Admission is 25 cents including tax.

Editor Lauded By Landon Church

Services last Sunday were well attended throughout the day. Rev. Bentley preached a stirring sermon from the third chapter of John. His subject was "The New Birth."

Sister Powell sang as her solo, "Some Day." Brother Willie Tarver joined us.

"We, the pastor and members of the Community Baptist church, Landon, extend congratulations to Mrs. Charlotta Bass, editor of the California EAGLE, upon being chosen as a member of the 1943 Grand Jury.

"Because of her fearlessness in upholding all that she believes right in speech and pen we know she will fill her position well. Our small church and community are sincerely grateful for the support given them by the California EAGLE and its editor.

"We consider Mrs. Bass a great American woman, a worthy representative of outstanding achievement.

You are invited to hear him deliver one of his most outstanding messages, that you will long remember.

Come early the services start promptly at 11 o'clock.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Soul" will be the Sunday Lesson-Sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist. This selection from the Psalms is the Golden Text: "My soul shall make her boast in the Lord: the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together."

The Psalmist, in a Lesson-Sermon citation, says, "Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul . . . Shew me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day. . . . The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way." Beatitudes from Matthew are also included: "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. . . . Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. . . . Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."

Passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, read: "The evidence of the existence of Spirit, Soul, is palpable only to spiritual sense, and is not apparent to the material senses, which cognize only that which is the opposite of Spirit." "Spiritual sense is a conscious, constant capacity to understand God. It shows the superiority of faith by works over faith in words."

Baby Contest at First AME Zion Church Huge Success

The Baby Contest, which has been in progress for the last five weeks, came to a close Sunday night, Feb. 7, 1943, with Baby Thomasina Davis, as the most popular baby of Los Angeles. The second and third most popular babies are: Gail McClain and Patricia Louise White. The sponsors and parents left no stone unturned in trying to bring their baby up to first place.

Baby Thomasina Davis, must have had foresight enough to know that she was going to win the prize. While Mr. Johnson, of the Conner-Johnson Mortician establishment, who acted as judge and awarded the prizes, was getting the votes in, and officiating, she took it upon herself to stand in the isle, as tots will do, and pose for everyone. She acted like a veteran, who has just received the applause of the crowd.

The contest was quite a financial success, have netted the round figure of $1230.00.

The sponsors wish to thank all people of the city who helped them in their efforts, and they wish you to know that they appreciated your fine spirit.

Watch the EAGLE next week for the pictures of the three winning babies.

REV. ANNA L. EDMONDS

Mrs. Roxie O. Martin Ill

Rushed to Angelus hospital last Wednesday after she became violently ill, Mrs. Roxie O. Martin, wife of Mr. Wm. L. Martin of E. 45th street, is resting fair, but is still quite ill.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Martin are quite prominent in the local fraternal and religious scenes. A speedy, complete recovery is wished for Mrs. Martin by their many friends.

Youth Choir to Give Tea

The Youth choir of The Neighborhood church, San Pedro street at 47th place, will give a Valentine tea in the church parlors next Sunday afternoon from two 'til six o'clock. It promises to be a most beautiful affair with many of the city's best talent appearing on the program. The young people will serve as hostesses and invite their many friends to attend. Willa Maxine Clark is president.

USO GIRLS, WE SALUTE YOU!

By Lawrence Peter Austin, USN

USO girls we salute you,
We boys of the Navy Blue.
And may God bless and keep you,
For the work you have to do.

We express thanks in your kindness,
In giving we boys a hand.
And again we wish to thank you.
So that you may understand.

For each little converse,
That has taken up your time.
With each of the joys you've granted,
We think it pro-digy fine.

We are positive of winning the battle,
With ones undaunted as you,
And we do wish to salute you,
We boys of the Red, White, and Blue.

Your work is of vital importance,
The greatest of all in fact.
To render us boys the courage,
That shall guide us safely back.

We are aware of your sacrifice,
And of the someones, you miss too;
With this symbolic generosity,
Is a debt we could never un-due.

So carry on your work, Girls of the USO
For soo nthe darken clouds with clear,
If you wish to know.
And in our hearts we thank you,
For you're soldiers as well as we
Thus we rise to salute you,
For you represent our liberty.

I dedicate this poem to the girls of the USO, who have given so much of their time, in making all men of the arm forces, feel at home, away from home, and to these girls we salute, for they carry the true spirit and unselfish devotion to a cause.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Sadie Lewis Alexander wish to express their gratitude for the many floral offerings, cards and expressions of sympathy received from their many fraternal organizations of this city and from throughout the state.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal E. Towns, and family; Mr. and Mrs. Norwood Williams; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. McClanahan.

Universal Church Revival

The opening guns of a city-wide soul-saving campaign will be fired Sunday night, Feb. 14, at the Universal Evangelical church, Non-Denominational, 2503 S. Central avenue, when the Rev. Blanche Blake, great CME revivalist, will deliver her opening message in this war against sin.

Mrs. Blake has few equals and no peers in the conducting of revivals and attracting crowds. She is an unusual soul stirring preacher.

Daily souls are being touched by the ministry of this church. Recently, the pastor, Rev. Miss Anita L. Edmonds, has been called to the bedside of the sick at Sawtelle and the city jail to minister to the needs of many.

Last week after the delivery of a powerful message by the pastor, the congregation enjoyed the thrill of an old fashioned conversion. Souls being converted through the ministry of this pastor and church are conclusive proof that God has stamped His approval upon this work.

Unless the saving of souls is the paramount interest of a pastor and church God is displeased. This is the purpose of our ministry. The revival is on. Your attendance will be appreciated.

WAR ON NEGRO

TRUTH: For 323 years a war of prejudice, discrimination, lynching and abuses has been waged against us. I began to fight this battle when I discovered that I was a 'made fool.' Mark you, not a fool but a 'made one', like many intellectuls.

Thinking people are asking: What are we—Negroes, olored People or what? What is a NEGRO? No educator has ever given a satisfactory answer. They haven't the courage. The truth has never been told. Why is NEGRO the most disputed name? Because the truth is not known. Truth Is The Basis Of Education. I went to a university; spent 5 years in law school in Boston, became counsellor in public schools. Worked in educational sociology at New York University.

After 15 years' investigation, study and research, I found the facts, the history, the truth about the race.

With my discovery, I made money, and gained world respect.

It can do the same for you. I have complied it in the great book: "HUMAN SIDE OF PEOPLE." 399 pages, 84 pictures by myself. Raphael P. Powell. The demand for this book by thousands proves that it shows the way o success and is helping to win the war against race prejudice Price $3. Send orders to: PHILEMON CO., 224 West 135th St., New York City, GUARANTEED: The only book which gives the TRUTH about our race.

FDR CRACKS DOWN

The President has struck boldly at the conspirators of the poll tax South.

His action reinstating and strengthening the Fair Employment Practice Committee, rescheduling also the hearings on discrimination in the railroad industry,--was a milestone in the upward struggle of Negro-America. More than that, this action was a milestone in the President's domestic policy, ranking as a determined offensive against the reactionary forces which destroy with nation's war effort in stench of profiteering, prejudice and treason.

The President has acted swiftly, courageously, in the face of a Congressional opposition unprecedented in his Administration.

We must now support Roosevelt to the hilt. Too often, the chief executive has taken the right steps, only to be thwarted by obstructionism of the poll taxers in Congress. This cannot happen, however, when the people are aroused and vigilant, insisting that the President's correct policies are translated into hard reality.

This newspaper offers its full support to any war worker with a legitimate greivance, who has been discriminated against, denied upgrading or shunted in a jim-crow union. Bringing each case to a successful conclusion is the best way to support our President. The war production of our nation demands that we permit no one to limit our contribution on the assembly lines of freedom.

We will support our great President best by fighting dauntlessly for our full and equal participation in building the ships, tanks and guns of victory.

Bring any greivance you have directly to the California Eagle for prompt action!

This is the war worker's paper!

YOUTHS DEMAND ACTION IN GEORGIA LYNCHING

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—The Southern Negro Youth Congress, urged Georgia's Governor Ellis Arnall to see that the murders of Bobbie Hall, Negro mechanic of Baker County, be meted out "a swift and demonstrative punishment". Bobbie Hall was kidnapped and murdered on the night of January 29th by Sheriff Claude Screws and policeman Frank Jones of Newton, Georgia, the SNYC statement to the governor, which was signed by Louis E. Burnham, Organizational Secretary of the SNYC, follows in part:

"Some people in Georgia refuse to accept the fact that the era of Talmadgeism and the rule of the mob has come to its end. Among such people is Sheriff Claude Screws of Baker County. For on the night of January 29th, Sheriff Screws brought dishonor to his State, shame and embarassment to his nation before the eyes of the freedom loving people of the world who are our allies in a war against the international mobocracy of the Fascist Axis; he has aroused the hatred of 13 million loyal Negro citizens against him and all those associated in the suppression of the Negro in the South, which his vile deed so bitterly symbolized: he used his high office to kidnap and commit vengeful murder against an innocent and unoffending man who was guiltless of any crime or any charge of a crime. Let me briefly review the circumstances of this foul act of a Georgia office-holder:

"On the night of January 29, Sheriff Claude Screws of Baker County, Ga., accompanied by Policeman Frank Jones invaded the home of Bobbie Hall, a popular and well-respected Negro mechanic of Newton, Ga., and carried him off. To get his victim, Sheriff Screws forged a warrant charging Hall with stealing a tire from the truck of John C. Derm. (Mr. Derm has declared that he swore out no such warrant.) Between the time Sheriff Screws arrested

Sunday Mass Meet to Hit War Bias

Full war production thru immediate upgrading of qualified Negro workers in Angeles aircraft plants and shipyards coupled with a firm denunciation of Jim-Crow unionism by AFL Boilermakers at California shipyards, Consolidated shipyards and the Western Pipe and Steel company will be the determined cry of a giant mass meeting called by the Negro Victory Committee for Sunday night at 8 p. m. at People's Independent Church of Christ, 18th and Paloma streets.

Following an exclusive California EAGLE exposure of efforts to set-up a Jim-Crow local of the AFL Boilermakers union at Calship, Consolidated and Western Pipe last week, militant workers from these plants formed a broad Committee for Equal Participation to combat Jim-Crowism.

First meeting of the body brought together more than 70 shipyard workers Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. Committees were formed to honeycomb the plants on all shifts, in a drive to enlist every Negro worker in the struggle against the Boilermakers Jim-Crow policy.

Greivance after greivance Monday night indicated that war production is seriously bogged down by the Jim-Crow Boilermakers' arrangement which strips Negro workers of union guarantees for upgrading.

Negro workers are forced to pay dues to an "auxiliary" for to participate in meetings of the Negroes in Kansas City. Unable white trade unionists locally, they are cut off from their full rights as union members here.

One flagrant indication of war production damage was the statement that the Western Pipe and Steel Co. had stopped "hiring Negroes for a ten day period.

Full union participation of Negro workers would render such practices impossible.

Effect of the Jim-Crow Boilermakers policy upon morale of war workers is deadening. In open violation of the principles of the Four Freedoms and President Roosevelt executive order 8802, the Boilermakers have drawn sharp censure from progressive labor circles.

Charges have been filed with

On the Sidewalk

Negro women holding United States citizenship are eligible to apply and acceptable to the WAVES, women's naval service auxiliary, and the SPARS, women's auxiliary to the coast guard. The ordinary requirements facing all applicants are the only they they must meet.

Here is a challenge to every Negro woman in a position to join these important services.

A fundamental change in U. S. military policy is involved here. The story of how it was achieved, I think, is a singular demonstration of the power for good that is progressive journalism.

Smashing of the Jim-Crow enlistment tradition in the Navy department came as the result of an energetic campaign by the New York publication, The People's Voice.

It is a sturdy, courageous and confident voice. It has secured for American Negro women one of their greatest opportunities.

I haven't much experience as an enlistment officer. But, for the moment, let me assume that role.

Negro women I urge that all who may possible immediately apply for training in the WAVES and SPARS through their local, Los Angeles headquarters.

I urge this because women are urgently needed to take over the jobs of many men needd for combat duty in the Navy. There are whole fields of naval shore employment which lay open to women.

The service of woman will release able bodied seamen to the naval-battlefronts of the world, hastening victory, bringing closer that day when the threat of unspeakable barbarism will no longer hover over the lives of our children and our children's children.

But, even more, Negro women must gasp the opportunity for unsegregated, unbiased trailing as WAVES and SPARS to establish an important precedent in American life. Their patriotic, unselfish service may destroy forever the Hitlerite theory that Americans, when of differing complexions, cannot work side by side.

Industry and labor have learned this great truth long ago.

The armed forces are still to be shown.

Now is the time to show them.

Still, we must understand the background of the military's blind spot on the color ques-

AIR FORCE POLICY THWARTS WAR EFFORT

By CHARLOTTA A. BASS

TO THE MOTHERS AND FATHERS OF BOYS IN THE U. S. AIR FORCES:

There rests upon you a solemn responsibility.

It is one which you owe, first, to our common country.

Second, you owe that responsibility to those proud boys of yours who volunteered for service in the Air Forces of the United States Army.

A tragic situation exists. According to unimpeachable authority, according to the letters which you yourselves have received, our boys in the Air Forces are being prevented from fulfilling the great tasks which are legitimately their own.

A black wave of racial hatred and stupidity has descended upon the Tuskegee training camp. Even Negro ofifcers are segregated from whites. Negro military police are not permitted to carry arms and are consequently at the mercy of civil authorities. Worse than that, civilian police have been given military status at Tuskegee,--the typical civilian police of the poll tax state of Alabama.

Once trained, your sons are not permitted to engage in combat service. William Hastie, who resigned as a civilian aide to the Secretary of War because of the disgraceful discrimination against Negroes in the Air Forces, tells us in an official statement "characteristic asignment of the 'Aviation Squadron (Separate)' has been the performance of odd jobs of common labor which arise from time to time at air fields."

He further reveals that ground crews are not trained for the Negro squadrons. He says that no weather officers and other technical services are supplied the Negro squadrons.

He says that the Army is opposed to the existence of the Negro squadrons, consenting to their formation only at the behest of popular demand.

WHAT THIS MEANS

As shocking as this situation may appear on the ground of injustice, it is even more outrageous from the standpoint of a nation engaged in all-out warfare to decide the destiny of mankind for generations to come.

What monstrous waste of military manpower!

The authors of this policy, in or out of the Army, clearly place the preservation of prejudice, which our President says we can no longer afford, head and shoulders above the stark necessities of global warfare.

The policy thrwarts our

Woman Held on Assault Charge

Katie Davis of 717 E. 25th St., has been held to answer on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon growing out of an altercation on the 7th floor of the Fay Building at 3rd and Hill streets on February 3rd.

The complaining witness, Mary Pietrzyk, (white), a janitress employed at the same address testified at the preliminary hearing, which was held Monday morning before Judge Byron Walters in Div. 4 of the Municipal Court, that the Davis woman attacked her with a broom stick and later with a knife and inflicted severe wounds upon her shoulders and body.

The accused woman who is represented by Attorney Curtis

MACHINIST LODGE MOVE AIMED AT RACE MEMBERS

Although Lodge 727 of the International Association of Machinists has requested a national referendum on the question of permitting Negroes full and equal participation in the union, the Lodge is moving swiftly this week to collect the union books of all Negroes already, through error, taken into the organization.

This move appears to labor observers as an effort to cut off possible action by Negro members of the union should the referendum effort fail.

The Negro Victory Committee, the Workers Committee for Equal Participation and the California EAGLE urge that all Lockheed workers RETAIN THEIR UNION MEMBERSHIP BOOKS.

Union organizers who ask that Negroes send letters requesting the return of their dues should be told by Negro workers that they deserve full participation in and the full protection of the union.

Letters by Negro members requesting a refund of dues may be used in the future to "prove" that Negroes do not desire unionization.

WHY IMPORTANT

It is pointed out here that Negro workers MUST become full fledged union members, first, so that war production will not suffer from improper upgrading, which always occurs when colored workers are not fully protected by union membership.

Further, union membership is the only guarantee of continued employment after the war.

When working-staffs are sliced after the war, the unions, logically, will demand continued employment for their members to the exclusion of non-union workers.

Thus the whole industrial future of the Negro population of Los Angeles rests upon their full unionization NOW.

When approached by union officials who wish to refund Negroes their dues in the I. A. M., Negro workers MUST REFUSE this offer, retain membership, and support the commendable efforts of Lodge 727 to remove the clause against Negro participation in the national constitution of the Machinists body.

Colored workers can be a much more powerful factor in demanding the end of racial bars from within the union rather than from without.

Return no dues! Keep all union books!

NAACP JR. COUNCIL TAKES UP PROBLEM OF UPGRADING

Digging into the problems of upgrading faced by Negro youth in vital war industries, the Junior Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People meets Friday night at 7:30 p. m. at the YMCA.

Young Negroes who have broken into the ranks of industrial labor are faced today with discrimination in many defense plants, discrimination which impedes their proper upgrading and the fullest development of all-out war production. All youth in war industries are urged to bring upgrading greivances to Friday's meeting for instant action through Government, union and company channels.

A sweeping investigation of school books used in colleges and high schools which distort the role of Negroes in American history is also underway by the Council and will climax in a demand for correction of these texts before the Board of Education.

Following Friday's meeting, there will be a Co-Ed splash party of Council members in 'Y' swimming pool. Water games will be played.

Young war workers and students, don't miss this meeting.

CIO Local Raps Bias at N. American

Swift action to forestall continued race discrimination at North American aircraft company was indicated this week with a blistering statement from the United Automobile Workers, CIO, Local 887, condemning the company bias policy and pledging speedy action on all race greivances in the hands of the union.

Workers at the plant report that some improvements in general conditions and advancements of Negro employees have been noted since the beginning of a series of articles in the EAGLE exposing individual cases of discrimination against colored workers.

An important revelation this week was the fact that Negro women and men at the North American training school, 1509

Jessie Mae Artry Sedell Hearing, Take Vows

On Sunday, Feb. 14th, Mr. and Mrs. George Artry played host to a group of more than one hundred guests. At the wedding reception of their daughter Jessie Mae (Mrs. Sedell Hearring).

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Hearring of West Temple District.

The beautiful affair was held in the very popular Camille's den, and many lovely gifts were received.

The bride wore a gown of blue chiffon, with set in lace sleeves, over a taffeta slip, and a corsage of gardenias, with roses, completed her ensemble. Mrs. Artry, the bride's mother, was lovely in pink taffeta.

The young matron is a graduate of Jefferson High School, while the groom attended Belmont. The groom leaves for the army Wednesday, Feb. 18th, where the young couple will later reside.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held, with friends of the bride acting as hostesses.

Following the reception, a few of the guests were entertained at the home of the bride's parents, with a dinner and champaign party.

The couple is popular among the younger set.

Trinity Pastor Asks Army Release

Just as Trinity Baptist church planned to signally honor their pastor, Dr. J. L. Caston, with a city-wide testimonial banquet and to unveil his portrait in the chapel bearing his name, the city was thrown into great anxiety because the War Department in a letter which he received last Saturday requested him to accept an appointment as chaplain in the armed forces.

Dr. Caston served as chaplain of the Seventh Regiment, California State Guard, for one year and was commissioned a first lieutenant. He made the announcement at the conclusion of the morning service last Sunday to a packed house and called a meeting of the official board of the church to consider the matter.

The request of the War Department came as the shortage of chaplains made it necessary to raise the age limit of applicants. Dr. Caston volunteered for the Officers Reserve in 1939 but was not accepted due to the age qualification.

Last September he severed his connection with the State Guard to lead the Trinity church into its new quarters at 3500 S. Normandie avenue, and has built one of the finest churches in the city. Gloom settled over the entire Westside community and it was felt that his loss at this time would seriously handicap the future of this great church.

The official boards of the church met Monday evening to consider the matter and with the pastor decided that they would advise the War Department that his value to the war effort was greater here than in the armed forces. Plans were laid, however, to maintain the work of the church should his request of the War Department be not granted.

Dr. Caston told an EAGLE reporter that he had written the War Department rather reluctantly that he was "not available" at this time due to commitments made since his offer to serve. "I don't know what the outcome will be," he said, "but I desire now to remain here to foster the fine work of Trinity church. I have so notified the War Department, but will enter the Army without further protest should it be determined that I am needed more there than here."

In th meantime, the officials of the church urge that all members and friends of the church shall be doubly energetic in the support of the mammoth program now being developed and which was adopted at the annual meeting held two weeks ago.

New Classes Being Offered

To meet the growing demand for classes in Celestial Navigation and Military Map Reading, courses are to be opened at Central Evening High school, at 451 N. Hill street, according to announcement by Will S. Kellogg, principal.

Interested persons are urged to enroll at once at the school, or to telephone MU-1590, between 2:00 and 9:00 p. m. for information.

The Celestial Navigation class will meet every Thursday evening, beginning Feb. 18, and will be under direction of Lieut. Commander R. P. Mohle, United States Navy (Ret.). The course will emphasize application of celestial navigation to air navigation, and will take up study of the celestial sphere, time, identification of navigational stars, use of the bubble sextant, and plotting of position from celestial observations.

Robeson Gets Lincoln Award

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Paul Robeson, internationally famous baritone, received the Lincoln Award at the Lincoln Memorial exercises at the Abraham Lincoln High school Feb. 10, "in recoghition of his courageous championship of good will, tolerance, and minority rights."

The award, received in past years by such outstanding Americans as Mayor LaGuardia, Samuel Seabury, Lillian D. Wald, and Walter Damrosch, among others, was presented to the distinguished concert artist by Gabriel R. Mason, principal of the school.

GAY MODERNETTES RAISE MRS. ESTHER GREENLY

The Gay Modernettes are still nging praises to Mrs. Esther T. reenly, who so beautifully in- alled the newly elected officers r 1943. Mrs. Greenly was a pic- re of charm and poise and will ng be remembered for her in- piring remarks. She charged the rls to not lose sight of the small ings in life as they go to make p the important and lasting ings. For an example, Mrs. reenly used an apple to explain at the tiny seed found in the pple contains everything neces- ary to make the leaves, the ranches, the fruit, and even the ee. Blessings and many, many hanks Mrs. Greenly.

Miss Wilson, well known ora- or, deserves an orchid too, for er amusing rendition of Paul awrence Dunbar's works.

Mrs. Laverne Williams, hostess or the day, (which happened to e past president Thelma Coop- r's birthday) surprised her with "16" candle birthday cake. Speaking of cakes, brings to mind that Miss Mildred McCul- ough is now Mrs. Phelps and hat Miss Mildred Baskins is wearing a gorgeous ring on the orrect finger. Yes. Mr. Gilbert Myles is the lucky man, and we do mean lucky, because they don't come any better or finer than our Mildred.

We'd like to inquire of Mr. Horace Tramel, what proud papas pass out when the ladies don't smoke cigars? Ex-treasurer Mae is the mother of the lovely new daughter.

We started out to tell you the names of our new members, so back to business: Pres. Vera Thompson, Vice-Pres. Mildred Baskins; Sec'y Laverne Williams; Fin. Sec'y, Velaska Graham; Treas., Willa Mae Wright; Bus. Mgr., Louise Ateman; Critic Elizabeth Gooch; Reporter, your "humble servant", Laurine Gosey. Watch out for the Gay Modernettes because they are definitely out to make history.

'My People' Now on Air

How the American Negro is contributing to the war efort on both the battle and home fronts was depicted in the start of a new series of weekly radio broadcasts called "My People," heard over the Mutual network in cooperation with the Office of War Information last Saturday.

It wil lbe heard weekly.

Under the supervision of Dr. G. Lake Imes, distinguished Negro educator, editor, chaplain and close associate of Booker T. Washington, "My People" will feature guests from all walks of life.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Roland Hayes, noted Negro concert singer, The Lincoln niversity (Pa) Chorus, Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, and two prominent Negro educators, Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, and Dr. Fred D. PHYS ART LIT MOR CLUB HONORS LINCOLN, DOUGLASS

The Phys-Art-Lit-Mor club had its annual oLincoln Day program Friday, Feb. 12 at Sojourner Truth Home. Mrs. Margaret Rakestraw, chairman of literature, was in charge. She was assisted by Dr. Vada Somerville. Mrs. Essie Saunders had charge of the music. The appreciative audience sang patriotic songs and listened attentively to the very interesting program.

"And Now Tomorrow" was reviewed by Mrs. Rosa Cobbs. The Rev. Rakestraw gave an enlightening and informative address on Lincoln and Douglass. He said they became great men because of their thirst for knowledge, and their courage of convictions. They were leaders who never sacrificed principles. They har invincible faith—were lovers of humanity and lovers of freedom. Were champions of the unfortunate and had deep religious convictions. Miss Georgia Brown of Wesley church was soloist. The very beautiful quilt made by the members of the club was won by Mrs. Charles Blodgett, jr. Mrs. Georgia Robinson gave the "Quilt History." Mrs. Ella White was chairman of refreshments. Mrs. Ester Bruce, vice-president, is acting president in the absence of the president, Mrs. Florence A. L. Gordon.

Western Baptist State Convention to Hold Session

The mid-winter session of the Western Baptist State Convention will be held Feb. 24-25 at the Prividence Baptist church, Rev. F. L. Taylor, pastor. These sessions are highlighted with great preaching by some of the most oble Gospel preachers in the West.

Sessions will be held both ray and night with interesting features each session. We are especially happy to have two workers on the field who are rendering a most helpful service to our churches. These workers will make a complete report of the field in the session.

Thursday evening is Victory Night. We hope to raise $1,000. On this evening, which wil be used to free our convention debt, our. mins objective is to pal off the present tax obligation and when this is done, our convention will be completely free of debt.

The public is invited to all services.

Unique Stork Shower Honors Mrs. Weaver

Society turned out en masse Sunday, Feb. 7, when Mrs. Ernest Weaver (nee Baby Jase) was honored with a stork shower given by Ramelle Bagnerise, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Iola La Couer.

The Orchid Girls club, of which Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Bagnerise are popular members, presented the heir-to-be with a handsome check to purchase defense bonds.

Santa Monica Church Buys $3000 in Bonds

The Calvary Baptist church has recently purchased three thousand dollars in Government war bonds. This church under the able leadership of its pastor, Rev. W. P. Carter, has made history in the past few years, recently paying off the mortgage on $35,000 worth of property and purchasing another plot of ground for a cash consideration.

Members are looking forward to building a new church edifice since on Sunday morning the church is filled to capacity so much so that they are forced to make other provisions for the accomodation of the crowd.

Members invite all who visit the beach to come to Calvary by the sea.

Jenkins Tells Why 'Novel to End Novels' Was Written

By PAYTON MALONE

This reporter had the great pleasure of visiting Deaderick F. Jenkins, author of that challenging novel, "It Was Not My World." Frankly we didn't expect what was in store for us—a treat of the first magnitude.

Jenkins lives very quietly alone among his books and the people whose interest he has taken to his heart. The Negro people are the most beautiful people on the face of the globe Jenkins will tell you. The Negro's attitude toward the World Situation thrills him also. On entering his very modest apartment supreme serenity strikes you. His natural manner puts you at ease instantly and you feel like pouring out your soul to him. He seems never to tire at listening at the woes of humanity.

Out of a world flowing with human blood, Jenkins' behavior is one of philosophic calmness. Naturally we wanted to know the reason for this. "There is nothing strange about the present holocaust," he exclaimed. "The world has always had its Hitlers; and no doubt always will. Such people are essential The devil is always necessary to shake the so-called good and mighty people to their senses. A nation, like an individual, must be shaken to its knees—must become a child again."

Jenkins laughs at how liberal and democratic the white man, as far as words are concerned, has become since the war. "Of course," he exclaimed, "Negroes understand all this hogwash and take it all with a grain of salt." He told us frankly that when the white democratic way is compared with the Hitler way it left him unmoved. "The only people interested in democracy are Negroes," he told us.

There is nothing flashy about Jenkins. Yet one realizes at once there is something very different about the young man. He is a person of very few words. Such people, it is said, are dangerous. He is tall, handsome; slightly bald with the fingers of a great artist. Our reason for calling on Mr. Jenkins was to interview him about the novel that's proving to be one of the great contributions to social progress. This book is of course the one thing closest to his heart. Our first question was: Why did he write such a book? His reply: "Somebody had to give the Negro a decent and truthful Break in Literature." He spoke further: "Yet the fact that such a book had to be written is a great indictment and travesty on the white man's civilization."

Our next question: Since your book seems to be primarily one for a guilty white world what value has it for the Negro?

"That's a good one," he explained. "The same thing could be asked about the Church and the Negro Press. Why is it a preacher must preach every Sunday to the few who are already converted when outside the Church is the unconverted? What good does a Negro paper do the Negro when Negroes know already about being lynched? Answer these Mr. Reporter and you will have your answer!"

He continued: "Yet I do not write for one race or group. Suppose I tell you about some white people's reaction to my book. Except the reply from Mrs. Roosevelt's copy white people's reaction on the whole has been one of much comedy. I shall never forget how happy one white family in Hollywood was in getting a book by a young Negro author in person until they had read it. So few white people are emancipated I hardly think it is wise for Negroes to waste their precious time trying to educate them."

Jenkins says it took him 10 years to write his book. The actual mechanics of the book took only about two years. "The writer must first live, suffer and die for his material," Jenkins claims. "Writing a book is somewhat analogous to a mother creating her child. The rest is hard work, research and study."

No reporter can leave a writer without asking when is the next book coming. "Great books aren't written every day," said Mr. Jenkins to this one.

We could not refrain from prying into Mr. Jenkins' private life. He's an eligible bachelor who seems quite satisfied in remaining one. He has more or less married his work. He enjoys dancing, his radio—which plays almost constantly when he isn't writing. He reads a great deal but very little fiction. He thinks most fiction was written for women. Writing is his first love; piano his second one. He prefers the classics and plays the piano very well. He loves to cook—specializes in pastries. Cooking relaxes his nerves, he says. He does not play cards or drink. The latter is his one great weakness perhaps since drinking and women have saved many a man from going mad and committing suicide. He never tires of listening at Negro choirs. Likes going to Church though most preachers bore him. Good plays, concerts and sensible movies interest him. He likes visitors and enjoys autographing his books.

Our last question: Wherein lies your power as a writer, Mr. Jenkins? Said he: "Perhaps it is my frankness; or perhaps it is my subject matter and my treatment of it. Or perhaps it is because I belong to a race that ha a story to tell."

Thus ended the little chat with the young man who is simplicity personified but whose pen is dynamite.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Jenkins' novel, "It Was Not My World," sells for $1.00 a copy plus 3 cents for mailing. The address is 1464 S. Central avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.)

IN MEMORY OF

Lether Adkins Gallerson, who departed this life Feb. 13, 1942.

I cannot say, I must not say
That she is dead. She is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand
She has wandered into an unknown land.
And left us dreaming how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there;
So think of her faring on, as dear
In love of There as the love of H re,
Think of her still as the same, and say,
She is not dead, she is just away.

Lovingly,

Irene W. Hurst Weds Richard Estes; Surprises

Coming as a complete surprise to her many friends was the recent marriage of Irene W. Hurst to Richard Estes, CPO attached to the USS San Francisco.

The couple was married in Reno, Nevada by Judge McKnight and the witnesses were Mrs. Bessie Ellsworth and Mrs. Holmsby. The bride wore a stunning dressmaker suit of sheer wool in the new sunset gold shade, with hat to match, brown accessories and a corsage of orchids.

The bride is well known in social circles of the city. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Estes, a prominent family of Proffit, Virginia. He is one of eight brothers, four are in the army, with one of them, Sgt. W. Estes stationed at Fort Huachuca, another attends Spelman College, and a sister who resides in Washington, D. C.

The happy pair are honeymooning in San Francisco and will return to Los Angeles within a fortnight.

NATIONAL URBAN LEAGUE WILL MEET

NAT'L URBAN LEAGUE TO HOLD 33RD ANNUAL MEET

NEW YORK, N. Y.—"Wartime Employment and Post-war Security" will be the dominant theme of the thirty-third annual meeting of the Naional Urban League for Social Service Among Negroes. The meeting will be held at the Russel Sage Building in New York City at four o'clock on February 18th. John J. Corson, Director of the U. S. Bureau of Employment Security, will be the guest speaker for an audience that will include professional and lay leaders in the field of social work, as well as the officers and members of the National Urban League.

As in former years, the meeting will include brief transaction of offical anual business and will present the League's report of activities for the previous year. Lester B. Granger, Executive Secretary, will present the report for 1942, and William H. Baldwin, President of the League and Chairman of the Executive Board, will preside. Immediately following Mr. Corson's remarks there will be a discussion period open to all members of the audience.

During 1942 the National Urban League made notable contributions to the nation's wartime program, using as its slogan "Mobilizing Negro Citizens for Victory and Peace". Its activities in recruiting, training and placing Negro workers in war industry, in planning and advising on the housing of Negro war workers, organizing and training civilian defense volunteers have been carried on not only through the national field staff, but also through the 46 local Urban Leagues organized in key industrial centers throughout the country.

Some of the best known names in American public life are listed among the leading members and participants in its 1942 program.

tion. It is not the stupid, irrational ,enigmatic thing we might think it is.

The military's policies of discrimination grow directly from the Congressional power of the poll taxers and tehir reactionary pals of the North.

These policies are in poposition to that of the President's Administration and to the measures which control the civilian life of the nation. But they will exist until the weight of mass pressure has forever ended the tyranny of the poll tax.

Enlistment of Negro women in the WAVES is a blow to the race-bias of the Navy. It is more than that. It is a direct political shock to the poll tax reaction which has dominated army policy since the Civil War.

All our struggles are won. They are all inextricably linked with victory over the Axis.

CIO Local Raps Bias at N. American

Figueroa, who face bias in classes and are placed on jobs inferior to those for which they were trained have a legitimate greivance which CAN BE HANDLED by the union.

A special statement to the EAGLE from Local 887 follows:

The CIO came as a crusade for human rights. Among those rights were the rights of the whites and Negroes to work side by side.

Local 887 believes that Negroes as well as whites get hungry. They have the same desire for security. That is why we believe that racial prejudice is stupid, unintelligent and anti-union. Racial prejudice has been the cause of terrible persecution, discrimination and bloodshed.

For years, the industrialists have divided the American workers. They told the white workers that the Negro workers would lower their standard of living. They told the Negro workers that the white workers hated them. Negroes were discriminated against when the employers hired them and they were given the meanest jobs in the factory.

This was done at the North American Aviation when the company first began employing Negroes.

Local 887 took steps to correct this discrimination and segregation, and through the greivance committee, labor-management committee, we weer son able to place the Negro workers in production. Many Negroes working as janitors and metal segregators had aeronautical degrees, chemistry degrees and many other high-skill recommendations. We brought this to the attention of the management and through greivances turned in by these individuals, they were soon placed where they belong.

Horace Dickey, a Negro employed as a janitor, was fired simply because he dared to speak to a white girl. Dickey turned in a greivance an the union fought his case for him. Finally it was taken to a arbitration board. The decision was granted in favor of Dickey. He was reinstated with pay for the time lost. Greivances which are taken to arbitration involve a great deal of expense to the local. The Board consists of three men. One is chose by the Government, one by the company and the union chooses one.

The lawyers and witnesses who are called in to testify must also be paid. The dollar-a-month dues paid by each member, as you can see, is used to good advantage. Expense is not considered when we are fighting for our fellow-workers.

Our motto has always been, "An injury to one is an injury to all."

Mr. Webb, another Negro employee, was terminated along with a white worker for participating in a fight in the plant. The white worker was later hired back, but Webb was not. The union greviance committee took this up with the company and we were able to get Webb back on the job.

C. D. Hudson, a Negro steward, employed as a segregator, was terminated for refusing to do work assigned to him. His reason for refusing was based on the fact that this work would endanger his health. The union contract protected him and gave him the right to turn in a greivance protesting the unfair termination. Hudson's case was taken through the greivance proceedure and later appealed to arbitration. The company contended that the union had failed to appeal this case within the required time. Local 887 had contacted the government conciliation service, who took the case, and resulted in the case finally bein put into arbitration. Mr. Hudson's case will be heard very soon, and we are very confident that justice will be meted out by the board.

Our greivance committee has been very active in the transfer of Negro employees from janitorial work to better paying jobs in production. The local has fought every attempt by the company to discriminate against Negro workers. When the company refused to employ Negro women, the production and greivance committees protested to the company, and this condition was soon changed. Local 887 has, and will continue to fight for the right and defend the dignity of the Negro workers. We have proved to the workers that we practice what we preach.

We know that there can be no true labor unity without interracial solidarity. Every member of Local 887 believes this, because inter-racial solidairty is nothing but god unionism. And god unionism will free al lof us, white and Negro alike.

Sunday Mass Meet to Hit War Bias

the Fair Employment Practice Committee against the union by the Committee for Equal Participation through the local office of the War Manpower Commission.

The EAGLE learned today that in San Francisco, where Negro stooges have set up a functioning Jim-Crow union with paid officers, the War Manpower Commission's Area Advisory Committee on Discrimination is pressing charges that the AFL Boilermakers Local 513 of Richmond has deprived shipyards of "a supply of labor which is desperately needed" by its discrimination against Negroes.

The Committee recommended that a complete and detailed complaint be filed with the FEPC through Northern California's WMC office.

More than 70 specific complaints have been laid before it, said the committee. "Undoubtedly there are scores of Negro workers whose cases were not reported to us, now employed in other industries who were barred from the Richmond shipyards by the AFL Boilermakers and who are therefore not making their full contribution to the war effort," said Kathen Giffin, who represents CIO on the committee.

DAMAGE TO WAR EFFORT IS STRESSED

The Boilermakers policy of Jim-Crow unionism is "directly and adversely affecting this nation's war effort," said Rev. Clayton D. Russell today in emphasizing this importance of a mass attendance of shipyard workers at Sunday night's Victory Committee meeting.

"As patriotic Americans determined that war production shall not fall victim to the Hitlerite prejudices of any group," said Russell, "we demand of the Boilermakers nothing less than the full and equal participation of Negro men and women in the union."

ASK GREIVANCES

Shipyard and aircraft workers who have greivances against companies or unions, especially those who have not been properly upgradad, are urged to attend Sunday's meeting.

Says Soldier Beat Her; He's Held

Finis Parker, former Angeleno and now in the U. S. Army stationed at Pittsburgh, Calif. has been held to answer on a charge of asasult with a deadly weapon on complaint of Mrs. Esophine Davis of 4311 McKinley Ave., at a preliminary hearing which was held in Div. 4 of the Municipal Court last Friday evening before Judge Byron Walters.

The Davis woman testified that on Jan. 29th, Parker came to her home unannounced, forced himself into her rom and demanded a sum of money. She states that she refused, whereupon Finis grabbed the leg ofa piano stool and beat her severely about her face and body, necessitating her removal to the General Hospital. Defense Attorney Curtis C. Taylor representing Parker subjected the prosecutrix to a severe cross-examination in which she admitted that she had known Parker for sometime and that he had been a frequent visitor at her house.

Parker did not take the stand, his attorney stating to the court that he would put on a defense when the matter comes up for trial. The accused man was ordered to report in Dept. 43 on March 4th for plea.

Men's Day at Second AME

Sunday is men's day at Second AME church, corner 43rd and San Pedro place, Rev. Jno. B. Isaacs, minister.

Four great services during the day will have as their theme, "Planning for the Future."

Speaker for the 11 o'clock hour will be Rev. Hicks, who will be supported by a 50-voice male chorus with L. G. Eggleston as guest director.

The Sunday School, 9:30 a. m., will have as guest superintendent, Freddy Baker.

A guest director will conduct the Endeavor Forum at 6:00 p. m.

At 3:00 p. m. Sunday, services will be featured by the appearance of Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, Councilman Allen, and A. J. Kelley Williams.

R. B. Strather is program director.

AWVS, Service Men Rehearse for Vesper Hour

A.W.V.S. hostess and service men are busy these days rehearsing for the first Vesper hour services to be held at the Southeast A. W. V. S. canteen at 45th and Central on Sunday, Feb. 28th.

Miss Olivia Page, who is in full charge of the services reports some very fine results coming from her choir composed only of service men and A.W.V.S. hostesses. Miss Page also announces that there will be a prayer box in the canteen at all times and soldiers that want prayers may drop their names in the box. This A.W.V.S. canteen is the first of its kind to set aside its dancing and recreation for one hour each week to worship God, which highly meets with the approval of the servicemen and commanding officers.

The girls are also making weekly visits to the station hospital at Sawtelle to visit bed-ridden soldiers who are missing from their canteen because of illness, many of the soldiers visited have returned from overseas injured. The girls solicit candy and cigarettes to carry to them.

Last Saturday evening at the regular Saturday evening dance which is given for servicemen in this area and servicemen on week end leaves, The Po-Ke-No Club members took charge of the canteen and served hundreds of tasty sandwiches along with home made cakes to more than 400 servicemen.

Jail Man Who Cut Woman

Badly slashed about the face, and probably disfigured for life, Miss Eddie Mae Brown, 117 Waller street, is suffering from a vicious attack by Jas. Villoreal at 11:30 p. m. last Friday. He was arrested later by Newton Station officers, Davis and Smith.

Reportedly angry and jealous, Villearal was reported by the victim to have entered her home, and without warning began cutting her with a razor. He fled, but later returned, while she was at the phone calling police, and he again attacked her cutting her about the neck. The defendant was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

AIR FORCE POLICY THWARTS WAR EFFORT

country's war effort.

Any such policy, in this moment in which we prepare for the greatest military offensive in all history, must be attacked furiously in the name of the United States, the United Nations and a people's victory.

WHAT YOU CAN DO

The power of mass pressure must be invoked to clear this boulder from the road to victory. The mothers and fathers of Tuskegee boys are urged to take the forefront in the struggle to arouse our whole community and, through its example, the whole nation to action.

There is a last word from Hastie which we must remember. He says "While Negro trainees and cadets at the Tuskegee Air Base have done well from a strictly technical point of view, they have suffered such demoralizing discrimination and segregation that, in my judgement, the entire future of the Negro in combat aviation is in danger. MEN CANNOT BE HUMILIATED OVER A LONG PERIOD OF TIME WITHOUT A LOSS OF COMBAT EFFICIENCY."

You did not send your sons to this people's war to be humiliated. You sent them, with proud patriotism, to offer their lives in the defense of human liberty and to save this globe from the barbarism of fascist domination.

I urge you to take up the cudgle in your sons' defense so that their full measure of devotion may be contributed to our nation. Remember, those who block their progress are the enemies of victory.

I propose a body of Tuskegee parents to organize publicity, mass pressure and protest looking toward the fullest utilization of U. S. military manpower against the hideous enemies of this nation.

I urge that you phone me promptly at CE. 24228, or visit the California Eagle office at 4075 So. Central Ave.

Woman Held on Assault Charge

C. Taylor denies the charges and states that the prosecutrix has been picking on her ever since the time of her employment at the building and starting quarrels with her based upon color prejudices. She also states that at the time of the fight she only acted in self-defense after she had been struck a vicious blow over her eye with the back of a scrub brush.

Attorney Taylor did not allow his client to take the stand at the preliminary hearing, but the trend of his questions on cross-examination was clearly the laying of a foundation for a plea of self-defense. The Davis woman and her attorney were ordered to appear in Dept. 43 of the Superior Court on March 4th for plea.

Woodlawn 'Y' Elects New Chairman

The Woodlawn Branch Committee of Management elected Mrs. A. R. Mosely, Chairman.

Mrs. Mosely, a teacher in the city school system, active in civic and educational circles, has served the Branch in many capacities, formerly a member of the Girl Reserve Committee, adviser for Girl Reserve Club and Mother's Council, chairman of Family Relations Committee, and the recent chairman of the membership committee which has just completed one of its most successful years under her fine leadership and guidance.

The officers elected are Mrs. Jack Smitherman, Vice-Chairman, Mrs. Lillian Fentress, secretary.

Mrs. Mildred Hampton, president of the Business and Professional Girls' League, will serve as chairman of Loyalty Month Membership effort. Mrs. Hampton is busy devising plans for an active campaign and will have some interesting announcements in the near future.

Mrs. George A. Beavers, Jr., chairman of Health Education and Recreation Committee announces an event of interest to all members and friends of the Branch, Thursday, February 18, 1943, 3 to 5 p. m. "Open House" with Mrs. Clara Cassell and Mrs. Dorothy Chatterton of the Visiting Nurses Association responsible for the program features.

Chauffeur Cleared of Hit and Run

Johnny W. Brown, chauffeur employed at 226 S. Berendo St. wa sacquitted of charges of hit and run, a felony, after a trial by Judge Harold B. Landreth in Dept. 42 of the Superior Court last Thursday morning in which he was represented by Attorney Curtis C. Taylor.

Brown had been arrested on complaint of Mrs. Bessie Burton of 320 S. Catalina St. who charged that on Dec. 16, 1942, Brown ran her down at the corner of Third and Berendo Sts. and inflicted severe injuries about her back and knees. Mrs. Burton however, cold not identify the accused man as the driver of the car and neither could several other witnesses.

The license number of Brown's automobile was secured by two of the witnesses, who testified that a car bearing that number was the one they found near the scene of the accident.

When the prosecution had rested after putting about nine witnesses on the stand including police officers, Defense Attorney Taylor made a motion to dismiss on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The motion was granted.

2 Men, 2 Women Rob, Burn House

Police are searching for two women and two men, of whom they have good description who are suspected of having ransacked the residence of Mrs. Joyce Lawson, 3525 Holmes avenue last week. Effecting an entrance through the back door, they ransacked the house, and carried off clothing and a wrist watch valued at $45.

A nearby neighbor, observed one of the couples, while in the house, but did not know if they were intruders. Shortly after they disappeared the house burned, set afire, say police by the burglars.

BOB HOPE IN "THEY GOT ME COVERED" AT U. A.

Hilarity runs high at the United Artists Theatre, 933 So. Broadway, downtown Los Angeles, where Samuel Goldwyn's new laugh-riot, "They Got Me Covered," is now playing with Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour in the starring roles.

With a screamingly funny initial sequence starting the rapid pace, the picture continues its high-gear progress to an uproaring ending, with a wealth of comedy sandwiched in between to make the offering one of the season's gayest films.

Hope enacts the role of a zany foreign correspondent for a big New York news syndicate, Miss Lamour that of his girl-friend and head of the syndicate's Washington office. Hope was in Moscow when the German invasion of Russia begins, but he mistook the frantic troop movements for a parade, and muffed the story completely. Discharged by the furious manager, Hope goes to Washington for romance and consolation.

March-of-Time presents an added scoop on the same program "One Day Of War-Russia: 1943". It is startling, sensational, front line pictures of the Russian "Blitz" in action.

Mrs. Ashford Appointed

Willa Jean Ashford, well known in social and scholastic circles and wife of postal employee emmett Ashford, has pased the Civil Service examination for playground director and will be assigned to the Ross Snyder playground, it was learned by the EAGLE this week.

YOUTHS DEMAND ACTION IN GEORGIA LYNCHING

Hall and the time he took him to the jail in Newton, the Sheriff and his policeman aid had inflicted a brutal and fatal beating to the man. The condition of his body suggests that Hall was dragged behind a car over rough ground. His head was crushed in a gruesome manner. What was the motive for such an assault? It is suggested by some white citizens of Newton and friends of the victim, that the Sheriff was angry with Hall for going to the grand jury to obtain authority to get a pistol that he (the Sheriff) had taken out of his car several days before.

"So far as we know, no charges have been brought against Sheriff Screws or his accomplice in this crime. We therefore urge you sir, to bring the full power of the law enforcement agencies at your command to bear against Sheriff Screws and his cohorts. Bobbie Hall cannot be brought back to life by the punishment of his murderers, but a demonstrative punishment of the perpetrators of this crime will make a signal contribution toward the eradication of mob law in Georgia and the south and will in some measure repair the damage done to the morale of the Negro people and the mounting unity of Negro and white Southerners in the interest of winning the war."

Soldiers Hear Marian Anderson

SEATTLE, Feb. 17.—For the second consecutive week a prominent figure in the world's musical circle appeared in concert at the Seattle Cantonment for colored soldiers. Last Friday, Feb. 5, it was the renowned tenor, Roland Hayes. This time it was the noted contralto, Miss Marian Anderson, singing before a censored number of soldiers and guests. Master Sergeant Rayfield Lundy, Pasadena, Calif., was master of ceremonies.

Ford-Broussard Engagement Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Ford, sr., 1344 East 50th Street, an- nounced the engagement of their daughter, Thelma, to Harry Joseph Broussard on Sunday, Feb. 14, 1943, St. Valentine's Day.

The engagement terminates a year's courtship of the popular young couple. Miss Ford, employ- ed at Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company, for the past two years, now heads an import- ant department in that concern. A graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School and Los Angeles City College, she is also a mem- ber of the Brigadette Social Club.

Mr. Broussard, formerly of Lake Charles, Louisiana, is the son of Mrs. Laura Broussard. For the past five years he has been employed at the Thriftown Mar- ket as manager. He was one of the first Negroes to gain a pilot's license and to become a member of the National Aeronautical As- sociation.

Definite plans for the wedding have not been made, however, it will take place during the month of March.

ARTISTS DO SERVICE BROADCAST

Although the nation's radio audience at large does not get to enjoy them because they are sent over shortwave, a series of radio programs sponsored by the War Department is underway from here. It is called the Jubilee program and is being given by some of the race's most out- standing artists.

Letters from North Africa, the Solomon Islands, Australia, Alas- ka, and other far-flung outposts of the American forces, have al- ready begun to come in. All ex- press their gratitude and pleas- ure at hearing the singing and dialogue of their fellow-Ameri- cans back home.

Ernest Whitman, radio, stag and screen highlight, is the of- ficial master of ceremonies, in- troducing the other members of the cast, and also rendering so- los in his rich-voiced baritone.

The program started from a command performance order- ed by the service division of the War Department that prov- ed so popular it was decided to make it a permanent institu- tion.

Lena Horne, the Mills Bro- thers, Noble Sissle's band, Nico- demus, Jesse Cryer, and other widely known figures have been appearing on the Jubilee pro- gram.

SUCCESS OF "CABIN IN THE SKY" WILL HELP NEGROES IN FILMS

MILLION AND A HALF DOLLARS SPENT ON FIRST NEW MAJOR NEGRO PICTURE IN SEVERAL YEARS.

By LEO ROA — (Hollywood Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF., Jan.,—Within a few months, "Cabin in the Sky," Metro's huge all-colored production starring Ethel Waters, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Lena Horne, Rex Ingram, Duke Ellington and his orchestra, Louis Armstrong and Kenneth Spencer, will be released on a nation-wide scale. If it is greeted with public approval, it will start a trend in the making of both all-colored and mixed cast pictures that will give the Negro a strong entertainment and talent outlet in Hollywood.

It will be remembered that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is no experimenter but rather the pioneer in the field of the all-colored production. For it was this company, in 1929, which brought "Hallelujah" in all its glory under the direction of able King Vidor, to the screen.

Nothing has been spared towards the making of "Cabin in the Sky" in its various technical departments. Upwards to a million and a half dollars have been spent to give it the super-super touch akin to the tinsel city. Aside from its roster of great stars, the film will present a cast of feature players who are well seasoned in the art of entertainment. Among them are such favorites as Ernest Whitman, Nicodemus, Buck and Bubbles, Bill Bailey, Moke and Poke, Mantan Moreland, Willie Best and a group of the prettiest girls in Hollywood.

Produced by Arthur Freed, one of the most liberal showmen in Hollywood, "Cabin" was directed by Vincent Minnelli, with the celebrated choral director, Hall Johnson, as special adviser. It's from the Broadway stage hit of the same name and has been specially woven for the screen by the deft touch of the M-G-M staff.

Its cast has been given every latitude and with great ease, moves from the height of comedy to the depth of pathos, giving the fantasy all the bite, the dramatic urgency and lyrical overtones of a production of real worth. In it has been captured something human in the theme battle of good and evil and shows the great heights to which the race, through its imagination, can soar.

For more reasons than one, "Cabin in the Sky" is a picture to be seen.

(Above) Also in "Cabin in the Sky" are radio-famous Eddie "Rochester" Anderson and Lena Horne, the most outstanding screen discovery of 1942.

A New L. A. Pastor Speaks

Citizens of Los Angeles, Greetings. I am sure that other newcomers have felt as I felt when they stepped off the train into your Union Station. These words came to me as I beheld the rare beauty and friendly atmosphere of your city: "Surely this is the City of the Angels. It is rightly so named". And then as I entered the community which is more or less dominated by us, I was more thrilled to see the serenity, the dignity and the prosperity that outlined nearly every doorstep of your homes. As I conversed with you I soon discovered that my race here has already ARRIVED!! You are a progressive people. You are an intelligent people. You are a capable people who have businesses of your own and who command positions which were once limited to whites. I shall be very fortunate if you will allow me to become one of you!!

I am pastor of the Lincoln Memorial Congregational church. But by their consent and desire I am also your minister-friend and if you will allow me, I shall seek you out to fellowship with you and share our mutual interest and needs.

You are welcomed to Lincoln Memorial at all times. We make no difference about membership or denominational affiliation. We shall greet you at all times and make you welcome. We have Sunday School at 9:30, morning worship at 11, Young People's discussion and recreation at 5:30 and Vesper Services at 7:30 p. m. Feel free to come. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the same where ever it is preached and the Christian fellowship knows no class nor lines of demarcation.

Your new-comer,
L. E. Galloway, pastor

LARY Displays Carver Photo

LARY this week startled, pleasantly so, the community by using a photograph of the late Dr. George Washington Carver on the weekly street car and bus pass. (Editor's Note: It is fondly hoped Martin Dies doesn't get to hear of this, for LARY will surely be listed with those attempting to incite national discord!)

Instructions to Volunteer Residents

Nurseries for the care of children in war working families honey-combed throughout the Eastside was the happy prospect held forth this week as all community forces working for a full-scale child care program solidified behind a single program under sponsorship of the South-East Child Care Committee.

War working mothers whose children are left on the streets during working hours or in the indifferent of neighbors and oldsters are urged to rally behind the effort to secure scores of nursery centers on the Eastside.

Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins, who has just returned from Sacramento, where the State legislature cleared away all obstacles to the launching of effective child care program, stressed that now is the time for all groups in the community who have been working on child care to get together behind one concrete program.

"Excellent work has been done by the various groups in popularizing the necessity for a child care program, but now the job is to get the evidence that there is a need in the community, and this can only be done by the means of a survey."

Careful plans have been worked out by the Southeast Child Care Committee, which is headed by Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins nad Dr. Ruth Temple, to conduct on Feb. 27-28 and March 1 a house-to-house survey that will register all mothers who have children and who are in need of child care. This information will then be presented to the oBard of Education and will be the basis upon which our community wil be able to make demands for proper child care. Without this information, a complete and effective case for child care cannot be presented.

The Committee has simplified the procedure so that every registrant can understand clearly what is expected of him—and so that no one will have too much to do. If you volunteer you will receive a thorough explanation of the procedure. In brief, this is the plan. Each area selected for the survey will be divided up and small cards issued telling the volunteer what block he is to cover. For instance, your card might say: "Start at Central Avenue and 43rd Place. Work East on 43rd Place on the north side of the street to Ascot."

Efforts will be made to assign volunteers to districts with which they are acquainted. When you receive your asignment you will be given some of the survey tally sheets. They are convenient to handle and the questions are simple. We ned to know the names of working mothers, their addresses, telephone numbers, the ages of children, whether the mothers believe the children are receiving adequate care in the absence of parents, and whether they desire additional care for them. The sheets will be made up as charts and for the most part the volunteers will need only to check the answers. A promotional and publicity campaign will be carried on before the survey to acquaint the community with what we are doing and the great value of cooperating with us.

The Committee suggests that clubs, church groups, unions, and other organizations take the full responsibility for certain districts. That is, a particular club might secure five volunteers. Then the Committee could turn over to the chairman of this group of volunteers as a set of cards (describing the blocks to be covered) and a set of the survey charts. They would carry on from there and when the district was thoroughly covered would return the sheets to the Child Care Committee.

This is our opportunity to do an important job that has to be done. It is our chance to prove the thing we al know--that the Eastside community has pressing ned for more adequate facilities for care of the children of wroking mothers.

Augustus Hawkins, chairman of Child Care Committee and Dr. Ruth Temple, co-chairman.

If you will volunteer for yourself or your organization, write immediately Child Care Committee, c/o California Eagle or telephone Rose Segure, Survey Manager, MIchigan 3097.

BANQUET PROGRAM AT TRINITY ANNOUNCED

The committee in charge of the Testimonial Banquet, Portrait Unveiling and Art Exhibit to be held at the Trinity Baptist church this Thursday night at 7:30 p. m. honoring Dr. J. L. Caston has completed arrangements for one of the most elaborate expressions of city-wide esteem ever planned by the local church.

The art exhibit was hung this week by Art Landy and his assistants of the Otis Art institute and the interior decorating went ahead under the capable direction of Mrs. Ora Lee Scott.

The banquet committee announced that tickets were at a premium, with none available aside from those sent to special guests whose reservations were pouring in daily.

The full program, under the one and only Clarence Muse, who will be toastmaster, was given out as follows: Soloists, Josephine Cooper, Norris J. Stokes jr., C. C. Rosemond and Carrie McDaniels. Mr. Brown will be the violinist and two special numbers will be given by the ladies octette of the church. The portrait of the minister will be presented to the church by Mr. Clarence Hargrave and Dr. W. D. Carter will officiate at the unveiling ceremony.

At the banquet, the speakers and their topics will be: "From One Minister to Another," Rev. J. Raymond Henderson; "As a 'Y' Worker," Rev. L. G Robinson; "As a Leader in Civic Affairs," Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass; "Friend and Associate," George A. Beavers; "As a Church Executive," Paul H. Cassell; "As a Churchman," S. P. Johnson; "As a NAACP Worker, Atty. Thomas L. Griffith jr.; "As An Urban League Supporter," Floyd C. Covington; "As a Pastor and Friend," Clarence Hargrave; "As a Religious Advisor," Gus Smith.

Mrs. Q. T. Bookman, president of the women's ensemble of the church which organization conceived the idea; Mrs. Virdes Shortridge, directress of the group; Mrs. Frieda Thomas, Mrs. Victoria Satchell, Mrs. Fannie Carpenter and other special committee members, have been especially active in working out the numerous details. Mr. William Gibbs will do the electrical illumination.

Four great programs starting with Sunday School at 9:30 a. m.-11 a. m. worship; 3 p. m. Community Program and at 6:30 the Allen Christian Endeavor: Guest speakers at all our services. You and your friends are cordially invited to attend. Joseph Buckner, General Chairman.

C. of C. Speaker at Faithful Centre Church

In line with the true spirit of Americanization Week, now in its midst, one of the best informed and most eloquent young members of the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce will speak on the special program presented next Sunday night, Feb. 21, by the American Anti-Prejudice Society, Inc., at Faithful Centre Baptist church.

The program is set to take place at 8:00 p. m. with both vocal and instrumental numbers included by way of entertainment.

The participation by a representative of the live Junior Chamber of Commerce was arranged by W. E. Wiener, newly elected president of the Americanization Week committee, which is an annually functioning body within the organization.

In accepting the invitation of the society's founder and president, C. Townsend Tucker, Wiener expressed his desire to cooperate with it in spreading Americanism more and more intensively among the important minority group for which it aims to secure full citizenship.

Garner Day in St. Paul Baptist

Prof. George Garner, who met with a serious automobile accident which all but took his life and was forced to remain in the hospital for more than eight months, is to make his first public appearance at the St. Paul Baptist church.

Prof. Garner with national, if not world fame as a musician will be guest soloist accompanied by Mrs. Paulyn Garner. Both major choirs of St. Paul will participate. Pastor S. A. Williams by special request will recapitulate his sermon on 'Prayer With Three Legs' at the 11 o'clock service.

In the afternoon at three-thirty, a testimonial will be held in honor of Professor Garner, featuring the following program:

Selection-----Two Major Choirs
Selection----Three Gospel Tones, trio
"Prof. Garner as a Religionist"-----Speaker, Mary Ruth Banks
Solo---Marie Overstreet Jackson
Speaker, Representing the Clergy----------Dr. J. D. Gordon
Speaker, Representing the Musicians--Dr. Arnold H. Wagner, USC
Speaker, Representing the Citizens---------Mrs. C. A. Bass
Selection from Choirs jointly.
Special numbers will also be brought by the Los Angeles Gospel Choral Union.
Presentation of distinguished visitors

In the evening at 7:30, being divinely inspired to enter the ministry, Profesor Garner will preach his trial sermon preparatory to receiving his ministerial license. Special numbers will be rendered by the major choirs.

Professor George Garner has been a graduate student in the School of Religion at the University of Southern California for the past three years. But for the serious accident from which he is recovering, the degree of Master of Theology would have been conferred upon him at the convocation of the University in June. However, Mr. Garner is now enrolled at the University School of Religion and will receive the degree, Master of Theology, next February.

The public is cordially invited to attend all of the services.

Rev. S. A. Williams, pastor.

Universal Church Revival Has Victorious Opening

REV. ANITA L. EDMONDS

The Universal Evangelical Church, Non-Denominational, 2503 So. Central Ave., pastored by the Rev. Miss Anita L. Edmonds, opened its 3rd anniversary celebration with a soul saving campaign which promises to be one of the most successful revivals ever conducted in this city. Already 3 souls have been added to the church through the powerful preaching of the word of God.

City of the Angeles. It is rightly Memorial at al times. We make Denominational ideas and racial barriers have been torn asunder, so much so, that a white brother joined the church Monday night, and promises to be a great asset to the work.

The Rev. Mrs. Blanche Blake, soul stirring evangelist, is sparing no pains in making the gospel real to the souls of men. She is a dynamic speaker and very original in her manner of preaching. All who fail to hear her will surely miss a treat. Meetings are conducted throughout the week.

This is a New Testament Church, and its pastor emphasizes New Testament fundamentals, which are: Repentance, Matt. 3:2-8; Conversion and Water Baptism, St. John 3:3-5; Sanctification, Rom. 15-16; Baptism of the Holy Ghost, Acts 19:6, Matt. 3:11.

Meet the pastor, hear the evangelist, and better your spiritual condition by attending this revival.

Listen in Thursday night at 9:45 over KFOX for the Voice of the Universal Evangelical Church.

Community Health Meet Set Mar. 7

That the First AME Church, 8th and Towne, will be the scene of the fifth annual community health meeting, Sunday afternoon, March 7th, was decided at a meeting of the Advisory Committee of the East Area Health Program. Norman O. Houston, chairman, announced yesterday, "For the past four years the Southern California Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association, in cooperation with the Los Angeles City Health Department and the East Area Health Program of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health Association, has staged succesful educational meetings during March. The purpose of these meetings is to bring to the people of our community information which will help protect them from unnecessary illnesses. War and its relation to the health of the individual is to be the theme of this year's session", Houston said. The meeting is called for 3:30, and all residents of the area are cordially invited to attend. There will be no admission charge and no offering will be taken, according to the announcement from the chairman.

Highlighting the program will be brief talks by some of the outstanding leaders in the public health field, including W. Roderick Brown, M. D., Medical Consultant for the United States Office of Civilian Defense; C. Leon Wilson, M. D., consultant in Maternal and Infant Hygiene for the Illinois State Department of Health; Hugh Browne, M. D., Superintendent, Thomas C. McRae Memorial Sanatorium, Alexander, Arkansas; Major Hugh Simmons, Fort Huachuca, Ariz., formerly medical instructor at Howard University School of Medicine, Washington, D. C.; William D. Giles, D. D. S., of Chicago. Local physicians an dinterested lay leaders of the area will also take part in the program, which will embody discussion of the following topics: War Medicine; Tuberculosis, Child care; Dental Hygiene, and others.

Following the community meeting there will be a four day post graduate symposium for physicians in which the above mentioned specialists will delve into the more technical aspects of these health problems. The symposium, starting Monday, March 8th, and running through Thursday, March 11th, is open to all physicians without charge. These sessions will be held at the 55th Street Clinic, according to Dr. Henry A. McPherson, president of the Southern California Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Asosciation.

First AME Zion Pastor Continues Sermon Series

Rev P. M. Marshall, First AME Zion Church, is continuing the series of sermons of the 23 Psalms and the American home, each Sunday evening.

Last Sunday, Rev. Marshall preached on "He Restoreth My Soul." This coming Sunday his subject will be "He Leadeth Me In The Paths of Righteousness For His Name's Sake." Bishop W. C. Brown will conduct the Wednesday revival.

Bishop Brown is presiding elder in this area. During his messages, it is hoped 100 men, women and children will enlist for Christian service. He is well known as a gospel preacher.

Body of Will Black Shipped

The body of Will Black, who until his death on Feb. 1 lived at 1225 E. 67th St., was shipped back to his native home, Benton, La., last Wednesday, according to The People's Funeral Home. Mr. Black, a widower, had lived in the city a number of years. The body was accompanied by Mrs Goldie Herman, a daughter, of Shreveport, La.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The Sunday Lesson-Sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, will be "Mind." The Golden Text, chosen from Isaiah, reads: "The Lord of hosts hath sworn, saying, Surely as I have thought, so shall it come to pass; and as I have purposed, so shall it stand."

Scriptural citations include these selections also from Isaiah: "And it shall come to pass in the last days, that the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it. . . . and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: . . . And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. . . . Sing unto the Lord; for he hath done excellent things: . . . for great is the Holy One of Israel in the midst of thee."

Mary Baker Eddy writes in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures:" "With one Father, even God, the whole family of man would be brethren; and with one Mind and that God, or good, the brotherhood of man would consist of Love and Truth, and have unity of Principle and spiritual power which constitute divine Science."

Mrs. Jessie Coles Grayson Honored By Woodlawn Branch YWCA

Mrs. Jessie Coles Grayson, chairman of the Committee of Management of the Woodlawn Branch YWCA was recipient of special honor at the first annual meeting held Sunday in the new building on Woodlawn Avenue.

Members informally for tea in the girls' club room where they were greeted by representatives of the Committee of Management, Membership and staff including Mrs. Lloyd C. Griffith, chairman of Hospitality, Dr. Alice Garrott, Mrs. Walter L. Gordon, Sr., Mrs. Josephine Brown, Carmelita White, Elmira Gumn, Orchid Oliver, Renita Henry, Muriel Wilma Chapman, Mrs. Emmett Harris, Marilyn Williams, Mrs. Hazley, Ruby C. Jefferson, Mrs. Archie R. Mosely, chairman of Membership.

Promptly at 4 o'clock Station YWCA went "on the air" and from the living room "News Flashes of 1942" given by Adelia Smith, reporter brought to members the events of 1942. During the broadcast, singing was led by Mrs. Ursula Pruitt Adams with Mrs. Jack Smitherman at the piano. In closing, the broadcast brought to the ears of listeners these words "The Woodlawners have closed one of the most successful years in their history under the dynamic, efficient and courageous leadership and guidance of the Chairman of the Committee of Management. Her charming personality and enthusiastic attitude made possible spiritual growth and inspiration to the entire association. Who is this chairman? Why, none other than our beloved Jessie Coles Grayson, who will preside at the business session immediately following this broadcast. Mrs. Grayson presided at the business session. The report of the 1942 Nominating Committee was made by Mrs. Myrtle Hughes, chairman as follows: New members to the Committee of Management Mrs. Doris Houston, and Mrs. Henry McPherson; for the 1943 Nominating Committee Mrs. George A. Beavers, Jr., Dr. Alice Garrott, Mesdames Eugene Davidson and Mrs. P. Price Cobbs and Miss Dorothy Crafton.

Members of the 1943 Committee of Management also included Mrs. Bert McDonald and Mrs. Archie R. Mosely and Mrs. Jack Smitherman reelected for a second term of 3-years; Mrs. Byron F. Kenner, Mrs. J. Cullen Fentress and Mrs. Charles S. Morris, III, to complete a term of two years. Other members continuing to serve are Mesdames George A. Beavers, Jr., Josephine Brown, Isabelle Clifton, Dr. Alice Garrott, Walter Gordon, sr., A. Hill, Byron F. Kenner, Loren Miller, Leonard Stovall, Howard Washington, Miss Carmelita White.

Mrs. Grayson and Mrs. Lloyd Griffith have this year completed six years service on the Committee of Management.

The final report to the membership on the work of the Negro Branch Building Project was made by Mrs. Grayson with the announcement of purchase of $5000 worth of war bonds from the Liberty Savings Loan Company as a nest egg of savings for the permanent building to be erected after the war. The Committee of Management and staff represented by Mrs. Loren Miller presented Mrs. Grayson with the gift of a broach pin as an expression of love and appreciation for her splendid service as leader during the past five years.

Next significant event is Open House Thursday, February 18th, when Miss Clara Cassell and Mrs. Dorothy Chatterton of the Visiting Nurses Association will be guests. Meeting is from 3 to 5 p. m.

The Annual Meeting of the YWCA was graced with flowers and palms loaned by Mrs. Alma Frances Hurd of the Alma Frances Flower shop which decorated the club room for the tea. Mrs. Hurd also presented Mrs. Grayson with a corsage.

Elmer Carter Will Write Column

ELMER ANDERSON CARTER, brilliant writer, for 14-years the editor of Opportunity Magazine has been persuaded to write a weekly column for a selected group of papers beginning Feb. 13, 1943. During his regime as editor of Opportunity he brought to that magazine the outstanding writers of America--both colored and white. He secured the active interest of Pearl S. Buck in the problem of the Negro in America and she became a regular contributor to the pages of the magazines.

Elmer Carter has been a member of the Board of Appeals of the Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance of the Department of Labor for five years. He was appointed to this position by the former Governor of the State of New York, Herbert H. Lehman, in 1938, and was reappointed in November, 1941 by Governor Lehman for the statutory term of six years.

The title of Elmer Carter's column will be "Plain Talk". It will be placed through Continental Features and News Service.

208 Graduate at McKinley

At the commencement held at McKinley Junior High School on Friday, January 29, 208 pupils graduated. The Rev. Clayton D. Russell gave the invocation, which was followed by two brief talks given by graduating A9s.

Pearl Denkins spoke on "Preparation Through Good Citizenship" and Thomasina Ayers on "Preparation Through Self-Application". The A9 Ensemble rendered two numbers. Weldena Hefflin gave a third talk on "Preparation Through Science." The combined Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs and the orchestra then rendered America, My Wonderous Land.

At the conclusion of this rendition the Class of Winter '43 was presented to Mrs. Faye Allen, Member of the Board of Education, who gave a very nice talk to our A9's and the parents, and presented the diplomas to the graduating A9s.

Man Held on Morals Charge

Frank Rivera, furniture factory employee of 1827 W. Jefferson Blvd. has been taken into custody by Juvenile Officers of the University Street Station on a charge of suspicion of violation of Section 288 of the Penal Code. The arrest was made on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 6, after a complaint had been lodged against the accused man by a group of little girls who charged that Rivera had made improper advances to them.

The accused man is represented by Attorney Curtis C. Taylor. He was arraigned in Div. 4 before Municipal Judge Byron Walters and his preliminary hearing has been set down for Feb. 12.

Rivera stoutly denies the charges.

Eastside USO Kitchen Popular With Soldiers

The Eastside could furnish an endless array of human interest stories, varying from the kind that bring tears, to one of priceless humor.

The kitchen is getting to be the spot where the boys love to help; in fact, its popularity is next to that of the living room. Delicious chili-beans and spaghetti have been served by the Friday Canteen ladies for two consecutive Fridays. Tickets for the Les Hite dance were donated through Mr. Leon Hefflin. The USO does not try to maintain that all men who come to town, shall stay solely within her confines. Sunday evening, sixty men were sent to CBS to the Jubilee Broadcast featuring the King Cole Trio, Ivy Anderson, Mantan Moreland and other stars. Friday night brought more than the usual amount of excitement; individual records were made for the service men; each man made as many records to send home to his wife, sweetheart or friends as he chose. These were known as talking letters.

Dignitaries, who had attended the banquet at the YMCA, given in honor of Mr. Harold Prince, came over and shared the enjoyment of the event with the fellows. Assisting hostesses for that evening were members of the Vestside Division of the Women's Society of Christian Service; these ladies were Mrs. Georgia Horton, president, Mrs. Julia Robinson, secretary, Mrs. Frances Hurd, Mrs. Gertrude Bigbee, and were sincerely thanked for such an immediate response to the visit to their club of the secretary. The Director, Miss Vye Aldridge, was the invited speaker at the monthly meeting of Del Rio Housing.

We pause here to pay tribute to Dr. A. H. Giannini, Chairman L. A. Area Board; the Eastside USO feels that they have lost a valued friend. Our chest swells with pride over the visits made to the club by our heroes; this week brought Naval hero, O. C. second class George Matthews, who has been in five major battles, and is in line for a Silver Star; we are also proud of a visiting WAAC, Aux. Glecena D May of Chicago, Ill.

Many of the men, stationed in camps near the city praise the home hospitality of the Center, among these are Corporal Caryl Thomas and Corporal Charles Washington. Donations for the week came from: Mesdames Watkins, Jennard Worsham, Ellen Webber, J. O. Wadden, Florence Carter, Pearl G. Mays, Vertner L. Gordon, L. E. Furey, Cecile Pono, Misses Hattie Williams and Leola Wilson, Mr. A. J. Moore, Father George Salbeck, The Fisque Club and the Willing Workers Clubs of Eighth and Towne Avenue church.

Collect 7 Million Pounds of Scrap in Victory Drive

The recent Salvage for Victory Campaign in the Los Angeles City Schools which was concluded October 31 netted approximately seven million pounds of scrap metal, rubber, and rags. The continued well-intended contributions of citizens are presenting an acute problem because of hazards and the lack of removal means.

Salvage should now be taken to depositories which have been established in all communities by organizations cooperating with War Production Board. Because of health accident, and fire hazards, school grounds are no longer available as depositories for scrap materials.

The seven million pound salvage collection included five million pounds metal; 150,000 pounds rubber; 650,000 pounds rags. This is twice the quota set by the local authorities when the drive began.

California Bank Backs Uncle Sam in Big Way

Since Pearl Harbor, California Bank has purchased for its own account more than $100,000,000 of United States government securities, it was revealed yesterday by J. G. Maulhardt, vice president of the Market and Produce office of California Bank.

Although a number of short-term issues have matured during this period, the bank's current holdings of government securities total more than $92,000,000.

War Savings Bonds with an aggregate maturity value in excess of $21,000,000 were sold by California Bank to the public in 1942 alone, and sales of tax notes during the same period amounted to more than $2,600,000. War bonds and stamps as well as tax notes are sold by all banks at no cost to either the government or the buyer.

Taxpayers' Association to Meet

California Taxpayers' Association will hold its Seventeenth Annual Meeting in Los Angeles on Friday morning, February 19, at the Biltmore Hotel, opening at 10 o'clock.

Governor Warren, Mr. James L. Beebe, chairman of the Governor's Citizens Tax Committee, and Mr. David Babcock, of the War Manpower Commission, are each to speak on civil government problems of major import to the people of California in wartime.

Young Business Woman Talks on Present Crisis

By DOLORES CALVIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (Calvin's News Service)—If someone were taking a survey to find an all-around young American Negro business woman, they couldn't help stumbling in the path of Miss Marion O. Bond, who has her own ideas on the present World War which expresses most of the things our Negro youth is thinking today.

Miss Bond thinks that all forms of government that aren't based upon democracy eventually must fail. And she's convinced that the Allies are going to win as time will tell. She also claimed that she's optimistic about the outcome of the war, in an interview at her Hotel Theresa room this week. Besides buying war bonds and stamps, she's contributing to Russian Relief, because she admires the Russian's fighting ability.

Marion was 22 years old Saturday and is one of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ollie S. Bond of Kansas City, Kans. The other two are Vivian, a senior in Lane college, and Mildred, a senior in high school. Marion was middle-named Ollie for her father.

WITH ARGE CONCERN

Marion's job for the past two years has been as a goodwill ambassador for Pepsi Cola, as one of the six Negroes employed by the firm, working with national sales. She's traveled through more than 30 states and says that so much traveling causes it to lose its lure, although she finds delight in new people and new experiences. Right now, her work is in New York but she'd rather live in the Midwest than Gotham.

A graduate of Lane college, Jackson, Tenn., magna cum laude, Miss Bond loves the movies, tennis, dancing, ping pong, and although she can't swim, she loves the water anyway.

Her favorite music is Debussy's Clair de Lune, Duke Ellington's Moon Mist, Billy Kenny's singing with the Ink Spots, Dorothy Maynor's soprano voice and William Grant Still's compositions. She likes Mr. Still because she thinks he interprets American life.

SORORITY SISTER

Marion is a member of the Delta Sigma Theta. She's a good cook, too—her specialty being cream pies, and she's alergic to anything chocolate. She's unassuming, modest, attractive, vivacious and loves to study people's characters. She would have liked to have seen England and France before the war—particularly "Gay Paree."

But this young lady has plans for the future. First of all, she's going in for some advanced study at New York university and then, she's seriously thinking along the lines of matrimony, she shyly confessed. Marion doesn't believe very much in war marriages, unless both parties are sincere. She thinks too many girls marry only because their boyfriend is going to war.

But there's a soft spot in her heart for soldiers, sailors, marines, etc. And they don't have to look twice to find it!

Avenue Shoe Store Robbed

Apparently a carefully planned job, burglars last Monday night robbed Karls' Shoe Store at 4354 S. Central avenue of $365.49. No suspects had been arrested at press time, but detectives are closely investigating the crime.

Timing their operations at 11:30 p. m. shortly after the store closed for the night the burglars pried open a window at the rear, having undoubtedly ascertained that the door could be reached from it. Cross the door was an iron bar, which they removed, permitting their entrance. The cash was taken from a cash register, but no goods was reported missing.

Boy Bandits Rob, Slug Pedestrians

While other boys of their age are conducting scrap and rubber drives to aid their elders in the war effort, three boys, their ages ranging from 12 to 15 years, have been boldly committing holdups. According to Sheriff's office. They are still at large, but Deputy Sheriffs and police officers have a pretty good description of them.

Last Thursday night while Thos. Regan, of 1439 E. 69th St. and Jas. Davis of 1447 E. 69th St., were walking by 68th and Compton they were accosted by the three suspects, one a Mexican and the other two colored. Drawing knives on them they searched the two boys' pockets, but found only a nickle in Davis' pocket. Apparently angered at not obtaining more the largest of the colored stick-ups smashed Regan in the nose. They then gave the nickle back to Davis, and let the boys go.

About five minutes later, while Theodore Parrish was passing on Florence Avenue, a short distance away, he was accosted by the same trio, according to his description. They robbed him of $1.40, then gave him five sticks of chewing gum.

Negro Troops Set Record at Waco, Texas Field

BLACKLAND ARMY FLYING SCHOOL, Waco, Texas—A new squadron of colored troops at Blackland Field, Waco, Texas, is rapidly establishing a record as tops on the field in more ways than one, according to Captain William F. Rikard, their commanding officer.

The squadron, which arrived at Blackland only a few days ago, has already volunteered for 100 per cent participation in the buying of Government War Insurance to protect their dependents. The amount to date is $2,208,000.

The individual War bond purchases will range from 10 per cent of base pay to a fifty dollar bond each month. The total figure for each month has not been figured as yet, but it is expected to reach more than $2000 each pay day.

The Government Insurance which is sold to the soldier at a very nominal rate for the duration of the war averages a $9913 policy for each man. The limit per man allowed by the government is $10,000.

Meharry College Course Scores

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 17.—Meharry Medical college presented its first post-graduate extension course at the Terrell Memorial hospital, Memphis, Feb. 1 through Feb. 3, the college announced today.

The course given was a three-day intensive course in cardiology and the guest lecturer and demonstrator was Dr. E. T. Odom, assistant professor of medicine. The course was given as part of the graduate work in medicine that has been made possible by a grant from the Kellogg Foundation.

Twenty-eight physicians registered and attended the course.

Share-the-Ride Depots Set Up in Ohio

Red, white and blue "Share-the-Ride Registration Depot" signs have been erected in every section of Ohio in cooperation with the Ohio War Transportation Committee, according to reports received by the Automobile Club of Southern California. The signs have been placed at registration centers in more than 2400 localities, rural as well as urban, to notify motorists and potential passengers of places where they may register to share rides.

Guests of honor were: Captain J. Howard Scott and Lt. Nicholas Pritchett.

Tuskegee Mothers Must Act

A proposed organization of "Tuskegee Mothers" in Los Angeles put forth by Eagle Editor, Charlotta A. Bass, is urgently necessary to amass popular support and pressure for combatting "reactionary policies and discriminatory practices of the Army Air Forces" in protest against which William H. Hastie recently resigned as civilian aide to the Secretary of War.

Hastie resigned for the express purpose of demanding action by the people against those founts of military stupidity who have made of the Negro aircraft training program a dangerous muddle. The criminal waste of valuable flying talent by the Army in restricting the service of Negro Americans in this all-important branch of the armed forces cannot fail to contribute toward dulling America's blow against her fascist enemies.

An aroused American people must give the orders to our Army in this case. We must remember that it was only huge popular clamor which brought about the original provisions for a Negro air wing. The establishment of a segregated unit was hotly contested by Negro America, but, once established, the whole nation watched for the products of Tuskegee's Negro air command.

Today, however, we learn that even the segregated program for Negroes in the air arm of our Army is disintegrating in a disgusting maze of ante bellum race hate.

Listen to Hastie:

"The Negro program of the Air Forces began some two years ago with the organization of several so-called "Aviation Squadrons (Separate)". These units, now greatly increased in number, were organized to serve no specific military need. They have never had a definite function . . . the characteristic assignment. . . has been the performance of odd jobs of common labor. . . There are no equivalent white organizations. . .

"In order to provide enlisted technicians for the new air base at Tuskegee, a few Negro soldiers were accepted for technical training at Chanute Field where a large school is maintained. The men were well received and did excellent work. I urged the importance of continuing such training of Negroes in this existing unsegregated school. But the program stopped with the first group. . . . Meanwhile, successive classes of Negro pilots were being trained, but no technical schooling of supporting ground crew members was in progress. . .

"While Negro trainees and cadets at the Tuskegee Air Base have done well from a strictly technical point of view, they have suffered such a demoralizing discrimination and segregation that, in my judgement, the entire future of the Negro in combat aviation is in danger. Men cannot be humiliated over a long period of time without a loss of combat efficiency."

Hastie continues to document his report of the situation at Tuskegee with revelations of segregation of Negro and white officer personnel, of unarmed Negro military police, of failure of the military to support soldiers in the face of civilian terrorization.

This monstrous perversion of fighting manpower, this weak-kneed subservience to the great God of white supremacy must be met and destroyed just as the failure to upgrade Negro workers at North American aircraft company must be faced, denounced and scuttled.

But no degree of verbal explosion in these columns will affect changes at Tuskegee or North American. The practical mobilization of the people as an organized force exerting political pressure with utmost tenacity is required.

To lead such an effort, certainly no group is more qualified than the mothers of Tuskegee boys in Los Angeles. All parents of Negro boys in the Air Forces are urged to contact Mrs. Bass immediately, at CE-24228.

Tennessee Steps Forward

Passage of a state law in Tennessee ending the poll tax is an advance for American democracy and a blow that will release fresh reserves of national will to victory.

Ending the poll tax in Tennessee ranks alongside the recent Birmingham convention of the Southern AFL unions which denounced segregation and discrimination in the labor movement. Both reflect decisive developments in Southern society. Both herald the new strength and vigor of the Dixie labor movement.

However, it is important that the Tennessee victory lead no one to desert the fight for Federal legislation against the poll tax.

It is a familiar argument of the poll taxers that Federal action should not be invoked against the system of U. S. disfranchisement because such action would involve some mystical violation of "states rights" —which phrase, by no mere coincidence, happened also to be the slogan of the Confederate States of America.

With each passing day, the need for Federal legislation against the poll tax becomes sharper. We must remember that it is those States which have already invoked their "state right" of repeal which are strongest in the clamor for Federal action. Tennessee and Florida, for instance, have lead in the struggle against the poll tax at Washington.

It is the deep South poll taxers, whose whole political-economic machine rests upon the corruption of public will, who raise the tearful cry of "states rights," always agreeing "in principle" that the poll tax merits opposition.

The poll taxers, we should know by now, will agree to anything, so long as the base of their political dynasties is thereby saved.

The North, West, labor movement and Negro people, must support the demand of the people of the South for their right of franchise. We must pitilessly expose the notion that "the South" is opposed to end of the poll tax, when such action would enfranchise the majority of Southern Americans, releasing unlimited energies for victory, for a people's peace.

The only element of the South which rails at abolition of the poll tax is that handful of conspirators in whose interest the South has sunk this half-century to poverty, ignorance and dishonor.

Their day approaches its end. The back of the Bourbon South will break under the weight of war necessity.

Hail FDR's Action

A fitting extension of the magnificent slogan of "unconditional surrender" which our President, along with the Prime Minister of England, hurled at the Axis last week was Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that hearings on discrimination against Negroes in the railroad industry will continue with a strengthened Fair Employment Practice Committee.

These actions reflect the President's increasing clarity upon the nature of this war and the uncompromising methods required for victory. They further reflect the weight and importance of mass pressure by our people and their staunch allies in labor and progressive America as a whole.

Once again the President has reaffirmed the Government's policy in opposition to racial discrimination in defense industry. He has promised the strengthening of the Committee, with the employment of full-time, paid membership. He has said the railroad hearings "and all others scheduled" will be continued.

We must voice our unconditional support of the President in this position. We must urge him to set up the new machinery necessary for the re-scheduling of the railroad hearings immediately.

The chief executive's action represented a defeat of Stalingrad proportions for the poll taxers.

Washington-Lincoln-Douglass Edition

In celebration of the anniversaries of the Abraham Lincoln, George Washington and Frederick Douglass, the California EAGLE will publish a special edition next week.

It is our hope that this issue of our newspaper will reflect accurately the great debt which our people owe the tradition of these three giants of our history.

The paper will also commemorate the sixty-fourth birthday of the California EAGLE.

Scarcely had the epoch of Douglass and Lincoln passed than the California EAGLE was established in Los Angeles by John J. Neimore, a trail-blazer for a community which has become in this hour decisively important in the new struggles of Negro-America.

Your statement of greeting to the EAGLE's Washington-Lincoln-Douglass edition may be phoned in (CE-24228) or brought to the office at 4075 South Central avenue.

Boilermakers Face Real Fight

Los Angeles rolled up its sleeves this week for the biggest battle in its history.

Our workers have refused to be jim-crowed by the AFL Boilermakers union which holds closed shop agreements at Consolidated shipyards, California shipyards and the Western Pipe and Steel Company.

Revelation by the EAGLE last week that big shot Negro pussyfooters for the Boilermakers were in town to duplicate their Jim-Crow masterworks of San Francisco and Portland unleashed a storm which may sweep away, finally, the whole Jim-Crow pattern of the Boilermakers outfit.

The best guarantee for victory in this fight is the marshalling of nation-wide support against the Boilermakers' ante bellum policy. In this city, progressive AFL union figures must take a definite stand on the issue. Throughout America an incipient, on-and-off campaign against the Boilermakers must congeal into a hard-bitten, single-minded attack upon that policy which would divide the ranks of American labor, according to the Hitlerite dictates of racial identity, weakening our victory effort and shamelessly perverting the principles of this People's War.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Mrs. Bass:

I have just read in your paper an attack on me in regards to a case on discrimination. I am en route with my friend, Rev. J. W. Price, to the Bishops Council in Nashville.

I wish to say I have always opposed discrimination and I fight segregation in every form I did not know the facts of this case. It is true I have known Mr. Cragelo several years. He has always served me; also my friends. I have only praise to offer the ladies who had courage to fight an unfair practice. I only wished I had known the case. Since this has been proven and he is guilty regardless of my friendship I am through with him. I don't care how good one is to me, if it is proven that he discriminated against any of my race group, I don't need his kindness any longer. I am also writing Mr. Cragelo. I belong to several organizations and we always fight for our race. I belong to the NAACP, am treasurer of the Citizens Defense committee, of which you are also a member.

I have always admired your stand on the race question. I am sorry you did not contact me for an explanation. I admired Atty. Denton for the brilliant way he handled he case. I have nothing against the very fine ladies; only I was misinformed.

I shall always fight for my people's rights. I hate the very thought of discrimination. I believe you will be fair and publish my statement. I shall be glad to pay the cost when I return.

Dear Mrs. Bass:

You must pardon this unusual delay in my congratulations for your selection as a member of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury for the year 1943. For a number of years one or two persons have been named, but none has survived until your precedent establishing selection.

In this important year, 1943, all citizens should feel proud that we have a representative as a member of one of the most potent groups in our entire County Government. Citizens should have a greater degree of pride that your long years of public service has rewarded you with the cherished appointment.

May your contribution be noteworthy.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass
Dear Editor:

My distinguished friend, writing this complimentary letter to you, which is really my civic and racial duty, is one of the most pleasant tasks I have to perform.

Because in the many years I have known you, I have often roundly criticized you and frequently questioned your motives, but I have always had many reasons to appreciate the results of your noble effort. And way down deep inside me I held an appreciation for you that was akin to hero worship for all the things both you nad my beloved deceased friend, J. B. Bass, have done in behalf of our disillusioned Negro race.

Hence, having long been one of your most ardent admirers and devotees of your C. A. Bass philosophy, I am doubly proud of your recent dual victories. You, a Negro woman, and a noble representative of our race, on the Grand Jury—and the L. A. Railway hiring Negro trainmen, both of which are singular victories of great significance to you and every Negro alive.

So to you, the incredible Mrs. C. A. Bass, I stand and give you a 21-gun salute—by which I mean you are wonderful and I sincerely hope that in the near future I shall have the honor, pleasure and privilege of telling the world of your many outstanding qualities and achievements.

Sincerely,
Your Friend,
W. L. Neely, Sr.

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass
Dear Editor:

I am an avid reader of weeklies, especially yours. I would like at this time to make an observation which I think is of interest to many readers like myself. Here in the nation's capital is an amazing cross-section of our beautiful colored women, really the most beautiful in the world. Nowhere will you find a greater cosmopolitan gathering of people, and I wonder why editors do not play up the feature.

Several Sundays ago, riding on a street car with a friend, we weer amazed to see a large group of beautiful race women come in to the car, complexions ranging from white to ebony. Everyone of them was a beauty in her own right. Discussing this angle many times we observed other races, and in no instance did we find a real competition. Aroused, we made inspection in other districts, in every case finding our own beauties excelling.

A person of color has been so prejudicially cast by members of other races that even we failed to observe the purity of beauty in ourselves.

If you will make this observation on a Sunday while our girls are in relaxed mood, you will be amazed to see our own beauties are tops in attraction and more desirable than a beauty not of color.

★ The WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

TRAVELING STATESMEN

President Roosevelt stopped off in Liberia after Casablanca and then flew on to talk with President Vargas in Brazil, cutting his birthday cake on the return to Washington, while flying high over Haiti. In the meantime, Prime Minister Winston Churchill was doing a "now you see me, now you don't" act that enormously tickled the British, especially in view of the consternation of the Reich. Franz Von Papen, Reich's ambassador to Turkey, was off on a skiing trip when the Prime Minister appeared in Ankara, and hastened back, but too late! Last seen in Cairo, Mr. Churchill had conversation with King Farouk and Richard G. Casey, Minister for Britain to the Middle East. Berlin's curiosity and nervousness has increased steadily since the Casablanca Conference. By the way, we know now, why Casablanca was chosen as the site of that conferring. Mr. Churchill had visited the city ten years before and wanted to return there to paint. President Roosevelt described it as one of the most beautiful cities he had ever seen. It lies at the foot of the snow-covered Atlas Mountains--has the second largest population in Morocco.

FISCAL PORTRAIT

The condition of California's State Treasury paints an unusual and provocative fiscal picture. Surplus in the State's general fund by the end of the current biennium on next June 30, will amount to some $90 million, and by 1945 might reach $228 million! The citizens' committee appointed by Governor Warren to study the possibility for State tax reductions, will hand the Legislature its recommendations about March 15, in time to cheer us, we hope, when we pay the first installment on Federal taxes. Governor Warren believes taxes can be reduced, but urges extreme caution to avoid upsetting California's tax structure. Decreased taxes can greatly ease the burden of citizens, in view of the current HCL whose portrait closely resembles the Federal tax picture, having a decided "come hither look" in its eye! The latest Federal income tax suggestion, built around the Ruml plan, would tax income at the rate of 24 per cent--to include the present 5 per cent Victory tax, on the Pay-As-You-Go method. Too much money in the pocket of the State Treasury would be as undesirable as too much money in the pocket of an individual, a temptation to spend where spending has no valid reason.

RISINF TIDE

With the rising tide of resentment among Germany's puppet allies against furnishing more men for the front or sending more forced labor to the Reich, the manpower problem develops for the Axis. Statistical estimates of the total number of German men under arms, plus war losses now prove that the burden on the Reich has already exhausted Germany's human resources. She must call on the men of her "allies", and they, too, are needed at home. With Russia continuing to bleed German strength on that front, the right word for German emotions is "jittery".

NEW FLAG

Even while German radios were broadcasting that the fight for Stalingrad was over, and proclaiming three days of national mourning for its victims, final arrangements for the public unfurling of a United Nations flag were being made in New York. The State Department had given its blesing. The flag consists of four vertical red bars, closely spaced on a field of white. The white field represents peace and purity. The bars stand for the four freedoms, and their vertical position signifies uprightness between men and governments. The color of the bars--red--symbolizes the bloodshed in the cause of freedom and democracy. Representatives of other United Nations expressed themselves in favor of such a flag. The hope is, that all of the United Nations will fly the new flag beside their own.

The Church of Christ is the world's only social hope and the sole promise of Peace.—General Sir Douglas Haig.

★ W. J. WHEATON

The appointing of Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass (Editor and Publisher of The California Eagle) to the Grand Jury of Los Angeles County; is well merited. Her sincerity of purpose; honesty, and above all else her sane and militant leadership has won for her a recognition beyond the border of California.

It has been a long time since one of our race has been represented on that body. We doubt if any, but a few of the "Ancient" Los Angeles remember when Jefferson Davis Edmunds, Sr. served as a grand juror. That was some time back. There is nothing like persistence; it wins in the long run.

The school for officers in London, England recently graduated fourteen young Negroes, who received their insignias at the hands of Major Gen. Hartlee. In presenting the commissions the General said, "You are a credit to the great section of our Nation which is making an ever increasing contribution to the war."

That noted scientist, the late Dr. Carver, may share the honor of his late contemporary, the late Dr. Booker T. Washington. Representative Dawes (D. Ill.) has asked the Postmaster General to issue a stamp in his honor. Dr. Carver's contribution to the economic betterment or society has stamped him as one of the nations greats.

"Life, Liberty andthe Pursuit of Happiness". That phrase seems to become almost hackneyed. Especially is that so when uttered by such political demagogues as Dies; Rankin and that coterie of Southern blatants who try to out Hitler-Hitler.

The world knows that the American Negro has to fight and fight hard for right to live. If he asserts that right ti live, he is at once given the status of a subversive alien. If there is any one group in this nation that should be classed with those opponents of the "Four Freedoms" for which Americans are, today, fighting and dying; whose bodies are buried on far battle fields and in the ocean depth, it is that class who condone the Nazi formula of civilization and use every chicanery; deceit and hypocritical medium to attain their objective. Such is the ideology of Dies and his cohorts. The venom of that clique has been directed toward William Pickens and, above all, Mrs. Bethune. Dies (Texas) and Rankin (Miss.) has sought to smear them as subversive characters, and detrimental to the American standards of loyal patriotism.

Such men as Martin Dies and Rankin; men with such perverted minds and ideals, are Democracy's greatest foes; world democracy's personal enemy.

We do not agree with those who believe that the problems of minority groups, especially of the American Negro, are going to end with the cessation of hostilities. If any, the post war problems will be greater than those of today. One of the chief problems will be, how to retain the slight foot-hold on the economic ladder that the exigency of war has created. It will take eternal vigilance to retain them. Now is the time to prepare; now is the time to counsel and plan the strategy for the struggle which is inevitable. Not too much oratory. Oratory is often very confusing, and detrimental to sane thinking. We believe that the world changes will be greater than in any preceding era.

There will be a right-about face in our educational system. Many will need brush aside former theories for material facts. Soiled hands and grimey faces will no longer be a badge of aversion. The world of the tomorrow will be shrunk to half the world of today. The tiller of the soil and the master of mechanism will wear the badge of honor and reap the benefits of our economic system. Will we be prepared to meet the test? Now is the time!

This war has given us an insight into the world formerly denied to us. Even now they are being grudgingly given. The door has been opened with reluctance and at the first opportune time an attempt will be made to close the door with we on the outside. Let us be vigilant and even keep an eye opened to the stooges among us who suggest separate this and that. Beware of the organizer who agitates for "Jim-Crow unions." Hold on to that which thou haveth and strive for more.

Women! Your husbands, brothers and sons are fighting for those principals and ideals of true Americanism. Ideals for which our forefathers fought. They helped to build and preserve this Nation and all the Dies, Rankins and their cohorts can't deter us from attaining the goal for which we strive. The goal of a full share of the nation's citizenship. We congratulate the women of the race. You are doing well. You are showing the way to an ultimate success. It can not and it will not be gained in a day, but you have started well. Let this be the end of the beginning.

★ SPREADING JOY

By JOHN FOWLER,

I see by the papers that up North at Meadowbrook Race Track, they, of necessity, are going to harken back to the picturesque horse and buggy days by using the old-fashioned tally-ho for transportation to and from the track. Imagine seeing the sleek, well-groomed horses and the romantic tally-ho pulled out again to take its place with the automobile.

I get a thrill when I recall the joy we used to get out of tally-ho party, thirty and forty years ago. Young blades vied with each other arranging sports that gave a long ride, many by moonlight over hill and dale. It was a common sight to see a team of two to six horses hooked to a big red tally-ho standing in front of Talbot's on San Pedro, waiting for a jolly group.

One of the earliest parties is reproduced in picture in my book, Spreading Joy. Some of these people I'm sure you've forgotten. Do you remember Clara Harris Jackson, Mary Dunlap, Florence Weimer, Nannie Hood, Bernice Talbot, Ella Thornton and Laura Talbot, Clay Jackson, Jason Wilson, Archie Hill, Henry Smith, Horace Tume and Watson Burns.

I think one of the last of these traditional tally-ho parties was held on May 30, 1902. Two of the largest tally-ho's (six horses at one, four at another) were from the famous Tally-Ho Stables at First and Bway. In the picture in my book are the Pals of today: Mrs. Jennie Lewis, chaperone, Mattie Scott, Mamie Cunningham, Minnie Thompson, Lettie Shoares, Roberta Wilson, May Ramsey, Tina Coles, Lauretta Green, Fannie Coles, Viola Spikes and Jessie Coles. The boys are Will Stovall, Wylie Fowler, Jno. Scott, Fred Roberts, Isaac Robinson, Thilo Taylor, Louis Shoares, Fred Allen, Edgar Woods, Roscoe Duntson, Van Williams and Herman Hill.

When Los Angeles was young and held many attractions many of the populace used to go to one or two depots. They were located (Santa Fe) at the foot of Second Street and (S. P.) at the old Fifth Street arcade.

A picturesque old-fashion was the custom of hotel runners vieing for customers. Those days all of the runners were colored men, bus drivers were white. I am sure you recall some. Handsome Bob Wilcox ran for Nadeau House, which site is now home of the Times building. Fred Douglas represented Westminster Hotel, Harvey Walls, daddy of them all, was runner for the Natic House. I am sure Ike McVea will recall the runner for the old Ramona Hotel. He was Gus Shrader. All of this reminds me of a vocation almost all of us moonpolized in the old days--head waiter. I think the most popular of all these was that quintessence of grace and elegance, Dan Adams. Others who distinguished themselves were George Welch, for years a fixture at Hollenbeck Hotel, Edw. Adams made the Arcade Hotel Santa Monica famous; Will Potter served at famous Redondo Resort Hotel, Tilton, Louis Young and Jno. Banks were at Koster's. Nathaniel Jones was head man at Christopher's the caterer, Wheeler of Santa Monica, Jas. Slaughter, Tommie Hayward and others who I cannot now recall are among these, too.

And don't let me forget David, the head man for Biscuit Jones!

One of the busiest war organizations of the community is the Eliza Warner Unit of the Red Cross, composed of ladies of Los Angeles, Central Gardens and Watts.

Mrs. Jane Hayes, leader of this group, entertained the ladies with a well appointed luncheon on their first anniversary at her lovely home at 9303 Zamora recently. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Eliza Maker of St. Joseph, Mo. As they gathered around the cake they plied the knitting needles and discussed ways and means of helping our boys on the front lines win the war.

Leading the Old Sweethearts this week are Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Blodgett. My congratulations.

Hold Race Relation Program

Brotherhood Month was marked by a race relation program at Chapel First Congregational Church, in Pasadena, last Sunday, presented by Scattergoods, Inc.

Participating on the program were Mrs. A. H. Shaw, Rev. Carlos Lopez, the Community Baptist Church choir (Mrs. Alberta Horton, director), Clarice Thompson, Mrs. Walter Worrill, Patricia Fox, Mrs. Jeanetta Holland, Miss Georgia Euell, Rev. Karl Downs, Rev. Cylde Smith, Mrs. L. C. Wood, Mrs. Ruth McWilliams, Alpha Horton and Mrs. Alice Whitney.

"NATIVE SON" ★

From the book by
RICHARD WRIGHT

"What do you mean? She accepted you as another human being."

"Mr. Max, we're all split up. What you say is kind ain't kind at all. I didn't know nothing about that woman. All I knew was that they kill us for women like her. We live apart. And then she comes and acts like that to me."

"Bigger, you should have tried to understand. She was acting toward you only as she knew how."

Bigger glared about the small room, searching for an answer. He knew that his actions did not seem logical and he gave up trying to explain them logically. He reverted to his feelings as a guide in answering Max.

"Well, I acted toward her only as I know how. She was rich. She and her kind own the earth. She and her kind say black folks are dogs. They don't let you do nothing but what they want . . ."

"But, Bigger, THIS woman was trying to help you!"

"She didn't act like it."

"How SHOULD she have acted?"

"Aw, I don't know, Mr. Max. White folks and black folks is strangers. We don't know what each other is thinking. Maybe she was trying to be kind; but she didn't act like it. To me she looked and acted like all other white folks . . ."

"But she's not to be blamed for that, Bigger."

"She's the same color as the rest of 'em," he said defensively.

"I don't understand, Bigger. You say you hated her and yet you say you felt like having her when you were in the room and she was drunk and you were drunk . . ."

"Yeah," Bigger said, wagging his head and wiping his mouth with the back of his hand. "Yeah; that's funny, ain't it?" He sucked at his cigarette. "Yeah; I reckon it was because I knew I oughtn't've wanted to. I reckon it was because they say we black men do that anyhow. Mr. Max, you know what some white men say we black men do? They say we rape white women when we got the clap and they say we do that because we believe that if we rape white women then we'll get rid of the clap. That's what some white men SAY. They BELIEVE that. Jesus, Mr. Max, when folks says things like that about you, you whipped before you born. What's the use? Yeah; I reckon I was feeling that way when I was in the room with her. They say we do things like that and they say it to kill us. They draw a line and say for you to stay on your side of the line. They don't care if you die. And then they say things like that about you and when you try to come from behind your line they kill you. They feel they ought to kill you then. Everybody wants to kill you then. Yeah; I reckon I was feeling that way and maybe the reason was because they say it. Maybe that was the reason."

"You mean you wanted to defy them? You wanted to show them that you dared, that you didn't care?"

"I don't know, Mr. Max. But what I got to care about? I knew that some time or other they was going to get me for something. I'm black. I don't have to do nothing for 'em to get me. The first white finger they point at me, I'm a goner, see?"

"But, Bigger, when Mrs. Dalton came into that room, why didn't you stop right there and tell her what was wrong? You wouldn't've been in all this trouble then . . ."

"Mr. Max, so help me God, I couldn't do nothing when I turned around and saw that woman coming to that bed. Honest to God, I didn't know what I was doing . . ."

"You mean you went blank?"

"Naw; naw . . . I knew what I was doing, all right. But I couldn't help it. That's what I mean. It was like another man stepping inside of my skin and started acting for me . . ."

"Bigger, tell me, did you feel more attraction for Mary than for the women of your own race?"

"Naw. But they say that. It ain't true. I hated her then and I hate her now."

"But why did you kill Bessie?"

"To keep her from talking, Mr. Max, after killing that white woman, it wasn't hard to kill somebody else. I didn't have to think much about killing Bessie. I knew I had to kill her and I did. I had to get away . . ."

"Did you hate Bessie?"

"Naw."

"Did you love her?"

"Naw. I was just scared. I wasn't in love with Bessie. She was just my girl. I don't reckon I was ever in love with nobody. I killed Bessie to save myself. You have to have a girl, so I had Bessie. And I killed her."

"Bigger, tell me, when did you start hating Mary?"

"I hated her as soon as she spoke to me, as soon as I saw her. I reckon I hated her before I saw her . . ."

"But, WHY?"

"I told you. What her kind ever let us do?"

"What, exactly, Bigger, did you want to do?"

Bigger sighed and sucked at his cigarette.

"Nothing, I reckon. Nothing. But I reckon I wanted to do what other people do."

"And because you couldn't, you hated her?"

Again Bigger felt that his actions were not logical, and again he fell back upon his feelings for a guide in answering Max's questions.

"Mr. Max, a guy gets tired of being told what he can do and can't do. You get a little job here and a little job there. You shine shoes, sweep streets; anything . . . You don't make enough to live on. You don't know when you going to get fired. Pretty soon you get so you can't hope for nothing. You just keep moving all the time, doing what other folks say. You ain't a man no more. You just work day in and day out so the world can roll on and other people can live. You know, Mr. Max, I always think of white folks . . ."

He paused. Max leaned forward and touched him.

"Go on, Bigger."

"Well, they own everything. They choke you off the face of the earth. They like God . . ." He swallowed, closed his eyes and sighed. "They don't even let you feel what you want to feel. They after you so hot and hard you can only feel what they doing to you. They kill you before you die."

"But, Bigger, I asked you what it was that you wanted to do so badly that you had to hate them?"

"Nothing. I reckon I didn't want to do nothing."

"But you said that people like Mary and her kind never let you do anything."

"Why should I want to do anything? I ain't got a chance. I don't know nothing. I'm just black and they make the laws."

"What would you like to have been?"

Bigger was silent for a long time. Then he laughed without sound, without moving his lips; it was three short expulsions of breath forced upward through his nostrils by the heaving of his chest.

"I wanted to be an aviator once. But they wouldn't let me go to the school where I was suppose to learn it. They built a big school and then drew a line around it and said that nobody could go to it but those who lived within the line. That kept all the colored boys out."

"And what else?"

"Well, I wanted to be in the army once."

"Why didn't you join?"

"Hell, it's a Jim Crow army. All they want a black man for is to dig ditches. And in the navy, all I can do is wash dishes and scrub floors."

"And was there anything else you wanted to do?"

"Oh, I don't know. What's the use now? I'm through, washed up. They got me. I'll die."

"Tell me the things you THOUGHT you'd have liked to do?"

"I'd like to be in business. But what chance has a black guy got in business? We ain't got no money. We don't own no mines, no railroads, no nothing. They don't want us to. They make us stay in one little spot . . ."

"And you didn't want to stay there?"

Bigger glanced up; his lips tightened. There was a feverish pride in his blood-shot eyes.

"I DIDN'T," he said.

Max stared and sighed.

"Look, Bigger. You've told me the things you could not do. But you did something. You committed these crimes. You killed two women. What on earth did you think you could get out of it?"

Bigger rose and rammed his hands into his pockets. He leaned against the wall, looking vacantly. Again he forgot that Max was in the room.

"I don't know. Maybe this sounds crazy. Maybe they going to burn me in the electric chair for feeling this way. But I ain't worried none about them women I killed. For a little while I was free. I was doing something. It was wrong, but I was feeling all right. But I ain't worried. I killed 'em 'cause I was scared and mad. But I been scared and mad all my life and after I killed that first woman, I wasn't scared no more for a little while."

"What were you afraid of?"

"Everything," he breathed and buried his face in his hands.

"Did you ever hope for anything, Bigger?"

"What for? I couldn't get it. I'm black," he mumbled.

"Didn't you ever want to be happy?"

"Yeah; I guess so," he said, straightening.

"How did you think you could be happy?"

"I don't know. I wanted to do things. But everything I wanted to do I couldn't. I wanted to do what the white boys in school did. Some of 'em went to college. Some of 'em went to the army. But I couldn't go."

"But still, you wanted to be happy?"

"Yeah; sure. Everybody wants to be happy, I reckon."

"Did you think you ever would be?"

"I don't know. I just went to bed at night and got up in the morning. I just lived from day to day. I thought maybe I would be."

"How?"

"I don't know," he said in a voice that was almost a moan.

"What did you think happiness would be like?"

"I don't know. It wouldn't be like this."

"You ought to have some idea of what you wanted, Bigger."

"Well, Mr. Max, if I was happy I wouldn't always be wanting to do something I know I couldn't do."

"And why did you always want to?"

"I couldn't help it. Everybody feels that way, I reckon. And I did, too. Maybe I would've been all right if I could've done something I wanted to do. I wouldn't be scared then. Or mad, maybe. I wouldn't be always hating folks; and maybe I'd feel at home, sort of."

"Did you ever go to the South Side Boys' Club, the place where Mr. Dalton sent those ping-pong tables?"

"Yeah; but what the hell can a guy do with ping-pong?"

"Do you feel that that club kept you out of trouble?"

Bigger cocked his head.

"Kept me out of trouble?" he repeated Max's words. "Naw; that's where we planned most of our jobs."

"Did you ever go to church, Bigger?

"Yeah; when I was little. But that was a long time ago."

"Your folks were religious?"

"Yeah; they went to church all the time."

"Why did you stop going?"

"I didn't like it. There was nothing in it. Aw, all they did was sing and shout and pray all the time. And it didn't get 'em nothing. All the colored folks do that, but it don't get 'em nothing. The white folks got everything."

"Did you ever feel happy in church?"

"Naw. I didn't want to. Nobody but poor folks get happy in church."

"But you are poor, Bigger."

Again Bigger's eyes lit with a bitter and feverish pride.

"I ain't that poor," he said.

"But Bigger, you said that if you were where people did not hate you and you did not hate them, you could be happy. Nobody hated you in church. Couldn't you feel at home there?"

"I wanted to be happy in this world, not out of it. I didn't want that kind of happiness. The white folks like for us to be religious, then they can do what they want to with us."

"A little while ago you spoke of God 'getting you' for killing those women. Does that mean you believe in Him?"

"I don't know."

"Aren't you afraid of what'll happen to you after you die?"

"Naw. But I don't want to die."

"Didn't you know that the penalty for killing that white woman would be death?"

"Yeah; I knew it. But I felt like she was killing me, so I didn't care."

"If you could be happy in religion now, would you want to be?"

"Naw. I'll be dead soon enough. If I was religious, I'd be dead now."

"But the church promises eternal life?"

"That's for whipped folks."

"You don't feel like you've had a chance, do you?"

"Naw; but I ain't asking nobody to feel sorry for me. Naw; I ain't asking that at all. I'm black. They don't give black people a chance, so I took a chance and lost. But I don't care none now. They got me and it's all over."

"Do you feel, Bigger, that somehow, somewhere, or sometime or 'other you'll have a chance to make up for what you didn't get here on earth?"

"Hell, naw! When they strap me in that chair and turn on the heat, I'm through, for always."

"Bigger, I want to ask you something about your race. Do you love your people?"

"I don't know, Mr. Max. We all black and the white folks treat us the same."

"But Bigger, your race is doing things for you. There are Negroes leading your people."

"Yeah; I know. I heard about 'em. They all right, I guess."

"Don't you know any of 'em?"

"Naw."

"Bigger, are there many Negro boys like you?"

"I reckon so. All of 'em I know ain't got nothing and ain't going nowhere."

"Why didn't you go to some of the leaders of your race and tell them how you and other boys felt?"

"Aw, hell, Mr. Max. They wouldn't listen to me. They rich, even though the white folks treat them almost like they do me. They almost like white people, when it comes to guys like me. They say guys like me make it hard for them to get along with white folks."

"Did you ever hear any of your leaders make speeches?"

"Yeah, sure. At election time."

"What did you think of them?"

"Aw, I don't know. They all the same. They wahted to get elected to office. They wanted money, like everybody else. Mr. Max, it's a game and they play it."

"Why didn't you play it?"

"Hell, what do I know? I ain't got nothing. Nobody'll pay any attention to me. I'm just a black guy with nothing. I just went to grammar school. And politics is full of big shots, guys from colleges."

"Didn't you trust them?"

"I don't reckon they wanted anybody to trust 'em. They wanted to get elected to office. They paid you a vote."

"Did you ever vote?"

"Yeah; I voted twice. I wasn't old enough, so I put my age up so I could vote and get the five dollars."

"You didn't mind selling your vote?"

"Naw; why should I?"

"You didn't think politics could get you anything?"

"It got me five dollars on election day."

"Bigger, did any white people ever talk to you about labor unions?"

"Naw; nobody but Jan and Mary. But she oughtn't done it . . . But I couldn't help what I did. And Jan. I reckon I did him wrong by signing 'Red' to that ransom note."

"Do you believe he's your friend now?"

"Well, he ain't against me. He didn't turn against me today when they was questioning him. I don't think he hates me like the others. I suppose he's kind of hurt about Miss Dalton, though."

"Bigger, did you think you'd ever come to this?"

Coordinating Council Gives Annual Program Tonight

The South Central Coordinating council adds its support to the annual meeting of the Lafayette Coordinating council to be held at Patriotic hall, 1816 So. Figueroa, tonight (Feb. 17), at 8:00 o'clock.

The public is invited to hear Martha Chichering, Ph. D., director, Department of Social Welfare, State of California.

Her subject will be "Your Responsibility to Children in War." A question period for audience participation will be given at the close of Dr. Chickering's address.

Mothers who are working or who wish to work need to know the plans being developed for child care in the State of California. Interested citizens who must be content to serve at home will find new opportunities in the child care program. This meeting has been planned to meet the needs and answer the questions of the general public. There is no charge.

Dr. Chickering is presented by the Parkview Unit, No. 571, American Legion auxiliary. This meeting is made possbile thru the cooperation of Commander Wallace M. MacKay, commander of the 20th district, American Legion, and the wholehearted support of the Council of Social Agencies and the Coordinating Councils of Area 8.

Women Become Bomb Reconnaissance Agents

The ladies of Newton Street Police division will be interested to learn that they have again crashed into the men's exclusive field of work. When we say "crashed" that is not a pun.

The Office of Civilian Defense has now authorized the enrollment of Women Ambulance Defense Corps members, age 21 to 45, as bomb reconnaissance agents.

As this field of Civilian Defense has been an exclusive men only field it is expected that it will be first come, first served with the women who wish to sign up. As it is generally conceded that women have a good eye for measurements this position should be just what the doctor ordered for them, as it consists of estimating the size of a bomb by looking at the entrance hole, then seeing that the people in the immediate neighborhood are evacuated to the proper distance for safety.

Any women interested in safeguarding the lives and property of their friends and neighbors should go at once to the Office of Civilian Defense at Newton Street Police station and sign an application.

O. K. girls, let's show the men how it's done.

Jennifer Holt, daughter of movie star Jack Holt, and who started her own screen career in Universal Westerns, has been elevated to feature picture roles. She will be seen in Universal's forthcoming musical, "Hi, Buddy."

McDonough Urges Low Tax Rate

Thus declared Supervisor Gordon L. McDonough in a resolution adopted by the Board of Supervisors this week.

Said McDonough in his resolution: "Los Angeles County's contribution to win the war and secure peace should be the lowest possible tax rate consistent with good public service to permit local taxpayers to have maximum of funds to buy War Bonds and pay Federal Income Tax."

By official acton the Board approved Chairman McDonough's request that "all departments of county government make every possible sacrifice in preparing a conservative budget for the new fiscal year."

He also urged efforts to conserve existing funds so that unexpended balances of surplus funds may be used to balance off any losses in assessed valuation due to closing of business from priorities and lack of manpower and materials.

Kentucky U. Answers Race Youth's Suit

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The University of Kentucky filed here in the Federal Court this week its answer to the complaint of Charles Lamont Eubanks, 18-year old Negro who attempted to register at the university's civil engineering school, September, 1941.

Prentice Thomas, NAACP special counsel who is representing Eubanks, said that the University of Kentucky now claims that the Kentucky State College for Negroes at Frankford offers an engineering course which the plaintiff may attend but the NAACP charges that at the time of Eubanks initial application neither Kentucky State college nor the Louisville Municipal college, Kentucky's two Negro colleges, offered any such course, according to the Negro colleges respective deans and even at the present time the engineering course offered at the Kentucky State College for Negroes is not the equivalent of the course offered at the University of Kentucky.

The University of Kentucky, represented by J. W. Jones, assistant attorney general, stated that the facilities, equipment and faculty made available to Negroes in Kentucky are in every essential comparable to the first two years of instruction and training in civil engineering now in operation at the University of Kentucky and that "there is no material difference and no partiality or discrimination as between the two parallel yet distinct sets of courses whereby one is favored above the other and said Kentucky State College for Negroes is fully prepared, equipped, able and willing to furnish such instruction and training to any and all competent and qualified applicants for admission."

War Accounting Offers Course in

A new course in Accounting for War Industries—Principles of Cost Accounting is offered on Monday evenings, from 6:30 to 9 o'clock, at Metropolitan Evening School of Business, 234 Venice Boulevard (corner of Olive). This intensive study of Cost Accounting will be particularly valuable to those who have a knowledge of the fundamentals of accounting and desire to prepare themselves for more advanced positions in the special field of Cost Accounting so vital to war industries. Students working toward the C. P. A. examinations will also find this course very helpful.

RACE RELATIONS HONOR ROLL, '42, ANNOUNCED

On Sunday, February 7, the names of the twelve Negroes and the six white persons on the Honor Roll of Race Relations of 1942 were announced by Dr. Lawrence D. Reddick of The New York Public Library.

Each year a nation-wide poll is conducted by the Schomburg Collection of Negro Literature of The New York Public Library to determine the twelve Negroes (individuals, organizations, or institutions), who have most distinguished themselves during the year, and the six white persons (individuals, organizations, or institutions), over the same period, who have done the most for the improvement of race relations "in terms of real democracy." This is a feature of Negro History week.

Dr. Reddick, who is curator of the Schomburg Collection, said in the course of the announcement that the efforts of those named "are indeed worthy contributions to national unity in that they strengthen morale and quicken faith of the whole American people in the democratic ideal. What is more, these efforts demonstrate to our allies all over the world the capacity of democracy to constantly improve itself and secure the rights of all of the people."

No attempt is made to rank the names. The citations are as follows:

WHITES:

Dr. Franz Boas, (died Dec. 21) distinguished anthropologist, whose scientific studies have done much to shatter the myth of race.

Wendell L. Willkie, who has frankly spoken out for the rights of Negroes and the common man the world over.

Warner Brothers, motion picture studios, for "In This Our Life", an exceptional film in that it presented the Negro in a realistic and dignified role.

Lillian Smith, of Clayton, Ga., who as editor of The South Today has maintained a consistent liberalism in a land where it takes courage to be liberal.

The National Maritime Union, for supporting Captain Mulzac in his fight for recognition and for its uncompromising stand against racial discrimination in the employment of its members.

The Survey-Graphic, for its special issue of last November, entitled: "Color: unfinished business of democracy."

NEGROES:

Captain Hugh Mulzac, of the Liberty ship "Booker T. Washington" for becoming the first Negro captain of a United States merchant ship.

Edward Kennedy "Duke" Ellington, whose contributions to American music for the past 20 years have lifted "jazz" to new heights of excellence and dignity.

Dr. George Washington Carver, whose recent death brought to a close a career which has focused wide attention upon the contributions of the Negro to science.

Willard S. Townsend, president of the United Transport Workers of America (Red Cap), for becoming the first Negro member of the executive committee of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Dr. J. Ernest Wilkins jr., Phi Beta Kappa, for winning his Ph. D. in mathematics from the University of Chicago at the age of 19.

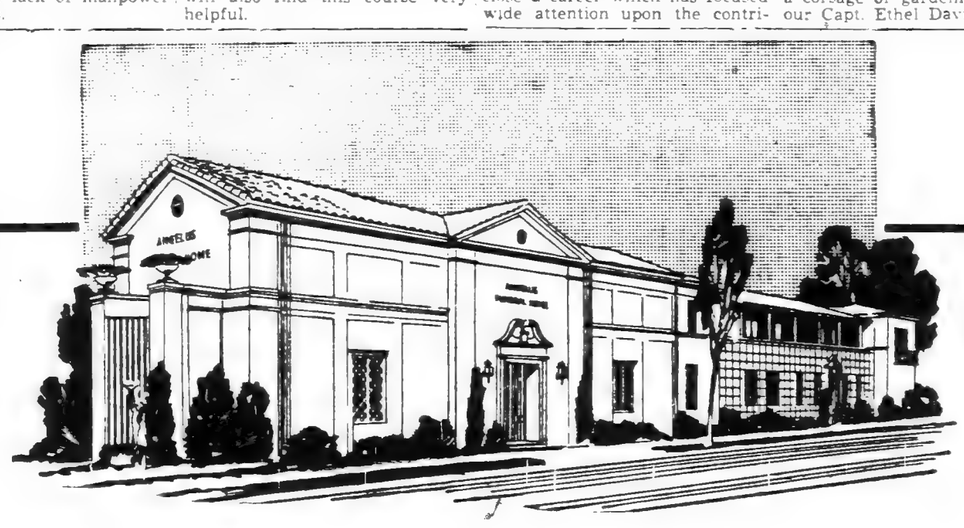
Paul Robeson, for symbolizing and promoting the folk art of many lands and peoples and for his performance last summer in the leading role of Shakespeare's immortal play, Othello.

Dr. Alain Locke, of Howard university, for his books and for editing the special issue of Survey-Graphic, "Color: unfinished business of democracy."

Dr. Arthur Melvin Townsend, whose business acumen, against great odds, has guided the million dollar publishing company of the National Baptist convention out of the "red."

The Pittsburgh Courier, largest Negro weekly newspaper, for leading the "Double V" campaign—Victory for the United Nations abroad; Victory for democracy at home.

Dr. Channing Tobias, for his services in the War Bond campaigns and in the Army and Navy recreational programs, and as member of the national advisory committee on Selective Service he assisted in formulating a policy of fairness for this agency.



Margaret Walker, of West Virginia State college, for winning the Yale University Younger Poets competition with her book, For My People.

Judge William H. Hastie, former civilian aide to the Secretary of War, for his heroic efforts to achieve full integration of the Negro in the United States Army.

WADCA Has Anniversary

On January 28, the members of the WADCA (McKinley Unit) celebrated their second anniversary at the home of Trooper Gussie Ford. Delightful refreshments were served. A large birthday cake was presented to the Unit by our first Lt. Rose Davenport, and ot our surprise a second cake was given to us through our Area Commander B. Yohalem of the Hollywood Unit. During the evening one and two year service chevrons were given to troopers and officers by Lt. Henchman.

Guests of the evening were Commander B. Yohalem, Lt Henchman, Sgt. Rakoff of Hollywood. Each were presented with a corsage of gardenias including our Capt. Ethel Davis.

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH HARRY

By Harry Levette

SCANDAL! AND RED HOT SCANDAL at that, is just about to break on a bunch of girls, who have been engaging in too bold interracial affairs, with male stage employees of a certain studio. What anyone does is their business provided they are not in public life: Then you have to keep your spicy business out of the public eye, for the sake of your employers as well as your families and your race. Maybe if they put on the brakes in time, the mess won't get out, but there are plenty of publications, just rarin' to make headlines about it in BOX-CAR letters. It is better to just make pictures, while at the studios, than to risk suspension, and all that good money that is made, during a long run. Suspension of course would mean from the studio casting office, Screen Actors Guild, and Central Casting Bureau.

Dialogue Pays $25 Per Day Up

But not only is the question of morality looming as an obstacle for the imediate future of the race motion picture group, but three well known girls, whose names will not be printed as yet, showed distressing and expensive inability to master a few lines of dialogue in a scene last week. They were to exchange a few words and exhibit corresponding facial expressions while, in a group with stars Bill Robinson, Lena Horne, and Dooley Wilson.

The director's and assistant director's patience was worn to a thread when with trial after trial, expensive film and time was wasted. But to make matters worse, the trio kept unconcernedly laughing. Finally the head cameraman who is unusually patient and respectful exclaimed. "These three people Mr. Robinson, Miss Horne and Mr. Wilson are artists. You are delaying them with your carelessness. Don't you have no respect for them either?" Finally a shot was kept as a take after, the director had to resort to such child training methods as "move your head this way, turn your head that way," because of either lack of training in expression, or from carelessness.

Tall Tales in Short Pants. Buy War Bonds with Long Green

MYRTLE DOUGLAS, efficient wardrobe attendant on the "Stormy Weather" set gets my apology for her name not appearing in the article last issue about the colored hairdressers and wardrobe attendants after she had gotten the rest of the names for me. Responsible for the care, of hundreds of beautiful, expensive costumes, and for their fitting on stars and chorus girls, there are three others besides Myrtle, and all are doing excellent work. They are Hazel Washington, wife of Lieut. Roscoe Washington, of the Police Department. Blana Williams and Lola Maddox. Miss Douglas was traveling companion and studio attendant for Ginger Rogers for several years.

JOHN LESTER JOHNSON, former heavyweight championship contender is in the men's wardrobe department. John came to the coast to fight, his first bout being at the old Vernon Arena over twelve years ago. After that he fought many times at the Olympic, Culver City, Pasadena, Long Beach, and other spots. One of his last fights at the Olympic before entering pictures as a player was a draw with Neil Clisby. Fistic history often recalls the fact that Johnson once broke two of Jack Dempsey's ribs during a non-title contest. . . . Fight against MGM's bitter film, "Tennessee Johnson" appears to have cooled down in some circles here, not so the California Eagle . . . . it is just limbering up its heavy artillery . . . Joe Louis will soon be back in Hollywood; he was ordered to report here to play a featured part in Irving Berlin's new picture, "This Is The Army" . . . A fine musical program will be rendered next Sunday on the Americanization week program at Faithful Central Church, staged by the American Anti-Prejudice Society. The speaker of the evening will be an eloquent member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce . . . Helen Crozier of New Orleans, one of the newest members of the screen colony, is really misunderstood by some of the girls who have been a long time in pictures. She is very ambitious, but is not really trying to crowd past them on the coveted road to prominence. Her chance may come yet in a dramatic role which she craves. She is exceptionally good-hearted and desirous to be friendly and helpful . . Madam Sul-te Wan will soon be seventy . . don't forget it.

White Nazis with black hearts. Yellow Jaws with black hearts. Buy War Stamps and blast both ULYSSES S. THOMPSON, better known as "Slow Kid", on the world's vaudeville stages, and former husband of the revered Florence Mills, should have been included in "Stormy Weather". Florence and "Slow Kid" played an important part in that 1922-24 episode of theatrical history, Florence being in "Shuffle Along", when magazines and daily paper critics, catapulted her to sudden fame. Kid who makes his home here, now that the war has stopped his globe-trotting, is still an excellent dancing entertainer . . . "The Rosary" to start filming soon at MGM, is expected to include Lena Horne; it is to star Spencer Tracy, with a New Orleans locale as the background. . . "Watch on the Rhine", will be released shortly with Frank Wilson, the "Moses" of Green Pastures" and Clarence Muse, who made three in a row.

PLANTATION CLUB ENTERTAINS SOLDIERS

Through the courtesy of Joe Morris, proprietor of the Plantation Club soldiers at Inglewood enjoyed one of the finest shows, so the soldiers claimed ever to enter their camp.

Red Mac and his band played, Bettye Quincy, Jeanette Owens, and Louise Harris entertained. Jerry Harris, winsome songstress, wowed the soldiers with her personality singing and original interpretation of the boogie. Bonita Parez sang the blues. Sand man, Howard Sims was there with his band. Pee Pee Wiley, blues singing M. C. was emcee. The show ended with the singing of "God Bless America."

Dance hostesses for the afternoon were furnished by the A WVS Canteen.

"SHUFFLE ALONG" PLAYS CAMPS

On a short leave of absence from the big USO show, "Shuffle Along," now touring the Army camps, Flennoy Miller, veteran, long noted comedian, and playwright, made a flying trip here last week.

He was accompanied by Johnnie Lee, his teammate on the big roadshow of 45 performers, and also a topnotcher in vaudeville.

The two are here to portray the "Miller and Lyles" team of bygone days in Fox's "Stormy Weather."

The late Myles was Flennoy's partner in the original "Shuffle Along," "Runnin' Wild" and other stage hits of the past.

Miller told the EAGLE drama editor, in reminiscing of the "good old days," that Josephine Baker, who prior to World War II was the toast of Europe, had been a chorus girl in the original "Shuffle Along."

Josephine, after first having been reported as dead in Spain, was recently discovered alive there and improving in health. She lost wealth, and her fine villa at Paris after Hitler and his ravaging minions took over.

In the present "Shuffle Along" are some of the best in the entertainment field, inluding Mae Diggs, former coast favorite; the team of Chuck and Chuckles, Eubie Blake, Arwin Russell, The Chanticleers, Moore and Larry, Cora Green, and the Addison Carey dancing chorus.

WILLIAM GRANT STILL QUITS 'STORMY WEATHER' PICTURE

By WILLIAM GRANT STILL

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (CNS)—Today I resigned as Music Supervisor of the all-Negro film called "Thanks, Pal' and then re-titled "Stormy Weather", now being produced at 20th Century-Fox Studios in Hollywood. I did this officially for musical and personal reasons, and also because my conscience would not let me accept money to help carry on a traditnon directly opposed to the welfare of thirteen million people. I have asked that my name be omitted on the screen credits when the film is released to the public. My comments, however, have nothing to with the picture itself, the story, or the people who are taking part. I am concerned only with the music.

When Irving Mills first asked me to accept the position, he outlined a film that would be epoch-making. His original idea was to have a story that recorded Negro achievement and Negro culture on the concert stage, using the in the world of the theatre and Fisk Jubilee Singers and at least one or two of our leading Negro concert singers. Here, I thought, was a chance to do something musically outstanding. But this fine conception was gradually altered, and many of Mr. Mills' ideas ousted. Why this was done I do not know. I can only surmise that they fell back into the "stereotype" as the surest way of making money.

In addition, some of the heads of various departments in the studio came forth with strange ideas. Negro music, said Al Newman, the music director, should be crude. Negro dancing should be erotic, even if done by a fine concert dance group. He has built up an idea of what he thinks Negroes ought to be and won't give it up under any circumstances.

For example, I made arrangements of music that was to be played (on the screen) by a Negro orchestra in the Bert Williams period. One particular arrangement was thrown out as not being true to the period. "It's too good", Newman told me. "Negro bands didn't play that well." However, at that period, I was playing in Negro bands and I knew very well what and how they played. When I told the music director that, he ignored me and got someone lese to make a "corny" arrangement of the same piece, which he recorded for use in the film. He also told me not to use cup mutes. Those too, he declared, were "out of the period". Yet they allowed another arranger to use them in a piece designed for the same sequence! You see, Hollywood, with all its insistence on realism, actually avoids reality! Hollywood tries to portray everything as it thinks things should have been, not as they were.

The final straw came when a ballet idealization I had made out of the song "Stormy Weather" was thrown out as being "too polite, too light" and not sexy enough. Someone else was called in to re-wrte the piece according to the way Newman insisted it should be.

As Music Supervisor, every time I asked for something or somebody, I was given something or somebody else. Everything I said was disregarded, possibly because it went against that same Hollywood "stereotype" as regards colored people. I have heard of similar things happening at other studios. Freita Shaw, who used to have one of the best and first Negro choruses in films, was always told that her singers were too refined, that Negro singing should be rough. Our actors very often have to clown instead of being allowed to display their really good talents in worthwhile dramatic parts.

Obviously, we must change the ideas of producers and department heads if we are to make any progress in this field. I suggest several modes of procedure.

First of all, thousands of letters from intelligent colored people should flood the studios. These letters should not only point out faults, but should tell in detail what Negroes want to see Negroes doing on the screen. In the case of the "Stormy Weather" film, I think it would be good to write to the head of the Fox film Studios, asking that Mr. Mills' original idea be retained. A flood of letters from people outside might do a great deal of good, seeing that we who are on the scene battle ceaselessly, and seem to be unable to accomplish much.

"However there is one young man to whom I give credit. Just as I announced over the radio a while back," said Bill. "This is Bill Bailey, back in New York. He is a clever dancer and has the originality that is so necessary, and which has no limits for development."

BILL ROBINSON DANCES ON 25 DRUMS IN FILM

In order to stage just about the most unusual and spectacular scenes ever included in a motion picture, the property department of 20th Century-Fox studio made plans last week to build 25 drums of assorted sizes, from snare to bass, strong enough to bear the staccato tapping feet of Bill Robinson, the world's greatest dancer.

It is for a sequence in "Stormy Weather," now in its third week of filming as a musical cavalcade of the Negro in entertainment.

As the plot is built around the life of Bill when from his childhood days in Richmond, Va., he became the sensation of the entertainment world. This is but one, but perhaps the greatest of the scenes in which he will show his dancing prowess.

In the 1918 episode as a returning member of the Fighting Fifteenth, New York, he does the "cakewalk," "walkin' the dog," and other dances of that period, with agility surpassing that of youngsters in the cast. And although his appearance belies it, "Bojangles" proudly announces that he will be 65 in May.

DANCERS' FAULTS

The fact that the drum spectacle was originated by Robinson is really the foundation of his long success through the years.

In answering the question as to why there are so few great colored dancers, he replied that there is too much sameness in their offerings.

"They make themselves satisfied with the fact that they can dance without trying to bring out something original.

"Personally I worked out four new routines last week, by practicing hard and long alone, and they will be better for similar hard attempts to originate.

JOE LOUIS FOR FILM IN H'WOOD

By HARRY LEVETTE

Sgt. Joe Louis, in spite of the fact that he is world's heavyweight champion, is one of the most obedient soldiers in the armed forces. But when he was given orders last Thursday to leave camp at once to work in a picture in Hollywood no doubt he felt like objecting, that is, if he could.

But no doubt he felt better over the matter when he learned that the film in which he is to be an actor has Army background, and is for the Army. In other words, he will be doing just as he did when he fought two dangerous opponents a year ago, risking his title to donate his whole purses for the Army and the Navy.

The new picture will be the stage version of Irving Berlin's road show, "This is the Army," which had a capacity run recently at Philharmonic auditorium.

From the success of the stage presentation it was decided to throw it on the screen so that many more thousands can see it, and even soldiers in camps here and at the front.

In the footlight version there were about 22 colored soldier-players, but it is not known how many will be in the screen offering. However, if they follow the thought expressed by Bill Robinson one day in commenting on it they will comb the ranks of the available colored soldiers still in this country for "names" that were known on stage and screen before they entered the service. "The more they have the better the picture will sell, said Bill.

Joe does not really care much for acting. He said as much when he made his screen debut in "Spirit of Youth," made on the Talisman lot. He consequently is not much of an actor, nor claims to be, but he will do his best as just plain Joe so that will help make the film a success.

HATTIE McDANIEY, genial, nationally popular Academy Award winner will be interviewed over KFWB today at 2 p. m. She will soon be seen again on the screen in her latest Warner Bros. feature, "Thank Your Lucky Stars."

HATTIE McDANIEL TO SING ON APRIL TOUR

Affording the thousands of fans who have long adored her on the screen an opportunity to meet and greet her in person, arrangements are underway for the race's first and only award winner —Hattie McDaniel—to make an extended personal appearance tour in April.

Regardless of the arduous work entailed in making train connections and the covering of many states, the genial star is as happy over the prospects as the fans are to see her.

Hattie will feature the song she did in Warner Bros.' "Thank Your Lucky Stars," which will be released at that time. This is titled, "Ice Cold Katie," especially written for her expressive voice that first came to western fans over the Perfection Doughnuts radio hour on KNX.

In the picture she sings it while Rita Christina, former Dunham dancer, poses and pirouettes as illustration of Hattie's words.

Incidentally, hitting the road will be no new experience in Miss McDaniel's life. For years, ever since childhood, she has traveled in roadshows and as a headliner in vaudeville when the footlights were in their heyday.

Upon her return she will complete three pictures on a loan from Warner Bros. where she has long been under contract.

Roland Hayes in Tribute

SEATTLE, Wash.—Mr. Roland Hayes, paid tribute to and for all intents and purposes honored some 2000 Negro troops at the First Avenue Cantonment last Saturday morning.

Mr. Hayes spoke briefly to the men stating that he was only too sorry that he was "too young to be in the fight" with them.

It was at the suggestion of Master Sergeant Rayfield Lundy of Pasadena, Calif. that Lt. Colonel John Sholdon gave the go ahead signal which led to the written request for Mr. Hayes. Sgt. Lundy after several telephonic conversations with Mr. Hayes shaped the program and escorted the noted tenor from the home of the family of his accompanist, the Boardmans of Queen Anne Hill District here in Seattle.

Flanked by Seattle Port of Embarkation Officials and ranking Camp Officials, Mr. Hayes sang two very appropriate and appreciative numbers: "I'm So Glad Trouble Don't Last Always" and "Joshua Fit de Battle of Jericho".

Sgt. Lundy, master of ceremonies for the occasion, then introduced: Brigadier General Eley P. Denson, Commanding General of the Port; Lt. Colonel John Sullivan, Ass't Chief of Staff; Lt. Colonel oJhn M. Seldon, Commanding First Avenue Cantonment; Major William J. Coyle, Special Service Officer for the Cantonment, Mrs. Christine Mead, USO Director and Rev. Benjamin F. Davis, pastor of Mt. Zion Baptist Church.

CAB CALLOWAY KOs FLU, COMES HERE FOR FILM ROLE

Apparently completely recovered from an attack of influenza which delayed for a week his start in one of the top roles of 20th Century-Fox's "Stormy Weather", Cab Calloway, maestro of orchestra leaders, arrived in Hollywood Sunday night from the Midwest where he had been filling an engagement.

Calloway is scheduled to go before the cameras with Bill Robinson and Lena Horne, stars of the picture, sometime around the end of the week, Director Andrew Stone said today.

The arrival of Calloway and his band will mark the third injection of orchestral music that "Stormy Weather" has had since the picture started. Also contributing musical numbers will be Fats Waller and his band--made up entirely of musicians each of whom is a band leader in his own right--and the celebrated Tramp Band.

Ginger Rogers plays an adventurous American dancer exploring Europe in the ominous days just before the first blitz, in Leo McCarey's "Once Upon a Honeymoon," which co-stars Cary Grant. In RKO Radio's scene above, Ginger has just married a German Baron, played by Broadway star Walter Slezak, while Natasha Lytess awaits the Baroness' orders.

GINGER ROGERS IN COMEDY AT LINCOLN

"Versatility plus" is the secret of Ginger Rogers' success on the screen. Currently sharing stellar honors with Cary Grant in Leo McCarey's "Once Upon a Honeymoon," Ginger is playing a romantic comedy role.

Being top film funster would be enough for most actresses, but not for Ginger. She was already a top dancing star, her many roles with Fred Astaire having put her at the undisputed peak of her terpsichorean group of film favorites.

And to round out her catalogue of screen talents, she ranks among the very highest group of dramatic stars, a fact sufficiently proved by her winning of the Academy Award two years ago for her poignant performance in "Kitty Foyle".

All this versatility of one slender gyrl is unusual, to say the least. Perhaps it's due to Ginger's restlessness (she is always picking up new hobbies, but rarely stays with them very long). Perhaps it's due to her childhood training, when she early made up her mind she was going to Be Somebody, though she didn't know just what or who. Or maybe it's simply because she has an astonishingly flexible talent for acting and is equally good anywhere along the scale from tragedy to farce.

But whatever the reason, it's certain that her present role is one of her most notable to date for producer-director Leo Carey has made it a daring experiment. McCarey is famous for his handling of romantic comedy (remember "The Awful Truth" and "My Favorite Wife"?), but "Once Upon a Honeymoon" has the temerity to play its merry-making against the stirring back-ground fo a Europe ablaze with the first wave of Nazi invasion, something really new in comedy treatment.

The comedy starts Saturday, Feb. 20 at the Lincoln Theatre, and runs four days.

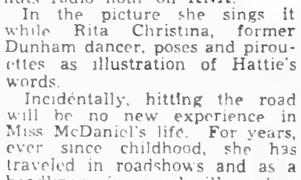
METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER'S LION'S ROAR

Published in this space every week — The greatest star of the screen!

When "Cabin In The Sky" was playing Broadway a couple of years ago, we went to the Martin Beck three or four times to hear the cello-voiced Ethel Waters singing "Taking a Chance on Love" and all the other melodies by Vernon Duke.

★ ★ ★ ★



Here was a musical play with a real plot, a touch of poetry, too. What a film it will make, we said to ourselves, lion to lion.

★ ★ ★ ★

And now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is getting set to release "Cabin", happy in the knowledge that preview reports have branded it "a honey", "a dream" and just plain "excellent."

★ ★ ★ ★

M-G-M rules the raves.

The trio of star entertainers heading the cast are Ethel Waters, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson and Lena Horne.

★ ★ ★ ★

Lena is a find. She is destined to become another Florence Mills.

★ ★ ★ ★

Nor must we fail to tell about Louis Armstrong, Rex Ingram, Duke Ellington and his orchestra, The Hall Johnson choir. They're all there in "Cabin In The Sky".

★ ★ ★ ★

It's another excellent musical production by Arthur Freed. The screenplay is by Joseph Schrank. It is the first film that has been directed by the talented artist Vincente Minnelli and he is to be congratulated.

★ ★ ★ ★

A few additional numbers appear in the film by Harold Arlen and E. Y. Harburg. One in particular is entitled "Happiness is a Thing Called Joe."

★ ★ ★ ★

It's something to sing about—as all America puts its shoulder to the giant wheel of production in its great push toward Victory.

UCLA Has New Negro Star

University of California at Los Angeles' Bruins hoop fortunes took a rosier hue the past week with the appearance on the court of Don Barksdale, a transfer from Marin Junior college.

Barksdale, who appears to have the makings of a great all-around athlete, prepped at Berkeley High. Standing 6 feet 4½ inchs, and weighing 195 pounds he plays center on the cage squad. His talents don't end there, however. At Berkeley he donned the moleskins. His grid career was interrupted at Marin jaysee though because that school didn't have a football squad. In track and field, Barksdale high jumps 6 feet 5½ inches, throws the javelin over 180 feet, and leaps out in the broadjump pit around the 23 foot mark.

Built on the order of Woody Strode, former Bruin great, Barksdale created something of a sensation last week, as he got in a few minutes' work against Hank Luisetti and his St. Mary's Preflighters. It was a winning Bruin effort, by the way. And Saturday Barksdale will probably see more action against the Stanford Indians.

Archie Williams Trains for Another Crack at Axis

Over in Berlin in 1936, Adolf Hitler and his henchmen, got a looksee at something which knocked his cock-eyed racial theories into the proverbial cocked hat, for there down on the field such great Olympic stars as Archie Williams, Jesse Owens, Ralph Metcalfe, Jimmy LuValle, Phil Edwards, Mack Robinson, Corny Johnson, Dave Albritton, and Fritz Pollard jr., were raising merry ned with the opposition—including Adolf's aryans.

That group almost swept the track events.

Today, as the United Nations again prepare to make the trek to Berlin, but on another mission, Archie Williams is preparing to play a major part. Back in 1936, Williams won the 400-meter race in 46.5; in the same year in Chicago he hung up a new world record in 46.1. That's behind him now though. In a class of 200 at UCLA, Williams is scheduled to be commissioned a second lieutenant in the air force, an expert in meteorology.

The class is bunked in special quarters in Westwood, receive box lunches at noon, go through a period of calisthenics at 5:00 p. m., before eating heartily and retiring to their quarters.

Upon completion of the course in September, Archie Williams, one of the "Black Auxiliaries" who made Hitler fume in 1936, will be subject to active duty—to make Hitler BURN this time!

Notes Picked Up Here and There

That John Thomas-Willie Joyce battle at the Olympic, and won by the latter, was one of the greatest and most evenly and hotly contested bouts we've seen. The outcome didn't hurt John's prestige. He should be the better for having met a grand battler like the Chicago boy. Incidentally, locals will get another look at Joyce on Mar. 2 when he tangles with Hammerin' Henry Armstrong . . . They'll be calling Lloyd Marshall "The Spoiler" very soon, now. Several weeks ago, he subbed at Hollywood with Charley Burley, and proceeded to win an easy decision to the amazement of the fans. Last week he knocked out Costello Cruz in two heats, doing the unexpected again. He really "spoiled" the record of the Mexican youngster who had just gone 10 rounds to a draw with Jack Chase at Portland.

We're rooting for Sgt. Jackie Wilson in his go with "Sugar Ray" Robinson Friday night.

BEHIND THE SCENES
With HARRY LEVETTE

n't know that he had over 2000 good colored soldiers in his army. It seems to me that would add an interesting, entertaining and instructive phase to your stories of early American history, and although your company didn't aim directly for Negro patronage, this would cause thousands more to go out of their way to see such episodes.

"OH YES I DO KNOW," the writer, an old fellow who was very democratic replied, "but I doubt if our producers would want me to write that into the story." Well they won't kill you for trying it, ' remonstrated, and he did. They were sold on the idea, also with a comedy sequence, in which one colored trooper captured by the enemy, is forced to cook for them turns the tables on them by scalding them with boiling soup and escaping. He also told me something overlooked in Warner Bros.' "They Died With Their Boots on." This was that Gen. Custer had a Negro bodyguard, a powerful 6½ foot giant, also spoke several Indian languages fluently, having been raised with them, and who was greatly feared by the hostile tribes. He died too, with Custer, after killing dozens of the surrounding redskins.

But then came Pearl Harbor, and away went the company that would have been the first producers of white-cast films to add Negro revolutionary soldiers to their stories.

"Cabin" Preview Postponed

I just got built up to a big letdown a moment ago, and if you've ever been disappointed you know how it feels. Ten minutes to there came a phone call from Phil Carter at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, inviting John Kinloch, City Editor of the California Eagle, to come out for the first cut preview of "Cabin in the Sky", in the studio projection room. Then just now there came another call saying the preview had ben postponed. Will inform you later.

I am certainly all het up and anxious to see the famous 'Cabin', the gorgeous Lena Horne, deeply dramatic Ethel Waters, the convincing Rochester, and the big cast. With all the possibilities of modern screen photography to make it more impressive than the stage play, I am wondering if they succeeded. But a picture is viewed many times and cut many times before it is finally even privately previewed before newsmen, so I suppose they have to chop on it some more. However, I hope they don't leave many of my friends' faces on the cutting room floor in that elaborate cabaret scene, with Duke Ellington's band.

Two other fine previews though were covered last week at the Filmarte Theatre on Vine street in Hollywood. They were a series of German propaganda newsreel films, that some how the War Department got smuggled out of Germany and prepared them for showing here. They show the mind of the Nazi beast at its worst. They include the conquest of Belgium, Holland, France, the opening phases of the Battle of Britain and other new enslaved countries. They are valuable pictures to American morale.

SIAC Slates Cage Tourney

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Feb. 17.—The 10th Annual Southern Conference Basketball tournament to determine the cage champion of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic conference, will be held here March 4, 5, and 6, the tournament committee announced this week.

Members of the committee are Cleve L. Abbott, Tuskegee, chairman; C. Johnson Dunn, Alabama State; J. B. Bragg, Florida A. & M. college; Theodore A. Wright, Xavier; and R. S. Darnaby, Tuskegee.

Previous tournament winners have been Tuskegee Institute, 1934; Alabama State, 1935 and 1936; Morehouse college, 1937; Xavier university, 1938 and 1939; Clark university, 1940; Xavier, 1941, and Florida A. & M., 1942.

STATE MIDDLEWEIGHT CHAMPION JACK CHASE as he will look Friday night when he laces on the gloves for his 10-round battle with highly regarded Charley Burley at Hollywood Legion.

Terry Gibson Headlines at Olympic

Terry Gibson, sharp-hitting fistic pride of Central avenue, recently graduated from the semi-final ranks, and fiery Vincent Villavicencio, the Tiajuana Tagger, who waged a sensational battle last month at the Olympic auditorium, come back to the Olympic next Tuesday night to fight the 8-round main event.

The clean cut, dapper Gibson, who fights in the same stable as Hurricane Henry Armstrong, has finally hit his stride. Gus Wilson recently sold his contract to George Moore and Norman Saunders, who are behind Armstrong.

Gibson won a home for himself when he blazed through with a brilliant six-round victory over Villavicencio in their first fight at the Olympic. He had the game Mexican on the floor for a 9-count. A whistling right hand caught Villa flush on the jaw—and he went down face forward. It was nip and tuck, a wild toe to toe battle from then on from bell to bell.

Last week Gibson traveled to San Francisco where he defeated Vic Grupico of the Coast Guard in a fast six round battle on the Juan Zurita-Vern Bybee card. Northern scribes were loud in their praise of the lanky Gibson.

Terry stopped Villavicencio's win streak of 18 straight when he defeated the Mexican battler at the Olympic. Vincent had scored a string of wins at the Olympic and San Diego clubs. The ballyhoo was turned on full blast for the senor from below the border.

SPOILS TO WINNER

The winner of the Gibson-Villavicencio fight will be in line for juicy fights over the 10-round distance according to Matchmaker Babe McCoy. He is planning to send the victor against a good name fighter next month at the Grand avenue club.

Villavicencio is coming up from Tiajuana tomorrow to conclude his training at the Main street gymnasium in Los Angeles Gibson started drills last Saturday.

A bang-up set of fights will back up the classy welterweight battle, McCoy said. He is lining up popular mittmen in supporting matches.

ON THE TURF
By Geo. A. Ramser

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 17—Well, so far, folks, the races will come back to the southern part of the state next month.

On Mar. 14, Caliente is supposed to open again and horses are now crossing the line. Generalissimo Lou Anger, who announced the opening of the curse the first part of this month, has all the confidence in it being a success, despite gas rationing.

Although people cross the border and get four gallons in Mexico, more people go to Tiajuana than when the races were on.

It will be a good thing for Baja, Calif., as more than 300 Mexicans depend on the track for their living, and they must eat, too.

The sport of kings is now more popular than ever all over the United States, but only one track is operating at present, and that is New Orleans.

Bay Meadows is supposed to ope nfo r50 days starting Feb. 20. Robert (Kid) North, assistant to Generalissimo Wm. Kyne, has summoned all his employes to the northern track, preparing for the opening date.

Local Woman Starts WAAC Training

FORT DES MOINES, Iowa—Auxiliary Edna Cunningham, former clerk-typist for the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission, has started her training in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps at the First WAAC Training Center here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. York Cunningham of 807 East 116th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Auxiliary Cunningham is now in Basic Training, which will give her the Army background and the knowledge of Army procedures necessary for any job she may do in the WAAC. At the completion of Basic Training she either will be selected for specialist training or will go directly into a non-combat job with the Army to release a soldier for combat duty.

Basketball Series Opens Saturday

On Saturday the always popular basketball series starts at Patriotic hall, 18th street and So. Figueroa.

In the past the series has been between the fraternity teams, but this year, due to the fact that so many boys have joined the armed forces, the names of the teams will not be the same but the high calibre of basketball and the strong spirit will prevail as usual.

In the first game Saturday night, the Club Alabam Big Five sponsored by Curtis Mosby and coached by Halley (So What) Harding, will meet the Varsity Big Five, coached by Lloyd Thomas, director of the YMCA and physical education teacher at McKinley Junior High.

The Club Alabam Five has played six games to date and won five of them from top ranking AAU teams in the aviation division.

Arthur Watts, Frank Underwood, Raymond Christian, Winston Wright and Edgar Reeves are some of the stars on this fast moving team. Their last triumph was over Interstate Aviation team, 70 to 30, at Jacob Riis gym.

Wednesday night they travel to Fullerton to engage the junior college team leader in their division.

PRELIM GAME ON TAP

Wilbur Ashford, currently starring on the Santa Monica AAU team, leads the hard-hitting Y Varsity, backed up by Spencer, Richey, Holland, Jones, Rock, Vernon Milton, all-city froom Manual Arts and Francis Garland, now playing with Calship.

The preliminary game will feature the Kappa fraternity versus an Army Base team to be selected from several good ones in the vicinity.

All enlisted men will be admitted at half price and will be transported to the dance if they are without transportation. The dance will be held at Normandie hall, Jefferson and Normandie, and one price admits one to both attractions. Everyone will be there so be early and see your favorites in action. Saturday night, Feb. 20, 1943, at 7:15 p. m.

STATE MIDDLEWEIGHT KING, FOE CLASH FRIDAY IN H'WOOD RING

California middleweight champion Jack Chase dons the gloves Friday night for a boxing engagement with Charley Burley of Minneapolis in the 10-round headliner at Hollywood Legion stadium.

Originally slated to meet Dec. 11 last the pair figures to attract another capacity house to the film plant. Chase came up with a bad maulie in December and Lloyd Marshall, the Sacramento middleweight substituted.

Marshall had Burley on the floor twice and won an easy decision that night. It was learned after the fight that Burley was handicapped by a swollen thumb.

Proving he has regained his form Burley recently stopped Harvey Massey in Oakland. The latter had just dropped a close decision to Marshall.

A former ranking welterweight, Burley is 25, born at Bessemer, Pa., but now lives in Minneapolis. He had 89 amateur bouts, losing only 7. As a professional he has scored 30 knockouts in 70 fights.

Among his victims have been Billy Soose, Cocoa Kid, Homer Williams, Fritzie Zivic twice, Jimmy Leto, Antonio Fernandez, and Gene Buffalo. He lost to Jimmy Bivins.

On the coast he knocked out the Hogue brothers, Shorty and Big Boy, and lost to Marshall.

WHIPPED BOOKER

Chase has compiled an enviable record in coast rings as a pro. His only loss was to Archie Moore in an upset at San Diego. He later won the State crown from Eddie Booker in 15 rounds at San Francisco. It was California's first 15-rounder under the new law.

Managed by Johnny Kelloff, Chase recently drew with Costelo Cruz at Portland. That was his last start. Newspapermen thought he deserved the nod over Cruz.

Pedro Ramirez and Ceferino Robleto tangle in the six-round semi-windup.

Henry Armstrong to Fight Willie Joyce for War Relief

Henry Armstrong, former triple-crown champion, has been signed to meet Willie Joyce, conqueror of John Thomas, in a 10-round bout at the Olympic auditorium on Tuesday, Mar. 2, according to George Moore, business manager of Hank.

Armstrong was slated to fight at Portland, Ore. for Joe Waterman on Feb. 26, but Waterman readily agreed to postpone his date upon learning that the Joyce-Armstrong bout was for War Relief. Fifteen per cent will come off the top of the Mar. 2 bout for War Relief.

Joyce is the No. 2 contender for the world's lightweight title ranked by the NBA, and about 10 days ago stopped the 30-bout win streak of Thomas, much to the amazement of local fans. He and Hank will fight at catchweights.

Armstrong's future book includes several other matches, all of which have been closed. Hank meets Tippy Larkin of Garfield, N. J. at the Civic auditorium at San Francisco on Mar. 8, and on Mar. 12, accompanied by Manager Moore and Trainer Norman Saunders, will leave for Philadelphia where he battles Al Tribuani on Mar. 22.

The eagerly awaited Armstrong-Beau Jack bout will take place at Madison Square Garden in New York City on April 2.

Since having his tonsils removed, Armstrong declares that he feels great and hopes to be in fine shape for his bout with Joyce.

Alabama State Loses to Morris Brown; Trips Lane

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 17.—The Alabama State Hornets divided a pair of games here on the home court this weekend (Feb. 6), dropping a 38-18 decision to the Morris Brown Wolverines on Friday night, and recovering their form to win 39-25 from Lane's Dragons here Saturday night.

In the Morris Brown encounter, the Hornets took a 10-3 lead within the first 8 minutes of the game, and then proceeded to blow sky high and trail 18-10 at the half.

Morris Brown pressed her advantage in the second with a dazzling display of speed and accuracy. The Wolverines stole the ball with sickening regularity from the faltering Hornets who were throwing it everywhere in the gymnasium except the hoop and appeared baffled and flabbergasted.

Bankhead, ace Hornet forward and sparkplug of the team's scoring efforts, was ill and unable to give his mates his usual assistance. Carter of Morris Brown thrilled the spectators with his assortment of short and long shots.

THOMPSON STARS

Bankhead was back in top form in the Saturday night game with the Lane Dragons and paired with his teammate, Thompson, to lead the Hornets to a 39-25 victory. Taking the ball directly on the tipoff, the Hornets sank a goal shortly after the game began and were never headed. They led 25-17 at the half.

The second half began miserably with the Hornets failing to make a point for the first 10 minutes and the Dragons doing little better getting only four to make the count 25-21, their closest approach to the Hornets during the entire game. Then Evans went in for Jefferson at forward and the Hornet passing game began to click again and the final count was reached as Thompson sank three crypts in a row.

Thompson accounted for 17 of the Hornets points and Bankhead 15, and Thomas and Hawkins had six each for Lane.

A prelim feature on Friday night saw State High girls take a 17-16 game from St. John Catholic high, and State High boys dropped a hot 35-31 affair to 4th Aviation in the Saturday night prelim.

Undefeated Xavier U. Trims Bishop

By CHARLES L. DE LAY

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17.—The Xavier University Gold Rush cagers of Louisiana scored their fourth consecutive victory of the current season Saturday night, Feb. 6, at Xavier gymnasium, defeating the fast breaking Bishop College Tigers of Marshall, Texas, 52-34, in a thrilling basketball game.

The visitors lived up to their reputation for close games with Xavier cage teams for one-half of the contest, holding the undefeated Xavierites to an 8-7 lead in the initial quarter, a 19-15 margin at half time.

Using an airtight zone defense, the Tigers stopped the Xavier lads' favorite offensive—pass deception and a crip shot from short range to score—in the first half.

However, the Gold began to drop them in ... range to draw the visitors out in the second half. A dazzling passing attack with Nathaniel "Sweetwater" Clifton, Xavier's 6 ft. 6 in. giant at center, showing plenty of speed soon found the locals leading 50-26 late in the fourth quarter.

60 POINTS PER GAME

Clifton scored 17 points via 8 baskets and a free throw to lead his team for individual scoring honors. However, Bishop's sharp-shooting center, E. Guice, was high point man of the night with 18 points via 7 baskets and a quartet of free throws.

Xavier's Irving Ward, agile forward on one of the double pivots used by Coaches Giles "Unc" Wright and James "Red" Despinasse of Xavier, scored 13 points to run up his total score for the season to 86, an average of 21.5 per game. The high scoring Xavierites boast an average of 60 points per game as compared to 35 scored by the opponents in each contest.

Girls! Don't deny help because of old TABOO

Head Girls DON'T deny -- -- --

Just because an outworn modesty forbade discussing such subjects, is no reason why you should drag yourself through days of cramp-like pain each month without seeing whether CARDUI may aid you.

For 62 years many girls have sought relief in CARDUI's 2-way help. Some take it as a tonic: it usually stimulates the appetite, aids digestion by increasing the flow of gastric juices; thus it helps build energy and resistance for needed days. Or you may prefer to take it, as directed, 3 days before "your time": CARDUI then often aids in relieving functional pain.

This time try CARDUI.

This new draft ruling that rates actors as non-essential as a mouse in a cheese factory is causing a run on aspirin in Hollywood. A bunch of the glamor boys who have been saying "Yes, Sir" to a director will now be going through the same routine with a Sergeant. The dialogue may be the same, but the pay is different. The work or fight ruling puts the skids under such box office dandies as John Wayne, Mickey Rooney, Fred MacMurray, Bob Hope, Red Skelton, Robert Taylor, Dennis Morgan and Don Ameche. From here it looks like the Hollywood version of love is going to take a worse beating than Rommel. This week: Shirley Temple and W. C. Fields in "Springtime."

I see that 450,000 members of the United Mine Workers' Union demanded $2 a day raise in pay. The miners probably figure gold is where you find it.

Speaking of gold—Harry Morgan offers you a golden opportunity to stock up on your favorite brands of liquor, wines or beer at a most reasonable cost. At the House of Morgan, 2729 Central Ave., you'll find the largest and most complete variety on Central Ave.—well displayed for your easy selection.

Moana, Wilma Chevalier's daughter, graduated last week. She's going to Lakewood, Junior High, Oakland.

Rose Foster's daughter of the Rosedolph Hotel, also graduated with honors.

Theodore Snowden, better known as Chink, spent a short vacation visiting his daughter, Nellie, in Oakland at the home of Mrs. Locker, 2213 E. 20th St. He also spent a few days with his sister, Mrs. Marguerite Smith of 1988 Bush St., S. F. Mr. Chas. Mitchell of Jack's Tavern entertained him with a luncheon.

Peaches and Richard Lee had a big Rumboggie party for her brother, who is visiting California, fresh from New Orleans, and what a party it was--everybody was as lit up as a candle.

Jimmie Pitts just won $900 while Freddie Reed lost $2100 and Rain Coat Jones lost $4400.

Brick Berkley, Ralph Thornton, alias Rooster, were found in Club Alabam at the bar talking over several plays Brick made week before last in Chicago.

Big Jack Jones, Ralph Roberts and Jimmie McDower, all big shots, in and out of the best places.

Ethel Daniels, play girl from Oakland, had one too many drinks t'other night but acted nice.

Mrs. Cladell Jackson has Mrs. Viola Green from L. A. as her house guest.

Mrs. Edith Robinson, Mrs. Ruth Collins and Dorothy Webster from L. A. all looking like a million, all fresh from L. A., sipping drinks in the one and only Club Alabam with Mr. and Mrs. Bubble Bailey.

It seems like old times to see Robert Atkinson and his lovely wife Toy in the Alabam as guests still breaking Cee notes.

Jack Dalton, Edith Hughes and John Becker from New Orleans are giving 'Frisco a big play.

Mrs. Versa Lee is doing her part in war work and seen in the best places. The Mrs. Billie Davis was having a nice time in Town Club with a party of friends. I caught someone saying she is working in shipyard.

Hazel Edinboro, 949 Clay St., and Shirley Brook, 2926 Pine St., S. F., would like to hear from their friends.

Tom Allen is still in the firing line every day. He and Charlie Falk are betting high.

Mrs. Goodman and Miss Georgia Lee Davis sporting, spending plenty at Town Club.

Harry Fields and John Simon, Bruce Kenly, Maxie Barber, and Commissioner Mike Sneed leaving for Hot Springs the 15th of February.

Lee Thompson and Marie Williams have been married for quite some time--but he still plays mighty hard.

But is looking for the one who stole his lamb chops and is he mad.

Kinney Goodman is here and said to tell the boys on the ranch "Hello".

Miss Leora E. Lynch, a nurse at the Fairmont Hospital in Oakland, Calif., was suddenly called to her home in Kansas City, Mo. on account of the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Lizzie Giles, an old resident of the city. For the first time in three years, Miss Lynch is visiting her home town.

Mrs. Florence Allen, ex-art model, with her gorgeous blue eyes and streamline person must have skipped town for we haven't seen her lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilson from Tacoma, Wash. were seen having fun in the night clubs, fights and dowtnown shows.

The green bulb at Bay Meadows was on again, off again, and on again, and then they got the go ahead sign so when you read this, the track will be running five days a week.

The three glamour girls this week are Florence Nealy, Hortense (Reed) Gabel and Mrs. Rosa Montgomery.

The three best dressed women of the week are Miss Evone Brown, Mrs. Lena Alexander and Miss Victoria Francis of Oakland.

When you, you and you see this writer, just say "Hand me the book, I have some news for you, then write your name and where you are from so people around the country can read about you, and you can also read about yourself.

From the looks of sports on ringside at fights, there's no poor people in 'Frisco, Julius Delifus taking the betting honors t'other night by betting 5 hundred on the Mexican to beat the home boy and among other bets registered were Buck Cannon, Percy Williams, Mr. Hollywood, Roy Gardner, Frank Brown the exboxer, Pity Brown, J. B. Brown, Frank Winburn, L. D. Benton, Frank Logan, Palmer Pinckney, Cecil Burkley, A. Love, Bob Hurford, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ellis, Calvin Vincent, Mr. B. Big money sports on the Bay Meadows racing front, Ethel Carter, Betty Lou, Lillian Roberson, Mrs. Rex Langford, Billie Starr, Rebecca Roberts, Willie Bea McCovey, Margaret Clipper, Irene Walton, Vera Hamilton, Marie Canady, Peggie Armstrong, Genevieve Friend, Ray Bouganight, Emma Littleton, Naomi Gibson, Mrs. Marie Thompson of Oakland and Naomi Cleveland are on the race track lawn several times a week.

Sonny Montgomery and Freddie Reed are betting to the sky nowadays.

Dave Miffins, Rich Brody, Tight Montgomery, Pete Rector, Big Bill, Bill Cooper and Kid Lee are in the big money.

Wonder why Emley Haller gives so many chicks the run-around, including pretty Bernice Webster.

Sweetwine, I was a bartender at Jack's, but he was overheard saying since A. Love is rich nothing suits him and he's hard to get along with.

Al Gibson, playboy and sport has gone overboard for Kay Francis, the charmer who changes her outfits each day. Kay takes her mail at the Kirkland hotel.

See Big Tex and the lovely Miss Ann is trying it over again. Wonder how long it will last this time. Ann is a looker.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Jones are a sweet couple and if Don goes to the army, won't somebody be lonesome?

Tricky Sam Davis, playboy and L. A. gambler, was worried until doctor said it won't be twins but ot will be an 8 or 9 pounder, which it was. Some baby.

Novel Hayden and Arlene Charles, playgirls, sporting light spring coats and hatless, sipping choice drinks in Jack's Theatre Restaurant with playboys.

Mrs. ex-Morris Brooks, the baby sister of the rich Brooks hotel owners, is what I call a knockout and keeps her boots laced up. She has just returned from Los Angeles.

Charlotte Linn and hubby, Mr. Charles Linn, has come to the parting of the ways. Mr. Linn is a rich man.

Club Alabam, Jack's Tavern, the Town Club and the Subway are jammed and packed from the rear to the sidewalk, regardless of the heavy and high prices.

Ruth Whitfield and her two sisters, Anita and Effie, are still tossing away dough over the cocktail bars.

Artie Graves McPinckston, Charley Alexander, Arthur George, Johnny Baban, Percy Anderson, Clarence Moore and Lucius Lomax, jr. are authorities on beautiful girls as they deal in 'em.

Cleo Foster, you must have a crystal ball as everything you says comes true on fights, girls and the dice--some lucky man.

Ethel Daniels, you had one too many drinks t'other night. Glad to see you cut out for home.

Mrs. Georgie Ganes of Honolulu is happy to be an addition to our city now that the track is opening.

See Ethel Randell t'other night with Jarbootie's dog, saying 'have another drink' to the boys including Tom Schaffer.

Jeffries, the rubber boss, says you will have to skate to the track as far as he is concerned.

Black Dot McGee, hobnobbing with fight managers, basketball managers and all sporting top men, chattering about the inside dope.

Steve Madgruder, Buddy Osborne, William Samson and Arthur Mayane busy buying imported champaign when not playing at Jack's.

Mr. George Smalling is in the army now and isn't somebody lonesome. It couldn't be Anita Green.

Miss Ida Small of Sacramento, Miss Dolly McGee of Imperial Valley and Miss Baby Londy of Stockton really come on like gangbusters.

Daisy Boom, Reecy Young and Mrs. ex-Ward, the barber's wife, don't seem to get out of the city limits of San Diego.

Miss Shirley Vernon, Nat Earl and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunn can be seen in and out of the night spots.

Gertrude Williams and Dolores Taylor must have skipped town. Percy and Buck are worrying aplenty about them.

Mrs. Lucile Coleman, Mrs. Ione Crawford, Mrs. Jessie Ford, Mrs. Ollie Berry and Mrs. Warren Irving can be seen dropping in and out of the best places.

Ruth Scaggs, since you bought that flat building for 30 gees you don't show around Dixie Town any more.

John Green, William Davis, and J. Brown still spending at every tick of the clock.

If you can beat Velda Wilson and her husband Jess spending dough, you may come and get my brand new 95 dollar wrist watch.

Mr. Edy McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Washington can be seen in the bright spots, putting on the dog. Some spenders.

Last rites for Christopher Carter, of 551 Central avenue, were held from the Ivory Chapel of The People's Funeral Home Saturday. Mr. Carter, a native of Parkersburg, W. Va., died on Jan. 30. Rev. Jonues of the Watts Community church read the service.

Mr. Carter is survived by a son, Richard, of Pasadena, and other relatives. Burial was at Paradise Memorial Cemetery.

MAJOR CHARLES J. BLACKWOOD
. . . 93d Division's Special Service Office Chief.

Maj. Blackwood Special Service Chief at Huachuca

FORT HUACHUCA, Ariz., Feb. 17.—Important indeed is the announcement that Major Charles J. Blackwood, highest ranking Negro line officer in the 93d Division, has been put in charge of the Special Service Office of his division. And the announcement is one that is certain to meet with unanimous approval thruout the Fort Huachuca area.

Maj. Blackwood, who succeeds Maj. Homer F. Browning who has been assigned to special duty with the G-3 section of the 93d Division, is an officer with a great military background extending back to his days with the 365th Infantry (92d Infantry Division) on the battlefields of France. He was a first lieutenant in those days of terrific struggle in the Meuse Argonne forest and the St. Die sector.

Bringing to his new assignment a fine and valuable experience acquired during his "tour" with the special training unit of the 93d Division, and several high class assistants, the list including 1st Lt. Herbert J. Lowry, formerly of the 369th Infantry; and 2nd Lts. John J. Johnson jr., James E. Gleason, and Ruben E. Fraser jr., all of the 369th Infantry, before coming into special service, Maj. Blackwood is certain to not only continue the good work of his predecessor but to initiate further expansions in this important field of Fort Huachuca's activities.

Morale being among the truly important words in the military scheme, Maj. Blackwood, with his long experience and association with soldiers is sure to pay particular heed to the welfare of the fighting men of the 93d Division.

During the days of peace, 1918-1941, Maj. Blackwood worked hard at his job of engineer (Diesel) with the Burlington railroad. He was one of the first colored men to be sent to the Chicago School of Diesel Engineernig.

Continuing in the Reserve Corps after the Old War, Maj. Blackwood was advanced to captain in 1926 and to the grade of major in 1938.

In March, 1942, Maj. Blackwood was called back to duty with the United States Army, and was immediately assigned to infantry school at Fort Benning, Ga. Fort Huachuca was next on his "schedule," the month of his arrival being June.

Maj. Blackwood was assigned to the 369th Infantry on his arrival and on Oct. 1, 1942, he was assigned to organize a special training unit in the 93d Divsion.

Dr. George E. Haynes to Visit Los Angeles

Dr. E. C. Farnham, Executive Secretary of the Church Federation of Los Angeles, and Rev. Norman W. Taylor, Chairman of the Commission on Inter-Racial Goodwill of the Federation announced today the completion of plans for the visit of Dr. George E. Haynes, of New York City, Executive Secretary of the Race Relations Commission of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Dr. Haynes will arrive in the city Wednesday, February 24th, and go immediately into conference with the members of the Race Relations Commission of the Los Angeles Church Federation. The remainder of the day and most of Thursday will be devoted to interviews with civic leaders in the city and county who face problems of race relations in the administration of their tasks.

Friday, a Church Conference on Race Relations will be held at the Second AME Church, 43rd St. and South San Pedro, the Rev. J. B. Isaacs, pastor. The conference will open at 10 o'clock with a Ministers' Round Table presenting Mexican, Oriental, Caucasian, and Negro leaders with Rev. Frederick D. Jordan as chairman. A conference of lay leaders seeking to discover effective approaches to the most pressing phases of the problems in our community at this time will be held at 2 o'clock. At 4 o'clock representatives of the various social agencies of the city whose work has inter-racial aspects will gather to make their contribution to the days study.

On Saturday, Dr. Haynes and the Race Relations Commission will join with Prof. Walter G. Muelder of the University of Southern California, and others in a study of the problems of Orientals on the West Coast in the Post War Period.

On Sunday, February 28th, Dr Haynes will preach at 10:45 at Eighth and Towne, and will be the Church Federation Vesper Speaker at 4 p. m. over Station KECA. At 7:30 Dr. Haynes will preach at the First Baptist church 760 South Westmoreland Ave.

It is hoped that all persons interested in bringing effectively to bare the influence of the church upon these grievous problems of racial adjustment will give the fullest publicity to these meetings.

Plans Shape Up for George Washington Dinner Here

Billed as the usual brilliant affair, featured by a nationally-famous Speaker-of-the-evening, and flavored with starry entertainment furnished by Hollywood, plans are well under way for the George Washington Dinner in Los Angeles the night of February 22nd.

The place will be the colorful Biltmore Bowl of the Biltmore Hotel in downtown Los Angeles. That big dining-and-dancing hall has a capacity close to 1500, and it is anticipated that it will be packed with loyal Democrats who will contribute $25 apiece to see the show.

Sponsored by the Democratic National Committee to raise funds for the party, George Washington Dinners--superseding the Jackson Day Dinners of years gone by--will be staged in key cities throughout the United States. The No. 1 affair, of course, will be the function in Washington, D. C. President Roosevelt, from the White House, will broadcast a message to the Los Angeles and other dinners.

National notables, in every case, will be speakers for the occasion. It is anticipated that for Los Angeles, Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower Chief; Senator Happy Chandler of Kentucky, or Elmer I. Davis, head of the OWI, will be the local attraction.

Dr. G. Vernon Bennett heads the dinner in Los Angeles as General Chairman. Albert W. Robertson, as Southern California Finance Chairman, is his principal aide. Bennett's other assistants are Col. James S. McKnight, Vice Chairman; Rollin L. McNitt, Secretary; and Capt. James Irvine, Treasurer. Committee Captains already chosen: James S. McKnight, attendance; Dr. H. P. Jacobson, arrangements; Charles E. Arnn, publicity; Rollin McNitt, program; Thos. P. Scully, laision; Kemper Campbell, reception; William Thorpe, seating; and Helen Gahagan, women's activities.

Edwin W. Pauley of Los Angeles, now in Washington as secretary of the Democratic National Committee, is expected to be here for the occasion.

Post-War Panel at Sojourner

Youth Groups Conduct War Bond Sales Campaign

WASHINGTON—Emphasizing the need of wartime self-denial for younger members of the community to aid in the war effort, Negro youth organizations of the country will conduct a War Bond sales campaign to marke the birth day anniversaries of two great Americans and benefactors of the Negro race, Abraham Lincoln and Booker T. Washington. The campaign will open on Feb. 12, the birthday of the Great Emancipator, and close on April 6, the anniversary of the birthday of the renowned educator.

In addition to being among the foremost friends of the Negro race, it was pointed out that both men rose to high places in the United States from humble homes and each knew the value and necessity of self denial on his road ot success.

Nearly asco er of Negro organizations are organizing to interest their memberships in the campaign and have perfected individual activities to assure the success of the undertaking.

Grand Master of Odd Fellows Dies

EDWARD H. MORRIS, late Grand Master Grand United Order of Odd Fellows in America.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (CNS)—Funeral rites for Hon. Edward Hezekiah Morris, Grand Master of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows in America, were held Sunday afternoon, Feb. 7, 1943 in Odd Fellows Temple, Southeast corner of Ninth and T Streets, Northwest, Washington, D. C.

In addition to the estimated more than fifteen hundred persons who crowded floor auditoriums in the beautiful temple of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows in the District of Columbia, other thousands passed the bier of the beloved veteran Odd Fellow, whose remains reposed in the Frazier Funeral Home at Rhode Island and Florida Ave.

Mr. Morris passed away at the home of his friend, Henry P. Slaughter, 1264 Columbia Road, Northwest, with whom he had hoped to spend the winter months. The Grand Master, who had been in failing health for the last few years, died at 3:30 o'clock, Wednesday morning, Feb. 3.

The burial ceremony of the subordinate branches of the Order was conducted by Past Grand Master Abner B. Moore, and a trio of patriarchs performed the burial ceremonies of the patriarchy branch. Morris Wooten pronounced the benediction.

Mr. Morris, while widely known for his fraternal activities, was a lawyer who attained high distinction and renown in his chosen profession, winning fame and wealth as he went along. But he did something other than live Odd Fellowship and practice law. He became a farmer, and spent much of the past thirty years in his stately mansion and the broad acres of "Jess-mine farms" near Benton Harbor, Michigan, where he produced and marketed thousands of bushels of peaches, pears, and quinces, and great quantities of the smaller orchard fruits. Fortune smiled on his efforts and he amassed considerable wealth.

Mr. Morris was born in Flemingsburg, Ky, May 30, 1858. He is survived by a talented daughter, Miss Denise Morris.

NEVER BE DEFEATED!

When failure is expected it's pretty sure to arrive, says a famous psychologist in a penetrating study of the failure attitude. Anticipation of failure is one of the most usual causes of objective failure, which in turn increases the fear of failure.

Such things as expecting too much of your children, of teachers grading them too severely or giving them work too difficult all help the "failure attitude" to get started in early life. A few small successes make a good start in the right direction for youngsters, and are a good incentive to older folk as well. Pass along a little praise and encouragement, and chuck your own defeatist attitudes overboard. Let VICTORY be your business.

M. N. S.—Dear Prof. Herman: I enjoy reading your column and would appreciate your advice in regards to this question. I have two boy friends; which of the two cares the most for me?

Ans.: It appears to me that both boys like you very much. But one is not reliable, and he is the one that makes dates and doesn't keep them. The other fellow comes to see you often and is sincere in his feelings for you.

A. B. C.—What became of missing articles while away from home?

Ans.: My Psycho-Mentalist Crystal reveals the fact that some things were found missing from your bag when you returned home sometime ago. It seems that people in your home have a few unreliable friends who took advantage of the fact that your bag contained some valuables. Be more careful of the people you leave in your home when you go away.

Mrs. S. E. C.—If I leave here and go away, will I be happy?

Ans.: Probing into the matter I find that it is your intentions to leave your husband and go to your first love. Although I do not recommend your breaking up your home and making this move, still if you find that you cannot be honest and true to your husband it would be wise to consider something else. For further information, I suggest you write in for a private reply.

F. D.—Do you think it would be wise for my husband to go thru with the plan he has in mind at this time?

Ans.: The carrying out of his plan depends entirely upon what effect the war or draft has upon him. And if it is possible, I suggest that you encourage him all that you can. He is smart and intelligent, and will get along fine.

E. R.—Dear Prof. Herman: Please send me that brand new Charm Bag you were talking about. If it is as good as your advice was then it will help me a great deal. I certainly wish to thank you for answering my questions so quickly and I am telling my friends of your work.

H. L.—Why can't my husband and I get along?

Ans.: Your suspicions of your husband are causing a great deal of the trouble. You suspect him of another woman, which isn't true. He dislikes your questioning him as you have been doing and has taken the attitude he now has, which isn't making matters any better. Try being a better companion to your husband; do things he likes to do and go places he likes; make your home more cheerful, and you will soon note a decided improvement in your marriage.

L. M. J.—Will I marry this year?

Ans.: According to your lucky stars and guiding planet, marriage is indicated for you soon. You will be quite happy, as the young man is very much in love with you.

Mrs. J. S.—Will I get the job I applied for?

Ans.: Your Zodiacal sign indicates a cycle of good luck, which will include your obtaining the job you have in mind. I would like to help you, and if you write in for a private reply, will give you further information concerning your future.

Valentine Dance for Servicemen Held at Oakland Jewish Center

OAKLAND—A monstrous Valentine dance for Negro servicemen in the East Bay Area was held at the Jewish Community Center, Oakland, on February 9. Servicemen from four camps and Seamen from six or seven stations, danced to the delightful music rendered by the crack Navy band now stationed at the Oakland Air Port, Livermore, Calif.

Door prizes were given to the holders of lucky admission tickets including the Army, the Navy, the band, and junior and senior hostesses.

Over several hundred servicemen enjoyed the festivities.

Announcement has been made by Mr. George S. Martin, USO-YMCA Regional Director, that the club's programs will temporally be discontinued, pending renovations to the club house which is being carried out by Harold Page, local contractor, under the direction of Henry A. Cutterson, USO Building Counselor.

When the renovations are completed, the club will be able to render a more comprehensive and satisfactory service, and it will be able to provide for nine or ten thousand servicemen per month.

Additional features which are greatly needed will be a dormitory, a shower room, canteen, additional recreation quarters, a writing room, ladies powder room, and private offices.

The club is now in the old DeFremery Mansion located at 18th and Adeline Streets. The building has been leased to the USO for the duration by the Recreation Department, City of Oakland.

During the temporary closing of the club, the Director, Mr. James S. Thomas, and the Associate Director, Mrs. Mary E. Hill, are arranging outside entertainment in the nature of servicemen's dances, sightseeing trips, home hospitality, moving pictures and hospitalization. Arrangements are being completed to take entertainment to the various local camps.

Opportunity Mag to Appear as Quarterly for Duration

NEW YORK—The National Urban League for Social Service Among Negroes, announced this week that OPPORTUNITY Magazine, the League's Journal of Negro Life, will for the duration of the war, appear as a quarterly instead of a monthly publication. In announcing the change of policy to Opportunity's subscribers, Lester B. Granger, executive secretary of the National Urban League, said: "The League is devoting its whole organizational strength to serve the wartime needs of our nation. This calls for increased activity in a number of fields—war employment and housing of Negroes, community planing, cooperation with federal and state agencies, recruiting of Negro men and women for service in war industry, civilian defense, and other essential activities. The League's wartime responsibilities have increased faster than our budget. We are forced to 'put first things first' and adjust the budget so that our limited funds will be spent where they will do the most good. OPPORTUNITY, therefore, is 'going to war' in the sense that it is loaning some of its funds to other League departments in the interest of greater service in the war effort.

PAIR OF SHOES A WEEK FOR DANCERS — ALL BUT ROBINSON

The average dancer wears out a pair of shoes a week before the cameras, but there are at least two dancing stars in Hollywood who won't be bothered by shoe rationing, at all.

The two are Bill Robinson and Lena Horne, starring in 20th Century-Fox's "Stormy Weather", and so far as shoes are concerned their only problems are splinters.

Bill Robinson has had the same pair of shoes for nearly 30 years. He has had them re-soled twice. The soles are wood.

The world's champion tap dancer ought to be an authority on dancing shoes, so when he passed the idea along to Lena Horne, she fell dutifully in line and had all her dancing shoes re-soled with wood.

"I've even worn them on the street some times when I was in too much hurry to change," Robinson reported. "I'll say this for wooden soles--they're mighty easy to wear in rainy weather. Ever hear of a Hollander with wet feet?"

MAESTRO ALTON REDD HELPED MAKE COAST MUSICAL HISTORY

That he is not as well known all over the country as he is here is merely because he has not taken his band and invaded the East, is the general expression of local music lovers and dance fans about Alton Redd.

Away back in 1925 when Paul Whiteman created history and a sensation by playing hot jazz in the style of colored bands Redd was nicknamed "The Brown Paul Whiteman." But of course he and his boys swung out better than Paul, ,or any others who followed suit were ever able to do.

In those days Alton Redd's band was constantly in demand, one of the most popular for dances at 15th and Main and Washington and Central dance halls, besides for traveling stage shows or home talent footlight presentations. When the Tivoli theatre, now called the Bill Robinson, had a large stock company for many weeks on the stage it was Redd's band in the pit. It is now scoring nightly on a long run at the Cricket club.

But there were thousands of other fans who will long recall the good old days of Winter League baseball when White Sox park was packed on Saturdays and Sundays. For many years, right up until Joe Pirrone discontinued them three years ago, Alton Redd's was the official league band.

The baseball fans got as big a kick out of their playing and amusing antics as they did out of the game, for the band struck up a number every time a good play was made. They also accompanied the colored league teams to Santa Monica and other out of town parks of the circuit.

In the present Redd musical organization are Jack McVey, formerly with Lionel Hampton; Teddy Buckner, trumpet; Eddie Myart, piano; King Orey, bass; Chas. Thomas, saxophone; and Alton Redd, leader and drums

The floor show is being produced by June De Cuir, who with her cleverness and dancing ability, has also improved from a chorus girl to a producer. This with her beauty and pleasant personality makes her very popular at whatever night spot she is engaged.

With her are Edith Crain with an excellent record of stage and cabaret shows, and Georgia Watkins, a new but talented entertainer who both sings and dances. "Jimmy," male vocalist, is the featured singer with the band. The attendance is excellent.

★ MR. LINCOLN

By RUTH TAYLOR

In this, our month of heroes, we do honor to those who did so much for us and for this country. Across these days lies the shadow of the Great Emancipator--just as the shadow of the great statue lies across the snowy marble of the Lincoln Memorial.

We honor him for his greatness—for the courage it took to do the things he did; for the bravery of his fight upwards; for his great sympathy and broad vision. We listen reverently to the great words of his gratest address which still fall across the aisles of time, as fresh as on that day at Gettysburg when they were first delivered.

But there is more for which we should honor Mr. Lincoln. And we say Mr. Lincoln--not the President, or even Abraham Lincoln, which is a title in itself.

Let us not talk about the great things he did--orators all over the land will speak of them on February twelfth. Let us rather talk of the man, Mr. Lincoln, who went through the same who stumbled and fell just as things all of us go through and often--but who picked himself up each time and went right on.

Let us remember the gangling farm boy, laughed at by those of his own age and condescendingly pitied by those who were older. Let us remember the man who was called shiftless, who made a failure of shopkeeping, and whom no one thought would amount to anything. Let us remember not just the cases he won in his law practice, but the cases he lost, and the hard time he had to make ends meet, even as you and I.

Let us remember the Mr. Lincoln who came into Washington for his first inaugural--not the man hated by his opponents, but the man pitied by his friends, and looked down upon by his own party, for the things he had yet to learn. Let us remember the lonely Commander-in-Chief, making mistakes and admitting them, picking himself up after every fall and going right on again trying to do his part to bring about that in which he believed--a union of free men.

It is that Mr. Lincoln I admire most. It is that Mr. Lincoln of whom I think when days are dark. The lesson of his life is even greater than the lesson of his words. It is not too big for any of us to encompass. It is the steady, day in and out fight against discouragement, against misfortune, against failure. It is the resolute clinging to an ideal--an ideal based on good for others not for oneself alone. Mr. Lincoln neither feared nor was faint hearted and at last "by faith he subdued kingdoms and wrought righteousness." Let us do honor to the humannes of Mr. Lincoln.

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL L. HACKETT SR.

"AN OPEN CONFESSION IS GOOD FOR THE SOUL."

Mr. and Mrs. Al Green, residing at 2215 So. Harvard boulevard, opened the doors of their lovely and spacious home to the employees of the post office Saturday night, Feb. 13. The affair was sponsored by the National Alliance of Postal Employees.

Mr. Jesse Robinson, president of the 10th district, displayed some very excellent and interesting moving pictures taken by himself while touring the good old USA. When all the invited guests had arrived Mr. Robinson explained the purpose of the meeting. He said that through the medium of talks by those familiar wtih the post office setup the new employees might be benefitted. It was also hoped that through a general discussion later in the evening that some of the problems of employees might be taken back to department heads for clarification.

After the opening remarks by Mr. Robinson, Mr. James Tally, past president of the Alliance, gave a short talk on the history of the organization, why and how it was founded.

Mr. Joe Oliver gave a very educational discourse on how to simplify the study of schemes. His system is based upon 30 years of experience. Copies of his system were passed out and are available upon request. He advises that all prospective clerks learn the city primary.

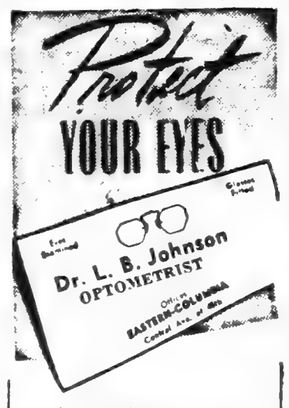
Mr. Buell Thomas spoke of what not to do in the post office. He advised honesty as the best policy at all times. "Don't let anything stick to your fingers and don't take anything from the post office but your personal belongings." Mr. Thomas added, "No matter how smart you are there is always a trap to catch you."

Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins spoke on organized labor. He admonished employees to cooperate at all times by applying themselves in being efficient in the performance of their duties. By doing so they would always be able to meet the requirements set forth by the department.

Mr. Saul Hill gave a talk touching on the results of a conference held with Mr. Carl Reck, superintendent of mails. The women now employed by the Post Office Department to fill positions vacated by men leaving for the service are expected to accept their full responsibilities when physically possible. Mr. Hill stated, "There is no such thing as no I won't do it in the post office, but rather I will try and there will always be a helping hand."

The program was concluded with several musical numbers The meeting was then thrown open for general discussion by employees of both the custodial and postal departments. These problems are to be taken back to the heads of the departments for clarification. The meeting was very educational and it was unfortunate that none of the post office officials found it convenient to attend. Correction. We saw Assistant Station Superintendent Alva Garret in the audience.

The CIO has long advocated a labor-management committee in all labor set-ups. It is the only solution for the satisfactory solution of both legislative and departmental differences. The go-between system has always been a failure, as it is impossible for individuals to express the opinions of numbers. No successful organization can be built around personalities since perpetuation depends upon potential leadership.



The UFWA, Local No. 191, suggests that all organizations form a real labor-management committee within the Post Office Department. This would be a medium of eliminating grapevine gossip, insidious rumors, and unfounded suspicions. Let's stop the double-talk and make our word our bond. Let's buy more Defense Stamps and War Bonds, but remember the lack of human bonds will defeat us.

N. Y. Presses Fight on Bias

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 17. (C)—Before the legislature this week, Assemblyman Jack made a resolution that the contribution of Negroes and other minorities to the progress of America would be made a permanent part of the history courses in the schools of this state. It also calls for investigation of employment where discrimination is.

WAR ON NEGRO
TRUTH: For 323 years a war of prejudice, discrimination, lynching and abuses has been waged against us. I began to fight this battle when I discovered that I was a 'made fool.' Mark you, not a fool but a 'made one', like many intellectuals.
Thinking people are asking: What are we—Negroes, colored People or what? What is a NEGRO? No educator has ever given a satisfactory answer. They haven't the courage. The truth has never been told. Why is NEGRO the most disputed name? Because the truth is not known. Truth Is The Basis Of Education. I went to a university; spent 5 years in law school in Boston, became counsellor in public schools. Worked in educational sociology at New York University.
After 15 years' investigation, study and research, I found the facts, the history, the truth about the race.
With my discovery, I made money, and gained world respect.
It can do the same for you. I have compiled it in the great book: "HUMAN SIDE OF PEOPLE." 399 pages, 84 pictures by myself, Raphael P. Powell. The demand for this book by thousands proves that it shows the way to success and is helping to win the war against race prejudice. Price $3. Send orders to: PHILEMON CO., 224 West 135th St., New York City, GUARANTEED: The only book which gives the TRUTH about our race.

UPGRADE NEGROES, LARY WORKERS QUIT - CHARGE COMPANY PLOT!

INJURY TO WAR EFFORT

JIM-CROW DEPT. AT END. AMERICAN

COMMUNITY ENRAGED AS FIRM WELCHES

Open sabotage of its pledge to obey President Roosevelt's executive order 8802 was indicated by the Los Angeles Railway Company as 80 workers at the firm's South Park shops quit yesterday morning for two hours until an upgraded Negro carpenter was returned to his job as a car cleaner.

The workers action was taken at the prompting of company officials, the EAGLE learned.

Assistant Superintendent of the yard had urged employees to circulate a petition against the upgraded Negro.

Joe Spearing, company foreman, contacted men in his department Feb. 19, asking them, "what are you going to do about having to work with a bunch of 'niggers'."

Further, reliable reports indicate that LARY stooges had been on duty for weeks inciting the rank and file workers with stories of Negroes "taking over the shop," and "stealing all the jobs."

BOLD ACTION DEMANDED

Rev. Clayton D. Russell, chairman of the Los Angeles Negro Victory Committee promptly demanded action by the local office of the War Manpower Commission.

A similar situation came about when Negroes were first upgraded on the Washington, D. C. Capital Transit Lines. WMC officials instantly called a meeting of all employees, explaining the war urgency of executive order 8802 and commanded its strict enforcement.

"The war must be won in Los Angeles just as it must be won in Washington," Russell stated in calling for vigorous action by the War Manpower Commission here.

UNION DENOUNCES ACTION

Meanwhile, Union officials of the AFL Street Railway Employees denounced the workers action, laying it on the doorstep of company agitation. The Union joined with Negro spokesmen yesterday in urging an immediate directive for strict obedience of executive order 8802 from the War Manpower Commission.

The Union has cooperated consistently with Negro organizations in urging employment of Negroes without discrimination on Los Angeles railway lines as a vital win-the-war step.

THURSDAY NIGHT MEETING

Six upgraded Negroes, even those working harmoniously in other LARY shops where there had been no friction wer demoted by the company immediately following yesterday's action at the South Park shop. All these men will be on hand to tell their stories at an emergency mass meeting called by the Negro Victory Committee and the Los Angeles Ry. Negro workers Thursday night at People's Independent Church of Christ, 18th and Paloma Streets. "All citizens, regardless of race, creed, color or occupation, who are interested in the President's executive order 8802 as it effects all industries,

Victory Body to Fight Boilermaker Jim-Crow

Full mobilization of the Negro community to battle Jim-Crow AFL Boilermaker unions was the keynote of Sunday nights red-hot meetings of the Negro Victory Committee at People's Independent Church of Christ.

An offensive in support of the Lodge 727 of the International Association of Machinists was also launched. The Machinists, holding a contract at Lockheed Aircraft Co., are prevented by the national constitution from admitting Negroes but have asked for a national vote on changing the anti-Negro regulation.

Real thorn in the community's side today, however, is the AFL Boilermakers, holding closed shop agreements with California ship yards, Consolidated ship yards and the Western Pipe and Steel Company. The union railroads Negroes into an 'auxiliary' where a spokesman for the workers' own Committee for Equal Participation stated, "We pay the same dues, get half the insurance of white workers, don't know where our money goes, and get no union protection."

WAR PRODUCTION INJURED

Injury to war production through the Boilermakers' Jim-Crow arrangement is the workers' main beef. Unfair upgrading is rife throughout the Boilermakers' yards. Negroes capable of skilled jobs are glued to common laborers posts, and all along the line, real advancement is denied.

At Western Pipe and Steel it was charged that ALL HIRING of Negroes has been halted for 10 days.

Edward Long, 628 East 55th St.,

Reveal No. American Segregation

Departments 19, 21 Are All-Colored

Full segregated departments at North American Aircraft Company were charged this week by workers reporting to the California Eagle.

Departments 19 and 21 in assembly production have been set aside for Negro workers, according to the statements, and are used as the spearhead of an all-out company drive for segregation of Negro workers.

Effect on morale--and production--has been shocking, say the reports.

Demands were heard today that the CIO United Automobile Workers union take vigorous steps to quash the Jim-Crow company arrangements. Although the union has fought doggedly a number of cases involving Negro rights, many workers feel that a full offensive against the production-hampering policies of the company must be launched immediately.

Charges against the North American management are also to be filed with the Fair Employment Practice Committee and the War Manpower Commission, which locally has taken only feeble steps to correct the violations rampant at Inglewood.

BIAS FIRING TOO?

Twenty-eight year old Mary A. Turner, 4315 Wadsworth, a graduate of the North American training school charged this week that she had been fired by North American following an incident between herself and a white worker during which she was called a racial epithet.

No adequate explanation, she said, was given for her discharge. She was merely told that her work was unsatisfactory. No fighting had occurred.

North American once fired a Negro, Horace Dickey, for speaking to a white woman em-

Union Need Shown as Douglas Fires Girls

Curt dismissal of two Douglass aircraft women employees for "pushing in line," despite excellent ratings in conduct and efficiency, were fresh testimony to the need of a fighting win-the-war union at Douglass aircraft company this week.

A three-sided election comes up at the firm within a month between the CIO United Automobile Workers of America, the International Association of Machinists, AFL, and an independent, company union headed by familiar pro-fascist Richard K. Franklin.

The AFL union will not accept Negroes for membership, the company body is headed by a man who once wrote that he opposed the 13th, 14th and 15th amendments to the Constitution," —those freeing Negroes from slavery and giving them citizenship rights.

On the other hand, CIO spokesmen point proudly to the unblemished record of their body in support of the struggle of Negro workers everywhere it has organized, even in the deep south.

Importance of the coming Douglass elections, observers point out, cannot be over estimated. If the Company goes AFL or to the independent union, Negro status there is wobly, war production threatened and victory morale wounded.

Need of real unionism was demonstrated this week in the case of Frankie Batts, 22, 1811 Broadway, Santa Monica, and Evelyn Gibson, 22, 1521 Sixteenth street, Santa Monica.

Both workers boasting "excel-

Elected to League of American Writers Executive Board

Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass, Eagle editor, and her nephew, writer John Kinloch have been elected honorary members of the League of American Writers, it was announced this week by John Howard Lawson, dean of Hollywood scenarists.

The organization, perhaps the nation's number one literary body, took this action recently in recognition of the strides taken by the California Eagle in fighting for win-the-war policies in industry and labor.

Only previous honorary election to the League executive committee was that of Theodore Dreiser, great American novelist, founder of the school of realism in U. S. letters.

20-YEAR OLD MURDER GETS ACTOR HERE

Russell Bingham, well known movie extra and consort of Hollywood, movie bigwigs, was revealed last week as Alonzo Gibbs, former Newark, New Jersey resident who fled here in August, 1924 after he had engaged in an altercation with his sweetheart, Sarah Frank, at her High Street apartment in Newark.

The woman's lifeless body with blood oozing from a bullet hole was found lying on the floor of her apartment. In a statement to the press, Bingham, or Gibbs, in the presence of his Attorney, Walter L. Gordon, Jr., stated he and the Frank woman had lived together for approximately five years on Court Street in Newark. During the Elks convention the woman moved out and took forty dollars of Gibbs money. Gibbs found out where she had moved to and went to see if he could collect the same at her new apartment on High Street.

the woman became enraged and ran to her bedroom and procured a revolver and started menacing Gibbs. Gibbs said he 'sweet-talked' her until he got close to her and when he attempted to wrestle the gun from her it went off and she fell limp in his hands.

He then called the hospital for an ambulance and immediately left for the docks where he caught a freighter for South America. Later he went to Galveston, Texas and later he came to Los Angeles.

He worked in many pictures, his first being 'The Four Feath-

ON THE SIDEWALK:

HUSH! HUSH! WHO SAYS SO?

There is a vicious under current of tactfulness abroad in the community.

We find it wherever industrial Negro workers attempt to fight the sharp battles against Jim-Crow and for upgrading and against getting fired and for the victory of this nation's production effort against the slave power of the Axis world.

There are those among us, leaders, so-called "expert spokesmen," who wisely counsel that the best way for Negroes to fight through their serious war-time problems is to shut up about them. To maintain a beautiful, wounded silence. To confer behind the scenes with this, that or the other "big shot." To engage in such delicate arrangements for racial advancement that the slightest puff of publicity — vulgar thing! — would blow it all away.

It is time to reckon with this pernicious propaganda. It is time to ask the question boldly, in whose interest is such counsel given? Ours — or our enemies'?

First, what is a "pressure campaign." What is this thing which shocks and revolts those who would secure their victories in the time-honored fashion of the pussyfooters?

What is the meaning of a publicity campaign?

It is simply this: Calling for help.

Calling for the help of labor, of all patriotic organizations; calling for the help of America's people.

Who would argue against Negroes getting help? Who would say we do not need it?

But we are told that loud squawks are not tactful. They make enemies.

Suppose, however, a man is being beaten, and suppose that there are friends of his willing to render aid, and that these friends are within earshot. And then suppose that the victim is told not to call for these friends because this might be untactful to his assailant, that it might make an enemy of him?

Isn't it plain that those who would give such counsel speak in the interest of the attacker and not the victim?

Isn't it plain that they should be exposed for playing such a traitor's role?

JR. COUNCIL, NAACP, SMACKS DOUGLAS; TO MEET FRIDAY

The Junior Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will meet Friday at 7:30 at the YMCA, 28th and Paloma streets.

Young war workers facing problems of discrimination, upgrading or jim-crow are urged to report to the Council for prompt action.

Following the meeting, which will also launch a drive against distorted history texts in local schools, there will be a Co-Ed splash party in the 'Y' pool.

Hit Boilermaker Jim-Crow!

These statements from prominent spokesmen of the Negro people denounce the Jim-Crow unionism practiced by the Boilermakers' AFL union at Calship, Consolidated shipyards and the Western Pipe and Steel Company at the harbor. Limiting full production for victroy and destroying morale, the Jim-Crow policy has no place in America at war for survival!

—"The ships that America needs desperately for its victory over our fascist enemies must be built as efficiently as possible. Jim-Crow union regulations, smashing huge gaps into the nation's ship production, is not only a perversion of the spirit of democracy but sabotage against the armaments necessary to protect that democracy."—Thomas L. Griffith, jr., president, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"The fight against Jim-Crow is part and parcel of the fight for victory in this people's war. Jim-Crow is a boulder in the path of full productin. America can't afford it. Negro citizens won't stand for it. Our full blow, unrestricted by segregation, must fall against out nation's enemies."—Rev. Clayton D. Russell, chairman, Negro Victory Committee.

"The acceptance of any auxiliary status by war workers on the basis of color is to me a definite capitulation to the very undemocratic principles against which the nation is fighting."—Floyd Covington, The Los Angeles Urban League.

"Mobilization of all progressive laboring people, the Government, the win-the-war masses of America is urgently demanded to break the production bottleneck which is the real menace today of all union Jim-Crowism."—Charlotta A. Bass, The California EAGLE.

"Now is the time for Negroes in the American Federation of Labor to stand up and fight! The Dining Car Cooks and Waiters of the West Coast denounce Jim-Crow unionism and point with pride to the anti-segregation stand of the State Federation of Labor. The Boilermakers must get in step—and fast!"—John E. Hargroves, Dining Car Cooks and Waiters, AFL.

"In the distribution of petitions against the Boilermakers' Jim-Crow policy, in fact, in any way that I can help in the fight against un-American activity, feel free to call upon me."—Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, Second Baptist Church.

"The thing is wrong in principle. I see no excuse for the organization of separate unions today. It establishes the fact that we are failing to achieve national unity. We support the fight against union segregation in the name of victory for America."—Norman O. Houston jr., Golden State Mutual Life Insurance company.

"Those Negroes who wish to keep quiet and walk softly on such issues as the Boilermakers Jim-Crow policy are traitors to the race and the nation. A Negro 'leader' I know wants to 'hush, hush' everything. I feel like giving him an upper-cut."—S. P. Johnson, Conner-Johnson Mortuary.

"I believe that the present policy of segregation practiced by the Boilermakers is detrimental to the growth of the AFL and also denies to Negro membership the right to participate fully in the activities of the organization. There is a growing number of leaders in the AFL who recognize the serious threat that this kind of policy is to the American labor movement and the nation's victory. The present struggle in which this country is engaged demands the full utilization of all forces in our democracy."—James Anderson, State Federation of Labor.

"I hope that the Boilermakers Union promptly realizes the mistake it is making and speedily makes the proper correction."—L. G. Robinson, Angelus Funeral Home.

"Segregated unions do not contribute toward a victorious America."—Rev. Frederick D. Jordan, First AME church.

"This segregation does not contribute to the war effort and it violates the spirit of the Four Freedoms. Immediate action must be taken to correct it in the interest of victory."—Atty. Bert McDonald.

"If there is to be any security for the Negro worker in the future, he must be given full rights of union participation NOW."—Claude E. McKinney, businessman.

CAN WRITING BE TAUGHT?

Obviously there is no substitution for talent. But where talent exists, it can be aided in its expression by experienced criticism and advice. All too often genuine ability is crippled by technical blundering or by confusion of approach. It is the aim of the School for Writers to speed up the learning process by adding mature guidance to the individual's own earnest effort. The faculty members are practicing professional writers, sensitive to the problems of the student writer out of the trial and error of their own experience.

Vast opportunities lie before writers now, not only in the various commercial media, but also through government agencies. There is a gigantic need for the right word, for the film that can stir people, for the radio script that will lend understanding. There are not enough writers to fill this expanding war need, and with this in mind the faculty members, wherever possible, will work for class room products that can be translated immediately into radio programs, publishable articles, stories, films.

The future of American culture and the freedom of American writers both depend upon the victory of the United Nations. That victory in turn will depend in no small measure upon the contribution of writers to the thinking of our people. This is not professional vainglory; it is simple truth. In the morale and determination, in the understanding and anger of the American people at the front and at home, rests the winning or losing of the war. Words are weapons; those weapons are needed.

Roosevelt, Like Lincoln, Faces Fifth Column

ROOSEVELT, LINCOLN AND THE 'ENEMY WITHIN'

Poll-Taxers, Shock Troops of American Fifth Column; Common Hatred of Democracy Bond Between Dies, Rankin, Bilbo, Hitler

"The beginnings of a great new social order based on the principle of slavery and inequality were destroyed by the Civil War and with them the embryo of a future, truly great America . . . National Socialism alone is destined to liberate the American people from their ruling cliche and give them back the means of becoming a great nation . . . I shall undertake this task simultaneously with the restoration of Germany, to her leading place in America." —Adolph Hitler.

"The News and Courier is not a Democrat. It fears and hates democratic government." Aug. 26, 1937, The News and Courier, Charleston, S. C.

(However) "In South Carolina the Democratic party has been so far as the Negro vote is concerned a fascist party and that is why the News and Courier cooperates with it." ibid, July 28, 1938, News and Courier, Charleston, S. C.

Our country involved in a life and death struggle for survival against the Axis slave powers simultaneously faces the "enemy within." A Fifth Column conspiracy to wreck the nation's war effort and to bring about defeat through "negotiated peace" is definitely taking shape and has already reached wide proportions. The prime movers in this plot are those social and political groups who fear the consequences of our nation's victory in a war which can only be a people's war of national liberation.

Nor is it surprising that this secretly pro-Nazi group should find its shock troops, its most willing henchmen among the Southern poll tax Bourbons.

The enemy within is nothing new in the history of our country; the nation has inevitably faced it in every crucial period of its development, in every progressive war in the evolution of American democracy.

In Washington's time, the British monarchy had its Fifth Column in the Tories.

Lincoln knew them as the "peace" Democrats, commonly called "peace sneaks," later to become known as the Copperheads. It was in Lincoln's time, however, the period of the great anti-slavery revolution known as the Civil War, that the Fifth Column plot took on its classic form. The traitors perfected a strategy and tactics of subversion which brought the nation within an inch of disaster. In this period, the Copperhead plot reached such proportions as to nearly wreck the Lincoln Administration's war leadership.

The detailed description of that conspiracy which nearly succeeded in overthrowing the American democracy is now placed before the nation in several serious studies. The most important being "The Hidden Civil War Story of the Copperheads," by Professor Wood Gray, Viking Press.

Professor Gray relates the full story of the astoundingly widespread conspiracy involving Governors, Mayors, Generals, Congressmen and newspaper editors to call off the war—to surrender to the slave power. This conspiracy was organized with the direct financial assistance of the rebel government at Richmond. Among the leading conspirators were Congressman Vallandigham of Ohio and his many secret associations in the House of Representatives: Fernando Wood, Mayor of New York City, who plotted to secede that city and make peace with the slave power. Included also were many leaders of the Democratic party.

Startling, indeed, is the extraordinary parallels which can be drawn between the political methods and strategy of the Copperheads of Lincoln's day and the present Fifth Column intriguers against President Roosevelt.

Lincoln had his Clement L. Vallandigham, who sought to cover his treason against the Union by advocating the theory of "two rebellions," one against the slave states and the "abolition rebellmost serious in that it overthrew mostserious in that it overthrew the Constitution, which, presumably, upheld slavery.

Roosevelt has his Martin Dies, who espouses a similar theory, brazenly declaring on the floor of Congress that the Administration "bureaucracy" presents even a greater danger to the country than Hitler.

Lincoln had his traitor press, the New York Daily News of 1862, the Chicago Tribune, published by the Copperhead Cyrus McCormick, grand-father of the present pro-Nazi Co. Robert McCormick.

Fortunately, Roosevelt has no Gen. McClellan, but there is Herbert Hoover, who openly advocates the adoption of a "go-slow" military policy, which in the hands of McClellan 80 years ago almost wrecked the Union.

Lincoln had his "loyal" slave holders of the border states, reliance upon which effectively tied the hands of his Administration, preventing it from taking the only step which could insure victory—emancipation of the slaves.

Roosevelt has his Solid South, the poll tax "white supremacist" political machine, hampering unity and production for victory thru stupid race prejudice.

These forces, social and spiritual descendants of the old slaveholders, see in this war only a menace to the status quo of white supremacy. They use their political power, usurped from the disfranchisement of Negro and white masses of the South, to obstruct every phase of the war program.

Behind these elements stand the powerful pro-fascist sections of Big Business resident in the North and represented by a political front of Hoover, Taft, and Vandenburg.

This sinister tie-up between Yankee fascism and Southern medievalism represent a Fifth Column rope tightening dangerously about the neck of America's whole war effort.

Here, in this unholy alliance of the nation's most rabidly anti-democratic forces, we have the modern version of the old "Gentleman's Agreement" through which Northern reaction sold democracy and the Negro down the river to the slave-driving interests of the South at the end of Reconstruction.

It is this legacy of reaction, bequeathed by the betrayers of freedom in 1877, that rises now in the hour of our nation's great peril as the chief stumbling block to national unity and the defense of democracy.

Lincoln smashed the Copperhead plot, broke the stifling grips of the border states and the "peace" Democrats upon Union policy, and freed the slaves. Only then could the Union embark upon vigorous and decisive conduct of the war.

Today's situation urgently demands that Roosevelt emulate the actions of his great predecessor and take similar measures to break the conspiracy of the modern Copperheads. To this end immediate steps must be taken to end the unconstitutional usurpation of power by the Poll Tax bloc through the energetic support by the Administration of Anti-Poll Tax and federal anti-lynching legislation. Only thus can the full energy of the Southern masses black and white be fully unleashed for the nation's war effort. Only thus can be established that unity essential for the successful prosecution of this war for national survival.

AFL, CIO, NFU Gang Up on Poll Tax Evil

Here's bad news for the defeatists. The AF of L, CIO and the NFU, have joined hands to abolish the poll tax. This outrageous practice casts a black shadow over democracy and al it exemplifies.

William Green of the AF of L says, "America must erase the blot of the poll tax at once if it expects to face the world as a sincere advocate for freedom and democracy."

Phillip Murray of the CIO says, "Unity for victory must be based on full democracy for all, excluding none or relegating none to second place."

The National Farmers Union in its program for 1943 declared, "The time calls for a crash to win the war and win peace. It must include full political democracy through elected representatives. This means active participation of all citizens in politics to assure the rule of the people instead of government by selfish unrepresentative and exploiting minorities."

The number of the new anti-poll tax bill is H. R. 987, and was introduced by Congressman H. R. Baldwin. Let's see some action and put this bill over this time.

HIS TRUTH GOES MARCHING ON!

WHY WE FIGHT "TENNESSEE JOHNSON":

HIDDEN STORY OF THAD STEVENS, GREAT FIGHTER FOR FREEDOM

EDITOR'S NOTE: In a forthcoming MGM motion picture, "Tennessee Johnson," Rep. Thaddeus Stevens, great friend and champion of the Negro people during Lincoln's administration, is pictured as a villain, a dire enemy of freedom. Here is his true life story.

In the poorer district of the town of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, is a secluded cemetery which holds the grave of one of our greatest—and hitherto least honored—of democrats and progressives, Thaddeus Stevens. This was the man who, in the day of America's death-grapple with slavery, won for himself the title of the Great Commoner. The inscription on the tombstone was written by Stevens himself:

I repose in this quiet and secluded spot,
Not from any natural preference for solitude.
But finding other cemeteries
Limited by charter rules to race,
I have chosen this that I might illustrate in death
The principles which I advocated through a long life,
Equality of man before his Creator

FIGHTER FOR FREE SCHOOLS

Thaddeus Stevens was born on April 14, 1792, in Danville, Vermont, the son of a shoemaker. He studied law, and in 1816 began his practice in Gettysburg, Penn. In 1833 he was elected to the state legislature; there he became a pioneer in the movement for popular education, and in the fight against slavery.

ABOLITION LEADER

It was the contest with slavery and with its shadow of Jim-Crowism that claimed the major share of Stevens' enormous and untiring energies.

It needed half a century of struggle and a four years' war to unseat the slaveholders in America. In the decades which separated Jackson from Lincoln, the slave power made and unmade Presidents, appointed foreign diplomats, packed the Supreme Court, and held the Senate in the hollow of its hand. It wrote the nation's laws, choked the development of industry, seized fresh lands for slavery by legislation, bribery, terrorism, and war.

The slave-owning class was shrewd, ruthless and resourceful. It persecuted its political opponents with ostracism, with prison, and, on no few occasions, with death. A powerful mass movement, competent and courageous leaders, were needed to combat it.

ATTORNEY FOR FUGITIVE SLAVES

Stevens' first blows against the slave power were struck in defense of Negroes struggling in the net of the Fugitive Slave Law of 1793. He never refused to act as attorney for escaped slaves, and he served them without compensation. It was seldom that he lost a case, but when he did, he bought his client's freedom from his own pocket.

Stevens entered the House of Representatives in 1849, when the question of slavery had become the crux of the nation's life. Hitherto, Northern men in Congress, with few exceptions, cringed before the slaveholders. If on occasion they opposed a pro-slavery measure, they did so hesitantly, half-heartedly, apologetically. The slave power had thus arrogantly pressed forward from advantage to advantage, constantly encouraged by appeasement from the North. It had gained vast new lands through the Missouri Compromise, the annexation of Texas, the Mexican War. It was reaching out for infinitely moire—for Mexico, for Central America, for Cuba.

A NEW VOICE IN CONGRESS

In his maiden speech to the House on February 20, 1850, Stevens threw aside timidity and caution, moved to the offensive, and boldly denounced chattel slavery as an evil corrupting the entire nation. He exposed its ruinous effect upon the South's industrial development, her commerce, shipping and agriculture; her standard of living, her education. He vowed that he would fight further concessions. He branded as "dough-faces" those Northern men—representatives of the commercial, shipping and banking aristocracy—who willingly did the slaveholders' bidding. He closed by predicting that the day of domination by the slavocracy and its Northern tools was drawing to a close.

Soon afterwards Stevens' voice was heard again, this time on behalf of a free California. California as part of the territory wrested from Mexico by the slave-owners' war of 1846. It seemed destined for a slave state. Then came the accidental discovery of gold, and the great migration which populated the territory with workers, farmers, small businessmen. These vigorous migrants had no taste for the plantation system that would reduce them to the level of Southern poor whites. They voted overwhelmingly for a constitution prohibiting slavery and sought admission as a free state. Stevens pleaded California's cause.

The soil of Kansas became a battleground on which slavery and freedom met for the first time in armed conflict.

Three days after the execution of John Brown, Stevens took his seat, once more in the House of Representatives, in an atmosphere of almost unbearable tension. He had thrown in his lot unhesitatingly with the new Republican Party.

AGAINST APPEASEMENT

Against the cowardly offers of new appeasement and betrayal, two political figures stood out above all: Abraham Lincoln and Thaddeus Stevens. President-elect Lincoln wrote his managers in Chicago: "Entertain no proposition for a compromise in regard to the extension of slavery." Later he said: "There is one point . . . I can never surrender—that which was the main issue of the Presidential canvass and decided at the late election, concerning the extension of slavery in the Territories."

On July 5, 1861, Congress met in extraordinary session. Stevens became chairman of the most important House body, the Ways and Means Committee.

TOWARDS EMANCIPATION

From the outset of the conflict, Stevens thundered emancipation. He called on the nation to free the slaves and arm them against their masters. As early as December, 1861—more than a year before the Emancipation Proclamation—Stevens introduced into Congress a resolution requesting the President to declare the slaves free if they would leave their masters.

THE TASKS OF RECONSTRUCTION

With the armed struggle of the Civil War ended, there remained the task of reconstructing the former slave states as democracies and Stevens ceaselessly pursued this democratic aim. He has been charged with harshness towards the leading Confederates, but it was only the harshness which revolution must apply to counter-revolution. He knew well what changes must be achieved in the GREAT ORATION LIVES AGAIN!

Men of Color, to Arms! -- A Famous Speech By Frederick Douglass

EDITOR'S NOTE: This magnificent speech was delivered by Frederick Douglass in 1862. It is truer today than ever.

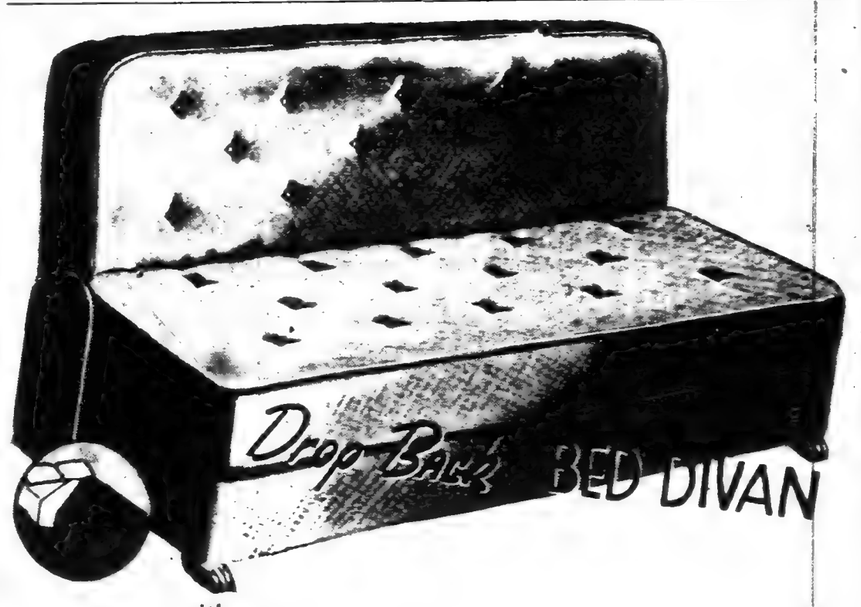
When first the rebel cannon shattered the walls of Sumter and drove away its starving garrison, I predicted that the war then and there inaugurated would not be fought out entirely by white men. Every month's experience during these weary years has confirmed that opinion. A war undertaken and brazenly carried on for the perpetual enslavement of colored men, calls logically and loudly for colored men to help suppress it. Only a moderate share of sagacity was needed to see that the arm of the slave was the best defense against the arm of the slaveholder. Hence with every reverse to the national arms, with every exulting shout of victory raised by the slaveholding rebels, I have implored the imperiled nation to unchain against her foes the powerful black hand.

Slowly and reluctantly that appeal is beginning to be heeded. Stop not now to complain that it was not needed sooner. That it should not may or may not have been the best. This is not the time to discuss the question. Leave it to the future. When the war is over, the country saved, peace established and the black man's rights are secured, as they will be, history with an impartial hand will dispose of that and sundry other questions. Action! Action, not criticism, is the plain duty of this hour. Words are now useful only as they stimulate blows. The office of speech now is only to point out when, where, and how to strike to the best advantage.

There is no time to delay. The tide is at its flood that leads on to fortune. From East to West, from North to South, the sky is written all over, "Now or Never." "Liberty won by white men would lose half its luster." "Who would be free themselves must strike the blow." "Better even die free, than to live slaves." This is the sentiment of every brave colored man amongst us."

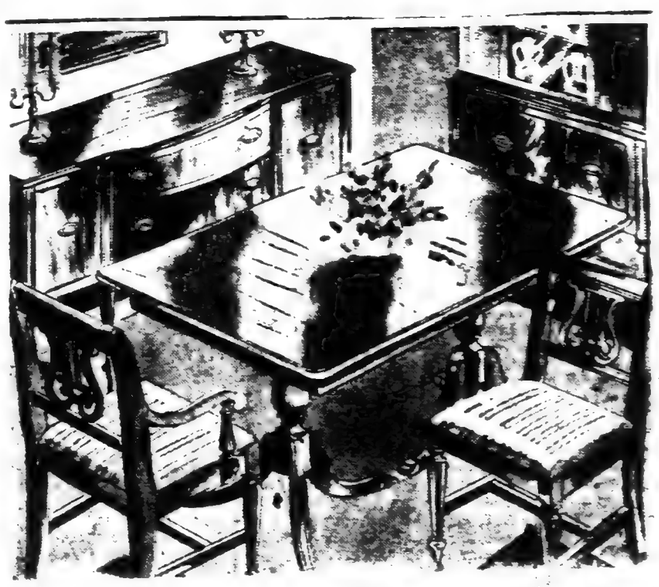
There are weak and cowardly men in all nations. We have them amongst us. They tell you this is the "white man's war"; that you will be no better off after than before the war; that the getting of you into the army is to sacrifice you on the first opportunity. Believe them not; cowards themselves, they do not wish to have their cowardice shamed by your brave example. Leave them to their timidity, or to whatever motive may hold them back.

I have not thought lightly of the words I am now addressing you. The counsel I give comes of close observation of the great struggle now in progress, and of the deep conviction that this is your hour and mine. In good earnest, then, and after the best deliberation, I now, for the first time during this war, feel at liberty to call and counsel you to arms.



By every consideration which binds you to your enslaved fellow-countrymen and to the peace and welfare of your country, by every aspiration which you cherish for the freedom and equality of yourselves and your children; by all ties of blood and identity which make us one with the brave black men now fighting our battles in Louisiana and in South Carolina, I urge you to fly to arms, and smite with death the power that would bury the government and your liberty in the same hopeless grave.

I wish I could tell you that the State of New York calls you to this high honor. For the moment her constituted authorities are silent in the subject. They will speak by and by, and doubtless on the right side; but we are not compelled to wait for her. We can get at the throat of treason and slavery through the State of Massachusetts. She was first in the War of Independence; first to break the chains of her slaves; first to make the black man equal before the law; first to admit colored children to her common schools, and she was first to answer with her blood the alarm-cry of the nation, when its capital was menaced by rebels. You know her patriotic governor, and you know Charles Sumner. I need not add more.



Massachusetts now welcomes you to arms as soldiers. She has but a small colored population from which to recruit. She has full leave of the general government to send one regiment to the

Emancipator Struck Boldly At Race Hate

LINCOLN'S FIGHT IS A GUIDE FOR TODAY'S STRUGGLES

There is great confusion in the minds of Negro people today concerning the character and achievements of Abraham Lincoln.

A brooding and mysterious legend, a revolutionary leader, a grudging and half-hearted emanipator, a man who freed the slaves "but not because he wanted to,"—these are typical of the conflicting conceptions held by Negroes about the Sixteenth President of the United States.

Negroes have long since wearied of campaign oratory in which the Great Emancipator is pictured as freeing the slaves in a fit of sheer magnanimity.

They are again confused by history texts which emphasize that period in Lincoln's Administration when he failed to recognize the anti-slavery nature of the war and wrote, "If I could save the union without freeing the slaves, I would do it."

As an individual, Lincoln always hated slavery. From his early youth, he was stirred by the oppression of the Negro people. He once vowed that if ever an opportunity availed, he would "strike this thing and strike it hard."

In July, 1854, Lincoln wrote, "The ant who has toiled and dragged a crumb to his nest will furiously defend the fruit of his labor against whatever robber assails him. So plain that the most dumb and stupid slave that ever toiled for a master knows that he is wronged. So plain that no one, high or low, ever does mistake it, except in a plainly selfish way; for although volume upon volume is written to prove slavery a very good thing, we never hear of the man who wishes to take the good of it by being a slave himself."

When, as a young man, Lincoln saw slaves chained together on a Missouri steamboat, he wrote his friend, Joshua Speed, "That sight was a continued torment to me . . . It is not fair for you to assume that I have no interest in a thing which has, and continually exercises, the power of making me miserable."

But it is to Lincoln as leader "of the first grand war of modern times" that we look for his real measure in world history.

When the 300,000 slave-holders of the South decreed a war of conquest against the freedom-loving North, Lincoln was faced with a situation wholly without precedent in modern times.

The fledgling democracy of the globe was faced with an internal explosion.

There were few friends for the North in the powerful reactionary governments of Europe.

There was widespread Fifth Column activity in the North on behalf of slaveocracy.

There was a nation faced with a war of aggression and conquest but itself shot through with traitors and conspirators.

These stormy seas were uncharted. In sailing them, the War President learned the folly of his early illusions and evolved a revolutionary policy which secured the democratic heritage possessed by the whole Western Hemisphere.

In the first two years of his Administration, Lincoln did not perceive that the fundamental necessity of Union victory was the emancipation and the arming of the slaves. In his counsels of war, he was surrounded by defeatist and appeaser elements, and the commander of all Union troops, Gen. George McClellan, was an open sympathizer of the South.

Frederick Douglass, Thaddeus Stevens and Charles Sumner, the "Radical" Republicans despised by historians, led that movement of the people which supported the President in his war against the slavocrats even when his actions were hesitant and indecisive, yet stoutly declared for emancipation as a basic precondition for successful military and political warfare.

Whatever his personal hatred of slavery, Lincoln viewed emancipation "as a practical war measure, to be decided on according to the advantages or disadvantages it may offer to the suppression of the rebellion."

When it became clear to the President that his vacillation on the question of slavery (1) prevented a military offensive, (2) immobilized hundreds of thousands of potential allies among Negroes, North and South, (3) weakened the position of the North with the masses of people throughout Europe and (4) gave the Slavocrat Copperhead Fifth Column a field day of confusion, he struck out boldly to smash the evil effects of that vacillation.

He cast aside all regard for the delicate sensibilities of "pro-Union" slave master who "might not support the war if it became an anti-slavery war."

Thus Frederick Douglass wrote of Lincoln, "Viewed from the genuine abolition ground, Mr. Lincoln seemed tardy, cold, dull, and indifferent; but measuring him by the sentiment of his country, a sentiment he was bound as a statesman to consult, he was swift, zealous, radical and determined."

Two events mark the emergence of the great figure of Lincoln the war leader—one was the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation, the other was the smashing drive of General Sherman thru Georgia and the appointment of General Grant as commander-in-chief.

When Lincoln decided to break with his hesitant policy regarding the abolition of slavery, he also won mighty support from the progressive people of Europe, who were able to stop their reactionary governments from joining the slaveholders against the United States which they hated as the "radical country" of the nineteenth century.

The enlistment of 200,000 brave Negro soldiers in the Union Army, the terrific sabotage of slaves throughout the Confederacy, coupled with a mass exodus of Negroes to the Union lines and consequent demolition of the whole slave economy were the monumental consequences of the Emancipation Proclamation.

Lincoln wrote, "There will be some black men who can remember that with silent tongue, and clenched teeth, and steady eye, well-poised bayonet, they have helped mankind on to this great consummation (Union victory), while I fear there will be some white ones unable to forget that, with malignant heart and deceitful speech they strove to hinder it."

In adopting a vigorous and progressive war policy, Lincoln, as is Roosevelt, was faced by the sabotage of the Fifth Column. His every bold action was denounced as leading to "dictatorship."

In the House of Representatives Congressman Clement Vallandigham carried the ball for the Confederacy. He proclaimed the war would be fought in vain if in its process "civil liberties" were lost, i. e., treacherous spokesmen like himself were shut up.

How familiar to the squeals of our own Martin Dies, Westbrook Pegler and Willy Randolph Hearst who think the war will be fought in vain if in its process democracy is extended to the Negro people (Bilbo, Rankin, Dies).

There are lessons from Lincoln's treatment of that vicious Copperhead conspiracy which Roosevelt and the people can learn today.

What did Lincoln do? HE JAILED THEM!

Vallandigham — protestations about 'civil liberties' and all—was arrested and imprisoned by executive order.

What a contrast to the coddling of fascist Martin Dies today!

Though the man who wears Lincoln's mantle in this hour has moved boldly to enunciate a policy of military offensive, of "unconditional surrender" for the fascists, though he has struck at domestic obstructionism through the Fair Employment Practice Committee, there are yet rich lessons to be learned from the era of the Great Emancipator.

Vital among these is the fact that liberation of the full energy of Negro America for victory today can and would be as decisive as was our liberation from chattel slavery in 1863. Abolition of the poll tax, strengthening and extension of the Fair Employment Practice Committee, clear action against the Fifth Column of Bilbo, Hearst and Dies, an over-all economic program as outlined by the Pepper-Kilgore-Tolan bill—these are the concrete steps by which full mobilization of the home front may be realized.

The confusions of the Negro people concerning Lincoln are not accidental. We are told that he freed us out of sheer affection because there are those in America who tremble before the heroic military and political role which we played in DECIDING THE ISSUE of the Civil War. Lincoln freed us to play that role, and for that reason alone.

Today, Negroes, one tenth of a nation fighting for survival against the brutal hordes of a world-wide slave power must be employed fully to insure victory. There is not a question of abstract morality here. No question of the principles of democracy, though this, also, is important.

The use of 100 percent of America's manpower, in the armed forces, in industry and on the farms, is a necessity on which rests the future of every American man, woman and child.

It is the compulsion of great events that prompt immediate removal of all those survivals of chattel slavery which strangle our war effort today.

The voice of Lincoln speaks to Roosevelt and the nation in the terms of military necessity, necessity for survival, necessity for mustering every ounce of strength to repel the slave-holders' rebellion against all civilization!

FIGHT For VICTORY

THESE WERE HAPPIER DAYS

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT . . . surrounded by dignitaries of the Elks' organization. Today, however, he is surrounded by a dangerous gang of defeatists, appeasers and poll-taxers. The people must support him in the struggle to prevent their obstruction of the war effort, just as Douglass and the Negro people supported Lincoln.

WASHINGTON FREED SLAVES WHO SERVED IN REVOLUTIONARY WAR

The chain-breaking features of the First American Revolution—its denunciation of aristocracy, its separation of Church and State, its espousal of a nation's right to self-determination, its overthrow of feudal hangovers, its promise of liberty and equality, its proud avowal of man's right and ability to direct his own destiny and guide his own pursuit of happiness here and now, not hereafter and in some nebulous beyond—won the whole hearted support of the Negro people. Those among them who were free rushed forward to offer their services and one of them, an escaped slave named Crispus Attucks (in whom, fittingly enough, flowed white and Indian blood as well as Negro), was the first to die challenging the rule of Britain, falling dead in Boston, his chest pierced by two bullets, five years before the Battle of Lexington.

We have all seen pictures depicting the Spirit of '76 with the gallant drummer and fifer swinging along, and other pictures of the poorly clad and under-provisioned army of Washington bleeding and shivering at Valley Forge.

But never are we told that among the Americans who stirred their comrades' spirits with drum and fife were Negroes, and that the snow of Valley Forge was reddened by black men's blood, as well as that of whites.

The existence of slavery created an embarrassing and dangerous contradiction within the Revolutionary forces. This had the effect of stunting the budding Abolitionist sentiment, and it had a similar effect in producing laws and regulations to hinder the enrollment of Negroes within the ranks of the Revolutionary Army.

George Washington issued on December 30, 1775, from his headquarters at Cambridge, Mass., the following message: "As the General is informed, that Numbers of Free Negroes are desirous of enlisting, he gives leave to the recruiting Officers to entertain them, and promises to lay the matter before the Congress, who he doubts not will approve it." The next day Washington forwarded a letter to Congress telling of his action, explaining that "free Negroes who have served in this Army, are very much disatisfied at being discarded" and that he therefore had "presumed to depart from the Resolution (of October 18, 1775), respecting them, and have given license for their being enlisted." In a resolution of January 16, 1776, the Continental Congress approved Washington's action, stating that "the free Negroes who have served faithfully in the army at Cambridge, may be re-enlisted.

There was latent anti-slavery sentiments in the final Declaration of Independence, particularly in its brave assertions "that all men are created equal, that they are endowed with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness." It is moreover, interesting to note that Jefferson's original draft of this immortal manifesto of revolution contained an overt and powerful anti-slavery declaration. In his list of grievances against the British monarch, Jefferson had originally included this statement:

He has waged cruel war against human nature itself, violating its most sacred rights of life and liberty in the persons of a distant people who never offended him, captivating and carrying them into slavery in another hemisphere, or to incur miserable death in their transportation thither. This piratical warfare, the opprobrium of infidel powers, is the warfare of this Christian king of Great Britain determined to keep open a market where men should be bought and sold.

But this was, at the request of delegates from South Carolina and Georgia, and certain of the slave trading New England states, deleted from the final copy.

30,000 RACE WORKERS EMPLOYED IN SOUTHLAND WAR INDUSTRIES

More than 30 thousand Negroes have been employed in Southern California's war production plants since Pearl Harbor, Arthur E. Wood, Supervisor of the United States Employment Service offices of the War Manpower Commission for the Southern California area told the California Eagle in an exclusive interview yesterday.

Striking the keynote of the Negro's role in the war effort in this section of the Nation, Wood said, "The abilities of Negro men and women who are not working to aid the defeat of the Axis, should be made immediately available to war industry."

"These already in victory jobs," Wood stated, "are demonstrating their capacity for routine as well as for unusual assignments. This has resulted in the rapid liberalization of hiring policies to include groups which not so long ago were overlooked by many employers."

According to Wood persons with physical disabilities, older workers, housewives, and young people just out of school are being speedily recruited from labor reservoirs; they are examples of those who were heretofore overlooked, the Employment Service executive stated.

In stressing the need for qualified workers in war production plants, Wood said that too much weight cannot be laid on the importance of training. He gave as an example the fact that men in the community who have been given their choice of joining the production forces or the Army by April first, might well begin now, while at peace- time jobs to take training in line with their interest and background in order to be ready for war jobs before the deadline date.

Wood stated that it should be borne in mind that hobbies, interest, and work experience also play an important part in fitting into a war job.

Others who should be particularly interested in war production training are the housewives. "In most cases," Wood said, "these women have no skill that can be immediately converted to war use. But a few weeks spent in preparation will serve to familiarize them with industrial equipment, Terminology, and basic trade processes."

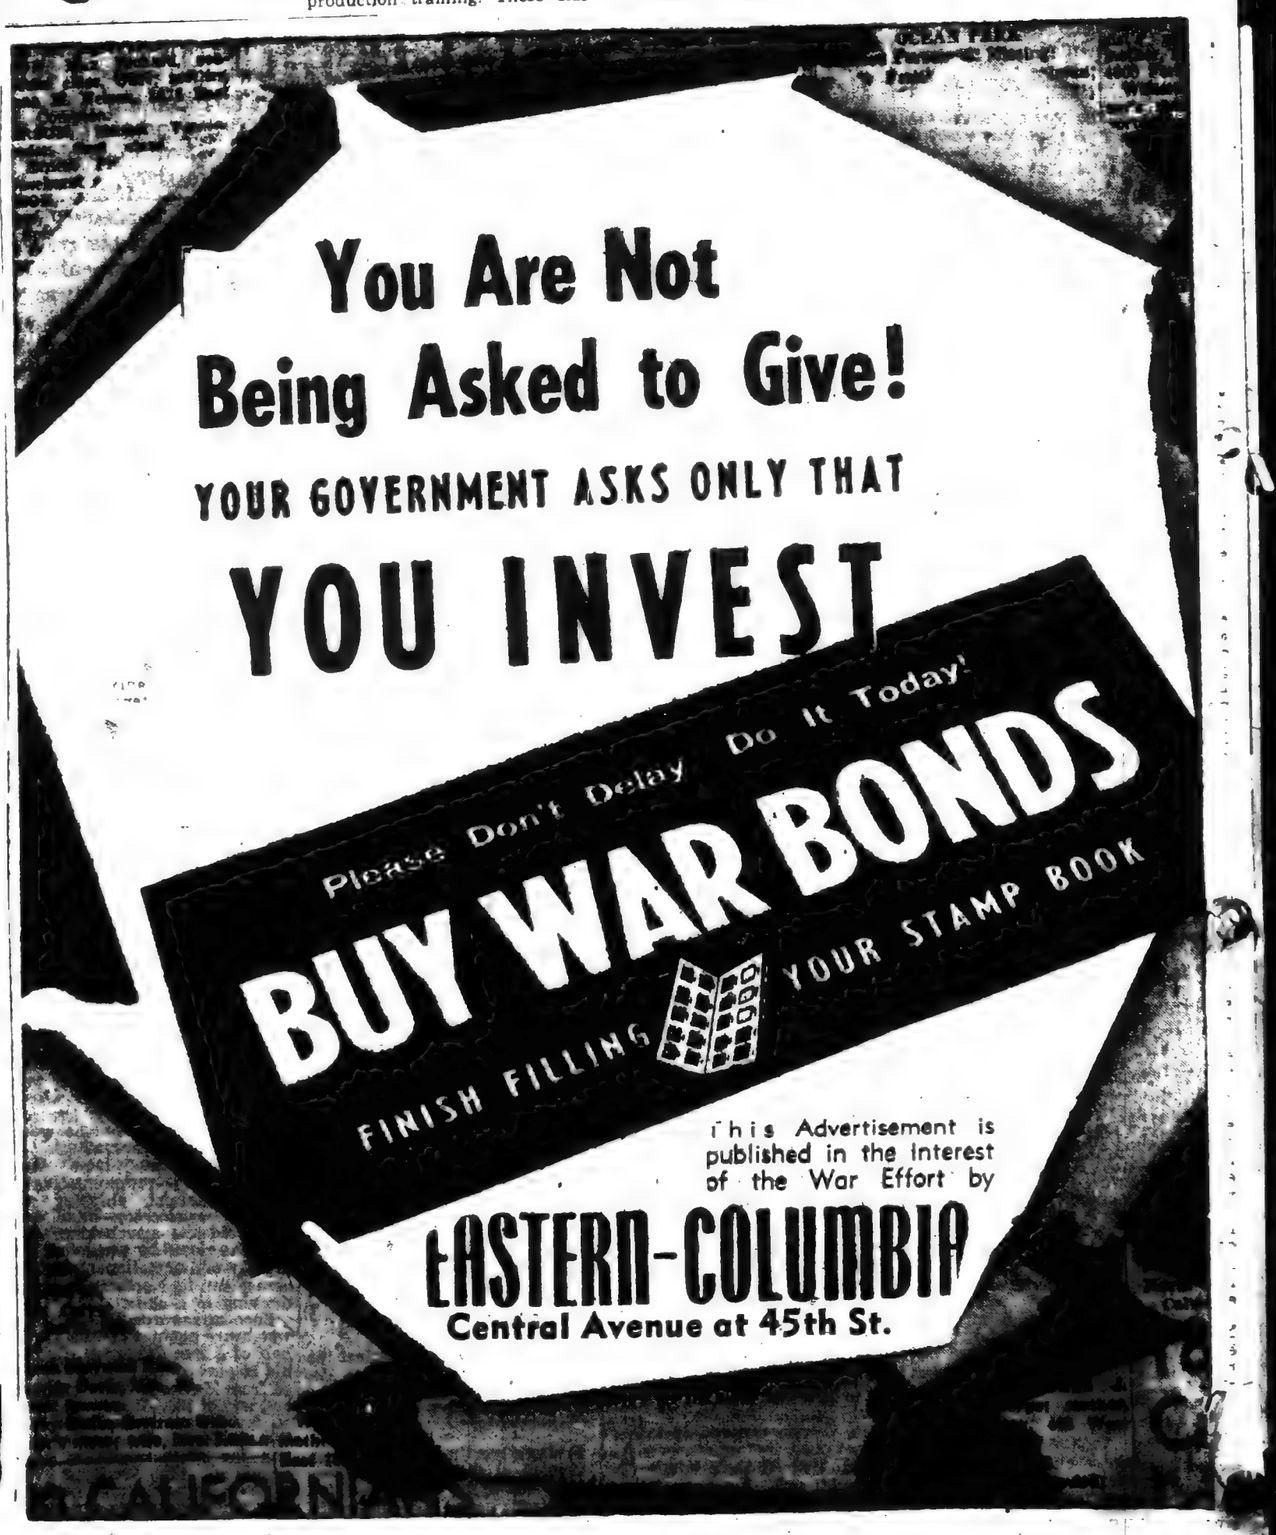
Hundreds of examples might be cited of individuals who have learned machine trades, sheetmetal work, foundry assembly, welding, riveting, and other operations through intensive war production training. These classes were of such advantage to them, Wood reports, that they now are holding important jobs in aircraft, shipbuilding, and other war industries.

"Beauty operators, cannery workers, laundry employees, tailors and seamstresses, have discovered that skills learned in their trades have served as immediate springboards to war jobs without the necessity for further training", Wood states.

Negroes comprise twelve percent of the five thousand currently enrolled in government-sponsored free training programs throughout the County. Wood stated this figure could be made higher if more Negroes realized these opportunities were open to them.

Among the courses now being offered in Los Angeles County are classes in cutting and burning, electrical assembly, marine electricity, machine shop, power sewing, arc, acetylene, combination and pipe welding, precision woodworking. Plaster pattern-making, aircraft sheetmetal, sheetmetal layout, heat treating, drill press operation and aircraft engine mechanics. Courses such as drafting and blueprint reading require high school graduation with training in mathematics and science. Wood advised applicants to analyze their abilities as an aid to placing them in a class where they can develop their highest skills.

School and the Metropolitan School of Business are free institutions--a part of the Los Angeles City School System. They are centrally located at the corner of Venice Boulevard and Olive Streets, and are accessible to 13 bus and street car lines. The Frank Wiggins Trade School provides intensive training for essential war jobs and works in close coperation with the United States Employment Service, pre-employment training.



The pre-employment training available through the trade school or through any of the other public schools is designed to teach essential skills that will make one employable even though he has never held any kind of job. Usually training periods last from two to ten weeks depending upon the skill to be learned and the aptitude of the individual to assimilate the training. These Nation war production training classes which are operated around the clock, provide instruction in more than 100 war trades. Men and women of all ages in good health are acceptable. Particularly are women now being trained there in all types of mechanical skills. Wood said that arrangements for registration in these classes may be made at any USES office.

The Metropolitan School of Business, considered one of the leading business schools in the country is especially geared to give free training for clerical jobs in war industries. "Here", Wood said, "a student may enroll for typewriting--spending from one to four hours a day developing a typing speed that will make him immediately placeable in war plants. Or, he may prepare to be an ediphone or dictaphone operator; or learn the complex filing systems used in big business."

Douglass Was Great Support Of 'Abe' Lincoln

DOUGLASS SAW CLEARLY HOW NEGRO-AMERICA MUST FIGHT

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bond in shallows and in miseries.
We must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures."

In these stirring words of Shakespeare, Frederick Douglass 80 years ago called upon the Negro people to recognize the liberating nature of the Civil War, the first great People's War of modern history; to take the tide "at the flood" by joining wholeheartedly with the nation to "bury the rebellion and slavery in a common grave."

The slave power of the South could not have been defeated, the survival of the nation could not have been secured, without the release of four million American Negroes from chattel slavery, and their magnificent role as soldiers and saboteurs against the Confederacy. The slave power of the Axis cannot be defeated, the survival of all nations cannot be secured, without the arming and mobilization of every democratic force in the world. Thirteen million American Negroes, resident in the mightiest of the United Nations, are absolutely essential to the economic and military success of our cause. Slaves were liberated to win a war. The survivals of that slavery, discrimination and jim-crow, boulders in our path toward victory, must be swept aside to win this one.

The key to the leadership of Frederick Douglas was his realistic grasp of the problems of his day, his ability to chart a true course for his people thru the most trying and difficult period, to hold steadfast amidst adversities and confusions which beset the antislavery struggle, and to finally steer the movement into the main current of a nation fighting for survival against the aggression of the slave-holders.

Douglass, a natural rebel, was to discover early in his life as a slave the maxim that "he who is whipped easiest is whipped oftenest;" a lesson he never forgot.

Moreover, he knew that struggles are won through the broadest alliance of all progressive forces in society and he set about joining the fight for the freedom of his own people with that of all the masses of Americans threatened by the greedy spread of the slave power, everywhere shackling the white millions to poverty, destroying their civil liberties and violating the great heritage of the American Revolution.

His was an unwavering faith in common humanity, black and white, their will to struggle and eventual ability to remove the foul excrescence of human slavery from the body of society.

The existence of vast forces of the common people whose interests were fundamentally opposed to slavery gave Douglass the firm assurance that his cause must triumph in the end, that each seeming retreat before the slave party brought the nation closer to that point from which it could retreat no longer.

In other words, Douglass saw the fight against slavery as a part of the whole struggle of the American people to defend and advance democracy. He saw that slavery was alien to the spirit of the American Revolution and the Constitution. 'He wrote, "The Constitution of the United States not only contained no guarantees in favor of slavery, but, on the contrary, was in its letter and spirit an anti-slavery instrument, demanding the abolition of slavery as a condition of its own existence as the supreme law of the land."

Douglass thus advocated a practical political program of a united people's movement of all forces willing to resist the encroachments of the slave power as an essential step toward slavery's final destruction.

On the basis of this program, the abolitionists were able to play a leading and decisive role in the organization of the Free Soil party and the Republican party during the years leading up to the Civil War. Though these movements did not demand the abolition of slavery, requiring only that it be limited to the places where it was already established, Douglass understood that the slave power, which expands in order to exist, (just as fascism today,) must come into inevitable conflict with these democratic forces, that in the course of this conflict slavery everyhere would be destroyed.

This correct and realistic viewpoint matured out of violent controversy within the pre-war Abolitionist movement. Because he understood the mutual interests of the fight against slavery and the struggle of the common people of the nation for free labor, free land and democratic rights, Douglass found himself in fundamental opposition to William L. Garrison, founder of the Abolition movement, when the latter advocated secession from the slave holders and boycott of elections. Douglass saw through the defeatist core of these theories to their surrender before the slave holders. Unity with the rising mass movement determined to halt the advance of slavery Douglass understood would strengthen and hasten that explosion which would finally destroy slavery. This unity Garrison rejected. Split the nation. Here, pure freedom. There, chattel slavery. Leave the bondsmen to the tender mercies of their masters!

Refuse to vote. Bah, Douglass said. "To abstain from voting was to refuse to exercise a legitimate and powerful means of abolishing slavery."

Garrison and his followers were overwhelmed by the apparent invincibility of the slave power; despairing at the continued retreats before it, failing to understand the growing might of the people, they succumbed to defeatism. They sought justification for this desertion in mismterpretation of the Constitution as a weapon of the slaveholders, thus handing over the charter of freedom to a band of tyrants.

The outbreak of the rebellion of 300,000 slave-holders put at rest forever parliamentary discussion on the nature of the Constitution, vindicating in full Douglass' position, for it was the masters who took up arms against the law of the land. They cast off the fig-leaf of constitutionality, revealing their real purpose, the establishment of a government based upon slavery as a social good.

"For us," said the Vice President of the infamous Confederacy, "it is the question of the foundation of a great slave republic."

"When the first rebel cannon shattered the walls of Sumter and drove away its starving garrison," Douglass proclaimed the war as the end of slavery," and stated clearly the means of victory, emancipation and arming of the Negro people. Two years ahead of Lincoln, Douglass stated the purpose of the war and the means of victory.

During 1861 and 1862, there was an entire failure of the North and of President Lincoln to understand that the overthrow of slavery was the basic precondition for the survival of the Union. Thus the armies of the North marched off to battle under the slogan, "Save the Union," without adopting that policy which alone could effect salvation. "Thus," wrote Douglass, "while rebels were waging a barbarous war, marshaling Indians to join them in the slaughter, while cannon balls were battering down the walls of our forts, and the iron-clad hand of monarchial power was being invoked to assist in the destruction of our government and the dismemberment of our country, while a tremendous rebel ram was sinking our fleet and threating the cities of our coast, we were still dreaming of peace."

While Negroes of lesser faith and defeatist abolitionists saw the wavering policy of the North and adjudged the conflict as "a white man's war," one in which the fate of Negro people was not involved and one which could be fought without affecting the institution of slavery, and therefore refused to support it; Douglass saw the wavering policy of the North, adjudged it alien to the real purposes of the war, understood that the hammer-blows of events would change it, and dedicated himself to the fullest support of the war through advocating emancipation and arming of the Negro people.

Despite the indecision of Lincoln's first two year's as war leader, despite his statement that he would save the union "with slavery" if he could, Douglass wrote, "We came to the conclusion that the hour and the man of our redemption had somehow met in the person of Abraham Lincoln."

This judgment was vindicated as Lincoln, the great war leader, began to emerge. When finally he became convinced of the Anti-Slavery nature of the conflict, he moved swiftly to emancipate the slaves, arm the Negro people, smash the Copperhead Fifth Column, oust the appeaser General McClellan, and launch an all-out offensive against the slavocrats.

ROLE OF NEGRO IN WAR-TIME LABOR IS GREAT CHALLENGE

Labor Leader Charts Course for Great All-Inclusive Struggle

By REVELS CAYTON

Great changes are taking place in the life of Negro America. As part of the war effort thousands of our people are being swept into the main stream of American life as never before in the history of the nation.

Thse few statistics given will illustrate the progress of intergration of the Negro worker into industry.

In the first quarter of 1932 there were in the Richmond yards 150 Negro workers. In February of this year, 1943, there are 9000 Negro workers employed. At North American Aviation Plant there were in the first quarter of 1942, 364 Negro workers employed. In February of 1943 there are 2000 employed. At Goodyear Rubber Company in Los Angeles during the first quarter of 1942 there were no Negro women in production; today there are 200 Negro women in production. At Firestone Rubber Company there were no Negro employees; at present, there are 50. In the warehouses, in the port of Oakland, there are 1500 Negro workers employed. Moors Dry Dock in Oakland, which formerly employed 500 Negro workers, has reached the unbelievable figure of ETAOINtthe-d T T HH number of 5000 Negro workers.

These figures are far from being anywhere near complete, but they do show what is going on. There are no figures as to the total number of Negroes now working in industry thruout the State, but if such information was available, it would be staggering.

All of these economic changes have produced a condition where many of the old thick walls of segregation and race prejudice are fast being diminished. Thousands of Negro and white workers are for the first time finding themselves working together in day to day contact.

This growing unity has increased the strength of both Negro and white labor by placing the labor movement in a position to make even greater contributions to the war effort.

To the Negro worker, this new longer isolated, but that he now development means that he is no moves as a part of and with the millions of organized white workers.

Great progress has been made but many stones are still unturned for Negro workers in industry have many grievances yet to be settled. These grievances are not only the concern of the Negroes, but a vital part of the production problems of our all out war effort.

Many skilled Negro workers are still made to push a mop as well as other forms of common labor instead of being utilized in equipped to produce most efficient fields in which they are best ciently in our war effort.

There is hardly a plant that upgrading is not taking place in the way that it should. Machinists are working on production lines; welders are working with shovels; pipe fitters are cleaning up shipyards. All resulting in a loss of manpower which is so vitally needed.

Other grievances are the fact that many plants have an importionate number of Negroes relegated to the night shifts which are the most undesirable times to work. That many leadmen and foremen in the plants are often towards the Negro women workdisrespectable in their attitudes ers. That one aircraft company is slowly putting the Negro workers in certain departments which is breeding segregation and disunity in the plant.

The rich experiences of the CIO in dealing with and solving many of these problems has clearly demonstrated that the Negro worker has a powerful ally in this organization.

At the last state convention of the CIO, the top ranking officers of every International Union in the State signed a Declaration on racial discrimination to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. This declaration stated in part: "The doors of all California CIO unions stand open to the men and women of all minority groups, regardless of their race, creed or color. We will work for the complete integration into industry of all workers who are members of minority groups, in accordance with your Executive Order No. 8802. We will rally our CIO movement for the establishment of the Four Freedoms for all nations, minority groups and colonial peoples now as a vital part of total victory."

This declaration has not been left on paper but has been carried into practice in various unions throughout the state.

At North American Aircraft Company, Local 887, UAW, fought the company to a standstill over the case of Horace Dickey. Brother Dickey was fired from the company for speaking to one of the women workers. After an arbitration hearing that cost the union $1200, he was replaced with back pay for all time lost.

For a year the Goodyear Rubber Company hired no Negroes. The Rubber workers union and the Los Angeles CIO Council took up the case and after hearings before the United States Employ-

Slave Struggle Won Civil War

The time worn myth that life in the old South was heavenly and that the slaves enjoyed an idyllic existence is repeated to this day. Hear for example, an eminent professor, R. S. Cotterill, writing in the year 1936:

"From the physical side his working hours were long but not strenuous; from the psychological side, since he had never known freedom, he looked upon slavery not as a degradation but as a routine. He took no thought of the future nor needed to.. In sickness and in health, in his childhood and his old age he was assured of an income proportioned to his necessities and not to his productiveness."

This legend not only assures us of the slaves' contentment but it does something more. It tells us that the people who were enslaved—the Negro people—were, in any case, fit only to be slaves. We are assured that the Negro was, to quote a "standard historian," James Schouler, possessed of "innate patience, docility and childlike simplicity"; he was an imitator and non-moralist, he learned deceit and libertinism with facility . . his mind was not analytical" and he was easily intimidated, incapable of deep plots." In plain English, ssay Schouler, the Negro was "sensuous, stupid, brutish, obedient."

From these two falsehoods—that slavery was delightful and that, in any case, the Negro was suited only for slavery—arises a third falsehood: that the American Negro rarely rebelled against enslavement. To quote a work published in 1937, the Negro slave was "quite complacent." And from these same distortions come the erroneous generalizations regarding his behavior during the Civil War. Historians, if at all mentioning the Negro in their accounts of the war, describe him as an "element of strength" to the Confederacy, as "patiently submissive" (Rhodes, Phillips), as having "supported unanimously" the slavocracy (Cotterill).

But the facts contradict these fables. For two hundred years the American Negro people waged persistent struggle against the diabolical system of chattel slavery, which was devised and continued for their super-exploitation. For sheer courage and ingenuity this conflict has never been surpassed in all the vast history of man' revolutionary struggles. In this desperate battle the Negroes carried on agitational and propagandistic work; they committed sabotage, they mutilated and killed themselves and their children rather than submit; they fled wherever there was a promise of freedom, they poisoned their masters, set fire to plantations, assassinated their oppressors; they conspired and rebelled, they waged guerilla warfare, they gave up their lives fighting for the freedom of their people.. And they eagerly grasped the opportunity offered by the Civil War to accentuate their struggles.

It is important to observe that at no period were these rebellious activities more widespread, and of deeper political significance (very often involving poor whites and even, at times calling for redistribution of the land, work animals and tools, as well as the end of slavery) than during the ten years immediately preceding the outbreak of the Civil War. It is beyond the scope of this brief study to recount the numerous plots and revolts which occurred. However, as an example, let us mention the events of this nature which took place in 1860, the last year before the slaveholders' rebellion.

Early in July fires swept over and devastated many cities and counties in northern Texas. Slaves were immediately suspected and arrested.

In August, a conspiracy among the slaves, again with white accomplices, said to have been inspired by a nearby band of outlaw runaway slaves, was uncovered and crushed in Talladega county, Alabama.

Meanwhile, still in August, plots were uncovered in Whitfield, Cobb and Floyd counties in northwest Georgia. Said the Columbus, Georgia, "Sun," of August 29: "By a private letter from Upper Georgia, we learn that an insurrectionary plot has been discovered among the Negroes in the vicinity of Dalton and Marrietta and great excitement was occasioned by it and still prevails."

Late in October a plot, first formed in July, was disclosed among the slaves of Norfolk and Princess Anne counties, Virginia and Currituck county, North Carolina. Jack and Denson, slaves of a Mr. David Corprew of Princess Anne, were among the leaders.

In November, plots were discovered in Crawford and Habersham counties, Georgia. In both places whites were involved.

The rulers of the South were keenly aware of this rebellious activity and seriously debated as to whether secession would aid in controlling the slaves and the poor whites, or whether secession would mean abolition. The slaveholders decision—civil war—will be better understood when it is remembered that they had become desperate not only because they had seen their external, or national, power almost completely overthrown by an emerging industrial, free-labor society, but also because they were seeing their local, internal, power being seriously threatened by the revolutionary stirrings among the slaves and poor whites.

the slaves and poor whites.

THE FLIGHT OF A PEOPLE

In addition to the activity of the slaves who remained slaves—sabotage, strike, aid to enemies of the Confederacy, conspiracy and rebellion—undoubtedly the most disastrous blows that the Negro people delivered against that government came from the successful flight of hundreds of thousands (500,000 would appear to be a fair estimate) of these hewers of wood and drawers of water, and from their activities, when actually out of slavery, as guides, scouts, spies, pilots, laborers, fighters.

OUTLAW COMMUNITIES

America's slavocracy had always been trouble by groups of slave banditti, as they were called, formed by courageous runaway slaves, men, women and children, who lived in the woods and swamps and mountains of the South and served as bases to which other slaves might flee, and from which the outlaws, the guerillas, might attack the slaveholders and their employees.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand Negroes from the slave states served in the Federal armies. They, together with the 80,000 from the North, fought in 450 battles, with an inspiring and inspired courage that was of the utmost importance in bringing about the collapse of the Confederacy and the abolition of slavery.

For here were over 200,000 armed Negro men fighting within a state built upon and dedicated to the proposition that the Negro was, if at all a human being, an innately and ineradicably inferior one, fit only to be a slave. This was why—as the genius of Karl Marx early saw, "A single Negro regiment would have a remarkable effect on Southern nerves"—200,000 armed Negroes shattered the slavocracy's morale and tore away its foundation.

On November 12, 1862, Brigadier General Rufus Saxton reported: "It is admitted upon all hands that the Negroes fought with a coolness and bravery that would have done credit to veteran soldiers. There was no excitement, no flinching, no attempt at cruelty when successful. They seemed like men who were fighting to vindicate their manhood and they did it well."

Similar testimony came from Generals Banks, L. Thomas, J. G. Blunt, S. A. Hurlbut, G. C. Strong, A. H. Terry, W. F. Smith, T. J. Morgan and Colonels J. A. Foster, D. G. Ader and J. A. Taylor.

General Ulysses S. Grant said little, but his action is quite eloquent. When in 1864, he was made commanding general of the Union forces and transferred from the West to the decisive Virginia front, he insisted upon taking with him 20,000 Negro soldiers.

Finally, a bloodstained, militaristic oligarchy saw its national power ripped from it and its local internal power seriously threatened by a revolution of its mudsill, its base, it rose in rebellion itself in a desperate attempt to stop the clock of history. Its effort was foiled essentially because the internal revolt it foresaw occurred. The poor whites fled from its armies and waged war upon it. The slaves conspired or rebelled, or broke its tools, or refused to do its work, or fled its fields and mines and factories. Many fought shoulder to shoulder with the Southern poor whites against a common enemy, and a multitude joined the arm from the North and brought it information and guidance and labor and a desperate courage. Thus was American slavery crushed.

Frederick Douglass was a skilled caulker in the Walter Price shipyards at Baltimore, in 1838.

He was a slave. His master took his earnings, gave him a few pennies.

Many Negroes worked in the yards, and in other industries. Competiiton between them and the free white workers was stirred up by those who sought to exploit both. The white workers did not understand, were misled. They persecuted and attacked the Negroes. Douglass himself was the victim of one such attack. Concerning it he said:

"The slave-holders, with a craftiness peculiar to themselves, by encouraging the enmity of the poor laboring white man against the blacks, succeeded in making the white man as much a slave as the black man himself . . . The latter belonged to the slave-holder, and the former belonged to the slave-holders collectively . . . Both were plundered, and by the same plunderers."

The CIO has learned from Frederick Douglass. To make real the freedom that Douglass fought for, the CIO today is moving mighty obstacles of prejudice and selfish interest.

The CIO puts into practice, each day, the principle that, every worker is entitled to equal opportunity to work in industry; to avail himself of training and advancement on the job, and to enjoy the rights of full union membership and the benefits that flow therefrom -- without discrimination.

The CIO organizes ALL workers, -- Negro and white, skilled and unskilled, women and men, native and foreign-born, into powerful industrial unions, in which each member has equal right.

Abraham Lincoln said: "No nation can exist half slave and half free." The CIO holds out the hand of brotherhood to the Negro workers of America. Our freedom is only as secure as is our unity.

Today, freedom and security, born of human brotherhood, are at stake under the terrible stress of all-out war. This is a war to decide whether human beings, regardless of race, color or creed, shall continue to have the privilege of bettering themselves and the world they live in, or wh slaves of a Hitler under ved that, in order effect-and equality, we must be equality. This is a prin-

n of the CIO in 1942 de-

t any group, whether by denial of civil rights, by oppression of minorities, or by the poll tax, directly aids the Axis . . . CIO reiterates its firm opposition to any form of racial or religious discrimination, and renews its pledge, as a war-time duty, to carry on the fight for protection in law and in fact, of the rights of every racial and religious group to participate fully in our social, political and industrial life."

The CIO is convinced that, only through union organization can American labor effectively do its full share in the vital production of the materials of war needed to crush Hitler and his cohorts; that only through union organization can American labor achieve and maintain working and living standards sufficient to assure health and vitality necessary for peak production; that only through union organization can there be released the qualities of leadership inherent in the American working people -- qualities vitally needed in the service of the nation today; and finally that, only through union organization can there be assured the continuation of adequate living standards and industrial freedom after the war is won, and total victory has been nailed down.

Freed from the bonds of industrial discrimination, thousands of Negro workers in CIO today are playing a mighty role in building the ships, the warplanes, the tanks, the truck tires, the radio and electrical equipment that must flow in ever increasing quantities to our fighting forces and those of our valiant allies.

Thousands more Negro workers in CIO are preparing the meat and food; are warehousing the materials; loading the cargoes and sailing the ships that transport the food supplies that are feeding the democratic nations of the world in this life and death struggle.

These are the achievements of which Negro and white workers everywhere in the CIO are proud. These are the tasks that will occupy the attention and the energies of every Negro and white worker in the CIO until total victory is achieved. This is the pledge of our unions -- of our Negro and white brothers and sisters alike -- OUR pledge to the memory of Frederick Douglass, Abraham Lincoln and George Washington, whose anniversaries we, the working men and women of America, observe in this month of February, 1943.

MR. AND MRS. PETER BEEKS

Carrying out the Good Neighbor policy, the Eastside U. S. O. Center, with all hands on deck, presented a cabaret party on Lincoln's Birthday. The swingfest was held in the gymn of the East 28th Street YMCA. Miss Vye Aldridge, USO director, arranged the affair, her junior and senior hostesses generously giving their help. Refreshments were served during the evening.

If you look closely in the above scenes you may see someone you know getting a big kick watching Willie Covan turn one of those fine steps of his. Other pictures show the soldier audience and hostesses later going thru their own swing steps. That's Laura Soares with the wistful expression in the right photo. The drum majorette, busy going thru her routine, was one of the group of talented Mexican neighbors who graciously did a turn or two for the cabaret show.

Dr. Alice Garrott Is Hostess at Bridge Luncheon

Dr. Alice Garrott was hostess to the Just For Fun club last Friday, with a bridge luncheon. Club prizes were won by Mrs. Mamie Waugh and Dr. Garrott. Guest prizes were won by Mmes. Black, Alice Harvey and Edith Jones.

Mrs. Florence Wall White and sister, Mrs. Mungie Williams of Oakland, spent ten days in the city visiting friends and relatives. They returned to the city Wednesday.

Misses Romona Robinson and Wanda Disarms were joint hostesses to the L. A. Tri-Y Girl Reserves, Tuesday, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harvey. Discussion covering the attitude of girls toward boys in camp was led by Mrs. Maynard Toll, president of the Junior League, and Mrs. Robert Burns, president of the Visiting Nurses' Association.

Mrs. Martha Waugh entertained the Mysterious Few club Saturday evening, with a bridge supper.

Dr. and Mrs. M. Cooley entertained Chief G. Rufus Portwig, who is home for a few days en route to his new assignment near San Diego with a bridge supper, Tuesday evening at their home in West 21st street. Others present were Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Bailey, Mrs. Emily Portwig, Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Robinson and Dr. and Mrs. Warner Wright.

Mrs. Bessie Gantt was hostess at a bridge luncheon Thursday. Covers were laid for twenty well dressed ladies.

Mary L. Martin, William Henry Hoage Take Vows

In the presence of members of both families, Mary Leona Martin became the bride of William Henry Hoage, last Thursday evening at the home of her niece, Mrs. Clarence Armstrong at 502 East Vernon. Rev. Clayton D. Russell performed the ritual. The newly weds will reside at 3560 Budlong avenue.

STOCKTON RESIDENTS ENTERTAINED IN ANGEL CITY

Mrs. Verdine Browning and daughter, Precious Ellora of Stockton, Calif., spent ten days in the city as the house guest of her sister Mrs. Starks of 823 E. Jefferson Blvd. On the eve of her departure, Mrs. Browning was the honored guest at delicious Spanish supper in the spacious home of her sister. Mrs. Starks. Guest attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mack Davis, Mrs. Linda Smith and Mrs. Ceola Williams.

All enjoyed a well spent evening. The Brownings plan to return to our city in the summer.

FOR T.

I marvel at the strength in your wings . . .
As you fiercely beat stout bars of your cage . . .
When you despair, as you will, I shall tenderly prove how fruitless your magnificent battle!
You will see, Foolish One, there is soaring freedom
If you but push open the unlatched door!

A slimmer, svelte and downright radiant Ruby Elzy may step off the choo-choo on Easter Sunday morn, as will the mile-wearied cast of Porgy and Bess. They'll have the village hanging off the Biltmore rafters, and socially swooning on rugs before various and sundry hearthsides . . . AKA's will probably pour tea for Etta (Bess) Moten--that would be solely my guess--and the Alphas will probably touch glasses around Todd Duncan--that, too, my guess--and other folk will probably be doin' equally gay things for other members of Catfish Row, and the ole welkin, whatever that is, will ring like the devil . . . we hope . . . 'Twill be fun again seeing such fun-loving souls as Jack Carr, Avon Long, Kelsey Pharr, Eddie Matthews (wonder if Altonel will be with him?), Musa Williams, Georgette Harvey, Warren Coleman, Gladys Duncan, (Todd's wife), and smell Alexander Smallens' thumpin' pipe . . . but, times being what they are, I STILL will have to SEE them before I really believe they'll all be on local soil, so help me.

(Afterthot: Lawdy, wonder how many pinochle decks that gang has worn out since I left them in Chi in Nov.?)

Notes, young and gay . . . The Sinky (PV) Bournes have a 7½ pound son, born last Tues. in NY . . . Sy Oliver who has had the flu, goes East in April . . . Mrs. Leigh Whipper, with the twins, will spend the summer here with the head of the family . . . We hope Bobbee Black Borders and her son will arrive in the Spring . . . NY event: With the midnite curfew, those gay buffet flats which flourished in Harlem in the Gay Twenties are enjoying a slightly terrific rebirth, so we hear! . . . Reggie Beane, hopeful Uncle Sam doesnt tag him and say "You're it!" beforehand, will return to these parts . . . he reports La Waters did the usual flawless job in her "Stage Door Canteen" film sequence made in NY last wk . . . Olivette Miller, back from Oakland, birthdays on March 26th. Sissle crew will go into a Hollywood bistro . . . . . Script mag, to my dismay, comes out (Febr. 20th) with a short story with n--- mentioned some four times. Rob Wagner should be spinning in his grave.

Billy Rowe would be MGM's "Hollywood Correspondent, Leo Roa?" . . . Mrs. Kelly Williams is recovering from a bad illness . . . Hank Armstrong deserves a hip-hooray for his willingness to help the AWVS . . . and I'd like to suggest to some broadcasting chain to audition that very fine vesper hour being shaped up at the AWVS canteen! The vesper idea, originating with the soldiers themselves, will feature a guest speaker, a mixed choir (some fine voices), and will be held each Sunday eveg. Wouldnt it be an idea to build it up similar to Wings Over Jordan? . . . OWI Ted Poston will visit these parts, later, so a note from him hints . . . it'll be swell seeing Ted again . . . Keep this on your list: the Smart Set tea at Vera Clark's, March 7th . . . Girl Friends are planning a March coffee with servicemen as honor guests . . . Iola Johnson, back from NY, birthdayed Satd. and a group of femme friends celebrated it at her home.

Basketball series, which we enjoy annually, is on again. It's a good chance, too, to see folk you seldom see these days and nites. Later, the youngies swing and cling at Music Town . . . Cal Jackson is arranging for Harry James . . . Rev. Clarence Cobbs and Eddie Bolden, monogrammed luggage, gifts, magazines, books, etc. swung outve town Thurs. a. m. headed for Chi after their 5 wks of local sunshine. And raindrops. They had a gala time of it here and folk hated to see them leave . . . That was Alfred Grant, of the Pasadena Grants, who helped Rayfield Lundy (both master sgts) reach Marian Anderson in her Seattle hotel and get her delighted promise to visit their cantonment and sing, altho she was weary. Grant and Lundy also arranged a similar appearance of Roland Hayes, recently.

Flournoy Miller left for NY last wk. He'll rejoin the USO Camp Show back East. Wistful Dept.: I wish SC or UCLA would innovate a course akin to Negro Culture & Its Problems . . . That was a nice compliment Hattie McDaniel paid the Negro press on that recent Hal Styles program . . . NY news: Putney Dandridge is in Seaview Hospital at Staten Island. Gee, its been a long time since we've heard Putney play and sing! . . . Bess Gant, who pens those recipes in the Courier, is here to stay . . . Have you seen Geo. Farmer's exhib at the Vernon Library? . . . That was a nice Sund. nite party Edna Thrower gave. We enjoyed it!

The Simms Campbells are apart . . Curtis Cleveland, outve the hospital after that bad accident, is uo again for induction . . Baxter Scruggs, jr. is in khaki . . Nat (King) Cole has good cause for that wide grin! (His trio, meanwhile, prepare to shove off for another tour) . . . The Fred Robinsons (Margo Collins) are not only apart, but she is preparing to make it legal . . . Bill Lawrie will be in khaki as you read this . . . Forceful personality: Luke Rosser . . . Few of the young mothers have Verna Arnaud's blossomed radiance and complimentary youthful matronliness, have you noticed? . . . . Lt. Cato Robinson, who gets his DD. S. from SC in Nov., will ask for foreign service . . . Have you heard Duke Ellington may do a Spring concert at Philharmonic?

Ever so often we accept a party bid because we know beforehand the festivities will be gala. So ran the eveg's order at Leontyne King's the other Tues. A houseful of relaxed folk filled her apt., and statuesque Leontyne did a gracious turn at hostess-playing. Midnite buffet had a rather royal touch to it, now that I think back . . . not long back from a flying trip to Mexico City, Leontyne had such an enjoyable time of it (she went everywhere, met scads of folk, learned a native step or two) she still retains sparkle from her trek . . . all of the soignee Chicagoans now in town were at the party. Eddie Bolden and Rev. C. Cobbs being the only pair to return to Chi, to date.

Rosetta Cooper is back . . . Vye Aldridge pours coffee Su day, which is birthdate for her, as well . . . Marian Anderson birthdays Satd. (27) . . . Sailor Johnny Wortham, who sortve got himself "adopted" by the AWVS during his lengthy shore leave and was well on the way becoming a crown prince with lots of townsfolk, is probably pretty depressed at this minute. His Uncle Sam called him back on active duty last week!

CLASSIC LITERARY, SOCIAL CLUB FETES SERVICEMEN

The Classic Literary and Social club entertained servicemen and their friends at a party last Saturday, at Camille's Party Den. Installation of officers took place. Mrs. Nettie B. Reese, club advisor for the last eleven years, installed the officers. She also conceived the "V" motif for the affair. It was announced the club has money to purchase a $100.00 bond, which will be done at a later date.

New officers are Fairy May Nelson, president; Maxine Thompson, vice president; Billie Clarke, recording secretary; Edna Dilworth, financial secretary; Mignon Hackett, corresponding secretary; Marian Russell, treasurer, and Gertrude Settle, chaplain.

Mrs. Viola Jordan Returns to L. A.

Mrs. Viola Jordan of 1437 West 37th Pl. returned to the city Thursday morning, following a delightful fortnight spent with friends in Kansas City. Many social courtesies were extended Mrs. Jordan by friends and acquaintances during her absence.

COLDS KILL JOY EVERYWHERE THESE DAYS

So This Famous Colds-Pain Reliever Is First Choice of Millions

The first choice, first thought of millions at the first warning of colds' painful miseries or headache, is genuine pure, St. Joseph Aspirin. There's no aspirin faster, none more dependable. Count on the world's largest seller at 10c—St. Joseph Aspirin. Your money can buy no more in quality, no more in aspirin action. Remember, there are even more savings in the larger sizes—36 tablets 20c, 100 tablets only 35c. Keep St. Joseph Aspirin handy, instantly ready to fight colds' miserable distress. Refuse substitutes—demand genuine, pure St. Joseph Aspirin.

As Long As Memory Shall Last . . .

WHEN one dearly loved passes from among us, that is not the end, though bitter parting it may be . . . because so long as memory shall last that dear one will be yet with us . . .

BECAUSE this is so, our institution realizes its great responsibility in making the Final Tribute a perfect thing . . . so that those precious memories are beautiful to the end . . . unmarred by a single jarring note

THE quiet beauty of our Ivory Chapel, the dreaming strains of our hidden organ, the complete perfection of every detail of our service — all of these are designed to make your memory one whose shining lustre the years will not dim, nor time destroy.

Bishop Brown, Revival Speaker at First AME Zion

BISHOP BROWN, revival speaker each Wednesday night at First A. M. E. Zion church.

The First A.M.E. Zion church is holding its mid-week revival hour with the Bishop W. C. Brown of the ninth Episcopal district as the speaker. Bishop Brown, delivered a soul stirring message last Wednesday evening, to an appreciative audience, from the subject: "Satan Desires to sift thee as Wheat, but I am Praying for You." The combined choirs of the church rendered special music for the occasion, assisted with Mr. Harvey Marshall, noted Gospel Singer, also the Payne Sisters. This mid-week revival has started off with great success, which will culminate March 21, 1943.

Each Wednesday evening at 6 p. m., a Fellowship Dinner is served in the dining room. Last Wednesday evening the Stewardess Boards numbers one and two, had charge of the dinner. This Wednesday, the Senior Choir, will serve the Fellowship Dinner. A luscious dinner will be served for a nominal fee. Please come out and enjoy a fine fellowship after which you are certain to have a "Spiritual Revival".

Arthur Peters at Neighborhood

The Senior Choir of The Neighborhood Church, located at San Pedro Street and 47th Place, will present Mr. Arthur Peters in gospel song Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Peters is well known in the church life of the city and regarded as one of the most outstanding in gospel singing. The public is invited.

Card of Thanks

The family of the late William Richardson extends most sincere thanks to friendsr for their words of consolation and floral pieces. To Rev. Lane C. Cleaves and the People's Funeral Home, we are deeply grateful.

Mrs. Laverne Richardson, wife,
Mrs. Susie Smart, mother

First AME Zion to Enroll 100

The First A.M.E. Zion church, Pico and Paloma, has fond hopes of enrolling one hundred men, women and children for Christian service during the four weeks which began Feb. 14 and ends Mar. 21. Bishop W. C. Brown is the Wednesday evening speaker tof the gospel. Harvey Marshall is gospel singer, two choirs sing, and Gilbert Alen handles the piano.

There is a fellowship dinner at [illegible] m. on each Wednesday. Prayband, at 7:15 folows.

John Fowler Heads Pioneer Club No. 1

The Pioneer Club No. 1 held their annual election of officers Tuesday night, at the residence of Pioneer Martha Barr of 718 E 43rd street. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: president, John Fowler; vice-president, Mrs. Nancy Warner; secretary, Mrs. Laura E. Young; treasurer, Mrs. S. J. Brueington; chaplain, Mrs. Georgia Robinson; historian, Mrs. Laura E. Fowler; marshall, Will Gray; chairman of sick committee, John Sellers; assistant sec'y, Mrs. Ester Bruce; and corres. secretary, Mrs. Lydia Spillar. Mrs. Georgia Robinson paid a glowing tribute to Mrs. Lauretta McPeak, a friend of our patron saint, Biddy Mason.

Presenting each guest with paper hats and lace trimmed valentines, our host and hostess, Mr. John Sellars and Mrs. Martha Barry, carried the valentine motiff out quite uniquely with a delicious valentine supper. Pioneer Percy Buck was the principal speaker.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Young of 950 E. 42nd place at which time Mrs. Fowler will assist Mrs. Young as hostess, and also the new officers will be installed.

CALIFORNIA EAGLE IS WAR WORKERS' PAPER

The California EAGLE has become known as the War workers paper for the West Coast. If you have a war problem bring it to us!

Patriotic Service at Church

The Village Baptist church closes the month of February with a great patriotic service at 5 p. m. Sunday, Feb. 28.

Special musical numbers will be furnished by Sergeant Lee and his men in the service, and the mass singing of patriotic numbers will be directed by Mrs. Hattie Carter, Minister of Music.

Atty. Theodore Robinson, product of Southwestern School of Law, class of '21, will speak on Lincoln and Washington, while Lieut. Roy C. Brooks of Co. C., 365th Quartermaster, will speak on "We the Negro."

The general public is invited and a special invitation is extended to men and women and organizations in the service.

100 Classes in Victory Gardens

Los Angeles citizens will learn the latest approved methods of growing victory gardens in nearly 100 classes, some already under way and others scheduled to open soon, it was reported yesterday by Murray McNeil, chairman of the victory garden committee of the City Defense Council.

Thirty classes are now holding weekly sessions and other groups to receive instructions in gardening are being formed. Courses extending for a period of ten weeks will be offered to all citizens who wish to enroll.

Demonstration gardens are being planned in various parts of Los Angeles and a program is being considered to obtain the use of many vacant lots as community gardens. Plans also have been advanced for the use of vacant properties adjoining war factories, where employees may learn to grow vegetables.

War Relief Ships on Way to Greece

Four ships are en route to Greece loaded with relief supplies and food for starving womenand children, according to Victor Adams, chairman of the Greek division of United Nations War Relief.

Similar shipments are being made at intervals during the year from funds raised by the Greek War Relief organization. Southern California's share of the funds needed to finance these shipments is being raised through the current United Nations War Relief campaign.

Arrangements are being made for a conference on victory gardening scheduled to be held Thursday, March 4, at the Embassy auditorium, 9th street and Grand avenue, McNeil said.

Universal Church Continues Revival

REV. ANITA L. EDMONDS

Last week, some of the most outstanding people of the city attended the revival, now being conducted by the Rev. Mrs. Blanche Blake, noted CME evangelist, at the Universal Evangelical Church, Non-Denominational, 2303 So. Central Ave. Most important, souls have been saved and added to the church in the old fashioned way; not by a handshake, but by repentance! Money being the main objective in most churches of today, the preaching of the gospel with repentance has been placed in the background, and souls have been taken into the churches without being convicted of sin. Pray tell, is this not why many of our pulpits are filled with sinners today?

Do not fail to hear Evangelist Blake this week. She will move you from your seats with power of her message. Her closing sermon will be Sunday nite. This Church shall continue to have a revival. It shall be known as God's continuous revival center, people in this city? The pastor, Rev. Anita L. Edmonds will begin a series of sermons Sunday week, March 7th on the subject: "The Approaching Judgment in the Light of Prophecy." Watch the papers for further announcements.

Pvt. Milligan at Keesler Field

KESSLER FIELD, Miss., Feb. 24.—Kessler Field's colored troop units have shown considerable growth during the past few months with the rising importance of colored troops to the nation's ar effort.

Among recent arrivals to this branch of the Technical Training Command was Pvt. Moses L. Milligan of 1414½ E. 53rd street, Los Angeles, who is now chief clerk in his squadron here.

Before his induction in the Army, Private Milligan was employed as a teacher and as a former EAGLE reporter.

Private Milligan also is a certified Master Culbertson teacher and former president of the Los Angeles School of Bridge as well as a member of the Publicity Committee of the American Bridge Association.

Dedication Week Services Begin at Hamilton

Dedication week services will begin at Hamilton Methodist church, E. 18th and Naomi Ave., Feb. 28, and continue each night during the week. This is a week's service which will be held in all Methodist churches throughout the nation. There will be special messages each night during the six and a visiting preacher for week. There will be special mu- Sunday morning. At the 7:30 hour, the Ruth Gleaners will present a special service with a sermon by Rev. Arabella Booker.

Bethlehem Baptist Church Tells Work

The Bethlehem Baptist Church, 49th and Compton Ave., is at work with a large membership, and a loyal church to its community, Sunday School, Devotion Services, BYPU and a spiritual worhsip can be expected at all of our services, the women's local auxiliaries are all faithful to the cause of Christ.

The Pacific Baptist Association was with us Sunday, Feb 7th with their cooperation the sum of $80.00 was raised.

Mrs. Sussie Flynn was the sponsor of a successful financial drive that terminated Sunday, Feb. 14th were blessed with the sum of $665.00 from the rally, the grand total for the day was $707.00 a sad time was had by all present at this hour, it was readily turned into a thanksgiving rally, praise God from whom all blessings flow, all of Bethlehem members had a mind to work.

Mrs. A. B. Smith and the Deacon Board and the others made large contributions in this effort we are grateful to all that participated.

SWEET CHARIOT HOUR TO BE HEARD TWICE WEEKLY

The new and popular Sweet Chariot Hour radio program has received such wide approval that beginning next Sunday it will be presented twice a week to a large interracial audience. The Sunday broadcast is at five p. m., KPAS, while the Wednesday program will be presented at 1:00 p. m.

The Sweet Chariot Singers, directed by Rubye Brown, organist-director, present the musical features of the program. This group is being specially coached by Prof. A. Lindquist, distinguished vocalist and radio coach.

The Sweet Chariot Hour is contracted to be presented for a year's broadcast. The cast which presents the discussion and dialogue is directed by Rev. Owen A. Troy. Associated in the program direction is Rev. F. L. Peterson of Los Angeles and Rev. Harold Lindsey of Watts.

The program is presented by remote control from the auditorium of the Sunset Avenue church of Pasadena, corner of Sunset & Pepper. The public is invited to attend the broadcast. You are asked to be in auditorium no later than 4:40 p. m. each Sunday afternoon.

Reception to Honor Former Lincoln Pastor, Wife

At Lincoln Memorial Congregational church, E. Vernon and Hooper avenues, the 9:30 a. m. Sunday School lesson will be "Jesus Restores Lazarus to Life."

At 11:00 a. m., sermon by pastor, "The Uplifted Saviour." Special—Lincoln will hold a reception for its former pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Percy Williams and its newly appointed pastor from 4 to 7 p. m. The public is cordially invited. We wish to make your acquaintance.

At 5:30 p. m., Pilgrim Fellowship (Young People's Hour). 7:30, Vesper service, sermon "Growing Up."

28th Street 'Y' Opens Campaign

Backed by an enthusiastic Board of Managers, the annual enrollment campaign is under way at the 28th Street Branch of the YMCA, and is being pushed vigorously by a strong and determined organization under the leadership of Dr. F. D. Jordan, pastor of 8th and Towne Ave., AME church, assisted by Mr. George Beavers of Golden State Life Insurance Company; Mr. S. P. Johnson of the firm of Conner-Johnson and Mr. Walter Gordon, popular realtor, are division leaders. A goal of 1001 members and three thousand dollars is the objective of the campaign.

The drive "kicked off" on Monday night with a dinner meeting at which the new executive secretary emphasized the needs of the branch not only in terms of the money needed to meet current expense and finance needed repairs and replacements, but especially in terms of the need for mobilizing the Christian Manpower of the community to face the current as well as the post war problems that face it. Dr. Jordan challenged the workers to a streamlined campaign, and evoked enthusiastic response from the Division leaders and their captains.

The campaign will continue until March 4 with report meetings on February 23 and March 2

Before buying ANY laxative, consider these 3 Questions

Ques. Does it make any difference what laxative you buy? Ans. It certainly does; most people prefer a laxative that is gentle in action but thorough in results. Ques. How can you know what laxative, when taken as directed, will usually give gentle, thorough, prompt relief? Ans. One simple way is to ask for Black-Draught. Ques. Is Black-Draught economical? Ans. Very! Only 25 cents for 25 to 40 doses.

Black-Draught is purely herbal. It has been a popular-selling laxative with four generations. Many say the new granulated form is even easier to take. Be sure to follow label directions.

Warmest greetings to The California Eagle, fighting Negro newspaper, on the occasion of its Sixty-fourth Anniversary.

As a bookstore we consistently present to the people of Los Angeles County a true interpretation of American history, and especially an understanding and respect for the important contributions of Negro Americans in our democratic heritage.

Let us all continue the great traditions of Lincoln, Douglass and Washington, and destroy the Axis barbarians with our own great and indivisible unity.

For the Truth About "Tennessee Johnson"

READ:

RECONSTRUCTION by James S. Allen $1.25
THADDEUS STEVENS by Elizabeth Lawson 10
CIVIL WAR IN THE U. S. by Marx and Engels . . . 2.50

Here is what Frederick Engels wrote to Karl Marx about "Tennesee Johnson" on July 15, 1865:

"I, too, like Mr. Johnson's policy less and less. His hatred of Negroes comes out more and more violently, while as against the old lords of the South he lets all power go out of his hands. If things go on like this, in six months all the old villains of secession will be sitting in Congress at Washington."—From CIVIL WAR IN THE U. S. page 266.

What The Chicago Defender says about this book:

"He treats the Negro question in a manner that no other political figure in our country has had the courage to do . . . war economy will and must give work to every Negro according to his ability. This will not come of itself but can be successfully fought for . . . The author exposes the changing relation of social forces in America which is bringing new allies to the Negro people out of our common interest and cause."

Jr. Usher Board Union of California Installs Officers

ARTIS C. GRANT, retiring president of the Junior Usher Board Union of California. He is at present chairman of the Board of Directors of the Union.

Sunday, February 7, 1943 witnessed Artis C. Grant, president of the Junior Usher Board Union, hand the gavel to the newly elected president, Archie Porter. Mr. Artis C. Grant served for two years as the initial president. He has been very active in religious, scholastic, social and fraternla circles, being Assistant General Superintendent of the Second Baptist Sunday School, and Secretary of the local under-graduate Alpha Delta Chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity. He is at present a Senior at UCLA, majoring in mathematics and mechanical engineering, also is serving as president of the Board of Directors of the Junior Usher Board Union and Vice-President on the Union Cabinet.

Mr. Archie Porter formerly served as the Vice-President. The installation was held in the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Grant, 700 E. 51st St., parents of the late president.

Before the installation, Miss Carrie Mae Bussey, then the program chairman, brought forth a splendid program which was enjoyed by all. The motto is "We Serve". This was touched upon very eloquently by the late president and also received comment from Mrs. C. K. Burgess, President State Usher Union. Other distinguished guests included: Mr. S. S. Simms, President of the City Usher Board Union; Mr. Tukes, chairman of Board of Directors: Mrs. Emma Jones, vice-president of the local union; Mrs. Attelia James, State Supervisor; Mrs. Paline Alexander, State Jr. Organizer, Mr. Ted Alexander and Mrs. Azalea Grant, hostess of the afternoon.

Mr. Tukes in behalf of the Union presented Mr. Grant a beautiful gavel engraved in silver in appreciation of his hardwork in office and magnetic personality. Mrs. C. K. Burgess, President State Union, installed the cabinet and the Board of Directors, while Mr. Simms presented Mr. Porter a rose wood gavel as symbolic of his office.

The 1943 officers are: President, Archie Porter; Vice-Pres., Artis C. Grant; Recording Sec'y, Annie Lee Simington; Fin. Sec'y, Betty Jean Waites; Corresponding Sec'y, Mary Aitchison; Treas., Dorothy Jo Whittaker; Parliamentarian, Francis Bussey; Reporter, Catherine Marshall; Sgt.-at-Arms, Mary Chamberlain; Chaplain, Clifford Whittaker; Pianist, Clifford Prelude.

The 1943 Board of Directors are: Pres., Artis C. Grant; Vice-Pres., Edna Wright; Sec'y, Flora Holly; Treas., Isaac James.

The outgoing 1942 officers were Artis C. Grant, pres.; Archie Porter, vice-pres.; Jessie Mae Milhouse, rec. sec'y; Annie Lee Simington, ass't sec'y; Ruth Ford, treas.; Louis Brown, parliamentarian; William Elkins, chaplain; Seitland Terrel, reporter.

St. Paul Marches on Under Banner of Holy Ghost

Sunday, February 21, 1943 will be long remembered in St. Paul Baptist Church and in the city of Los Angeles, in general, as one of the most momentous in recent years; it being the occasion of the first public appearance of Professor George Garner, since his return from the hospital where he had been for more than eight months recuperating from serious injuries received in an automobile acident. The setting was in the main auditorium of the St. Paul Baptist Church, where inspite of the intermittent vernal showers hundreds of members of St. Paul, and scores of friends of Prof. Garner, members of other churches, crowded the auditorium to witness and participate in the scheduled service advertised as "Garner Day In St. Paul Baptist Church."

The 11 o'clock service was very inspiring to begin with, the singing of the two major choirs jointly, was very uplifting and set our hearts in tune for the message, Elder E. A. Anderson, first assistant pastor was the messenger, delivering a very unusual message from the subject "It is later than you Think"; his treatment of the subject was ably accomplished and evoked many favorable comments from those who, gladly heard him; Prof. Garner was the guest soloist, and his renditions were vociferously received. The invitation for members was given and among those who presented themselves was Prof. Garner, he came down from the rostrum and expressed his desire to unite with and become a member of St. Paul Baptist Church by his christian experience, his testimony was very inspiring and gave a glowing tribute to his parents for having brought him up in a christian home and also giving him the benefit of church training in the Olivet Baptist Church in Chicago, Ill.

In the afternoon at 3:30 a testimonial was held honoring Prof. Garner, the music by the Major Choirs was better than in the forenoon, and a special number by the Los Angeles Choral Union, titled "Canaan" was dedicated to Prof. Garner and very beautifully rendered, with the Rev. Mrs. Bell, Evangelist of Chicago, Ill. doing the solo part. Mrs. Marie Overstreet Jackson, in her own inimitable manner, sang "I Thank God", she very thoughtfully, dedicated the number to Prof. Garner; there was an appreciative audience, representing the various, singing units, and civic bodies of the city; and those speaking were as follows—Representing the religionists, Miss Mary Ruth Banks, member of St. Paul Church, and Choir, Teacher in the Los Angeles Public Schools, President of the Los Angeles Choral Union; in her remarks portrayed Prof. Garner, as one imbued with the ne plus ultra, of Altruism.

Representing the Clergy, Dr. John D. Gordon, Dean of Negro Baptist ministers on the west coast, was very lavish in praise for Prof. Garner, for the stand he had taken in answering the call of God, to go from a low to the highest calling that one can receive, that is, of preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Representing the Musicians, Mr. S. P. Johnson, State President of the Western Baptist S. S. Convention, Supt. S. S. Second Baptist church, Business Executive and civic leader, most fittingly set forth the many fine traits he had observed in the life of Prof. Garner, proving him to be a real Minister of Music, and worthy of the honors bestowed upon him by the musical world. He also congratulated him for taking a stand for the Minister of gospel.

Representing the citizens, Rev. L. G. Robinson, executive of the Angelus Funeral Home, civic leader, was glad to have the opportunity to say a word for so noble a character who had, although he had attained to the heights of civic approbation in the field of music, decided to accept the call to the ministry, which call and approval can only emanate from Heaven.

On the platform with Prof. Garner were his mother, his wife, his daughter, Pastor S. A. Williams, Rev. L. G. Robinson, Rev. and Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Edith Owens, of Wesley Chapel, Mrs. Bacon, of First A. M. E. choir, Mr. City, real estate, and Mr. McKinney, signs, both of the First A. M. E. church. Remarks by the members from the First church, paid a glowing tribute to Prof. Garner, lauding his work and loyalty as a member of the First A.M.E. institution. They congratulated St. Paul for having been fortunate in securing such a valuable man as a member.

There was a very nice purse given Prof. Garner at the end of the speaking period, many churches, choirs, and civic orgaizations having sent special representatives with their contributions. These were augmented by a check for $25.00 from the St. Paul Baptist church, and by a public offering. The presentation was made by Elder E. A. Anderson, first assistant pastor, who in a very modest way acknowledged that after a thorough search of his thesaurus, he had found that his erudition too limited, his conception too vague, his vocabulary too inadequate to properly make the presentation, but that he would say we are glad that you came and glad that you are going to stay. May God Bless You.

Prof. Garner graciously acceptprior to his accident he had not known Pastor Williams and that he was agreeably surprised to have him on his first visit to the hospital present him with a check for $25.00 from St. Paul Baptsit church, and to repeat the same on subsequent visits; he thanked his friends from other churches for their presence, and the representative from the choirs and auxiliaries for their thoughtfulness in sending their contributions. He especially thanked Pastor Williams for arranging the program, thus making it possible for his friends to participate in the testimonial. He then invited them to come back Sunday evening at which time he would thank them more profusely and also attempt to preach his trial sermon.

This mammoth program was emceed by Arthur C. Coles, sr., deacon of St. Paul Baptist church—president of the trustee board, and active in all church activies, in public life a member of the Los Angeles police department.

The Evening service was large, the members and friends disregarding the rain. The singing was very good leading up to the preaching period. Brother Geo. Garner was the speaker, using as his subject "From the Known To The Unkndwn" based on the scriptures, Gen. 12: 1-3, and Heb. 11: 8, his theme was faith in God, his thesis was very timely and dated back to his early life in Chicago, Ill. He reiterated his experience as pertained to his injuries and his sojourn in the hospital and of his firm resolve to do God's will, if and when, he recovered. His remarks were noteworthy. At one moment he would have you feeling sympathetic toward him, sharing his pains, feeling the numbness of the anesthesia, and all the discomforts of the sick bed, then suddenly at the close of his picture he would cause your spiritual eyes to be opened to the fact that he was not sorry, needed no human sympathy because he had become resigned to the fact that it was all God's plan of showing him that there was other work to be done aside from singing.

He finished his sermon by singing a very touching song, "Life Is Like a Mountain Railroad," afterwhich Pastor S. A. Williams made some striking remarks on the sermon and of the manner in which it was delivered. He then stated that he would entertain a motion to grant license to Prof. Garner. The motion was made by the officers of the church an unanimously passed. The Pastor then in the presence of the great assembly presented the certificate making Prof. Garner Rev. George Garner.

Rev. Dames Elected to Bishops' Council Committee

Rev. Jonathan A. Dames, minister of First AME church of Pasadena, has been attending the Bishops' Council at Nashville, Tenn. Upon his return to the city last week, he reported all the sessions as interesting. He was elected a member of the finding committee in the symposium on Post-War Africa. Dr. Dames responded to the addresses of welcome delivered on opening day of the Connectional Council. He is the 5th District's choice for election to Episcopal honors in 1944.

The Rt. Rev. Noah Williams, 5th District Bishop, is making his first appearance on the coast at First AME Church, Pasadena. He will be guest speaker at the 11 o'clock service on Sunday. Bishop and Mrs. Williams are house guests of Rev. and Mrs. Dames.

★ USE AND ABUSE

BY EARL DANCER

A USE AND ABUSE

I am not bound to win,
But I am bound to be true.
I am not bound to succeed,
But I am bound to live up to what light I have.
I must stand by anybody that stands right.
Stand with him when he is right
And part with him when he is wrong.

—LINCOLN

A committee headed by Bill Robinson, according to Mr. Rowe, was loud (author's note—and may I say wrong) in their disapproval of my original article. The committee included Clarence Muse, Hattie McDaniel, Mantan Moreland, Louise Beavers, Ben Carter and Ernest Whitman.

I first wish to make a statement for the records. I have no quarrel with the Negro actors in or out of the motion picture industry. I think my past record will attest this statement.

I have ever worked for the betterment of the Negro performers. And today I can state with pardonable pride that my work was not in vain. The motion picture industry of Hollywood happens to be my Alma Mater. I started as a young boy with D. W. Griffith Productions and George Seigerman, whose chores for Mr. Griffith included casting director of sorts, as well as character actor. A few weeks after my entry into the motion picture industry, Mr. Griffith began filming "The Birth of a Nation."

In those days we had no central casting office. As a matter of fact, we had no commissary. Everyone, star, bit player, directors, and extras would each file in a line and receive their lunch box, each box alike with a bottle of milk. Then we all would very democratically, both black and white, sit and eat our lunch to-our joys.

It was during one of these lunch periods that George Seigerhe could get a hundred and fifty man asked me if I knew where Negro extras for one of the scenes in the picture. I told him I could get him a thousand if he wanted them. He offered to pay me for each person selected. I then proceeded to Watson Burn's pool hall and other Central Avenue public places. The next day I had 800 people for interviews with Mr. Seigerman. That was my first job in an executive position in Hollywood which was both pleasant and profitable.

Though just a boy in my teens, Mr. Seigerman made me one of his assistants handling the colored extras. That lasted until Mr. Seigerman told me we were to shoot a scene in which the action called for a Negro soldier to break in a door to a room in which a white girl was hiding. Then he was suposed to attempt rape. He instructed me to get 10 or 15 big Negroes for his final selection. I not only refused to pick but advised all the colored extras the Negroes for his selection, but against playing such a beast as this part demanded. For this gesture of mine I was fired. But I had the satisfaction of knowing that no black up to play the part himself, that eGorge Seigerman had to So, as a very young boy, I started my fight for better roles for the Negro in motion pictures.

Among other things Mr. Rowe accuses me of being is anti-semitic, which is as ridiculous as most of Mr. Rowe's utterances.

I am very proud that I have been able to call such men as Eddie Cantor, Otto Kahn, Irving Berlin, Sam Katz, Al Jolson, Mervyn LeRoy, Abe Lastfogel, Jack Warner, Lou Schriber and a host of others, my friends.

These men who are members of a great minority have ever been aware of the problems of our minority. They knew our identical causes must be merged with the progressive trends and causes of the day. And knew the most effective way for furthering the causes of all minority group were to link them up in all possible directions with their broadest human implications and which have become part and parcel those basic issues of democracies feel with the cause and creed of the rights of all people for racial equality and parity everywhere.

But to get to the real issue: Billy Rowe's defense of the motion picture industry. We wish to let it be known that we were among the first to go to the defense of Billy Rowe when his motives of the motion picture industry were questioned by local columnists. As a matter of fact, we wrote Bill a letter denouncing these critics. But that was before we had an audience with my friend, Mr. Sam Katz, who I am happy to state is possibly the most liberal producer in Hollywood. At this meeting was also Author Freed, who produced 'Cabin in the Sky" under the supervision of Mr. Katz. Mr. Katz and Freed were glad to tell me of the wonderful plans they had in store for Rochester and Lena Horne and also how proud they were of their production "Cabin in the Sky." And the great number of Negro actors and technicians this film had benefitted, artistically and financially. In mentioning the various names of the people who had benefitted financially from this production, they included the name of Billy Rowe, well, in show parlance, I idd a double take.

Billy Rowe has always been a stickler at getting the names of his race in public print at no cost to the client other than Billy's fear that Rowe chose to leave me. I for one am very sorry to see job of collecting spicy gossip of the theatre and its people and the exploitations of Negro bands, a field that he is truly in his element, to champion the cause of the Motion picture industry.

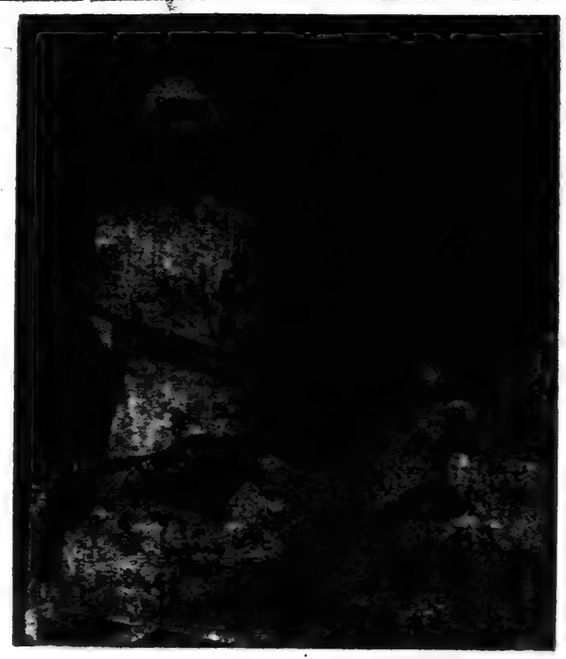
Among his many ravings Billy claimed that there are no ills in the motion picture industry that a three cent stamp won't cure. I wonder if Billy realizes that Negroes will not write Hollywood or anything else and if he is also aware of the poor showing Negro letter writers made in our recent fight against the poll tax system. Well, I for one know that if Negroes will not write their senators and congressmen of this most momentous legislature, they certainly will not write Hollywood on something they consider just entertainment, and for most part other than our "song and dance artist," is poor entertainment indeed.

There are a very few Negroes who are in a position to know the actual inter-workings of Hollywood; most of the people who have been chsen to remedy the ills of Hollywood know little or nothing of its history and a doctor must know the patient's history to diagnose the cause of his illness.

Hollywood producers are divided into four areas of distribution. The North, South, East and West. One studio owns and controls theatres in the West, others North, South and East. These studios interchange their products with one another. But a studio controls the pictures released in the South is ever aware of the prejudices that have been developed against the Negro and has always bent backward to appease the uncompromising stand of the white South's subjection and humiliation of the American Negro.

To prove this statement all the protests of persons, organizations and unions proved naught with the showing of "Tennessee Johnson," which was a dull, pretentious and distorted picture of a chapter of our American history, which attempted to malign one of the greatest fighters for Negro rights, namely, Thaddeus Stevens, and apologize for their tool of slavocracy, Andrew Jackson.

And in answer to the above named committee, headed by Bill Robinson, even at the risk of offending a few of them, all of whom I personally admire and respect, I reiterate, my previous statement that the motion picture industry has fed us with such a continuous diet of beastial and fearful Uncle Toms and Aunt Jemina roles that all decent American Negroes are suffering with an acute taste of indigestion. The occasional ommission from these roles have been comparatively few. The notable exception was the Earnest Anderson characterization in Warner Bros.' "In This Our Life," starring Bette Davis. A role that was most notable as it was the first to preach tolerance where the Negro was concerned, and I understand from quite authoritative sources that this role was only allowed to stay in its original version at the insistence of the author with the support of the star, Miss Davis and the truly liberal attitude of Miss DeHavilland.



I undersand they had to go to bat with the front office to keep that part intact. The fron office contention being the South would not accept this characterization. But I for one flatly reputed the policies of the appeasers, the defeatists and obstructionists and contend that now is the time for the motion picture industry, consistent with its pledges to the democracies to stop producing films depicting the Negro either as a knave, a clown or a beast and stop prostituting the great artistry of our song and dance men and women by having them do a song and dance where they give great evidence of their native genius, then immediately giving them dialogus that causes one to wonder if it was written by Senators Wardman and Tilman.

I wonder if Billy Rowe, in his Negro in motion pictures ever saw evidence of the dialogue between members of the white and black races. I would like to give two examples here. The first example: The scene between an old young white girl about 5 years Negro man 70 odd years old and a old. The dialogue sounded something like this: The young white child—"Where are you Uncle Bill," the old Negro man—"Here I am Miss Shirley." Such evidence of humility is pathetic indeed.

The second example: A few days ago I went to a theatre to see a picture advertised that I had missed in the first run houses, while waiting ot see the film of my choosing, a scene from the other picture came on the screen in which the most disgusting character I have even seen on the American screen representing a Negro elevator operator.

He was very dark with a very small head ,big eyes, large portruding white teeth. His natural characteristics I could forgive but his antics were those of an imbecile. These grotesque characterization that Hollywood's vicious propaganda attempts to sell as the average Negro is dangerously harmful, particularly at a time when there is such need for unity, in this the most crucial hour of our nation's history.

There is much that Hollywood could do toward rallying the American Negroes behind the war effort, also toward breaking down some of the prejudices by honest portrayal of the American Negroes and their part in our national life. But it is hard to out old habits pattern and the emotions they generate are urged to be present."

In calling for immediate, militant action by the War Manpower Commission, Rev. Russell pointed out that "if the Los Angeles Railway company is permitted to flaunt the President's executive order, other industries will surely follow suit, resulting in a tremendous set-zack for the whole Negro people and a mortal blow to the nation's war effort."

As late as yesterday, however, the two Negro motormen training with the firm were still at their posts!. Barring no change, they should be operating street cars in the city today.

Private First Class Trains Chorus

COURTLAND, Ala., Feb. 24.—Private First Class Rutherford H. Strider today as a soldier of the United States Army Air Forces is finding a wide and appreciative field of expression for his exceptionally fine musical ability.

A student of the piano since the age of six, this young soldier holds a master degree in music from Fisk university, one of the nation's most outstanding centers of Negro education.

Though the group has made only a few appearances, it has brought forth only the highest praise from those who have heard it.

WAGGING TONGUES

How foolishly we use our tongues to express our feelings. Many idle words pass through our lips that we cannot always keep track of. Too often we are inclined to be jealous or critical of others, and too free in mentioning their short-comings.

We should learn the lesson of self-control. It is a wise plan to say those things that are pleasant to hear if we must express our thoughts. Say nothing about a person you would not say to their face. And always bear in mind it is "golden" to keep silent sometimes.

Idle talk and gossip has been the cause of many heartaches, broken homes and disillusions. Let's learn to curb our tongues from speaking evil and causing destruction both at home and at our jobs.

D. C. R.—Dear Prof. Herman: I have been reading your column in the paper every since I was 12 years old and have always found it very interesting. Would you please advise me about this matter. Does this boy care for me?

Ans.—Concentrating upon your question, I find that the young man in question is very fond of you. You are an attractive young woman, and that is why he is taught staring at you so often. Your friendship will grow as you know each other better.

Mrs. E. P.—Regret to inform you that the nature of your question will require a private reply. Suggest you write in at your earliest convenience.

E. M. L.—Will I marry again?

Ans.—Your Zodiacal sign indicates certain changes in your future and one of them will be another marriage. It also appears to me that you are very much interested in a soldier, and your future marriage will in all probability be to this man.

R. W.—In regards to your question, I suggest that you go to the Station hospital for treatment, and mention all of the ailments you have. The proper medical care will be given you, and you will be feeling much better soon.

M. L. McN.—Was the watch in the room when I was looking for it?

Ans.—It appears to me that a thorough search was never made for the watch, hence your not being able to locate it. Now that the problem has been solved, I suggest that you forget about it.

I. W.—Dear Prof.: Sometime ago I joined your Prayer and Meditation Circle by sending for this wonderful product. The relief I have felt since using it has made me realize how foolish people can be by not trying to help themselves overcome their difficulties thru you and your wonderful products. Thanks for suggesting this Prayer and Meditation Combination to me.

B. T. B.—Will I make any changes anytime this year?

Ans.—Probing into the matter I find you are to make several changes in both personal and buiwill result in your finding true siness matters. These changes love and happiness.

T. W.—Why did this boy change? What has the married lady got to do with us? Was he ever interested in me?

Ans.—Only one question is answered in the column. I suggest that you write in for a private reply.

D. R.—Wil I overcome the pass and be successful with the one I love?

Ans.—A careful analysis of your question indicates your making too much of a small matter. Your past, as you call it, is nothing more than a series of experiences that are your own personal affairs. Keep them to yourself. They have nothing to do with your future happiness, except that you might profit by them.

Much Has Been Done; Much Lies Ahead

We are faced today with problems of upgrading in industry, the berak-down of union jim-crow, the battle for aggressive government policy on the integration of Negroes into industry and labor as a vital phase of the war effort. We have the task of organizing an irresistible national drive for passage of the anti-poll tax bill in this session of Congress. We are challenged by the scope, vileness and strength of the American Fifth Column.

We must steel ourselves for the struggle of the months to come, knowing that the measure of our energies shall by the same token become the measure of our successes.

And we know the stakes for which this game is played. The world, no less. The world free and rid of that Nazi terror which has spread vulture-like across the continent of Europe and careened in its deadly path across the rich Russian nation.

The world clean and shining for our children. The world full of problems yet to be solved, but nowhere so base a problem as riding the earth of men sunk to the level of beasts.

In such a moment as this, a time of perpetual climax, it is difficult always to judge how far we have progressed and what distance is yet to be conquered.

But review of the past is a valuable guide to the future.

A year and a half ago, this Negro community was congealed about one running sore, discrimintion, to the point of absolute exclusion, in the national defense industries.

Around this struggle everything revolved.

Already it is difficult to remember when there was less than 20, less than 10 Negroes in basic defense industries in Los Angeles. Today the number is well in the thousand. Thirty thousand, as a matter of fact.

All this grew out of a fight. It was a fight in the interest of victory, because we knew that our nation could not achieve its production goals without the use of every hand, black and white.

Today the problems are changed. But the will to fight them through to a finish must not change.

We are paused in this moment between the patterns of yesterday and tomorrow. The fierce battles of jim-crowism, upgrading and restriction now will establish the percedents upon which our lives will rest even after the fascist enemy is destroyed.

If Jim Crow is not sent packing today when he stands a known boulder in the path of the nation's war effort, he is with us for a long time.

Dispatched now, he can never return.

If the poll tax can survive the war for freedom, its abolition becomes much more problematical.

So, let us recall the proud shout of Frederick Douglass, 'Citizens of color, to arms!'

Let us industirously seek out the "weak and cowardly" men among us. Let us place our full weight behind this effort.

For on its outcome depends the difference between night and day.

Minorities Must Unite for Victory

The 70,000 Negroes, 250,000 Mexicans and 125,000 Jewish citizens of the county of Los Angeles represent a force capable of determining great things in the Southland.

That there has not been in the past a greater unity between these various groups of specially persecuted Americans is a proper tribute to the scheme of divide and rule by which most of humanity is kept in subjection.

But today, as the necessities of all-out warfare clear from our heads the nonsense of other days and as the bold outlines of historic "musts" stand out before us, our dependence, one upon the other, becomes crystal clear.

Oppression begins with the selection of a certain, special scape-goat. First, it may be the Jews, next the labor movement or the Communists, then the Negroes, then the workers, then the middle class. Thus, the pattern in Germany.

In the South of the United States, restriction of the ballot began as a measure to prevent "black domination." It was a scheme in the benefit of all "white men". But today there are 6,000,000 white citizens disfranchised by the poll tax and 4,000,000 Negroes. Jews and Catholics are in many places suspect. Working people's organizations face terrorism.

In Los Angeles, it is the Mexican minority which faces the most vicious discrimination, its contribution to the war effort brutally circumscribed, its youth hounded by police, its citizenship and loyalty attacked.

Here, then, is a lesson for the other minority groups in our city. We must rally around the cause of our Mexican brothers, swiftly, with meaning, with full determination that it WON'T happen here.

In the war setting of today, racial persecution, whether directed in any degree against any group, takes a new and sinister meaning, for now it contributes directly to the cause of madmen who would strip the whole world for their own lust.

That fascism may never crawl, lice-like, across the face of this nation, with its great Ameircan tradition of the struggle toward democracy, is the common task of all.

We must, each and everyone, see that none of our efforts are restricted, cancelled out, in fact, by the stupid barrier of racial bias.

Jew and Gentile, white and black, this is our country and OUR war.

The 48-Hour Week-- It's Not a Cure-All

Like an orchestra, in which one instrument is heard for a while and then fades into silence, there is one note missing these days from the anti-labor symphony being played by the reactionary newspapers and congressional tories.

Until recently, the most insistent overtone of the howl for wiping out labor's protective Wage-Hour legislation was the demand for a 48-hour week.

As a matter of fact most of our war industries were operating on a 48-hour week or better. What the howlers wanted was lynch legislation to compel a 48-hour week at straight time rates, without payment of the time-and-a-half premium rates for the additional eight hours, as required by law.

Labor, too, called for a 48-hour week in those war plants which sought to increase their already-fat profits by paying for all work at straight time rates, disregarding the nation's urgent need for top-speed production and the growing manpower shortage.

Thus the same demand for the 48-hour week was coming separately from labor, which wanted all-out war production, and from sections of industry and their stooges whose real aim was to cut a corner in the direction of lower wages.

Now that the 48-hour week has been embodied in an executive order and applied to labor shortage areas including San Diego, and now that it is possibly on the way for other California war centers, but with the protection of overtime rates, management's enthusiasm for the longer work-week has suddenly cooled.

Organized labor hails the order as a step in the direction of greater production. It is important to remember, however, that this move is not a production cure-all, and that its benefits may even be negligible unless it is accompanied by an even more intensive campaign to secure the most efficient possible utilization of working forces in essential industries.

Absenteeism, labor turnover, production bottlenecks and inefficiencies continue to be the big challenge. Through its production committees in the northern and southern parts of the state the California CIO Council is now addressing iself to these problems and is preparing to lay before War Production Board authorities at conferences early in March concrete battle-plans for blitzing the lags and lacks in production. That's where the main task lies.

Long Beach NAACP Steps Forward

A progressive program which merits wide applause is that put on by the Long Beach branch of the National Association for the Advncement of Colored People.

Basing its activities solidly on the bedrock of working peoples' needs, the organization has attracted a militant and interested following of young war workers.

Also notable is the wide interracial work undertaken by the Long Beach body. It is interesting to note the large percentage of white Americans enthusiastically participating in the program of the branch.

★ THE WORLD THIS WEEK

OUR MARINES

Last week marked the end of the six months' battle for Guadalcanal--a smashing victory for the United States. American sea, air, and ground forces now stand poised for more powerful blows at other enemy bases in the South Pacific. The gripping reports of the first battle for Guadalcanal pictured the Marines landing on the beachheads and wading ashore under heavy Japanese bombardment to pave the way for invasion forces. Significant that the struggle they began should end victoriously in the very week when the Marine Corps celebrated its 167th anniversary! On February 11, 1776, when our nation fought for the breath of life in the throes of Revolution, the Marines set out on the first overseas expedition undertaken by our armed forces. They raided a British base in the Bahamas to get much needed stores and supplies. The invincible spirit that always characterizes the Marines is one of the proudest traditions of our fighting forces. To them are assigned the toughest known to warfare. Now again in the South Pacific, the "Marines landed and have the situation well in hand."

SELF REFORM?

To meet post-war responsibilities and regain prestige lost in the past, Congress should reform itself, declared speakers of the American Political Science Association meeting in Washington last week. Strong words like "obsolete", "inadequate", and "chaotic", described the emotions of members of the Association with regard to some Congressional methods! Dr. George Galloway of the Twentieth Century Fund pointed out that the committee system was obsolete, that there are all told, some 80 committees, of which no less than eight deal with the one subject of defense. Constitutional defects were cited as three: Division of legislative power equally between House and Senate, producing delay; lack of Presidential power to dissolve Congress; lack of Congressional power to dismiss the Executive. Remedies suggested were: Streamline committee structure; get independent experts; centralize leadership; protect membership from pressure groups. In short, Congress felt its ears burning!

FARM BLUEPRINT

This is agriculture's blueprint period--the time of the year when six million farm operators make plans for the crop season ahead, according to Ovid A. Martin, farm specialist. This blueprint, he points out, is made up of production goals for various farm products--goals based on anticipated needs--military, lend-lease, emergency stockpiles, and civilian. Production goals are being worked out in the counties for each and every farmer. These goals are designed to fit the productive facilities of the farm--that is, the amount of land, labor, machinery, climate, marketing and processing problems. In marketing, America has for many years had the facilities of mass distribution, the long experience of multi-unit retailers, who aim to cooperate closely with the farmer in carrying his food basket to nationwide markets. The national food program places greatest emphasis now on livestock feeds; vegetable oil crops such as soybeans, peanuts and flax; canning crops, potatoes, dry beans and peas, and certain truck crops. Civilians, says Mr. Martin, have a twofold interest in this year's farm production because food must be had as a weapon of war, and because the greater the production, the less we go without!

RUINS OF VICTORY

Stalingrad, bleak ruins of Hitler's 1942 key offensive, still holds promise of the limits to which the Soviet people will go in their determination that Hitler may never again get a foothold on Russian territory.

DR. A. H. GIANNINI

The passing of Dr. A. H. Giannini, 68, nationally famous banker and philanthropist, removed from California one of its leading and most useful citizens. Dr. Giannini began his career as a doctor, in San Francisco, in 1897, later serving as a surgeon in the Spanish-American War. He joined his brother, A. P. Giannini, in the banking business in 1909--the Bank of Italy--which has since become the Bank of America, one of the country's major financial organizations. He was an early champion of Hetch-Hetchy and gave financial guidance to the motion picture industry. On his desk in New York, where he lived for some years as president of the East River National Bank, Dr. Giannini had a motto which read: "I like California best."

Dear Editor:

Knowing you are interested in World Peace I have taken the liberty of sending you my letter, also an idea upon which I invite your frank criticism.

I believe that a world fair of all peoples should be established to operate perpetually, at the most accessible place possessing the nearest ideal climatic conditions. There any nation, race or creed could display its works and teachings so that students could get a picture of what they had to offer. Such a Center with full representation would offer a full course in understanding to anyone wishing to learn.

Thank you for your cooperation and inviting your criticism, study and contributions, I am

PAUL L. OWENS

Edwards and His Visit to Berlin

The California Eagle takes sincere pride in presenting the first public presentation of the mission fulfilled by America's number one youth leader, Charles Edwards on his "Assignment to Berlin"

Most of us will never forget the last weeks of December, 1941, when by radio and newspaper we listened to the tragic failure of President Roosevelt of the United States to keep peace in this Country. We know that War was declared, but not until now do we know why, not until now have we had a full explanation of why! . . . Probably no one is in better position to give adequate answers to our questions than Charles Edwards who dramatically describes his experiences in Germany between May, 1937 and September 1939, during which time he was the only foreign personality permitted to have a personal interview with Germany's leader Chancelour Adolf Hitler.

I went to Berlin resolved, in spite of my own doubts and apprehensions and in spite of many of its detestable aspects to do my utmost to see the good side of the Nazi regime as well as the bad, and explain as objectively as I could its aspirations and viewpoint to the world conference of Christian Youth confining in Germany.

Many of whom thought that "Mein Kampf" was a clear statement of Hitler's aims but a talk with him indicates that he was holding back much. I shall reveal much of my private conversations with Herr Hitler. Der Fuhrer explained many of the tactics of the "New War", which astonished me, and maped out his designs on America.

Most foreign correspondents who have had the opportunity of a personal interview with Hitler don't get out of Germany alive, but fortunately I did. Thus my revelations of Hitler's personality and ideas are probably the most authentic on record.

At the appointed hour I was admitted through the Gates of the Reich Capitol, actually not one building but a series of structures. From the outside actually nothing important can be seen they were dozens of storm trooper turrets surrounding the gates. The first sight within the gates was the so called external court. This was paved with slabs of white marble, and about it were grouped the numerous official buildings, offices of the Nazi Commanders.

When I emerged into the interior court my nostrils were assailed by the intoxicating odor of countless unfamiliar trees and shrubs, grouped in a well laid park. Suddenly before me stood as if by magic a gigantic structure similar to and ancient temple, the entire building stood on foundations of white marble. Again we face a huge gate, it made me open my eyes with speechless amazement. But the sight of this huge gate of solid Corinthian bronbe staggered me. And scarcely had we taken in the sight of this mass of Corinthian bronze when we were caught from the other side of the Gate by a blinding glare of gold: We say not a gate, but an enormous tower, covered with gold above that tower gate hung a large blood red flag with a white circle in the center and a black swastika in the center of the white circle, the emblem of the Nazis.

The clarity of the air brought them close to my eyes. Sunlight was reflected on the other side from the countless golden thresholds, lintels, and gates of the temple; at that moment one would have said that it was built of stone and metals but consisted of a single flow of molten gold.

On the northern side a flight of fifteen steps, pure white marble led up to the hall of columns. They were three rows of columns on three sides. At the top of the flight of stairs and above the ceiling of the hall of columns, towered a huge swatiska carved in stone.

The Honeymoon of Don Carlos Machado. A story of the days of La Fiesta de Los Angeles.

The historic, "Old Mission" in Santa Barbara was the scene of those brilliant picturesque Spanish Weddings.

A beautiful spring morning 30-years ago, when Don Carlos Machado the scion of one of the early pioneer Spanish families, led the beautiful dark-eyed senorita, Angelica Delgado to the altar. This wedding, one of the most colorful ever seen in Spanish Santa Barbara, united two of the first families of the state. The Delgados owners of thousands of acres of fertile land in and about Santa Barbara, and the Machados of Santa Monica.

The church was filled to overflowing with relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The curious, and admiring crowd blocked traffic for blocks when the wedding party emerged from the church. Those were the days before automobiles were in vogue, and all kinds of horse drawn vehicles were used to transport the gaily attired wedding party to the bride's home, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served by Reynold's of Los Angeles.

The party made a sight long to be remembered by all Santa Barbara, when Don Carlos, holding the reins over four sparking bay thorough-breds drawing the famous Machado Tally-ho, and with him was his bride and two other couples comprising the honeymoon party, off to Los Angeles to attend, La Fiesta de Los Angeles.

Los Angeles was in her gala attire for the annual Fiesta, yellow, green and red being the official colors. Spring, Main Street and Broadway the leading thoroughfares, were bedecked with flags, bunting and palm branches. The streets were filled with people from all over Southern California, all faces beconning. The old Tally-ho stables across the street from the Los Angeles Times building on Broadway, was filled to capacity with rigs of all descriptions from out of town. Some of the best decorated stores were, Mullen and Bluett, at the corner of First and Spring, Harris and Frank, Spring and Court Streets; Hamburgers, Jacobys, and Coulters on Spring Street. The Boston Store, and Mmie'r Cripp in, La Villa de Paris on Broadway.

As the hour drew near for the queen's parade to start, hundreds and thousands were running here and there seeking vantage points from which to view the parade. In the reviewing stand in front of the City Hall on Broadway were some of the leaders of the business, political and social world, among whom were his honor, Mayor Fred Eaton; Gov. Henry T. Gage, Will A. Harris, Col. Harrison Gray, Otis H. Jeane, Milo M. Potter, E. S. Doheny, Willis Booth, Don Carlos and his party viewing the parade from their suite of rooms on the second floor of the Hollenbeck Hotel.

As they looked down Spring Street they saw one of the sights that thrilled the hearts of thousands of loyal Angelenos and their guests, the coming of the Queen's parade, a magnificent spectacular of splendor.

There it came amidst the cheering, shouting, and horn tooting of the populace, heading by Chief of Police, Glass and a company of the finest mounted police, followed by a fifty piece band, who played the march that made John Phillip Sousa famous, "The Stars and Stripes Forever".

They saw Billy Hammel, the handsome sheriff of Los Angeles County, as Grand Marshall of the parade, and his aides headed by Johnny Cline, and a group of Spanish Cabballeros in their native costumes. Then came the famous Jonathan social club, headed by Fred K. Rule, Jack Jeane, Walter Parekr and others. The California Club, the Elks and their band, and from Pasadena came the famous Americans Club, and band under the command of Major. They saw a crowd waving and cheering like the rooting section at a football game, when their majesty the Queen came in sight, bowing and smiling from left to right. The beautiful Mrs. Mark Lewis was every inch a queen. In her wake rode her maids of honor, the Misses Sarah Innis, Helen and Silas Fairchild, Bonsal, Scott and Robinson.

Then came floats decorated with fresh flowers entered by organizations and individuals. In the next section came the riding equipments of some of the most noted families of Southern California. There was Haveort Banning driving a Tally-ho with the famous Bannig Bays. Mrs. O. W. Childs, Blaisdales, Mrs. Arcade de Baker, Major H. M. Russell, John Francis, Johnny Bradbury, the Winstons, the Hellmans, Drakes, Wilcoxes, W. A. Clines, Mrs. John T. Jones, Mrs Severance, W. F. Botsford, Stimsons, and many others. They received the thrill of their lives when they saw their fellow townsmen, the one and only, Dixie Thompson, mounted on his celebrated dancing thoroughbred and sitting in that one thousand dollar silver mounted saddle. Dixie Thompson, one of the most picturesque figures in all California was one of the highlights of the Fiesta for years. They heard the blantant Chinese band and saw the sight of sights, the Chinese Dragon bobibng and weaving from one side of the street to the other, like a mighty bowing thing. It was carried by proud Chinese people, clad in grogeous costumes

At the riding clubs, the youngbloods were mounted on some of the best horse flesh in the west, and headed by one of the most daring and beautiful horsewomen of that time, Miss Goldie Maxwell, who was a splendid sight for the eyes. The Fiesta was brought to a spectacular climax Saturday night with what was called, "All fools night". The main streets downtown, especially Spring and Broadway were filled with revelers, mostly in mask. Frolick and street dancing was the vogue. When Don Carlos Machado and his party joined the milling throng in front of the hotel, they mingled with the crowds, and made a tour of the popular amusement places. Among them the Palace at First and Spring Streets, the Turnvereen Hall on Main St. and the Old Viana Gardens, at Western Ave. and Jefferson St.

The Machados of Santa Monica and all of the friends of young Don Carlos were particularly elated when the happy honeymoon party drove through the streets of Santa Monica, to Eccort and Hoffs Cafe, where they had lunch before they drove out to the Polo Games. A polo game in those days, especially in Santa Monica, was an event that attracted society from all over the states. The famous Rob. Bettiner and his equally famous poney, Cigarette, were creating one sensation after another with his brilliant game. Capt. Ward, the Britisher, was at his polo zenith, Carter of Santa Monica rode a poney he called "Business", not only a polo asset but an alibi as well.

The famous ponies of Warring of Santa Monica, and Hobart of Menlo Park were to be seen in action here.

Santa Monica and Los Angeles smart set were out in full on the day of the great game between Riverside and Santa Monica. The varid-colored gowns of the ladies assembled and made a beautiful picture against the green lawns in the background. Among the fashionable people gathering were: The Gaffeys, Jones, Carters, Bandinnes, Carrillois, Childs, Hoberts, Warrings, Bettines, Major H. M. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Tuffts, and the Suttons of Pasadena, the Bundys, Mr. and Mrs. Carter Harrison of Chicago, the Bannings, Keatings, Major Nevells, and others.

The honeymoon party spent the following day, Sunday, visiting friends and enjoying the aquatic swimming races held in front of the North Beach Bath house.

The big event of the day was the half mile sweepstakes for boys under sixteen, which was won by Leo Carrillo. They were present at the boxing contest held at Ackart and Hoffs Arena, Monday night when the hall was filled with polo and tennis devotees to see Billy Wrapp meet Niel Grimes the jockey prize fighter. Both boys were local amatures. Grimes was a fine looking chap, well made, weighing 140 pounds.

Billy Wrapp was a tough lookhombre, and was known to be a rough and tumble fighter anywhere. The bout was scheduled for ten rounds.

For five fast and furious rounds the boys gave and took on about even terms. In the beginning of the sixth, Wrapp knocked Grimes down for a count of three, Niel came right back and closed Wrapp's left eye. In the eighth with both eyes closed, Wrapp staggered into a right hand uppercut to the jaw, which put him to sleep.

The next day saw the happy party departed for home with cheers of "Adios Amigo", following them.

"NATIVE SON" ★

From the book by
RICHARD WRIGHT

"Well, to tell the truth, Mr. Max, it seems sort of natural-like, me being here facing that death chair. Now I come to think of it, it seems like something like this just had to be."

They were silent. Max stood up and sighed. Bigger watched to see what Max was thinking, but Max's face was white and blank.

"Well, Bigger," Max said. "We'll enter a plea of not guilty at the arraignment tomorrow. But when the trial comes up we'll change it to a plea of guilty and ask for mercy. They're rushing the trial; it may be held in two or three days. I'll tell the judge all I can of how you feel and why. I'll try to get him to make it life in prison. That's all I can see under the circumstances. I don't have to tell you how they feel toward you, Bigger. You're a Negro; you know. Don't hope for too much. There's an ocean of hot hate out there against you and I'm going to try to sweep some of it back. They want your life; they want revenge. They felt they had you fenced off so that you could not do what you did. Now they're mad because deep down in them they believe that they made you do it. When people feel that way, you can't reason with 'em. Then, too, a lot depends upon what judge we have. Any twelve white men in this state will have already condemned you; we can't trust a jury. Well, Bigger, I'll do the best I can."

They were silent. Max gave him another cigarette and took one for himself. Bigger watched Max's head of white hair, his long face, the deep-grey, soft, sad eyes. He felt that Max was kind, and he felt sorry for him.

"Mr. Max, if I was you I wouldn't worry none. If all folks was like you, then maybe I wouldn't be here. But you can't help that now. They going to hate you for trying to help me. I'm gone. They got me."

"Oh, they'll hate me, yes," said Max. "But I can take it. That's the difference. I'm a Jew and they hate me, but I know why and I can fight. But sometimes you can't win no matter how you fight; that is, you can't win if you haven't got time. And they're pressing us now. But you need not worry about their hating me for defending you. The fear of hate keeps many whites from trying to help you and your kind. Before I can fight your battle, I've got to fight a battle with them." Max snuffed out his cigarette. "I got too go now," Max said. He turned and faced Bigger. "Bigger, how do you feel?"

"I don't know. I'm just setting here waiting for 'em to come and tell me to walk to that chair. And I don't know if I'll be able to walk or not."

Max averted his face and opened the door. A guard came and caught Bigger by the wrist.

"I'll see you in the morning, Bigger," Max called.

Back in his cell, Bigger stood in the middle of the floor, not moving. He was not stoop-shouldered now, nor were his muscles taut. He breathed softly, wondering about the cool breath of peace that hovered in his body. It was as though he were trying to listen to the beat of his own heart. All round him was darkness and there were no sounds. He could not remember when he had felt as relaxed as this before. He had not thought of it or felt it while Max was speaking to him; it was not until after Max had gone that he discovered that he had spoken to Max as he had never spoken to anyone in his life; not even to himself. And his talking had eased from his shoulders a heavy burden. Then he was suddenly and violently angry. Max had tricked him! But no. Max had not compelled him to talk; he had talked of his own accord, prodded by excitement, by a curiosity about his own feelings. Max had only sat and listened, had only asked questions. His anger passed and fear took its place. If he were as confused as this when his time came, they really WOULD have to drag him to the chair. He had to make a decision: in order to walk to that chair he had to weave his feelings into a hard shield of either hope or hate. To fall between them would mean living and dying in a fog of fear.

He was balanced on a hair-line now, but there was no one to push him forward or backward, no one to make him feel that he had any value or worth—no one but himself. He brushed his hands across his eyes, hoping to untangle the sensations fluttering in his body. He lived in a thin, hard core of consciousness; he felt time slipping by; the darkness round him lived, breathed. And he was in the midst of it, wanting again to let his body taste of that short respite of rest he had felt after talking with Max. He sat down on the cot; he had to grasp this thing.

Why had Max asked him all those questions? He knew that Max was seeking facts to tell the judge; but in Max's asking of those questions he had felt a recognition of his life, of his feelings, of his person that he had never encountered before. What was this? Had he done wrong? Had he let himself in for another betrayal? He felt as though he had been caught off his guard. But this, this—confidence? He had no right to be proud; yet he had spoken to Max as a man who HAD something. He had told Max that he did not want religion, that he had not stayed in his place. He had no right to feel that, no right to forget that he was to die, that he was black, a murderer; he had no right to forget that, not even for a second. Yet he had.

He wondered if it were possible that after all everybody in the world felt alike? Did those who hated him have in them the same thing Max had seen in him, the thing that had made Max ask him those questions? And what motive could Max have in helping? Why would Max risk that white tide of hate to help him? For the first time in his life he had gained a pinnacle of feeling upon which he could stand and see vague relations that he had never dreamed of. If that white looming mountain of hate were not a mountain at all, but people, people like himself, and like Jan—then he was faced with a high hope the like of which he had never thought could be, and a despair the full depths of which he knew he could not stand to feel. A strong counter-emotion waxed in him, urging him, warning him to leave this newly seen and newly felt thing alone, that it would lead him to but another blind alley, to deeper hate and shame.

Yet he saw and felt but one life, and that one life was more than a sleep, a dream; life was all life had. He knew that he would not wake up some time later, after death, and sigh at how simple and foolish his dream had been. The life he saw was short and his sense of it goaded him. He was seized with a nervous eagerness. He stood up in the middle of the cell floor and tried to see himself in relation to other men, a thing he had always feared to try to do, so deeply stained was his own mind with the hate of others for him. With this new sense of the value of himself gained from Max's talk, a sense fleeting and obscure, he tried to feel that if Max had been able to see the man in him beneath those wild and cruel acts of his, acts of fear and hate and murder and flight and despair, then he TOO would hate, if HE were THEY, just as now HE was hating THEM and THEY were hating HIM. For the first time in his life he felt the ground beneath his feet, and he wanted it to stay there.

He was tired, sleepy, and feverish; but he did not want to lie down with this war raging in him. Blind impulses welled up in his body, and his intelligence sought to make them plain to his understanding by supplying images that would explain them. Why was all this hate and fear? Standing trembling in his cell, he saw a dark vast fluid image rise and float; he saw a black sprawling prison full of tiny black cells in which people lived; each cell had its stone jar of water and a crust of bread and no one could go from cell to cell and there were screams and curses and yells of suffering and nobody heard them, for the walls were thick and darkness was everywhere. Why were there so many cells in the world? But was this true? He wanted to believe, but was afraid. Dare he flatter himself that much? Would he be struck dead if he made himself the equal of others, even in fancy?

He was too weak to stand any longer. He sat again on the edge of the cot. How could he find out if this feeling of his was true, if others had it? How could one find out about life when one was about to die? Slowly he lifted his hands in the darkness and held them in mid-air, the fingers spread weakly open. If he reached out with his hands, and if his hands were electric wires, and if his heart were a battery giving life and fire to those hands, and if he reached out with his hands and touched other people, reached out through these stone walls and felt other hands connected with other hearts—if he did that, would there be a reply, a shock? Not that he wanted those hearts to turn their warmth to him; he was not wanting that much. But just to know that they were there and warm! Just that, and no more; and it would have been enough, more than enough. And in that touch, response to recognition, there would be union, identity; there would be a supporting oneness, a wholeness which had been denied him all his life.

Another impulse rose in him, born of desperate need, and his mind clothed it in an image of a strong blinding sun sending hot rays down and he was standing in the midst of a vast crowd of men, white men and black men and all men, and the sun's rays melted away the many differences, the colors, the clothes, and drew what was common and good upward toward the sun . . .

He stretched out full length upon the cot and groaned. Was he foolish in feeling this? Was it fear and weakness that made this desire come to him now that death was near? How could a notion that went so deep and caught up so much of him in one swoop of emotion be wrong? Could he trust bare, naked feeling this way? But he had; all his life he had hated on the basis of bare sensation. Why should he not accept this? Had he killed Mary and Bessie and brought sorrow to his mother and brother and sister and put himself in the shadow of the electric chair only to find out this? Had he been blind all along? But there was no way to tell now. It was too late . . .

He would not mind dying now if he could only find out what this meant, what he was in relation to all the others that lived, and the earth upon which he stood. Was there some battle everybody was fighting, and he had missed it? And if he had missed it, were not the whites to blame for it? Were they not the ones to hate even now? Maybe. But he was not interested in hating them now. He had to die. It was more important to him to find out what this new tingling, this new elation, this new excitement meant.

He felt he wanted to live now—not escape paying for his crime—but live in order to find out, to see if it were true, and to feel it more deeply; and, if he had to die, to die within it. He felt that he would have lost all if he had to die without fully feeling it, without knowing for certain. But there was no way now. It was too late . . .

He lifted his hands to his face and touched his trembling lips. Naw . . . Naw . . . He ran to the door and caught the cold steel bars in his hot hands and gripped them tightly, holding himself erect. His face rested against the bars and he felt tears roll down his cheeks. His wet lips tasted salt. He sank to his knees and sobbed: "I don't want to die . . . I don't want to die . . ."

CIVILIAN AIDE—The War Department has announced the appointment of Truman K. Gibson, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., as acting civilian aide to the Secretary of War. Mr. Gibson succeeds Judge William H. Hastie, whose resignation became effective February 1, 1943. Mr. Gibson has been serving as assistant to Judge Hastie. He was born at Atlanta Georgia, in 1912 and was graduated from the University of Chicago School of Law in 1935, being awarded a degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence. He engaged in the practice of law in Chicago until his appointment to the War Department in 1940. He served as executive director of the American Negro Exposition in Chicago until its conclusion in September, 1940.

George Farmer Exhibit at Vernon Library

Arriving just in time for Negro History Week, the George Farmer collection of ceramic sculptures, recently on view at the Hatfield Galleries in the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, may be seen at the Vernon Branch Library until March 15.

The artist is just twenty years old. He graduated one year ago from Jordan High school where he studied art with Isaac McClelland and Richard Cosgrove. Mr. McClelland, with characteristic enthusiasm for advancing all of his art students who show promise, introduced George to Prof. Glen Lukens who teaches ceramics at the University of Southern California. Mr. Cosgrove had already given George an introduction to the work in clay and it was only a matter of his taking hold of the work in a new environment to bring out the inherited capacities for art with which he has been so richly endowed.

Shortly after he began studying at USC, he went to work during the day for Jane Calendar, whose ceramic sculptures are prominent on the market for fine art ceramics. He took over the work of production in her studio, leaving Miss Calendar free time for her own creative work.

It was then that George began his own imaginative work. While he fired the kiln, mixed the clay or applied the glazes, he was always thinking of forms to create from his beloved clay. Then during lunch hour or after the day's work, he brought to life the gentle interpretations of life as it is lived in his own neighborhood.

Included in the exhibit are an old gentleman carefully guarding his pet, an inquisitive little duck . . . a man who collects scrap metal and sometimes a cart at evening with a watermelon for his kid brothers and sisters . . and an old choir master directing the young singers of the community. All these and more touched George's sensitive soul with the beauty of commonplace things which reveal to others that it's the spirit of things, not things themselves that hold the essence of art.

A short time ago George Farmer went away to war. He is in Camp Rucker, Alabama, where he is already up for promotion. Always alert to opportunity and eager to learn, he is making new discoveries and progress in the army where we often feel talent is absorbed or neglected. This young man will return with others and carry on with new vision.

The exhibit at the Vernon Branch Library, 4504 S. Central Ave., is sponsored by Prof. Lukens of USC, who feels that many young people may be inspired by it. The library is open Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, from 1 to 9 p. m.

HITS DIES' EFFORT TO DISCREDIT PICKENS

By NANNIE H. BURROUGHS

No cause in this country is soundly American unless the Negro is in it.

"The Martin Dies American Laundry Committee" met this standard requirement early in February when it selected two dyed in the wool American patriots, William Pickens and Mary McLeod Bethune, for their first 1943 public (purge) wash.

Everybody except Congressman Dies knows that both of these Americans are fast colors, that will never run. The truth of the matter is, they are sounder in their Americanism than Martin Dies is.

All of their lives, they have had to take more and got less than Congressman Dies would ever take. Both have always been uncompromising advocates of government for (all) the people, by (all) the people. Any man or woman who does not stand up for the ideals of democracy should be run out of this country.

William Pickens and Mary McLeod Bethune have spoken, written, suffered, sacrificed, lived for the application of all of our democratic ideals and promises, and no purge committee in the world will ever get our democratic ideals out of their blood. They would be unworthy of ever being trusted to raise money for the cause of freedom or to advise Negro Youth, if they do not speak out for liberty and justice for all.

The fact of the matter is that these two Americans are better known throughout the nation and have contributed more to the American way of life than the man who hails them into his court on charges of forming unholy alliances with enemies of the government. Ye gods! What next and who next?

Mr. Dies doesn't seem to know that the greatest enemies of this government are those American citizens who enact laws or block legislation to abridge or deny American citizens their Constitutional rights. If Congressman Dies is really looking for people engaged in un-American practices, he can find an army of them in his own race. They are those who have the affrontery to lift themselves above the Constitution and enact laws that make that powerful instrument null and void.

They are one of the two classes of Communists in this country--the home front Communists" who sponsor and enact discriminatory laws that will eventually undermine the democracy. The other class is the imported Communists "who seek to overthrow" the government.

If Congressman Dies' Committee cannot produce any better brand of Communists than these two Negro Americans, who have given all of their lives--right out front--teaching and proclaiming the gospel of thorough going Americanism, that Committee should be dismissed.

The huge sum of money that is spent looking for motes of disloyalty in the Negro race might bring better returns teaching "home front Communists" "the American way of life".

Surely Mr. Dies had some other motive in mind other than simply removing two distinguished Negroes out of their temporary jobs. Their reputation was made before they got the little emergency jobs. Mr. Dies' only claim to distinction is that he is Chairman of a Committee that has to "hunt" for a living. His reputation depends on what he catches.

Picking on Pickens did not prove very profitable. Negro Americans are thinking this whole Pickens fiasco through. Many questions have been raised.

1. Was Mr. Pickens made the goat to settle an old score with the battling NAACP that Mr. Pickens served with seraphic devotion for many years--the same quality of devotion that he is now giving his government?

Why didn't Mr. Dies jump on the NAACP. It is because common sense is the better part of valor. The NAACP is organized. Did the Committee decide to catch its most articulate spokesman while he is outdoors?

2. Was it a cooked up plan to hit high and try to intimidate other Negroes of less prominence?

3. Or was it to let the Negro masses know who the boss is in America?

4. Was it an effort to discredit the vaunted loyalty of the whole race--like leaders--like people?

5. Or was it a scramble to prolong the life of the "Dying Committee" and give it one more excuse for passing the hat?

Negroes are taking their citizenship seriously because they realize that they will need it more than ever for the days ahead. Congressman Dies might not know thirteen million Negroes are more aware today than they have ever been in the history of the race in America that their future, like that of all races, is being written out in this world struggle and they are going to keep up the fight for a chance to fight like all lovers of justice all over the world.

Stoning their prophets will make the price greater--but Negroes are out to pay it on all fronts.

SWING SHIFT MIDNIGHT SHOW AT LINCOLN SAT.

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH HARRY

By Harry Lavette

THIS BEING THE 64TH ANNIVERSARY edition of the Soaring Eagle, I could for about eight columns 12 point type, go back to 1925 when I first discovered California, and the Eagle and I discovered each other. I could bring back to the memories of the amusement lovers of that day, the nite spots, the vaudeville, and such few outstanding film figures as the Hollywood of that day, permitted to hit the top rungs upon which so many are comfortably roosting now. But time gallops on and there are umpteen pages yet in this mammoth edition for the printers to set, so I will save the history until the next issue or two.

But as a sample of what will be discussed: The Rosebud was the only race majority theatre on the Avenue; Madam Sul Te Wan was the leading long term contract actress; The Humming Bird and the Jazzland, leading cabarets; they ere building the Lincoln; Bill Robinson came here only on the Orpheum circuit, Chas. Butler and Jimmy Smith employed all the screen players through their 12th and Central Cinema Exchange; Carolyn Snowden was queen of the Cotton Club; all pictures were silents; Washington and Central was the dance hall; 15th and Main was next, and so on, et cetera and et cetera.

Rest assured, that beginning with Clarence Muse, who came west in 1928, the California Eagle was the first to herald the talents of the easterners to the public, the theatres and the studios, just as it did those already here, like Jas. Lowe, Noble Johnson, and others. Then as now, getting into the public eye through the race papers, attracted the attention of talent scouts, and writers on the daily papers. Members of the race, loyal to themselves, and proud to their nationality remembered those starts too.

And now for a bit of current news:

MME. SUL TE WAN, "The grand old lady of the films," will be 70 years on March 7th. She lives at 446 E. Vernon Ave. Drop by and wish her many more happy birthdays. Besides she knows a lot of interesting history, and can give good advice to young show folk.

13 Year Old Girl Reveals Fine Voice

"When the lights go on again all over the world" sung by 13-year old Marjorie Day last Sunday night at Faithful Central Baptist church, thrilled the audience as few songs can and was the best musical number of the special Americanism week program. She is a McKinley Jr. High school girl and is studying music under Mrs. Webber at Covan school of the dance. Another small girl, Mary Bowdin, rendered excellent readings of Dunbar's poems.

The program was staged by the American Anti-Prejudice Society with Mr. Leon Charles as guest speaker. Rev. C. Townsend Tucker, president of the Society was the master of ceremonies.

Barney Johnson's orchestra and Irvin C. Miller's famous Brownskin Models drew a capacity crowd last week at Pearl Harbor club, where they grossed nearlly $1,000 for one night. The crowd was so immense, patrons were in the windows, on the stairways and in all the aisles. They move from here playing a week at the Strand theater in Jacksonville, Fla., opening Feb. 28, then go as far sonth as Key West, returning the first of April.

"BATAAN" IS NEW TITLE OF ROBERT TAYLOR STARRER

Final title of M-G-M's curent film epic of the Yanks in the Phillipines will be "Bataan." The picture was formerly titeled "Bataaan Patrol" and "Bataan's Last Stand."

The photoplay stars Robert Taylor in an all-male stellar cast featuring George Murphy, Thomas Mitchell, Lloyd Nolan, Lee Bowman, Desi Aarnaz, Philip Terry, Barry Nelson, Robert walker, Tom Dugan, and Kenneth Spencer, only colored member of the cast. Tay Garnett directed. Irving Star produced.

ANCIENT FIRE WAGONS

Three ancient fire wagons of the 1850 period were rented from the Pony Express Museum for fire scenes of Paramount's 'Dixie' starring Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour. They are now museum pieces but they still operate.

Hero George Brent fights it out with Bruce Cabot during a breath-taking scene in the Harry Sherman production, "Silver Queen," which will open at the [illegible] Theatre on [illegible] thru United Artists release.

MILLER & LYLES GO BEFORE CAMERAS

Dear to the memories of at least two generations, the celebrated team of Miller & Lyles will be recreated for motion pictures this week when the team goes before the cameras in 20th Century-Fox' super-musical, "Stormy Weather."

Starring Bill Robinson and Lena Horne, and presenting in leading roles Cab Calloway, Katharine Dunham, Fats Waller, The Tramp Band and Shelton Brooks, "Stormy Weather" will show Miller & Lyles as they were at the height of their glory.

While the original Lyles died some time ago, Flournoy Miller has trained Johnnie Lee to such a faithful copy of his former partner that the resemblance amazed even Producer William LeBaron when he engaged them.

As a team the Miller & Lyles combination was one of the most irresistibly funny in the history of show business. They stopped shows in every capital of the world with their weird dialogue, all of which has been kept intact for their re-entry into the show world, via motion pictures.

BEN CARTER IN COLUMBIA COMEDY

While the public has been awaiting the release of Fox's 'Crash Dive' so they can thrill to his depiction of Pearl Harbor hero, Dorie Miller, Ben Carter has been quite busy since it was finished just before the holidays.

He has just wound up a smaller but nonetheless important role at Columbia studio in a rollicking comedy called 'Redhead From Manhattan" starring Lupe Velez with Micheal Duane her leading man. The director was Lew Landers, the cast a mixedone.

Carter's singers, managed by him as a side-line, have also been busy. His well-trained and excellent Children's Choir, has just Universal studio, while his harfinished in "School For Jail" at monious adult choar has a run in "I Dood It" starring Eleanor Powell and Red Skelton.

Another of Ben's best assignments during the past year was in Paramount's "Happy Go Lucky." One long sequence carries him through about eight amusing reels of chasing around to collect a bet from star Dick Powell. Mary Martin co-stars in this flicker.

EDWARD BAILEY FORESEES BIG YEAR FOR MUSICIANS

With a perceptible increase in the desire of the public to see as well as hear music makers, the record making controversy won on many points by president Petrillo for the musicians union, 1943 should be a good year for the musicians said Edward W. Bailey last week. Bailey is the very able president of the Musicians Local 767 with their hudred members.

According to the members themselves, the present condition of the Local's affairs and the fine organization it has become is due greatly to Bailey's wise and efficient leadership. With an eye ever for the interests of the musicians, he is in complete supervision of 767, and his record stands out unsurpassed.

Bailey declares that the public has become more music minded and that music, both for the fighting men and the workers at home, has been a great medium in carrying messages of democracy to them and urging them to do their best.

Other officers of 767 are Lloyd Reese now in the army, vice-president; Florence Cadrez, recording secretary; Paul L. Howard, financial secretary; Baron Morehead, assistant to the president, and Leonard Davidson, sergeant-at arms.

'SILVER QUEEN' ROLE PERFECT FOR BRENT

The perfect role for actor George Brent has been discovered. It's the hot-tempered, romantic ,polished, impulsive gentleman of the Seventies' which he portrays in "Silver Queen," a society drama of 1870, which is the new United Artists release coming on Saturday to the screen of the Lincoln theatre.

His ancestors, almost without exception, served with the armed forces of some country, the last two generations serving with the British Army. So it is not surprising that the actor has a powerful physique, that he is tall and straight, and that he loves dangerous sports such as polo.

The father was a fervent patriot, a newspaper editor during the Irish Revolution of 1924. George was on his father's side and was in the thick of the uprising from the very first, acting as the trusted dispatch carrier for the leader, Michael Collins.

Collins was slain and George fled Ireland for his life. But even there the English authorities found him out, so in the dead of night he left Scotland and entered England itself

In "Silver Queen," in which Brent co-stars with Priscilla Lane, he is just such a character as he played in real life in his younger days.

JOHNNIE LEE MAKES GOOD LYLES IN "STORMY WEATHER"

Dear to the memories of at least two generations, the celebrated team of Miller and Lyles will be re-created for motion pictures this week when the team goes before the comeras in 20th Century Fox' super-musical Stormy Weather.

Starring Bill Robinson and Lena Horne and presenting in leading roles Cab Calloway, Katherine Dunham, Fats Waler, the Tramp Band and Shelton Brooks, Stormy Weather will show Miller and Lyles at the heigth of their glory.

Miller has trained Johnny Lee to such a faithful copy of his former partner that the resemblance amazed even Producer William Le Baron when he engaged him.

As a team the Miller and Lyles combination was one of the most irresistibly funny in the history stopped shows in every capital of the world with their weird dialogue, all of which has been kept intact for their re-entry into the show world, via motion pictures.

HATTIE McDANIEL, famous movie and radio star, was snapped by the EAGLE cameraman standing by the fireplace in her palatial home.

HATTIE, 25 PAIRS OF SHOES, SET FOR CAMPS

No Hollywood celebrity has put his or her hard earned wages to better use than has Hattie McDaniel, in private life, Mrs. Hattie Crawford. Aside from a palatial home, with a provision-stocked air-raid shelter, large enough for several neighbor families, some substantial investments, and other rainy day securities, she has already prepared her feet for the duration. Following her intuition that some day shoes would be hard hit, she went shopping some time before the rationing and actually bought 25 pairs of shoes in varied styles.

She said, "You see, I wear out shoes rapidly tramping over the rough boards of the army camps while on entertaining trips for the servicemen and I can't be defootwear stock.

laying the war effort with the excuse "no shoes to wear." However, it's fortunate that she did, because her long personal appearance tour that starts in April will be another drain on her

Flying Cadet Courses Now Offered Here

Preparatory courses for United States Army and Navy Aviation Cadets are open to young men from the ages of 17 years and six months to 26 years inclusive, citizens of the United States, who can pass the Army or Navy Air Corps preliminary physical examination, and who passed high school algebra and geometry. In case the latter requirement has not been met special classes in algebra and geometry are given.

Previous college attendance is not required.

Classes are held nightly, Monday through Thursday, from 6:30-9:30. The Flying Cadet courses are offered at the following schools:

Central Evening High school, 451 N. Hill street; Jefferson Evening High school, 1319 E. 41st street; Huntington Park Evening High school, 6020 Miles avenue; Los Angeles Evening High school, 4600 Olympic boulevard, Manual Arts Evening High school, 4131 S. Vermont avenue; North Hollywood Evening High school, 5231 N. Colfax avenue; San Pedro Evening High school, 1001 W. 15th street; Venice Evening High school, Walgrove and Venice.

To accommodate those working on the swing shift, special Flying Cadet classes are held from 10:00 a. m. to 1:00 p. m. on the same days at Central High school, 451 N. Hill street.

These courses prepare for bombardier, navigator, and pilot training and lead to a commission as second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and ensign in the Navy Air Corps.

These courses are offered as a part of the Adult Education program of the Los Angeles City School system.

But, still unspoiled by fame and comfortable living, she said with a sly wink, "I haven't forgotten when I had only one pair of shoes, and one pair of stockings to my name."

★DOWN IN FRONT

With J. CULLEN FENTRESS

Have We A Great Miler At Last?

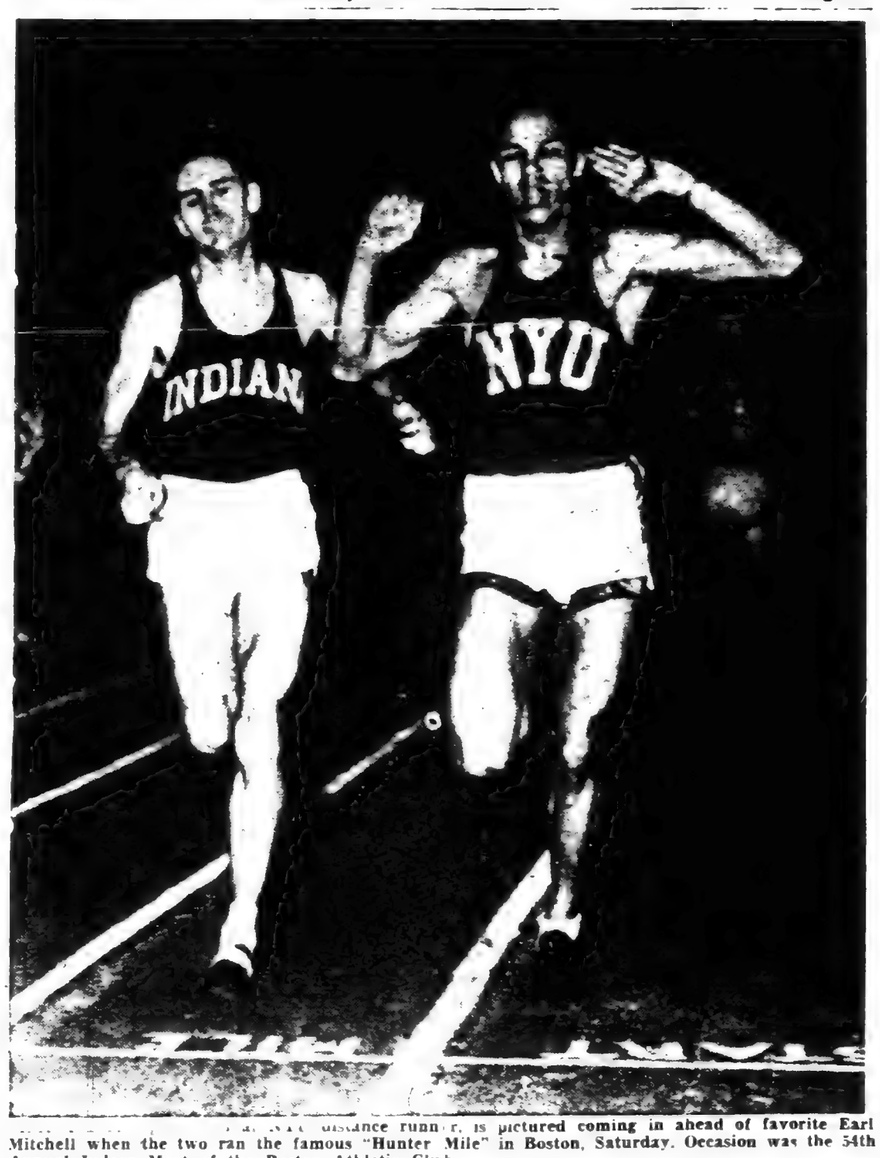
When young Frank Dixon (who is shown in another column) captured the Boston Mile a couple of weeks ago he established himself as one of America's three greatest milers. Although the Negro has produced such other greats as John Woodruff and John Borican, he had yet to come up with an outstanding miler. Dixon's time in the annual Boston A. A. event was 4:11.4, taking the measure of both Earl Mitchell of Indiana and Gilbert Dodds, the divinity student. Distance running is nothing new to Frank. He was hailed as a bright prospect back in 1938 when as a James Munroe High school (New York) star he copped several cross-country races. As a wearer of the violet of New York university he is perpetuating the athletic prowess of other Negro greats who have brought fame to that institution.

More Dope on Chase and Thomas

When young John Thomas went to the post against Willie Joyce, NBA's No. 2 lightweight, at the Olympic a few weeks ago, he carried a sore, swollen knuckle on his rapier-like left hand. This is not meant to be an alibi, for the kid doesn't need one. He put up a great battle, although a losing one. But John's left is his major weapon, and he couldn't keep Joyce off of him that night because of the handicap . . . Friday night at Hollywood Legion, state middleweight champion Jack Chase didn't look like himself against Charley Burley, Burley taking an easy decision. But there was a reason. Chase had to take off four and one-half pounds, making 155 for the bout, when he and his handlers were under the impression the weight would be 160!

Notes Picked Up Here and There

Don Barksdale, the Marin jaysee transfer at UCLA, appears to have cinched a center berth on the Bruin cage team. Saturday, UCLA scalped Stanford's Indians, 60-57, remaining in the race for the southern division, Pacific Coast conference title, and Barksdale contributed 11 points to the Bruin total, five baskets and one free throw. The Uclans go north this weekend, engaging Cal and Stanford, and return the following week for a duo with USC's Trojans.



The column always tries to buy a Knockout magazine from Speedy Dado, the former flashy Filipino bantam who hawks the mag in front of local fight clubs. Monday night he was shot, his wounds are serious. But we hope he pulls through . . . Odell Polee, the heavyweight who went East, fought in Philly, but subsequently became ill, plans to return to the ring . . . So does middleweight Bobby Birch. Both run in stern boxing company . . .

Lloyd Marshall, whom boxing critics say would be the best middleweight in the world if he fought more often, takes on Jack Chase in Portland on Mar. 12. The bout is for the coast crown. Incidentally, promoter Joe Waterman has made Portland a boxing boom town. Before the Portland engagement, Chase scraps Paul Lewis, John Henry's brother, next week in the Bay district . . . The Chase-Marshall go will be over the 12-round route. Oregon recently passed a 15-round bill, but it won't go into effect for 60 days . . .

Mike Delia, one of Tony Palazola's boys, is making a great comeback . . . A youngster to watch: Harold Dade, fresh out of the amateurs, who whipped Chester Ellis in a 10-rounder recently in San Diego. He's managed by Gus Wilson; trained by Duke Holloway . . . Jimmy Brooks has been deferred again . . . Talk of revival of the Coaches and Managers Association . . . Picks this week: Cecil Hudson over Jimmy McDaniels at Hollywood Friday night; Henry Armstrong over Willie Joyce at the Olympic Tuesday night . . . "Pic" for Mar. 2 has some interesting art on Beau Jack . . .

Broadcaster Tom Van Dycke calls to remind us that Pants Rowland, Angel baseball prexy, apparently has done nothing about Phil Wrigley's recent pronouncement against race bias . . .

And by the way, don't miss the opportunity of watching Cab Calloway's casaba artists tangle with the Tap Dancers quintet in a preliminary game to the Kappa-Y Varsity titanic Saturday night at Patriotic Hall. It should be that good!

Mitchell when the two ran the famous "Hunter Mile" in Boston, Saturday. Occasion was the 54th Annual Indoor Meet of the Boston Athletic Club.

KAPPAS, 'BAM '5' WIN; CAB'S QUINT TO PLAY

Last Saturday night before a small, but enthusiastic crowd, the Kappa frat team overpowered the 76th Chemical Army team, 44 to 33, and in the feature game of the evening, the Club Alabam Big Five continued its winning streak by downing the strong Y Varsity quintet, 35 to 28.

The soldiers put up a very good game in the preliminary, but the Kappas, with Shaw, Williams, Randolph and Brewer, had too many guns for them.

Leonard Beavers of the winners was high point man with 20 points. Hillman led the Army with 8 digits.

The result of the 'Bam Big Five-Y Varsity fracas was in doubt until the last two minutes of the game when baskets by Oliver and Underwood settled the issue.

Underwood led the victors with 12 points, while Melton and Garland, of the losers, each poured six points thru the hoops.

CAB CALLOWAY TO PLAY

This Saturday, Feb. 27, at Patriotic hall, 18th and Figueroa, the series continues with Cab Calloway, the celebrated orchestra leader, leading his basketeers into battle with the Tap Dancers, led by the Three Rockets, Sneaks, Babe Wallace and their gang.

Due to the importance of this game, the starting time will be moved up to 8 o'clock.

The second feature will find the Y Varsity opposing the Kappas, 1942 winners of the fraternity league.

The Y five figures to upset the highly favored Kappas, according to Coach Thomas.

"By this time," said the Y coach, we will have had two weeks practice and the boys will be able to play better together. So don't be surprised if the Y upsets the fraternity champs."

Dancing as usual will follow the games at Normandie hall, Normandie and Jefferson boulevard. One admission takes you in both attractions. See the best basketball players of all in Patriotic hall.

Former Jeff Grid Star on Way to Tackle Japs

Leo C. Johnson, Jefferson High school graduate and football star, cheerfully bid farewell to his many friends this week, and left for the armed forces to get a shot at the Japs.

A native of Kansas City, Leo had resided here since 1930.

While attending Jefferson, Johnson made quite a record for himself. In his three years of track, he made three letters and placed third in the city meet.

He was vice president of the 28th street Hi-Y, and president of the Lettermen's club.

The only returning letterman in his second year he was classed as Jefferson's best player of the season. A first string fullback for three years, Johnson played practically 60 minutes a game.

During most of his stay in the city, Johnson worked his way through high school while his father, a well known minister, and mother resided in Las Vegas.

Clark Hoopsters Nose Out 'Skegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Feb. 24.—Clark college of Atlanta downed Tuskegee, 49 to 43, on the Golden Quint court in Logan hall Saturday (Feb. 13) afternoon.

The Clark cagers had good eyes for the basket, sinking shots from difficult angular positions. The Golden Quintmen followed the ball closely and did some excellent passing and shooting. The score was locked several times during the game and when either team was ahead the lead was slight.

Clark widened the score during the waning minutes of the game to win by six points. Clark used 8 players, six of whom did the scoring.

Xavier U. Cagers Trip Tuskegee

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Feb. 24.—The Xavier university precision-like basketball team turned back the Golden Quint of Tuskegee Institute, 50 to 31, in Logan Hall here Friday night (Feb. 12) in one of the season's most exciting games.

Wright, Ward and Clifton of the Gold Rush team used their height to advantage in sinking their shots and in taking the ball off the backboards which they did with consistent regularity. Wright led the scoring for Xavier with 13 points; Ward followed with 12 and Clifton accounted for 11.

George, Tuskegee's fine forward, tallied 10 points. Perry, who recently returned to the line-up, was vociferously cheered when he took the floor and he was again wildly cheered when he was relieved after tossing in three baskets and a charity chance for a total of 7 points.

Brinkley, another fine player who has been out since the Tuskegee-Morehouse football game, was warmly greeted when he went into the game. He turned in an evening of aggressive play.

The Robinson brothers, George and Lloyd, accounted for three and four points, respectively. Bethel, the brilliant forward from the Blue Grass region of Kentucky; Babbs, Washington and Van Cleve figured in the Golden Quint scoring column.

780th MP Battalion Wants Baseball Equipment -- Now

By CPL. ROH E. CANADO

I am a member of the 780th Military Police Battalion, stationed at Fort Huachuca, which is the largest Negro Camp in the United States. The home of the famed "Blue Helmeted 93rd Division." The division all the Military experts have been praising so highly.

We are not directly attached to the 93rd, even though we are training here in the Fort. Our outfit is an entirely seperate unit in scope and function, and at present we are in need of baseball equipment. Suits, baseballs, gloves, masks, bats, mitts, shin guards, and breast protectors, will be greatly appreciated. Your aid in helping us to secure these pieces or any part thereof irregardless how small the contribution may be.

Incidentaly all the boys in this Battalion happens to be from California. 90 percent from Southern California, that is why we are asking Southern California firms, churches and individuals to aid us. We will appreciate it very much if you will lend us a helping hand. Hoping for an early reply.

Hank, Joyce Train for Tuesday Go

The Olympic yesterday announced another outstanding fight following the Hurricane Henry Armstrong-Willie Joyce classic next Tuesday night, Mar. 2.

Slugger White of Baltimore, recognized in Maryland as lightweight champion, meets the fast stepping John Thomas at the Olympic, Mar. 16.

White won and lost in two sensational, rip-roaring fights with Willie Joyce.

The two outstanding fights signed by Matchmaker Babe McCoy are certain to draw capacity crowds to the Grand avenue club.

TRAIN AT MAIN ST. GYM

Armstrong and Joyce are in training at the Main street gymnasium for their clash Tuesday night.

Hurricane Hank spent a week at the Murray Dude ranch near Victorville and five or six days of boxing drills will put him on edge, Manager George Moore disclosed.

Joyce, who defeated Thomas in a bitterly contested 12-round fight recently at the Olympic, put in two snappy workouts last week with Charley Burley, conqueror of Jack Chase. Manager George Trafton says Joyce was not acclimated when he met Thomas and that he will be a much sturdier and dangerous foe when he steps into the ring Tuesday night against the tireless former triple crown world boxing champion.

HANK'S 16TH

Matchmaker McCoy considers this the best match he has made for the Olympic. The reservations are coming in fast and a gate of $25,000 is predicted.

HENRY ARMS... ...G
... he's without his tonsils

It will be Armstrong's 16th fight in his current comeback campaign. Henry had his tonsils removed two weeks ago and in his last fight beat Jimmy McDaniels in a blazing 10-round fight at the Olympic. It was a furious, toe to toe exchange for 10 wild heats.

The weight for the Armstrong-Joyce natural is 145. Joyce is expected to come in around the 138 mark. Armstrong scaled 140¾ against McDaniels.

Armstrong fights Tippy Larkin in San Francisco on Mar. 8 and meets Al Tribuani Mar. 22 in a 10-round bout at Philadelphia.

McCoy has sent White the car fare and he is expected here soon to start training.

The cut over Thomas' eye has healed and John will resume training some time this week.

An attractive prelim card is being lined up under the Armstrong-Joyce fight Tuesday night.

Hudson, McDaniels at Legion

Cecil Hudson hopes to land in the win column Friday night when he boxes Jimmy McDaniels, the Watts Irishman, in the 10-round main event at Hollywood Legion stadium.

In his last appearance at Hollywood, Hudson dropped a close decision to dangerous Earl Turner of Oakland.

McDaniels, something of an in-and-outer, battled Henry Armstrong tooth and nail at the Olympic, dropping a close decision, but giving Hank the hardest fight of his comeback campaign in doing so. A few weeks later McDaniels was lucky to get a draw with Al Tribuani, of Wilmington, Del.

Race Track GOSSIP

By Jay Gould

Mr. and Mrs. Al Lewis make a swell couple.

Dicky Boy Lewis and Gladys can be seen playing the hot spots.

Vernon Long must get his money out of a pump the way he and Dolly, his wife, tossed away 7 or 8 hundred in Los Angeles in two or three days--some spenders.

Women don't come more beautiful than they are in 'Frisco.

Pigmeat, playboy, with his pockets full of money, looking for some poor people that can't get no meat, butter or coffee, saying he will look out for them.

Miss Lovey Veasley always seen around with her social friends, but still grieving over her boy friend Sergeant John H. Johnson in the army.

Harriet McGowan from Chicago taking in the night spots with Al Gibson.

Cuba is out with the gang spending money like water. What a man! Also Louie Verrett, Sgt. Stuart and Mrs. Buckner.

Kay Francis at Slim's playing with Gibson--watch out all you hep cats.

Thelma Myers, she's one fine chick. If you are lucky enough you might pick up on her at Town Club, Jack's or the Alabam.

They tell me that the Alex Dawkins are parting. She is playing with Jimmy of the Clark Hotel, where he is doing war work. Too bad. They were a lovely couple.

Mr. H. H. Crown, his wife and friends are jumping at all the clubs, Jack's Tavern or the Alabam. He just got married to Miss Morris E. Johnson from Oklahoma. He is better known as Dancing Dusty.

Hope Thornton is leaving for Los Angeles soon.

Peaches Lee with the schoolgirl complexion went to Arizona for her health. Mr. Lee is really kneeking himself out.

Charles A. Pickett leaving for the hot water next week. He is now dimming with two great friends, Jimmy Nichols and Joe Morgan.

Mrs. Lela Wilson, of the Elite Beauty Salon, 1738 Sutter St., Mrs. Marietta Graham and Wm. M. Jones of Cleveland, Ohio, were doing the high spots.

Mr. Kenney Goodman and Mrs. Gertrude Vanhook were seen going from one night spot to the other, having lots of fun and meeting new and old friends. Will soon be married.

Little Joe (from Chicago) Poston, top waiter at the Alsbam, is so-o- lonesome for his wife. Alonzo (second top,) is strictly the lover.

C. Freeman of Vallejo, Calif., and Etoi Freeman, and B. A. Marks, USN of Newport, Rhode island, out racking them up at the Town Club.

Bill Cooper and Frank Brown have opened up a Smoke Shop at 1604 Post Street. Stop in and see for yourself. There's a surprise waiting for you.

Helen Holland is visiting her sister in Portland, Oregon, and will fly back in the near future.

Joseph Byrd of Los Angeles is in San Francisco, having a swell time in and out of all the night clubs and hot spots.

Gene Herrington is back on the turf.

Vernon Love will be awful rich when he returns from his trip.

Mr. Perry H. Ford and Frank Brown were seen playing all night spots with plenty of C notes on the bar, and also Little Thuggin Brown was present.

Robert Potter, 1005 Powell, spending his dough at the Alabam.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smalley, Mr. Francisco Jeffers and Mr. Eleseo Gonzales of Los Angeles were celebrating their wedding day at Reno, Nevada, February 3, 1943, a very enjoyable afternoon.

Mrs. Inez Dawson and Mrs. Rose Bradley, all dressed up, were seen going in and out of all the night clubs.

Jesse Connoi is still the fancy man of the Bay Area and it is making Miss So-and-so treat him right as she has plenty of competition.

Henry Turner found playing hard at Jack's Tavern. Is leaving shortly to visit Los Angeles.

Katherine Gaines, 2586 Sutter, out playing hard at the Town Club.

I see the old race track is opening up and I see the old boys are waiting to lay the bank roll on the good things.

What happened to Bernice Webster and Emery Haller?

Miss Ruth Tuggle, daughter of Mrs. L. R. Tuggle of Portland, Oregon, is in 'Frisco visiting her sister, Marsha. She leaves for Los Angeles to marry Robert Steen, a tailor.

Belvin, ex-sailor and playboy of San Diego, got stung when a certain chick, C. G., got married.

Wm. H. White, bartender at Jack's Tavern, the only playboy of 'Frisco. You had better join me in a smile.

Duke Harris is now back in San Francisco, playing hard for eight days from his camp, Presidio of Monterey.

Melvin Priestly of the Kirkland hotel seen playing in Town Club.

At last the former Avenue Florist has come out of hiding and the proud daddy of a 9-pound boy, Owendell Jackman, Jr. The mother and son are doing fine in the Fowler Hospital.

Mack Pittman's trip to Los Angeles sure cost him a lot of dough and he sure has put on the brake when he came back from that trip.

Grace Leggett of Philadelphia, Pa. and Augustine King of Oakland, Calif., out playing hard, sharp as a tack with Sidney White.

To my pal, sport and good fellow, good luck, George King.

Miss Jacqueline Jacquet and Vernon Brown of Club Alabam attended the fight at Civic Auditorium. Miss Jacquet will graduate from high next month.

"Gil" (Calvin Gilbert) casually dropped in at the Bay Meadows Club looking out of the corners of his eyes at who do you think but Jack Thompson.

Mr. Jimmy Pitt has journeyed to Hot Springs to take a course of baths and he left someone lonesome. He need not worry about anything else because she is all for him, body and soul.

Mr. Wheatley Glaze, former assistant director, of Los Angeles is visiting some of the popular spots of San Francisco, now stopping at the Post Hotel, 1859 Post St.

Bee and Ovy Keeling can be seen in and out of the best places, laying their money on the line.

Gladys Cahill was spotted in the Town Club with a navy blue outfit wearing a hat big as a cash register, turned up in front, showing her pretty forehead--some girl.

Mrs. Rosetta Emby, Mrs. Freeman Colbert of 1160 8th St., Oakland, and Mrs. F. E. Ealey of 'Frisco out on a party hitting all the high spots.

Mrs. Hilda Mathis of Chicago, is visiting Miss Virginia Cameron and Mrs. Eva Kelly at 1640 Webster St., San Francisco.

Corinne Heslip, Claudius V. Bell, Robert Harris were seen at the Club Alabam, knocking themselves out.

Miss Lady Well, Floyd Ray's ace piano plucker, bumps the keys with ten fingers.

I forgot Mrs. Doris Delsa was in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grew who was a postoffice clerk in L. A., but now a longshoreman. She is a nurse, now taking all mail at the K and T, formerly owned by the Japs, now their business.

Sallie Marshall knocking herself out in the Town Club with George Palmer, believe it or not.

Cinderella Leroy, Aran Brown and Lillian Brown, his missus, all out laying it on the line.

Miss Laura Bates just returned from Pueblo, Colo., where she spent a month with her mother. It was a family reunion and her sister from Chicago, Miss Amelia Bates was also there.

Worth watching: Gorgeous Luana Edwards, popular young L. A. beauty, after skimming thru the cream of the crop of eligible males, leaving many a broken heart behind has settled down to man-about-town, Saul Reece, and 'tis rumored they will be Mr. and Mrs. come Easter morn.

Mrs. Pansy Spates and Miss Hattie McLennan were in San Francisco several days, painting the town and having some fun.

Good old America—A. V. Webster says he is glad to be back.

New York Smittie is back in town with a big bank roll and his ear full of chicks as usual.

Treasury Dept. Flag Goes to Poly

Winner of the Treasury Department's Schools at War Minuteman Flag, Polytechnic High school today flies this symbol of active participation in the war savings bonds and stamps campaign. In a ceremony witnessed by Mayor Fletcher Bowron, Miss Louise Floyd, director of Red Cross nursing in Los Angeles, Miss Juanita Mills, Red Cross publicist for L. A. and numerous other dignitaries, Mr. Avery Gray, Treasury Department liason officer for Los Angeles, made formal presentation of the flag to Student Body President Dick Bregely. The assembled ASBO Cabinet, Knights, Athenians, Aviettes of the Flying Squadron, Victory Corps Commissioners, the general student body and faculty proudly took part in the exercises.

105 Get Basic Flying Promotions

COURTLAND, Ala., Feb. 24—One hundred five members of the enlisted personnel of the Army Air Forces Basic Flying school, Courtland, Alabama, Colonel C. P. Weir, commanding, received promotions in non-commissioned grades effective the first of February; these promotions, constituting the largest list yet to be announced by the new flying school, included ten service men from the Negro Aviation Squadron.

These men from the Negro Aviation Squadron received their promotions in non-commissioned grade on the recommendation of their squadron commander; such advancements among the enlisted personnel of the Army is awarded for capable and trustworthy performance of duty.

Public Transportation Curtailment Held Likely

In accordance with a letter directive from Joseph B. Eastman, Director, Office of Defense Transportation, the Los Angeles Railway has made surveys through its research, operating, schedule and traffic departments with a view of meeting curtailment notices with the least possible inconvenience to its patrons.

The railway has filed copies of suggested plans to eliminate 10 per cent, 20 per cent and 30 per cent of its presently operated rubber-borne vehicle miles so it may be ready to cooperate instantly on any one of the plans for which it may, at any time, get telegraphic order.

The request to prepare and submit these plans, as well as to be ready to place any one of them into operation on a "moment's notice", is stated by Mr. Eastman to be for the purpose of accomplishing specific curtailment of the use and consumption of vital materials should the emergency occur.

Should the Los Angeles Railway be directed to curtail its services patrons will immediately be notified through the newspapers, on car cards and in the Weekly Topics which are distributed on the cars and coaches.

Eastside USO Center Shows Versatility

From the finding of wives, entertainment of babies, creating neighborly goodwill, to securing of symphonic records, Beethoven and Schubert, regular Group I and II, the Eastside USO is showing forth its versatility in war torn times. The most recent highlight was the Valentine party of February 12, featuring our "Good Neighbor" policy.

To the delight of the three hundred service men and hostesses present, Willie Covan's Studio of the Dance, presented twelve acts which are box office attractions in larger theatres and moving pictures. The marvelous talent of Covan's Kiddies kept the fellows in a continuous uproar; and the piece de resistance was the dancing of the maestro himself.

Special mention goes to the stage manager, Mrs. Hattie Morrison, accompanist, and Mrs. Covan. Other orchids of merit to Mrs. A. Gonzales, who was responsible for our charming Mexican entertainers.

Prior to the performance, seen decorating the YMCA gymnasium, where the entertainment was held, was versatile Bill Smallwood, Marguerite Palmer, Lucille Jenkins and Ethel Atkinson.

Each man was presented a valentine by the hostess he selected as a partner for the grand march. Frappe' punch and Valentine cookies, baked by Mrs. Ruth Kimbrough, were served during the evening.

Staff Secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Warren, has been added to the Downtown Headquarters' Publicity Office, one day each week; her first article appeared Feb. 10, in the Daily News.

The Young Women's Club of Hamilton Methodist Church, Miss Carmelita White, pres.; served as hostesses, Sunday, February 14; members lending their grace and beauty to the occasion were: Misses Alla Bullen, Nettie Gresham, Gladys Collins, Rose Van Dyke, Effie Butler, Mesdames Mattie Kees, Theresa Foster, Juanita Lloyd, Alma Tibbs, Daisy Brooks, Helen Harrision, and Trula Jueng.

Other donors were: Mr. Floyd C. Covington, Mrs. Golden Truin, Mme. Mozelle Te Outley, Mrs. Golden Irvin, Mr. Richard Brown and Mrs. Florence Carter.

Honor Farmer Who Paid Off FSA Loan Before Time

Completing payment for his farm, under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, 30 years ahead of schedule, Roddie Pridgett, Negro farmer of Rankin County, Miss., was honored by special ceremonies held at Jackson college, Jackson, Miss., Feb. 12.

First Negro farmer to complete payment for his farm under the program, Mr. Pridgett is 41 and the father of nine children. Five years ago when he and Mrs. Pridgett obtained the loan of $1495 to buy a 120 acre farm thru the U. S. Department of Agriculture's FSA, they were sharecroppers, just barely getting by.

Book Variety at Progressive Shop

This is a month full of meaning for every American, when we celebrate the birthdays of three great men in our history: Abraham Lincoln, Frederick Douglass and George Washington. It has special significance in reminding us of the role of the Negro people in the building of our democratic tradition.

Progressive Book Shop tries to make available to the people of Los Angeles the best of books and pamphlets on ALL subjects that will contribute to a greater understanding of our country's past and present, and its relation to the world we are in—an understanding so vital to the winning of the war.

'43 License Tabs, Cards May Be Late

Do not be alarmed if your 1943 vehicle license tabs and registration cards do not arrive promptly.

This admonition was given to motorists of California today by the Department of Motor Vehicles coupled with a special request that the motorists refrain from writing letters about their tabs and cards.

Director Gordon H. Garland estimated that close to a million applications were received in Sacramento alone by mail during the last ten days of the renewal season which ended February 4th. Much of this mail he said, has not been open and cannot be sorted and sent to the right bureaus for several weeks. Moreover the manufacturer of the tabs probably will not have delivered all of them until close to the end of March.

For these reasons Garland said it probably will not be possible to complete delivery of tabs and registration cards to the motorists until well into May with the limited staff the department has to process the applications.

Rationing to Be Forum Topic

"Rationing, Prices, Wages—How They Affect Us," will be the topic for discussion at the open forum to be held Sunday, Feb. 28, at 8 p. m., at the Victory Youth Center, 1546 W. Jefferson.

These and other questions so pertinent to our home front will be discussed by a representative of the OPA and other prominent speakers. Questions will be invited from the audience.

Minkel New So. California Telephone District Manager

L. E. Minkel, who has been district manager of the Southern California Telephone Company in the Wilshire and Westlake sections of Los Angeles, is the new district manager of the communications company in this sector.

Minkel succeeds H. A. Glass, who represented the company in this district for many years until his recent death from heart disease.

The new district manager is 38 years of age and has been with the company since 1929, working in the commercial department throughout his years of service. He began as a file clerk and advanced to staff assistant, instructor, and manager, besides discharging general supervision work in the commercial employment department.

Minkel was born in La Porte City, Ia., and received his education in Fort Dodge, Ia., and the University of Iowa. He came to California in 1928 as a flying cadet in the U. S. Army Air Force. He is married and the father of a boy, Lewis Steven Minkel, 18 months of age.

Invents Army Air Corps Device

Mr. V. E. Carstedt, Polytechnic High school vocational machine shop instructor has invented a two hand coordination testing device for the Army Air Corps. A realistic reproduction of the essential pedals, levers and gears found in the airplane's cockpit, this invention is one of the forty-odd credited to Mr. Carstedt.

Mrs. Minkel is a graduate of Los Angeles High School and the University of California at Los Angeles. She is active in the UC LA alumni association and is a member of the University Women's Club.

Girls Assist in Rationing

Jefferson High school girls are assisting in the issuing of Ration Book No. 2 at the elementary schools of the district. They are acting as messengers, receptionists and dispensers of information.

Among those girls are Gwendolyn Taylor, Jewel Thompson, Rosemary Robinson, Ruth McMorris, Marjorie Webb, Leola Beavers, Muriel Harris, Renita Henry, Eva Lee, Excelsa Herrera, Lorraine Rush, Gloria Rita, Loyce Coycault, Ruth Dong, Katherine Myers, Lois Mae, Annie Mae Moody, Regina Mingleton, Cora Thomas and Adrian Lawson.

$10.00 REWARD IF YOU READ THIS AND FOLLOW DIRECTIONS—NO FOOLING!

It's my birthday, but the gift is on me!

Sketched from Stock $39.95 CASH or CHARGE

★ WANTED—Good looking saleslady to work in the Gallery of the Stars. Can make $50 a week, and that ain't straw!

A good friend of mine just wrote me a 2-page letter, criticizing my writing ability. He says: "Imagine that hunk of masculinity encased in a dark shroud of lousy engraving." He was talking about my picture, of course.

You build yourself up for years and years and you are a good working kid, and you come out with something like that. Who took your picture? He says: "The ad looked like ala chicken in the inkwell, so to speak."

Well, folks, friends, and neighbors, I am just a poor kid from the farm trying to knock out a living and please believe me when I tell you that I am knocking my brains out 18 hours a day to bring you the finest clothes ever created by human beings at the prices you can afford to pay.

★ WANTED—Two full charge bookkeepers. Must know figures—and I don't mean female figures!

They have honored me by selecting me as the guy to represent the Bronson fine clothes in Southern California. Bronson clothes for Ladies and Gentlemen, or for the good folks that really know. They are priced from $250 down to $20, cash. Cash on the line before delivery.

But if you belong to the family of his majesty, the working man, your credit is good, but not for long. Four ways to pay: Cash, charge, lay-away plan, or the famous Victor easi-pay plan. It takes but 5 minutes to open a famous Victor easi-pay account, enjoyed by 100,000 people in Southern California. And for those 3 jerks that bought clothes last year and forgot to pay us, that is why they are jerks.

Tomorrow we can't give you a $10 bill with each suit you buy, or can we? We will knock $10 off the price of any man's Bronson suit priced at $20, $30, $40, $50, $60, $70, or on up to as high as you want to pay.

Now $10 ain't hay. You can take the little lady out for a swell evening at Ciro's for this kind of dough. Of course, they usually charge me more.

You will find the best in the Gallery of the Stars at the Good New Victor Clothing Company, at 214 South Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles. Two efficient style expert, union crews who will cheerfully and gladly, if you so desire, tell you just what colors and what kind of clothes are becoming to you. Do you know that the Victor Clothing Company has 3 floors to serve you?

They have fine clothes for men, women, boys, and girls, but you have to bring in that little white ticket No. 17, if you are planning to buy a pair of shoes. While we are talking about that, use your cash to buy good United States bonds, and use your credit in the Good Victor Clothing Company.

And as we are celebrating my birthday every day, tomorrow the gift is on me. I will give each one of you a nautical but nice tie, styled by Dunior, valued at $1, anywhere in these good United States gratis, that means free to you.

★ WANTED—Good collection man to remind those forgetful characters to pay us what they owe us!

And while you are at the store, why don't you look at the pictures of all the famous people of the land autographed to Leo Sunshine Fon-a-row. Oh, that is me. We have Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Jerry Colonna, Fred Allen, Red Skelton, Jack Benny, and a thousand-and-one others.

Next week we are going to play East Lynn, I mean next week we are going to show pictures of all the band leaders, starring with Tommy Dorsey, Buddy Rich, and Abe Lyman, and all the others.

Sketched from Stock $49.95 CASH or CHARGE

TOMORROW ONLY!

ALL MEN'S $40.00 BRONSON SUITS, ONLY $29.95

CASH OR CHARGE

OPEN 10 TO 6 OPEN MON. TILL 9 P.M.

I'll see you tomorrow morning at 10:00 at the Victor Clothing Company, at 214 S. Broadway in the Gallery of the Stars. Okay . . .

Pardon my Southern drawl. For your information, my name is Leo Sunshine Fon-a-row. I have been promoted to the directing manager of the Victor Clothing Company, at 214 South Broadway, in downtown Los Angeles. I am the writer, creator, sponsor, angel, ambassador of good will, for the "Hank the Night Watchman" radio show, the longest, I mean the longest radio show. 12 Mid. until 6:00 in the morning, 7 nights a week, over radio station K.G.F.J., 1230 Kilocycles. Every Sunday afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30 over radio station K.F.V.D., 1020 Kilocycles.

CROWN CITY CAPERS

By PHILIPPA E. JONES

This week I dedicate my column to our boys in the armed forces. To the boys whose mothers never thought they would learn to shoot, to defend the future of our world. To the boys whose sweethearts wait and write. To the boys who traded their suits for the army khaki and the navy blue. They're pulled our hair. They used to chase us and never want us around, but even if you are hundreds or thousands of miles away, we're sticking by you. We stuck before and we'll stick now. We're your mothers and sisters and sweethearts and believe me, we're with you.

THIS IS THE ARMY

Remember some of the first boys to go? They didn't mind it too badly, mostly it was the ones they left behind. So we'll just recall a few of them.

Jackie Robinson—He was the boy who was so good in athletics. He starred in football, track, baseball and basketball. Everyone knew Jackie was a swell guy and they still do. Now he is a lieutenant in the cavalry. Good luck, Jack.

Roscoe DeVoie—He was a swell boy who lived in Dena. When introduced in church the other day we were reminded he was the "bad little boy." But the little boy grew up and Uncle Sam sent his greetings. Now he's at Camp Lockett, Calif., doing his bit.

Walter Knott—They called him One-Eye, and he was a bit slow but he was sure. Now he's at Fort Riley and has been nicknamed "Pinky" by Joe Louis. Besides that he is playing Cupid and has got a lot of Dena girls lined up.

Abbott Jones—He was a swell guy even if he is my brother. He liked to sleep and have his rest but he did get something done. Now he's in the mechanized division of the cavalry. He was frostbitten and he thought he might lose a few fingers. But now he's well and happy. Good luck, Abbie.

Harold Wills—He tried to make every street a race track. (I wonder what he would do now with gas rationing.) He has a nice little girl friend who promises to wait for him. Now he's overseas and she's in a defense factory.

Roscoe Jones—He's my other brother. He went with Tonie for years, but when it came time for her to go to Washington, D. C., they eloped. Tonie went to Washington and Roscoe too. He got a good job but then he was drafted. He mounted fast and now he's at OCD. Write me, brother and sis-in-law.

And now we come to the younger boys. They're the ones that took us to the show and the Eminent Czars dance.

David Scott—He wasn't drafted but volunteered so he could be in the cavalry. Now he's in Fort Clark, Texas. He didn't look too different when he came back on furlough in his uniform. You see, he was in ROTC and there wasn't too much of a change. Jayne Harris was the one who cried when he left. I wonder how she feels now?

Eddie Johnson—We used to call him "Bid Eddie" and still do. He was the one who couldn't make up his mind between the "3 Gloria's." Then it was Jackie. Now he's an M. P. at Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and doing fine. Say Eddie, how's hog head?

Bernard Harris—He was the cheery soul who always used to ask, "What's buzzin' cousin?" Then—said Uncle Sam, "That's my man." So Bernard is another draftee who's in the army now. How's the basketball coming, cousin?

Rufus Blake—Well, he was known as Jaddie Black. He had a list of girls and was considered hard to get until Jessie Arnold and Uncle Sam came into his life. Well brother, was he hooked. He's now a sergeant in Mississippi and making long distance calls on the average of once a week.

Harrison Bailey—He's now at Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Ill., and planning on attending a special school. He was swell and we really do miss him. Write and let us know how everything is, Harrison.

Fred Valentine—Once they gave him the nickname of "Bribing Pete" and did it stick. He's up in Camp Stoneman in the medical detachment and doesn't mind it too much. He was down for a furlough the other Sunday and you may be sure he called on a certain Miss about whom it was reported he was engaged. But the rumor was false so you see girls, he's still in circulation.

I've given you the names and the doings of just a few of our boys. I wish I had the space to tell you about some of the others like Arthur Callier, Jonathan Moreland, Teddy Huchinson, Harold Jones, Bill Irving, Morris Buchanan, Billy Harrison, Aren Lowe, Ernie Cunningham, Karl O'Kelly and many more. But I haven't space, but remember boys, we're still waiting till you come marching home.

ATTENTION!!!

Well, here's some news from the different camps.

Fort Riley, Kansas—

The boys there at the fort have a new post exchange (PX) for the colored troopers. They call it Stable 13 because the boys bring everything in except the horses . . . Walter Knott really did enjoy his furlough here in Dena but now he's back at the Fort building "duck boards" for the boys to stand on while taking showers so they won't slip and break their necks . . . There is a little soldier in there named Fortune Sweeney who wants a Dena girl to have a little place in her heart for him . . . . Gloria and Jackie Bunch have found an awfully nice soldier who answers to the name of Maurice McLain. They like his accent if you can tell an accent by correspondence. . . . They say Francis Tanner is a walking Ceasar Romero . . . Hi ya, Paul! . . . That record I made was only a blipty . . . This columnist wants Arthur Tray to know that she's still praying, so hurry and get well . . . See ya' again sometimes, boys, keep writing.

Fort Huachuca, Arizona—

Bernard Harris was down Mexico way about two weeks ago and he really did love it. He met the fine senoritas and really came on . . . Eddie Johnson is now going into boxing and isn't doing so badly . . . Don't forget to write the boys, girls, they only want to hear from you . . . Bernard says we don't have to worry about the WAACS because they never get a chance to see them . . . Well, girls, the war should be over soon, remember when they said, "When the Ebonly Earls get in, well" Well?? . . So long, boys, write and let us know how you are.

Well, that's that if any of you other boys have any news you want printed or anything interesting at your camp. Write yours truly at 91 Pepper street, Pasadena, Calif. Come on, I'll be glad to get the news.

ON THE HOME FRONT

Remember girls, "Don't forget to write!" . . . Hear the Dena Debs had a marvelous time at their dinner the other Sundey. Have lost the details but I hear some of them attended the 331 Club afterwards and it really came on . . . Roy Stension has been drafted but will find time to go back home to Arizona before he leaves . . . Talking about draftees, the latest on the list scheduled to leave next Tuesday are J. T. Morgan, Elbie Hickambottom and Bob Brown. We'll miss you boys . . . . Johnny Burton and Ralph McAfee don't think things are catty anymore, they're doggie. Arf! Arf! (last Sunday night, boys!) . . . Hurry and pay your fee Willie because we all want to see your awards . . . I hear Billie Scott has a very nice cousin at Fort Riley. His name is Paul Lowery . . . Say Abbie dear, how's Yvette? . . . I hear Carolyn Callier is that way about Norman Baines . . . Say Johnnie, Ralph, Lora and Thelma, I'm told you had better let Hattie Williams settle her own financial business. They say the breakfast J. B. gave Sunday only came on . . . The finest song of the week: "This Will Make You Laugh" by the King Cole Trio . . . They say J. T. Brooks looks just like his uncle who slaps a mean bass for the Trio. In the way J. T.'s car is like a convertible, you can let the rain come in or keep it out . . . Joe Collins is singing, "Someone's Rocking My Dream Boat." It seems that Sunday his Pasadena crew mutinied and double dated it leaving Capt. Collins to paddle his own canoe. How about that J. A. and D. C.? . . . . Latest twosome, Johnie Mae Williams and Ezell Aldridge . . . I wonder is Jackie still keeping the "scrapbook" . . . A lot of people made plans for last Sunday but they didn't pan out. The rain stopped some of them . . . Lora Jacques is making an identification collection. She has a bracelet, one for her neck. Now all she needs is an anklet. I hope you don't get it, Lora . . . I just found out why they call Lucille H. Xmas . . . . Thelma J. still gets that old look when she hears Wimpy's name. The campus looks like the army took over when Adam Burton, Thomas Floyd, Murry Huff and M. L. Jackson come out in their uniforms . . . I think Betty Benson has the swellest personality. Well, I must close now. If you have any news, write and let me know it. Goodbye for now.

The Social Steppers gave a dinner party last Tuesday for fellow-member Robert Brooks, who leaves for the Army Friday, Febr. 26. Honor guest, Rev. Clayton Russell, was unable to be present due to illness, but Mrs. C. A. Bass also an honor guest put in an appearance. Others present were Miss Loretta White, guest of Gene Hicks (vice-president and host); Miss Geraldine Monroe, guest of Billy Shaw, (pres.); Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hicks, guest of Oliver Nickerson; Miss Vergie Donnelly and Miss Edith Taylor, guests of draftee Brooks.

Eastside AWVS Dance at March Field Scores

Sponsored by the Eastside AWVS, a dance given at March Field for men stationed there was a huge success last Friday evening. Bessie Bruington Burke, principal of Nevins School, Ethel Asbury Bell, faculty member at the same place were among the guests. Several Delta pledgees and friends of the AWVS were also in the group. Dinner was served before midnight.

The initial Sunday Vesper Hour will be held Febr. 28 at the Eastside AWVS. The hour will begin at six p.m. Judge Benjamin Schienaman, will be speaker. The Combined Choir, consisting of servicemen and AWVS members, will sing. The choir is under the direction of Earl Pleasant.

There is a Prayer Box placed at the Center in which anyone may place requests for special prayers.

Fifth Street Store Congratulates Eagle on Birthday

The Fifth Street Store, which knows a thing or two itself about observing anniversaries, occupy one of the larger niches occupied by those folk who are congratulating the California Eagle on its Special Edition.

Having used the columns of the Eagle through many years of good fellowship and mutual satisfaction, Fifth Street Store avails itself of this opportunity to again do the same extending its hand to the publisher and staff of the Eagle, in print. Warmest of wishes come from the Fifth St. Store!

Chaplain Moses Home on Leave

Chaplain Jesse D. Moses returned home last week to spend a few days with his family.

While here, the announcement of the arrival of his son, Jesse D. Moses III, was made.

Chaplain Moses, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. T. Moore, has been in the armed services for the past 9 months, and was recently promoted to the rank of captain. After his short stay, Chaplain Moses returned to his duties as regimental chaplain of an artillery unit in northern Michigan. His wife and son plan to join him in the near future.

Gold's Wishes Eagle Many More Birthdays

Gold's Furniture Store, located at Central and Washington, and itself a landmark in the community, joins the well-wishers who have warmest congratulations to offer the California Eagle on its Special Edition.

Gold's policy of service, dependability and faithfulness matches the same principles upon which the California Eagle has modeled itself through years of function. The management and staff at Gold's join hands in hope there will be many, many Special Edition to follow.

Smart Set Club to Pour Tea

The Smart Set, a club of women workers of St. Philips Church, will pour tea Sunday evening March 7 at the residence of Mrs. Horace Clark. It will be a benefit affair, with a large basket of groceries being raffled off during the tea. The hour is four 'til seven.

Kappa Mothers Club Holds Meeting

Kappa Mothers Club met last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Carolyn Moore, on E. 49th Street. Mesdames Moore and Ernestine Davidson were co-hostesses. Installation of officers was conducted by Mrs. M. Jefferson. Program was in charge of Mrs. Jessie Grayson. Mrs. Muriel Brewer was re-elected president.

Girls, does an out-dated TABOO mean you don't know this help?

Very few women cling to the old-fashioned notion that certain intimate facts form a forbidden topic of conversation. That's why many women who have suffered the cramp-like agony and nervous strain of periodic, functional distress at least know about CARDUI.

Try CARDUI, which may help in one of two ways: (1) as a tonic, it may pep up appetite, aid digestion, and thus help build up energy for the "time" to come; (2) started 3 days before the time and taken as directed, it may aid in relieving purely functional, periodic pain.

Women have praised CARDUI's help for 62 years. Try it!

Billie Hutcherson Weds Oregon Man

The many friends of Mrs. Billie Lynthecom (formerly Billie Hutcherson), are offering congratulations on learning of her marriage to Mr. Owen Lynthecom of Oregon. Mrs. Lynthecom is a member of one of Los Angeles pioneer families, the Ramseys, and attended the University of Southern California and Hunter College of New York City. Mr. Lynthecom, a native of Oregon, recently was honorably discharged from the U. S. Army. He is now employed in technical defense work.

Dr. Ruth Temple Is Named "Outstanding Woman" in Annual Zeta Phi Beta Poll

"Finer Womanhood" Week Scheduled for March 17 to 14 in Los Angeles

Dr. Ruth Temple, assistant city health officer, has been named the "Outstanding Negro Woman of L. A. in 1942" by the local chapter of Zeta Phi Beta sorority as a result of the chapter's fifth annual poll conducted through Greek letter and community organizations.

Dr. Temple was chosen for her work in public health, specifically for her achievement during 1942.

During the year she received the degree of Master of Public Health from Yale university after a year's study there. Upon her return to Los Angeles, she was appointed assistant city health officer, and is the only woman in the state to hold such a position. She is a graduate of the College of Medical Evangelists of White Memorial hospital.

Especially known to the Negro community for her work at the Temple Health institute and the Eastside clinic at 55th and Central, Dr. Temple will be honored by the Zetas during their annual "Finer Womanhood" week to be observed from Mar. 7 to 14. She will be presented the sorority's coveted bronze plaque and will be the fifth Los Angeles woman so honored.

Highlight of the week of celebration (to be considerably curtailed this year because of the war) will be a testimonial reception for the honoree on Mar. 14. Other organizations and outstanding citizens will join the sorority in paying tribute to Dr. Temple's work.

Persons formerly honored by the Zetas during their nationally observed week include Mrs. Charlotta A. Bass of the California EAGLE; Mrs. Bessie B. Burke, principal of Nevin Street school; Mrs. Betty Hill, founder of the Woman's Political Study clubs; and Mrs. Jessie Terry of the City Housing Authority.

San Diego Couple Celebrates

SAN DIEGO (By E. B. Wesley)—Mr. and Mrs. Luther Raphael, of 252 Sixteenth St., celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary with open house, Thursday, January 28. Mr. and Mrs. Raphael were the recipients of many beautiful gifts from the host of friends they have made for themselves during their long residence in San Diego. Mr. Rapheal has operated a city truck for the past twenty years, hence he is acquainted with the fast growing population of the city. Mrs. Raphael, who was in the beauty culture business for a number of years, has now retired, and assists her husband in farming, from which source the results are quite satisfying.

Their son, Robert, an exceptionally brilliant young man, is majoring in medicine at the San Diego State College. Last year he was awarded a scholarship by the Women's Civic League, of which Mrs. J. E. Craft is president.

A new club to be known as "The Silver Slipper 12", was organized at the home of Mrs. Juanita Williams of 719 So. 30th St., on February 2. Officers elected were: Mrs. Juanita Williams, president; Mrs. Epsy Graham, vice-pres., Mrs. Neomia Thompson, sec'y; Mrs. Genevieve Kent, Treas., Mrs. Manola Baker, reporter. A committee has been appointed by the president to assemble by-laws and constitutions for the club, which will be discussed at the next meeting.

JOE OLIVER TO PRESENT VICTORY TROPHY

By S. C. BOTTLER

The Egyptian Temple of Los Angeles is not a series of dreams or "visions". It is a reality--the greatest and most successful reality of a dream in the history of Shrinedom. The reason is the unstinted tirelessness of the affable and popular Joe L. Oliver, recently elected Imperial Assistant Rabaan, one of the three highest offices of the Shriners, and of course Joe's ability to gather around him men of equal interest and ability.

While in the office of Potentate of Egyptian Temple, he formed what is now acclaimed the largest and most popular class in shrine annals, the Raymond E. Jackson class. Last year, this class graduated sixty-six with Raymond E. Jackson making the trip to the Pacific Coast specifically to officiate at this unusual event. Later on, of the same year at the bi-quarterly convocation this same class graduated twenty-one, all of which can be attributed to Joe Oliver's efforts. Making a grand total of 87 in the class.

In spite of Joe's high rank, his interest in the continued progress of masonry and shrinedom have not waned and his popularity and gay spirit causes many a profane to seek entrance into these secret orders. Since Joe's visit to the Mendlik Temple at Oakland, Calif. it has taken on new life and it will soon be known as one of the top ranking Temples of the Pacific Coast.

Like Imperial Potentate Raymond S. Jackson of Buffalo, N. Y.; past Grand Master John Wesley Dobbs and Charles Quanders of Atlanta, Ga. and New York, and the grand old man of masonry Charles D. "Pop" Freeman of Washington, D. C. who for 27 years has held the all important office of Imperial Treasurer and that of Joe L. Oliver, Imperial Assistant Rabaan of Los Angeles has become synonymous wherever Shriners gather. Since the popularity of Joe Oliver is known throughout the United States it is fully predicted that he will be Imperial Potentate some day.

Highlihting the calendar of events on the Egyptian Temple agenda for the month of March will be the Public Banquet, which annually marks the date the doors of Shrinedom are thrown open to the public to feast, dine and be royally entertained by this Noble Order. This year there will be a huge Victory Trophy presented by Imperial Assistant Rabaan Joe L. Oliver to illustrious Potentate William Tatum for Egyptian Temple as the Imperial Council Victory Award for the greatest membership increase for the years 1941-42.

Dr. G. E. Haynes Guest Speaker at 8th and Towne

Dr. George E. Haynes, of New York City, executive secretary of the Race Relations Commission of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, will be the guest speaker at 8th and Towne Sunday morning at 10:45.

The famous senior choir of the church will sing "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" by Mueller, under the direction of Jester Hairston with Miss Robert V. Edwards at the organ.

At the evening service the music will be furnished by the J. E. Edwards choir, and the evening message will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. Jordan.

There are no tuition charges. ENROLL NOW! New classes are started at frequent intervals as demanded.

For information regarding any of these classes call at Central Evening High school office after 2:00 p. m. or telephone MUtual 1590.

Marcantonio Asks Broader Powers for FEPC

WASHINGTON— Congressman Vito Marcantonio, N. Y., today introduced into the House of Representatives a bill which would cloak the President's Committee On Fair Employment Practice with broad powers to stamp out discrimination in employment because of race, color, creed, religion, national origin or citizenship by any contractor or sub-contractor holding a federal government contract.

The Marcantonio Fair Employment Practice Act establishes as the public policy of the United States the repudiation and prohibition of all forms of employment discrimination by any employer furnishing or manufacturing any goods for use by any agency of the federal government.

It gives the Committee on Fair Employment Practice, created by President Roosevelt's Executive Order 8802, power to inquire fully into any alleged instance of discrimination and to issue orders to employers found guilty to cease and desist from continued violations.

The bill gives the Committee discretionary power to assess a guilty employer a fine of five hundred dollars for each day's continued violation of a cease and desist order; to order the hiring or reinstatement of a person kept from employment because of discrimination; and, to bar any contractor, who after hearing has been found guilty of unfair employment practices, from receiving any government contracts for a maximum period of three years. All orders of the Committee are made subject to review and are enforceable by the federal courts. A penal provision for persons wilfully interfering with the execution of the Act, carries a penalty of five thousand dollars fine or one year's imprisonment, or both.

Commenting on his bill Congressman Marcantonio stated, "This bill is designed to put an end to all questions as to the status and powers of the President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice. The critical need for more manpower to win the war, makes it imperative that Congress acts firmly and promptly to stop un-American discrimination against Negroes, Italians, Jews, Puerto Ricans, foreign born, aliens and other groups who are hindered from giving their full energies to war production. I shall press for speedy action on this vital war measure."

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL L. HACKETT, Sr.

"Together we stand, divided we fall, in unity there is strength"

Labor really has something to crow about. The AF of L and the CIO are at last seeing eye to eye. Both have awakened to the fact that victory in this war depends upon unity or organized labor. Realizing this the national executive bodies meeting in Washington, D. C. have agreed to unite their efforts to a common end.

To facilitate passage of much needed salary pay raises for all government employees, joint support has been pledged for two separate bills both introduced by Senator Mead. Bill S. 360, is a bill to give all postal employees a salary raise of $300 per annum and time and a half over 40 hours a week. Bill S. 635, is a bill to give all government employees a salary raise of $300 per annum and time and a half over 40 hours a week. By having two separate bills it will lessen the chance of the Comptroller General making an adverse decision.

Senator Ward introduced Bill H. R. 1727. A bill to provide payment of a war time bonus for employees of the postal service; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads. We are not backing this bill as we feel that its provisions are inadequate to meet our present needs.

Senator Vanderberg introduced Bill S. 39: A bill placing the position of postmaster in the first, second, and third class offices in the competitive classified service and for other purposes essential to the establishment of the Post Office Department on a non-political basis; to the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads.

There is a strong anti-Administration bloc in both houses so we may expect a hard fight. All locals are advised to get together and prepare their line of defense. The effects of unified action in Los Angeles on Bill S.360 has been very gratifying, so let's keep the good work up.

Seeks Answer to Meat Problem Here

Asking the help of the public in obtaining an accurate picture of the meat situation in Los Angeles, H. F. Whittle, director of the Citizen's Service Corps, yesterday said that he would welcome all information that could be supplied to him by individual consumers, small meat markets, small restaurants, or others who have to purchase their meat wherever they can find it.

Whittle was requested by the City Defense Council to delve into the muddled meat problem and see whether a clear set of facts can be brought out to place before Washington authorities as the basis for a concerted demand by Los Angeles citizens that something can be done immediately.

"In the conferences on the meat situation, ordinary citizens have not had a voice heretofore, and now we want to hear from them," Whittle said.

"Persons who have knowledge of situations in which exorbitant charges are being made for meat, or who are forced themselves to deal with the black market in order to obtain supplies to stay in business, or who know of others in such a position, are asked to write in to the Citizens Service Corps about it.

Whittle asked persons who could supply information not to call by telephone but to mail their facts in promptly to the Citizens Service Corps, at the Defense Council offices in the Los Angeles City Hall.

MILLIONS KNEW ATTACK WAS COMING

It happens every year. There's always a time when it seems like everybody has a cold . . . or nearly everybody. So it's a good time to take every precaution you can. Don't overeat, overdrink, overdo, and above all, dress warmly. And if a cold catches up with you with its sniffles, clogged nasal breathing passages and muscle aches making you feel miserable, get after them with old reliable Penetro, the powerful modern medication with a base of the same kind of old fashioned mutton suet Grandma used for her medication. For Penetro works two ways. Outside, counter irritation eases tightness of cold-tortured chest muscles. Inside, Penetro's specially medicated vapors help reduce nasal congestion, and relieve coughing. Stainless, clean, pleasant to use. Get a jar now. Generous size 25c. Double supply only 35c. Always demand Penetro.

Kin May File Tax Returns for Service Men, Women

Soldiers, sailors, marines, WAACS, WAVES, SPARS and personnel of the Merchant Marine, whose whereabouts are a military secret, may have their 1942 Federal income tax returns filed for them by their nearest of kin, according to a ruling issued today by Nat Rogan, Collector of Internal Revenue for Southern California.

ON THE SIDEWALK:

HUSH! HUSH! WHO SAYS SO?

If the Negro fails to call for help, if he fails to launch a pressure campaign when jim-crowed, fired, or prevented from just upgrading, he promptly joins in sabotage of the war effort. Remember, we no longer object simply because Negro rights are violated, but because the efficiency of our whole war production is threatened by such practices at the very moment when that production faces its greatest challenge, the invasion year of 1943.

Where would we be if the Negro community had kept quiet a year ago? What if the NAACP, the Allied Organizations Against Discrimination in Industry, the CIO Anti-Discrimination Committee and later the Negro Victory Committee had maintained a tactful silence about the exclusion of colored people from Los Angeles' war industry?

We would be in the same kitchens, boot-black stands, waiters' stalls, and chauffeurs' seats as then!

The fight against Jim-Crow and the fight for upgrading is not our fight alone. It belongs legitimately to the whole American people, for these are the fundamentals of the nation's war effort.

We will give it to them!

And to all stooges, pussyfooters, jellyfish, et cetera, let it be known that the day when Negroes may be beaten quietly, tactfully is gone for keeps!

are urged to be present."

In calling for immediate, militant action by the War Manpower Commission, Rev. Russell pointed out that "if the Los Angeles Ry. company is permitted to flaunt the President's executive order, other industries will surely follow suit, resulting in a tremendous set-back for the whole Negro people and a mortal blow to the nation's production effort."

As late as yesterday, however, the two Negro motormen in training with the firm were still at their posts. Barring no change, they should be operating street cars in the city today.

ers." Gibbs is well known in Los Angeles as Russell Bingham and was captured when he was booked on a gambling charge and his finger prints showed his true identity.

The man [illegible] was born in Elizabeth, N. J. and that he was a personal friend of Bill Bojangles Robinson and accompanied Bill when the latter played pool in various cities. He claims he was Bill's right hand man when Bill played "Money" a piano player, in some Eastern City. He asked that someone contact the dancer as he was sure he would come to his rescue.

Walter L. Gordon, Jr., Gibbs' attorney, said that there has been an indictment outstanding on Gibbs since 1924 and that Gibbs is held in Los Angeles on a fugitive warrant.

Gordon filed a Writ of Habeas Corpus which was returnable in the court room of Judge Charles W. Fricke in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County on Feb. 17, 1943, at which time the City Attorney's office representing the Chief of Police of Los Angeles told the Court that they had filed a complaint in Los Angeles and that the New Jersey authorities were on their way to Los Angeles to return Gibbs. Gordon in the interim telegraphed the Governor of California for a hearing on the extradition matter before the Governor's Los Angeles secretary before granting the New Jersey request. In a telegraph to the man's attorney, Governor Earl Warren assured Gordon that he would grant a hearing before any steps were taken.

In the meanwhile the many friends of the accused are attempting to raise funds for the accused in the event he must return to the Eastern State.

Golden State Transfers C. D. Jolly

The city of Los Angeles is [illegible] at least one [illegible] and the Golden State Mutual Life Insurance company [illegible] corps of Los Angeles District superintendents intact with the arrival of Superintendent Claude D. Jolly from San Diego.

Jolly arrived to fill a vacancy at the head of the company's district 116, created by the illness of former superintendent Cecil Davis.

A 10-year man with the Golden State Mutual organization, he has spent but a brief bit of that time in the Los Angeles City district. He started in Riverside, was in Pasadena for a time and for the past five years has been in charge of the San Diego office where he did a splendid job.

The transfer to Los Angeles is a promotion and gives the business [illegible] superintendent a chance to apply the methods in the form that brought him the company's [illegible] award for executive service to policyholders during the past year.

A middle-aged proud grandfather, whose daughter is an accomplished pianist, Jolly plans to invest his future in Los Angeles real estate, providing a home for his wife and adopted son.

San Diego's loss is Los Angeles' gain but more than the stature of C. D. Jolly must move on and up—to greater responsibilities in larger cities.

Victory Body to Fight Boilermaker Jim-Crow

—one among many—graduated as a marine machinist from the National Schools at Figueroa and Santa Barbara streets. His valuable service to the war effort is denied, in the face of a dangerous shortage in his line, by the AFL Marine Machinists, Boilermakers blood brothers, Calship management wants to hire Long. Union won't let them.

WIRE WASHINGTON

Sunday's meeting wired Washington's Fair Employment Practice Committee on the spot, also contacting the War Manpower Commission. Plans for mass distribution of petitions against the Jim-Crow union policy were mapped also.

Fighting spirit of the meeting is reflected in a random selection of quotes from various speakers.

"I don't care if I lose my job in the fight to get in the union. We've got to be full union members. I'll fight and die for that." Lockheed woman worker.

"I was horrified the other day when I heard a so-called Negro leader, as he looked at one of the Victory Committee handbills, say that he thought Negroes should keep quiet now. I felt like giving him an upper-cut."—S. P. Johnson.

"The working people of this community have the faith, determination, and fight to win this and every other battle."—Rev. Clayton D. Russell.

"We are fighting the Boilermakers' policy. Negroes are not going along with the AFL discriminatory policies. We have won great victories for the Negro people in the AFL, and we're going to win more. We are going to fight, not temporize."—John E. Hargrove, Negro AFL leader.

"I pledge my help in this fight in any way that I can serve." Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, pastor, Second Baptist Church.

"I'll die before I'll stay in that Jim-Crow union!" Negro worker, Calship yards.

"We are not going to get out of the Machinists. We're going to stay in there and fight for full participation."—Herbert Ward, leader of Lockheed Negro workers.

"This is a problem of production, of production of ships to take supplies for our boys over there. We've got to build those ships, with no Jim-Crow holding us back!"—Lou Rosser, labor leader.

"The Negro people and the progressive movement are on the march!"—Wilford Wilson, Victory Committee figure.

"I've been in the AFL labor movement for fifty years and the CIO has shown us something!"—Percy Buck, beloved veteran railroad worker.

The Homecoming of Mrs. Josephine R. Albright

A host of friends of Wendell Albright and of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Marshall of 556 North Westmoreland avenue, gathered in the Roberts Funeral Home last Saturday afternoon to bid a loving farewell to one of Los Angeles' most distinguished citizens.

Mrs. Albright passed into the beyond in the quiet, triumphant manner that bespoke her entire life. The funeral rites were such as she would have had them—impressive, sincere.

Moments of quiet appropriate music preceeded the service.

Her pastor, the Rev. E. W. Rakestraw, read favorite scripture selections of the deceased and offered a fervent invocation. Following his recital of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," Mrs. Dorothea Williamson sang "Abide With Me." During the services she rendered two other favorites of the deceased, "No Night There" and "When I've Done My Best." Mrs. W. A. Payne of El Centro announced the large number of messages and expressions of sympathy and read one, "To a Wonderful Mother," which so fittingly epitomized Mrs. Albright's life.

Resolutions from Wesley church and Sunday School were read by Mrs. Owens. Rev. J. J. Hicks, minister of youth of Wesley chapel, presented a beautiful eulogy using as his subject, "Mrs. Albright and Her Relations With Youth."

Interment in Rosedale cemetery followed the close of the services. She was carried to her last resting place by her four beloved grandsons, her Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Alphonse Murdock, and her Sunday School teacher, Mr. Lee A. Stevens.

Relatives and friends took leave of the remains there, but her work and influence will never end. Her life and work in home, church, state and school is beautifully summarized in the following obituary which was read by Mrs. Mattie Scott Nelson, and written by Prof. T. A. Greene, a life-long friend.

OBITUARY OF MRS. JOSEPHINE ROSELETT ALBRIGHT:

Mrs. Josephine Roselett Hardy Albright was born in Groveland, Massachusetts, January 16, 1851, and died in Los Angeles, California, February 11, 1943.

Mrs. Albright attended the public school of Groveland and after finishing the high school course in that city, entered the State Normal school of Albany, New York, graduating with honors. She selected as her vocation in life the profession of teaching, and taught for a number of years in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Albright, though still in her teens had a burning desire to be of the greatest possible assistance to the newly emancipated slaves and selected as the place where she felt the greatest need existed the State of Mississippi. She went South to Holly Springs in 1870 and became a member of the faculty of Mrs. Guild's school, located at Holly Springs. She labored in this post from 1870 to 1876.

The school having been closed by the Ku Klux Klan, she went then to Yazoo City, Mississippi, to teach for a short period.

In 1876 she was married to State Senator G. W. Albright, who was at that time a member of the state legislature of Mississippi. Following her marriage the couple moved from Mississippi to Illinois where their oldest son, J. LeRoy Albright, was born. Later they moved to the plains of Kansas and located near Emporia, Kansas, to engage in farming, here Crystal and Wendell were born. In 1892 the family came to California and settled in the Cohuengo Valley, now a part of Hollywood and the family residence is in the same location today.

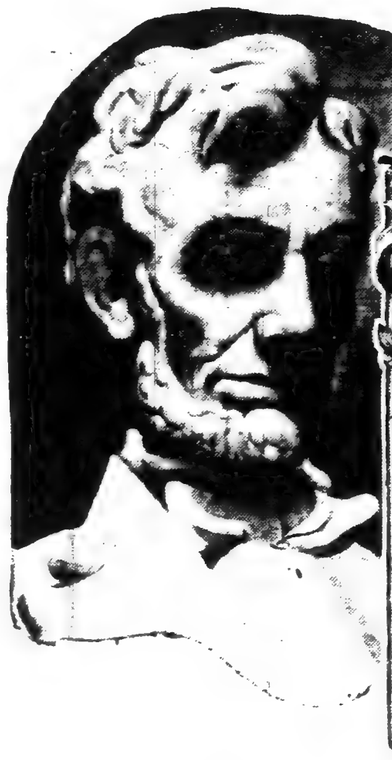
Mrs. Albright's selection of Mississippi as a place for her life's work may have been inspired by the fact that her father, a private in a Massachusetts regiment, was killed in the Battle of Vicksburg, and was buried there in the national cemetery, the largest and most beautiful in the nation. Her mother died when she was but nine years old, and she was cared for by her grandmother and other relatives.

Mrs. Albright was in the South during the Reconstruction Period and worked and counseled with such noted characters as Major John R. Lynch, Senator B. K. Bruce, Governor Alcorn, of the State of Mississippi; Colonel Chalmers and other Mississippi leaders.

Mrs. Albright never wavered from the task and the course she had set for herself in the profession of teaching, although her life work in Los Angeles was not as prominent as it had been in Massachusetts and Mississippi she remained to the list, one of the most thorough students of literature and history that has been our pleasure to know. She was well informed in the latest technique in pedagogy as she was with difficult problems she faced in her educational work in Mississippi.

One of the last things she said to her daughter, Crystal, before lapsing into a coma, was that she had a great deal of reading that she hoped to catch up with.

Mrs. Albright led an exemplary Christian life throughout her many years of usefulness. The part of church work which appealed to her most was the work of the church school. Here she was found through the years every Sunday morning unless unavoidably detained. After she passed the age of 87 the Sunday School began celebrating her birthday as one of the outstanding features on their year's calendar. Her last birthday, because of her illness, had to be celebrated by the class at her home.



Mrs. Albright was a great lover of people and flowers. She had the tact of winning many friends and the good fortune of never losing one.

Her nurse, her physician, her undertaker and her neighbors were all folks she had known and associated with for a period of 20 to 40 years.

Chrystal and Wendell never failed their mother at any time. No duty, social or otherwise, had their attention until mother was provided with all the comforts she desired. And they have had their reward by being blessed with the privilege of having their mother with them for so long a while.

One of the most remarkable, unassuming and lovable persons of Los Angeles, has answered the final call and gone to her merited reward. She leaves to mourn her passing two children, six grandchildren, one daughter-in-law and one son-in-law.

HERE WAS A MAN TO BE RECKONED WITH!

Humble and peace loving by nature, he had ideals and the courage of his convictions to the point where no effort was too great—no fight too engulfing—to keep democracy strong. Today, on his birthday — we may well emulate Abraham Lincoln's spirit, and give proof of our determination by adding to our purchases of War Bonds and Stamps!

WAS GRANDMA RIGHT ABOUT THESE COLD FACTS?
For colds' coughing, to reduce sniffling nasal congestion, chest muscle soreness pioneer Grandma put faith in home medicated mutton suet and hot flannel. Today mothers use Penetro—the excellent modern medication with the mutton suet base. Penetro works two ways. First of all-
THE WAR EFFORT

In times like these the effort to win the war comes first. We must all be willing to accept, and expect, unavoidable inconveniences as part of our share of the work.

To provide the best possible transportation service to the workers who build the materiel for the fighting fronts we have found it necessary to confine operations to essential services which, in some cases, has caused some annoyances, which we sincerely regret.

We ask you to co-operate by walking instead of riding when the trips are short, by postponing your trips, when possible, so as not to conflict with peak loads and by being a bit lenient if you are inconvenienced by schedule delays or lack of a seat.

Just smile and buy another bond.

DOUGLASS SAW CLEARLY HOW NEGRO - AMERICA MUST FIGHT

understanding of the Civil War as a crusade of liberation flowed the mighty blows he struck for the Nation and for freedom.

Lincoln said, "We must save the Union."

Douglass proclaimed, "Without freedom for the slaves, the Union is lost." He wrote, "From the first I reproached the North that they fought the rebels with only one hand, when they might strike with two—that they fought with their soft white hand, while they kept their black iron hand chained and helpless behind them—that they fought the effect, while they protected the cause and that the union cause would never prosper till the war assumed an Anti-Slavery attitude, and the Negro was enlisted on the loyal side."

To the Negroes who thought the conflict "a white man's war," he urged "fly to arms, and smite with death that power which holds out to us nothing bitu letf ... arthe art ... ing but fetters, chains, auction-frons, and eternal slavery and degradation."

Following victory of the North, Douglass continued the struggle. Though freed, the slaves were without land or the vote and the situation ripe for the former slave-holders to climb back to power over the backs of disfranchised, landless Negroes and poor whites. "My people have still a cause," shouted Douglass as he locked horns with the tool of the former masters, President Andrew Johnson. The vote! The vote! He demanded.

Adding to the might of the Radical Republicans, Sumner, Stevens, and others, he was in the forefront of those who secured for Negro America the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments.

GAIN INSPIRATION TODAY

As we of this generation face the titanic decisions of a world split on the issues which once cleaved America—slavery vs. freedom—Douglass' teachings are a rich, living heritage.

First, we learn from him to judge the nature of this war by the nature of the forces contending for mastery of the world. Which today holds out to us "fetters, auction-blocks, and eternal degredation?" Which today would establish government on the basis of slavery as a social good?

Second, that in supporting the war we must struggle for the adoption of those policies which alone can assure its success. For 2-years of the Civil War, the North steered away from the question of emancipation. Today the Poll Tax is yet undestroyed, a millstone found the neck of the nation's war effort. Jim Crow and industrial discrimination are tangled webs about the feet of victory. Fight them valiantly, Douglass counsels across the years.

Third, the struggle of the Negro for freedom is indissolubly linked with the progress of democracy for all groups in the nation and the world. The Four Freedoms as a political system are indivisible. Just as the nation in the days of Douglass could exist no longer half slave and half free, so it is with the whole world today.

This means the alliance of the Negro people with all democratic, win-the-war forces, labor, the Administration, the whole anti-fascist nation. Thus, all these mighty elements are mobilized for the demands of Negro liberation because that liberation, in factory, field and fortress, is a precondition for victory.

Fourth, that defeatists, white and black, must be vigorously battled. He percieved the rottenness of phoney militance which would sabotage freedom in the name of freedom. To the Negro defeatists of 1943, Douglass' voice booms its stout challenge:

"There are weak and cowardly men in all nations. We have them amongst us. They tell you this is the 'White Man's War;' that you 'will be no better off after than before the war;' that the getting of you into the Army is to 'sacrifice you on the first opportunity.' Believe them not; cowards themselves, they do not wish to have their cowardice shamed by your brave example. Leave them to their timidity, or to whatever motive may hold them back!"

By Bureau of Public Relations, U. S. War Dept., Wash., D. C.

'Call to Arms,' Famous Speech By Douglass

war, and she has undertaken to do it. So quickly and help fill up the first colored regiment from the North. I am authorized to assure you that you will receive the same wages, the same rations, the same equipments, the same protection, the same treatment, and the same bounty, secured to white soldiers. You will be led by able and skillful officers, men who will take especial pride in your efficiency and success. They will be quick to accord to you all the honor you shall merit by your valor, and to see that your rights and feelings are respected by other soldiers. I have assured myself on these points, and can speak with authority.

More than twenty years of unswerving devotion to our common cause may give me some humble claim to be trusted at this momentous crisis. I will not argue. To do so implies hesitation and doubt, and you do not hesitate. You do not doubt. The day dawns; the morning star is bright upon the horizon! The iron gate of our prison stands half open. One gallant rush from the North will fling it wide open, while four millions of our brothers and sisters shall march out into liberty. The chance is now given you to end in a day the bondage of centuries, and to rise in one bound from social degradation to the place of common equality with all other varieties of men.

Remember Denmark Vesey of Charleston; remember Nathan Turner of South Hampton; remember Shields Green and Copeland, who followed noble John Brown, and fell as glorious martyrs for the cause of the slave. Remember that in a contest with oppression, the Almighty has no attribute which can take sides with the oppressors.

The case is before you. This is our golden opportunity. Let us accept it, and forever wipe out the dark reproaches unsparingly hurled against us by our enemies. Let us win for ourselves the gratitude of our country, and the best blessings of our posterity through all time. The nucleus of this first regiment is now in camp at Readville, a short distance from Boston. I will undertake to forward to Boston all persons adjudged fit to be mustered into the regiment, who shall apply to me at any time within the next two weeks.

HIDDEN STORY OF THAD STEVENS, GREAT FIGHTER FOR FREEDOM

South if the plantation owners were not to steal back into power: there must be full democratic rights for the masses, complete democracy for the Negro people, disfranchisement of leading Confederates, division of the great estates among the titters of the soil.

In 1865, Lincoln had been assassinated, the assassination a carefully matured plot of Southern slaveholders and Northern Copperheads. In the presidential chair sat a new found friend of the Bourbons, Andrew Johnson.

The President's first step was to grant amnesty and pardon to almost all Confederates, with restoration of all rights of property except in slaves. But this meant to restore to the plantation owners their vast lands. Some of these lands had already been divided among the freedmen, who had been to work the fields, had instituted a system of schools and self government. Once in possession of the plantations, the former slave-owners would find ways to restore slavery in all but name.

THE LAND-DIVISION BILL

Stevens was realist enough to know that civil and political rights meant little without jobs, land, bread and shelter. He introduced into Congress in March 1867, a bill to consficate the great landed estates of the leading Confederates and divide them among the titters of the soil. Each freedman would receive forty acres and $50 for a homestead. Holdings under two hundred acres would remain untouched.

"It is revolutionary, they say," remarked Stevens in explaining his land-division scheme to a meeting in Lancaster. "This plan would no doubt, work a radical reorganization in Southern institutions, habits and manners. It is intended to revolutionize their principles and feelings. This may start feeble minds and shake weak nerves. So do all great improvements in the political and moral world. . . ."

Stevens' whole life was a resolute and unwavering crusade for democracy. With monotonous uniformity historians have called him fanatic. One of Stevens' own statements is the answer to that charge: "There can be no fanaticism, however high the enthusiasm, however warm the zeal, in the cause of rational, universal liberty."

In an impromptu speech to his Lancaster constituents, in the fall of 1866, the Great Commoner summed up his life's aim: "The Goddess of Liberty is represented in ancient statues as a very nice little goddess, but very small. I want her to grow—to put on the habiliments of mature age—until she can embrace within her folds every nation and every tribe and every human being with- God's canopy."

ROLE OF NEGRO IN WAR-TIME LABOR IS GREAT CHALLENGE

ment Service, Military authorities and Manpower Commission, this policy of the company has been changed. There are now 200 Negro women in production lines at the oGodyear plant at present.

The CIO Longshoremen in San Pedro exposed and threatened to expell two longshoremen who walked off a ship because Negro workers came to work on it. There are now over 250 Negro longshoremen on the San Pedro waterfront and many have been brought into the union.

These three cases are just some of the highlights of the CIO activities in carrying out its pledge made at the State Convention.

The CIO has not only taken up the problems of the Negro in industry, but has concerned itself with the general community problems of the Negro people.

In the hall of congress, the most powerful lobbyist for the passage of the anti-poll tax bill was the representative of the millions of workers organized into the CIO.

The CIO stands as part of those progressive organizations that are fighting against the appeasement policies of the southern poll tax senators who are out to oppress the Negro people, smash labor and sabotage the war.

In Los Angeles, the CIO Council has inaugurated a rogram to secure child care for the Eastside community. They have conducted an individual survey in order to estalish the need for nurseries in the community and are now cooperating with community organizations to further the work and bring before the school board the necessity of establishing much needed child care centers on the eastside.

The Negro worker in industry der a great and historic service today has the opportunity to rento his people. If he will become a part of the American Labor Movement. As a National Representative of the CIO, my experience has been that where the Ne become aggressive and enthusiasgro workers join the union and tic members, it has resulted in the Negro workers bettering their conditions of work and economic standards. But even more and just as important where Negro workers join the union movement and become active in its work and deliberations, they ar helping to bring to the support of the Negro people the strength and backing of the millions of organized workers.

Men's Day at Second AME a Success

In spite of the weather conditions on Sunday last, Men's Day went over with remarkable success.

The message in the morning was delivered by Rev. J. J. Hicks who really and truly carried his audience to sublime heights. There was an appreciable gathering of worshippers.

The music for the day was under the direction of L. G. Eggleson and the men's chorus of 50 voices did themselves glory in their singing. Mr. Willis presided at the piano.

The speakers at the forum in the afternoon included Assemblyman Augutus Hawkins and Councilman Charles A. Allyn, both of whom presented the proposed program for the post-war period.

The evening hour brought a very inspiring message from the lips of the Rev. Conquest. The financial returns of the day were satisfactory, along with four accessions to the church and 20 new members to the Alien Endeavor league.

The pastor, Rev. J. B. Isaacs, will deliver the morning sermon on Sunday next, speaking on the subject, "Nearness to Things versus Nearness to Goo."

Miss Ella Mae Crosland will present the secoond in the series of twilight musicals at 5 p. m., which will be followed by a worship service conducted by the pastor on the theme, "Great By Service."

You are cordially invited to worship at Second church on Sunday next.

Olympia Council to Meet

The report of the nominating committee will be given by the parliamentarian, Mrs. Charles Ernest at the board meeting of Olympia Council, March 1, at 10:30 a. m. at Horace Mann Jr. High School.

Plans for the annual Tenth District music scholarship tea will be discussed by Mrs. Milton Transchel and reports will be given by Mrs. Essie Walker, health chairman and by Mrs. C. W. Slingerland, magazine chairman.

A Quotation to Remember . . .

The ant who has toiled and dragged a crumb to his nest will furiously defend the fruit of his labor against whatever robber assails him. So plain that the most dumb and stupid slave that ever toiled for a master does constantly know that he is wronged. So plain that no one, high or low, ever does mistake it, except in a plainly selfish way; for although volume upon volume is written to prove slavery a very good thing, we never hear of the man who wishes to take the good of it by being a slave himself.—Abraham Lincoln.

ISSUE CALL TO CONFAB TO ABOLISH POLL TAX

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 24.—A call to a National Conference to Abolish the Poll Tax to be held in Washington, D. C., Mar. 9 and 10, was issued by the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax.

Expressions of support for the conference have been received from hundreds of organizations throughout the country.

Speakers to appear are A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; Nathan Cowan, legislative representative of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; Walter White of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Viena Johnson, secretary of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor association; Russell Saville, legislative representative of the Townsend Plan, and Congressman Baldwin, sponsor of an anti-poll tax bill, H. R. 987, which has received the support of the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax.

LUCKY MILLINDER

INKSPOTS, MILLINDER, SISTER THARPE IN NEW VOD-SHOW

NEW YORK—Impresario Moe Gale announced today that his triple treat vaudeville unit, Inkspots, Lucky Millinder Orchestra and Sister Tharpe, which have been blasting theatre records from Brooklyn to Birmingham, will embark on a series of one-night stands throughout the South, Southwest and Mid-west sometime in May, performing in the larger Civic Auditoriums as a double diversion--a vaudeville show and dance.

This tour of Civic Auditoriums will be the first of its kind ever attempted--for never in ballroom and theatre history has a complete big-name vaudeville show been presented in an auditorium and climaxed by two hours of dancing to its widely known orchestra.

In addition to the famed Inkspots, Lucky Millinder and Sister Tharpe, the de-luxe vaudeville program will include the one-legged dancing dervish, "Peg Leg" Bates, zany comics, Gordon and Rogers, and the compelling voice of Trevor Bacon.

Promoters who have been contacted on this May project are rushing in the necessary alterations on their local auditoriums in order to successfully house the huge crowds expected to take advantage of this unprecedented two treats for the price of one program--a tribute to the sagacity of show-wise Moe Gale who has thrown economy to the winds in order to insure the success of this new producing venture. To enhance the event Lucky Millinder has added the famous saxophonist soloist, Tab Smith, to his already outstanding fifteen-piece orchestra.

Farm Youths Join in 4-H Mobilization Fete

Negro farm youth, numbering nearly 200,000 are joining in 4-H Mobilization Week to help reach the 1943 Food-For-Freedom goals, according to an announcement made Monday by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. February 6-14, designated National 4-H Mobilization Week, follows "M-Day" for all farmers by less than a month.

Spurred on by a letter from President Roosevelt, the one and one-half million farm boys and girls, white and colored, in 4-H Clubs will pledge themselves in their 4-H projects to produce more meat, milk, eggs, war crops and do other jobs to help win the war. These youngsters, club by club, will make a determined drive to get a million new members by asking all Farm boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 to join them in this effort.

STAFF SGT. LENA HORNE REPORTING

It's Staff Sergeant Lena Horne, now.

Enchanted by her voice and charms during a recent visit she made to entertain them, between shots of 20th Century-Fox' "Stormy Weather" in which she stars opposite Bill Robinson, the 29th Quartermaster Truck Regiment this week sent her the following citation:

"Special Order, No. 21. Upon request of the Enlisted Personnel and the Commanding Officer, the following assignment and appointment in Company F, 29th Quartermaster Truck Regiment, is announced: TO BE HONORARY MEMBER AND STAFF SERGEANT: Miss Lena Horne, 20th Century-Fox Studio, Hollywood, Calif.

Burglary Suspect May Call Self 'A Real Unlucky Man'

Emmet Luster, 1425 East 14th Street who has been held to answer on a charge of burglary and must face trial in the Superior Court, may call himself a real unlucky man.

On parole from the State Prison at Huntsville, Texas where he had served a portion of a term imposed in the District Court of Harris County, Texas, Luster had applied for a pardon and was awaiting word from the Governor of Texas. The pardon came, however, but alas when it arrived Luster was in the toils of the law in Los Angeles.

Police charge that he broke into a cafe on January 13th and looted the cash register and juke box of their contents. When he was arraigned last Monday morning he was flanked by his Attorney Curtis C. Taylor who entered a plea of not guilty and the trial was set down by Judge Fricke for March 2nd in Dept. 42.

In the meantime, the long arm of Uncle Sam has reached out and demanded Luster's induction into the Army. His Attorney is now working over-time in order to secure an induction in the armed forces for his client and hoping that in some way his release may be secured before his trial comes up. If this can be done Luster will not be so unlucky after all.

WAR ON NEGRO
TRUTH: For 323 years a war of prejudice, discrimination, lynching and abuses has been waged against us. I began to fight this battle when I discovered that I was a 'made fool.' Mark you, not a fool but a 'made one', like many intellectuals.
Thinking people are asking: What are we—Negroes, olored People or what? What is a NEGRO? No educator has ever given a satisfactory answer. They haven't the courage. The truth has never been told. Why is NEGRO the most disputed name? Because the truth is not known. Truth is The Basis Of Education. I went to a university; spent 5 years in law school in Boston, became counsellor in public schools. Worked in educational sociology at New York University.
After 15 years' investigation, study and research, I found the facts, the history, the truth about the race.
With my discovery, I made money, and gained world respect.
It can do the same for you. I have compiled it in the great book: "HUMAN SIDE OF PEOPLE." 399 pages, 84 pictures by myself, Raphael P. Powell. The demand for this book by thousands proves that it shows the way o success and is helping to win the war against race prejudice. Price $3. Send orders to: PHILEMON CO., 224 West 135th St., New York City, GUARANTEED: The only book which gives the TRUTH about our race.

Kenny Washington Traps Murderer Into Confession

Washington Nabs Suspect in Knife Murder

Scoring another of many arrests he has made since he graduated from Police school in April of last year, Kenny Washington, former Bruin football star arrested David Moseley last week. He is charged with the stabbing to death of Jacob Shaftoe with a butcher knife during a drinking party at Moseley's home, 4181 Dorsey street.

Shaftoe, who was an employee of one of the big defense plants, had visited the Mosely residence next door at their invitation.

As the party wore on, Shaftoe became involved in an argument with Bernice Braxton, a roomer. He allegedly attempted to hit her with a whiskey bottle and Mosely started shoving him out of the door.

Suddenly Shaftoe cried out that he had been stabbed and

The Nation is engaged in a just and mighty conflict to decide the issue of freedom or slavery in the world.

We are opposed by the hosts of evil throughout the globe and within our own national ranks.

This understanding of the nature of the war is fundamental to a correct attitude concerning labor and the Negro people today.

The thirteen million American Negroes, along with all Americans, are needed if victory is to be gained. Our hands on the plow of America, our hands on the assembly lines of America, our hands on the muskets of America, and our hearts in the cause of America.

We are the last great reservoir of industrial labor open to the war industries of the country.

We are an agricultural people, eight million strong, whose farm produce may win the battle of food.

In both instances, as industrial workers nd farm labor, the contribution of the Negro is seriously encumbered by the existence of special discrimina- and persecution on the basis of race.

This discrimination, disrupting the entire national war effort, proceeds logically from those forces which are opposed to winning the war.

Perhaps it is difficult for us, as average, patriotic citizens, to believe that Americans would consciously plot against the survival of our nation. But we have the word of the President of the United States that such forces exist. If these traitorous elements are today operating in the interests of our enemies, where are they and who are they?

The small fry of the Fifth Column are well known. They are a noisy lunatic fringe of the national life. They are Father Coughlin, Gerald L. K. Smith, Richard Franklin, and others of that ilk. But our real enemies are the hidden fascists who snipe at the war effort from the loftiest rungs of our social and economic ladder.

The American people must know that the last session of the National Association of Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, fiery New York City Councilman and pastor of the world's largest Protestant church, will climax a two-day conference of Negro organizations, trade unions, religious groups and oth.. bodies here Sunday, March 14, at Philharmonic auditorium, it was announced today by the Negro Victory Committee.

Invitations to speak at the meeting have also been extended E. Stanley Jones, distinguished liberal church figure and Paul Robeson, world-famed singing star now on the West Coast.

Dr. Powell has achieved national recognition in the past few years as pastor of Abyssinia Baptist church; with a membership of 9000, organizer of cooperative insurance and consumers bodies, editor of the hard-hitting New York newspaper, The People's Voice, and as the first and only Negro member of the New York City Council. He has emerged as a national leader of militant, win-the-war Negro America.

A week later, March 21, Dr. Powell will speak at Second Bap-

WMC ACTS ON LARY'S DEMOTION OF WORKERS

Prompt action by the War Manpower Commission here this week followed the Los Angeles Railway Company's demotion of all upgraded Negro workers and refusal to permit trained Negro conductors on the city's rail-lines despite earlier pledges to abide by President Roosevelt's Executive Order 8802, and refusal to permit trained Negro conductors on the city's rail lines. A meeting has been scheduled for Friday in the WMC offices of Southern California director Bert Harnish to which Mayor Fletcher Bowron, Board of Supervisors Chairman Gordon L. McDonough, AFL chief, C. J. Haggerty, CIO's fighting Slim Connelly, Los Angeles Railway Co. officials, Street Railway union spokesmen, Thomas L. Griffith, Jr. of the NAACP and Rev. Clayton D. Russell of the Negro Victory Committee have been invited.

Although the Los Angeles Railway company, union officials, and the chairman of the Fair Employment Practice Committee in Washington had signed the President's Executive Order 8802 and had promised the end of discriminatory practices by the firm, upgraded Negro workers were demoted and plans for Negro conductors on the rail lines abandoned last week when 80 white workers at the South Park LARY garage quite work for an hour and a half, protesting the promotion of a Negro car cleaner to a carpenter's helper.

Company officials promptly recognized the workers' beef, took the Negro off his job and downgraded all Negroes promoted at LARY in the last month; and called off plans for employing Negro conductors, motormen and conductorettes.

Charges levelled by the Negro Victory Committee indicated that the workers had been agitated by company spokesmen and it was flatly stated that Joe Spearing, company foreman at the South Park yard, had circulated among white workers asking what they would do about having "to work with 'niggers'."

A petition against the upgraded Negro was signed by workers at the suggestion of the yard's Assistant Superintendent.

Street Railway Employees union has cooperated throughout the fight to secure upgrading of Negro workers and promptly condemned action of the workers who quit on the

Marcantonio Renews Poll Tax Fight

NEW YORK—In a radio speech over the National Broadcasting system today, Representative Vito Marcantonio of New York announced his intention to file a discharge petition on his anti-poll tax bill (HR 7) on Friday, March 5, thus initiating again this year the fight to secure the signatures of 218 members of Congress to a discharge petition on anti-poll tax legislation which will guarantee a vote in the House.

Last year a similar petition was signed by the requisite number of Representatives, and anti-poll tax legislation was adopted in the House, only to be killed by a filibuster in the United States Senate.

Lashing out against the control of national legislation by Congressmen and Senators from poll tax states, the New York Congressman declared: "Each week has brought one or more action on the part of the House and the Senate which has been the negation of the things for which Americans are fighting and dying."

He charged the poll-taxers with

ROBERT FOLKES SAYS "I DIDN'T DO IT"

PORTLAND (Ore.)—"I did not do it. I can prove it when I come to trial."

This was the statement of Robert Folkes, Negro cook on the Southern Pacific railway lines, accused of the 'Berth 13' murder of a pretty young matron.

Indicted for first degree murder by the Portland Grand Jury, Folkes still stountly maintains his innocence.

Negro organizations, it is rumored, will come to his defense.

GANDHI'S FAST PUTS UNITED STATES ON SPOT IN INDIA CRISIS

400,000,000 Allies to United Nations Risked in Tory Policy

By R. LAL SINGH

Editor India News, Member Indian National Congress

Precious time has elapsed since the failure of the Cripps Mission. The Government of India, controlled by the Colonial Tories has withdrawn itself from the people of India and has, by its failure to reopen negotiations with imprisoned leaders of the people, spread disunity throughout the land. A century and three-quarters of resentment has now turned to sordid bitterness. Where there should be unity of purpose, there has developed national frustration--a fertile condition for Axis anti-Allied propaganda.

The precondition of any United Nations offensive in the whole of Asia should be:

1. The total mobilization of all available native manpower, and
2. The total utilization of all native resources in order to best meet the requirements of global strategy.

We must adapt our thinking and plan our action in such a way as would overcome the many handicaps which if not eradicated must without doubt extend the war and the cost of the war in terms of men and resources.

The central demand of the Indian National Congress at New Delhi was for a National Government. The Congress, represent-

Hawkins to Lead Oakland Civil Rights Mass Meet

OAKLAND—Los Angeles' dynamic Negro Assemblyman Augustus Hawkins will lead a gigantic mass meeting sponsored by the United Organizations Committee on Civil Rights of Oakland Sunday, March 7, 1943 at the Beth Eden Baptist Church, 10th and Magnolia Sts.

The meeting will take the form of a panel discussion of the important Civil Rights bills that will be introduced by Assemblyman Hawkins when the Legislature convene on March the 8th at the State Capitol. The chairman of the meeting will be Mrs. Alvessie Hackshaw,, Industrial Secretary of the YWCA. Members of the panel are all important personages in the East Bay. They are: Att'y George Vaughns, Jeff Beavers, Roy Nichols, Marcella Ford and Attorney Thomas L. Berkley.

The introduction of these bills will cause much discussion pro and con in the Legislature and among labor groups and industrial groups. It is important that the Negro understand these bills and have an intelligent approach to their importance and disirability. It shall be the purpose of the panel from the audience and in this way it is hoped that any question in the minds of those present wil be answered.

As Chairman of the powerful Labor and Capital Committee in the Legislature, Assemblyman Hawkins is in a position to bring a stirring message. One based in facts. The United Organizations Committee on Civil Rights is composed of the following organizations. The YMCA, YWCA, the NAACP Youth Council, the NAACP Sr. group, the Boilermakers Union Local A-26, the Dining Car Cooks and Waiters Local No. 456 and the United Transport Service Employees of America. Admission is free.

NEW YORKERS DON'T SEE RAPPED MGM FILM, 'TENNESSEE JOHNSON'

Astor Theatre Loses Money Showing Widely Protested M-G-M Picture

By JOHN KINLOCH

New York City's movie-goers turned thumbs down on M-G-M's mighty distortion of American history, "Tennessee Johnson," at the exclusive Astor theatre, it was learned here today. The house, which usually nets $25,000 per week during the run of a major feature, sunk to a lowly $9,000 while "Tennessee Johnson" held forth from its screens.

This is a hearty demonstration of our people's refusal to be taken in by this reactionary, anti-Negro picture, denounced by progressive organizations and trade unions from coast to coast. The film-goers also indicate a disposition against being bored to death.

"Tennessee Johnson" was given a special preview community figures at the Lincoln Theatre here last Saturday. A letter of condemnation from this group is being distributed throughout the nation.

Purportedly the story of the administration of President Andrew Johnson, successor to Abraham Lincoln and betrayer of the Civil War, the film glorifies the appeasers of the slave-holders rebellion, men who made a peace after the Civil War which almost re-established the Confederacy, returning to it vast pre-war political power, its entire landed estates, and its code of white supremacy.

More than any man in American history, Andrew Johnson is responsible for the poll tax South of today. His sabotage of the land re-division bills, which would have divided the great plantations among common people, black and white, marked the death blow to the full emancipation of Negro American and the Sputh.

As President, Johnson vetoed every measure to extend civil rights to Negroes on the grounds

HEALTH IN WARTIME MASS MEET TOPIC AT FIRST AME HERE SUNDAY

Protecting Health in Wartime is the subject eminent health authorities will discuss at the Fifth Annual Community Health Meeting, Sunday afternoon, March 7, at the First AME church, according to an announcement by Norman O. Houston, Chairman, Advisory Committee, East Area Health Program, who will preside at the session.

The program, as completed recently by the committee, calls for round table talks on the following related topics. Houston disclosed: "Emergency Care" by W. Roderick Brown, M. D., Alexander, Arkansas; "Maternal Health", by William D. Giles, D. D. S., Chicago. Representing the Medical Association will be E. I. Robinson, M. D., Los Angeles, President elect, National Medical Association. Dr. Ruth Temple, Assistant Health Officer, Los Angeles City Health Department, will tell of the responsibility of the Health Department in the war health program, and Dr. H. H. Allen, Los Angeles, will speak on behalf of the general practitioner. Chairman of the panel will be Dr. Henry A. McPherson, president of the Southern California Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association.

"Following custom, the Advisory Committee this year has reserved a place of honor on the program for the Los Angeles chapter, National Association of Colored Graduate Nurses. Mrs. Ferrol Bobo Connor, president, will represent that organization", Houston said. "Last year it was the Outdoor Life and Health Association that received this honor", he added.

The McKinley Junior High School Glee Club and the Senior Choir of First AME Church will provide music for the occasion. Ushers will be members of Jefferson High School Nurses' Aide Victory Corps.

The session, slated for 3:30 p. m., is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. It is sponsored by the East Area Health Program of the Los Angeles Tuberculosis and Health Association, and the Southern California Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association.

CONGRESS GETS 'FAIR EMPLOYMENT' MEASURE

NNC PLEDGES SUPPORT TO MARCANTONIO FEPC BILL

NEW YORK—The National Negro Congress, in a letter to Congressman Vito Marcantonio, pledged its support to the "Fair Employment Practice Act," H. R. 1732, a bill introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman Marcantonio calling for an end of "discrimination in employment because of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, or citizenship." Over the signature of Dr. Max Yergan, President of the Congress, the letter pledged "to work for the mobilization of all Americans regardless of race in a campaign designed to assure the passage of the Bill in the present session of the Congress.

"We are confident that Negro Americans will hail this courageous action on your part as indicative of the real sentiments of the American people, and will also realize that such pro-fascists as Dies and Cox will never succeed in their diabolical schemes."

"The Fair Employment Practice Act (H. R. 1732) outlines a comprehersive policy on discrimination for the government in Section One of the Bill as follows:

"The practice of some employers in denying employment opportunities to and in discriminating in employment against persons because of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, or citizenship is obnoxious to the fundamental democratic principle of equal opportunity for all, denies basic civil rights and liberties to large sections of the population, is destructive of workers' morale, impairs national unity, and wastes essential manpower."

"It is hereby declared to be the policy of the United States to repudiate and prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, or citizenship by employers engaged in the manufacture or furnishing of materials, supplies, articles, equipment, or services to or for the use of the United States or any agency or instrumentality thereof."

Hold Shower for Mrs. Gertrude Wiggins

A miscellaneous shower was held recently at the residence of Mrs. Gertrude Wiggins, 594 W. Washington, Pasadena, honoring Mrs. Frances Howard, bridetobe. The table was impressively laid with lace, gleaming silverware, calla lilies and red candles and a large red heart in pink and white chinaware. Ladies who poured tea were Mmes. Erma Harris of L. A., Susie Sheridan and Augusta Horn.

Later, Mrs. Howard opened her gifts, many of which were beautiful and serviceable. Mrs. Horn read an article which stressed our women who are doing things and Mrs. Howard was mentioned as one. The article was dated 25 years back and definitely proved she has been active and progressive in her life. Mrs. Enola L. Chinn brought the article from her scrapbook. Pasadena friends of Mrs. Howard are sorry to lose her.

Mrs. Mary B. Hagan of the Red Cross Unit which Mrs. Howard also worked with, presented her with a requisition for her uniform and pin. Mrs. Lillian Overr is chairman. The presentation took place at the Wigins shower.

Guests were Mrs. Erma Harris, Mrs. Enola Chism, Mrs. Anna Baptiste, Edna Banks, Hattie Keys, Bertie Brown, Lyda Wilkins, Susie Sheridan, Lovia Kennedy, Mattie Smith, Carrie G. Cedric, Gertrude Wigins, Fannie Proctor, Augusta Horn, Lillian Overr, Elizabeth Nichols, Zeltah Anderson, Bertha Jackson, Sarah Avery, Mollie Lawson.

Miss Louise Jones, 1138 E. 22nd street, was called to Phoenix, Ariz., to the bedside of her mother who is very ill.

Delta Sorors to Honor Lieut.

The women of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority are busy with plans to honor its soror, Lieut. Elizabeth (Kewpie) Hampton, who is to arrive home on active military duty Saturday a. m. with only less than 48 hours to spend with family and friends.

The entertainment planned for the young officer by her sorors, will take the form of a breakfast at the Good Templars Hall, 1225 W. Jefferson blvd., on Sunday morning(March 7, at 9 o'clock, at which her sorors and friends will be given an opportunity to greet Lieut. Hampton and wish her God speed in the noble service in which she is engaged.

While in training she has been greatly missed in the social, civic religious and cultural circles in which she was always so interested and active.

Boyle Heights Bridge Holds Annual Dance

The Sixteen Heighters Bridge club, held its annual Introductory Dance Saturday, Feb. 27, at the Masonic Hall, surrounded by a host of friends and associates.

The dance was a huge success and was enjoyed by all.

Willie Covan was emcee and George Brown's band played.

The girls of the club were attired in stunning white formals with beautiful red and white corsages, while the men wore tails with white boutonnierres.

Hello gates, here we are back again after our lengthy absence. We feel that this growing little section of L. A. warrants more attention, so here we are back to stay—I hope.

Don't forget hte boys in the Army! Their biggest event is letter time!

Logrand Mason, manager of the 'Blazes,' after a lengthy engagement at the Florentine Gardens, is now appearing nitely at the Swing Club.

Johnnie Brooks and Jack Campbell are still waiting for an answer from 'Uncle.' I've got my fingers crossed, boys.

To list some of the Boys now in the service: "Bootsie" Parrish, Coast Guard; Arthur Bruce, 318th Air Squadron; Kenneth Wilson, Coast Guard; Albert Rhinehart, Harold Rhinehart, Willie Moore, Army; Luther Scott, England; Tim Jordan, Cavalry; Alonzo Bridges, Air Corps.

My apologies if I haven't included all draftees.

Independent Church has Music Treat

Major Laurenson, in cooperation with the Independent department of music, presents the U. S. Military Police Battalion Male chorus in concert Sunday evening, March 7, at 7:00 p. m. in the main auditorium of the church. An hour of good music will be presented. Your attendance will be an encouragement to these young men of our armed forces. At the 11:00 p. m. Worship period, the Cathedral choir, under the direction of Albert McNeil, will prelude the Lenten season with the singing of the "First Word" from Dubois' Seven Last Words of Christ. Earl Johnson, Jr., J. D. Davis and Margaret Chapman, will be soloists. Holy Communion will be given in sacred Communion meditation.

The guest soloist for the morning will be Virginia Paris, mezzo-soprano of Va. State college.

★ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Mrs. Bass:

Although I happen to have been born "white", I take the California Eagle and consider it the best newspaper published in Los Angeles.

I was sad after reading the interview with Mr. Deaderick F. Jenkins. I, for one, am an advocate of complete equality, political, industrial and social, for ALL people. Character, not color, features nor background--is what counts with me. I have many friends who feel as I do. We firmly held those convictions before the war too and always will.

In a way, I cannot blame Mr. Jenkins for thinking of all white people as not interested in democracy, but I believe he really knows that is not true. When he allows himself to say those things, is he not drawing lines where they should not be drawn?

We should not allow true believers in true democracy to get separated and weakened. We are fighting one enemy whether manifested in Nazi Germany, Georgia, Texas or Hollywood. The victory you want is the same victory I want. Neither democracy nor fascism is a matter of color.

I am sending Mr. Jenkins a dollar for a copy of his book, "It Was Not My World."

Yours for freedom and friendship,

Sadie R. Dawson

Golden State Closes Its Greatest Year

The 18th Financial Statement and Report of Golden State Mutual Life Insurance Company discloses that the Company has experienced its most profitable year. This report is in reality a tribute to the Negro insuring public which has made possible this outstanding achievement.

As usual the statement is printed in as simplified form as possible, with each set of figures carrying an explanation that the average reader can understand.

The statement shows to which heights the insurance company has climbed, its strength, durability and future possibilities. Its possibilities and length of climb can best be understood however, by examining the "Message To Policyholders" of William Nickerson, Jr., President of the Golden State Mutual Company, parts of which we quote--Says Mr. Nickerson:

"You will note that after supplying policyholders' reserves of $505,506 and maintaiannig other necessary reserves for taxes, commissions, dividends of interest and other items, the unassigned funds, representing surplus to policyholders, was $331,977.24."

"At the end of 1925, we had an income of $34,131.60, with assets of $19,113.01. In 1942, the premium income was $593,035.59, with assets of $897,510.45. In 1925 we had nothing to sell but a hope. However, early in the history of the Company we adopted the slogan, "What we promise, we pay." We promised to furnish a mortgage loan service. In 1925 we had but a little with which to pay, but we paid in direct proportions the sums due according to such promises made. Since that time, what benefits we promised we paid, whether those benefits were in the form of life losses, health and accident losses, interest on Un or dividends on policies. So in keeping with this slogan, from that time until now, the amount paid to policyholders rose to $1,377,278.50, and the amount paid in interest and dividends has increased to $63,575.82. The volume of mortgages rose to $207,440.76."

In his message Mr. Nickerson tells how the keeping faith in the slogan "What we promise, we pay", proved to be the company's greatest selling assest, of the large purchases of government bonds and the addition of a new building to house the Los Angeles District office. He predicted other enlargements would be necessary before long.

Commenting on the effect of the war, Mr. Nickerson declared, "Despite the loss of many of our key mer and many agents to the United States Army, and many other agents entering war work, your Company showed greater gains and grea gains and greater strength at any time during its existence. This is direct evidence that the public is recognizing more and more, the basic soundness of life insurance."

"The financial position of your company and the broad service that it renders is due entirely to the loyalty of its policyholders, the untiring efforts of its directors, the cooperation of its staff of agents, superintendents and supervisors on the field, and the energetic cooperation of its office forces, wherever situated."

The annual statement will be found displayed elsewhere in this publication.

Frisco Writer Smacks Boilermaker Jim-Crow

'FRISCO'S JIM CROW BOILERMAKERS UNION ASSAILED

W. J. Wheaton Blames Pseudo, Self-Appointed Leaders for Race's Predicament

By W. J. WHEATON

Why is it that there is, always some pseudo, self-appointed racial leader that is willing at all times to barter his birthright for the mess of pottage.

Those stooges who listen to the siren call of the segregation Lorilei, and raise higher barriers which the minority groups are trying to lower or erase entirely. We have been informed that here in San Francisco there has been organized a separate branch of the Boilermakers Union. Just why this should be is enigmatic. From what we can learn an application was made for membership in that union (the Boilermakers) by several Negroes. It is said that there is a clause in the constitution which bars men of color. But in order to keep within bounds of the fair employment order of the President it was voted to allow the Negroes to form a branch.

Now: If those "Aryan" boilermakers refuse a membership in their ranks and ban the Negroes from consultation in their meetings, how on earth do those Negroes expect to work beside them at the trade? Any one with the perspective of a two-year old child could answer that: There will be no jobs for Negro men of that trade as long as there is a white man on the waiting list, and from what we can learn of the membership list, there are plenty white members.

But all that one has to do, and that is realized by the suave organizer, is to offer some incentive and the bait is swallowed, hook, sinker, and often the line. The most loquacious of the stooges is picked for the job of organization and his incentive is to gain something for himself.

There are two lines from Byrorn that come to us. "We will not strike for PRIVATE wrongs alone; such are selfish passions."

The one reason why many fight shy of many who would lead us is that there is so much chicanery and selfness that we look askance when asked to support some plan for racial welfare. It pays and pays well to look well to the background of the promoter. And doesn't it seem ironic when we are fighting for economic equality that the very things for which we fight to eliminate are either knowingly or ignorant of facts, sponsored by such men as are organizing "Jim-Crow" unions.

When we are struggling for an equal citizenship it would be well, even if we have to sabotage or pettison a desire for personal gain, to make the Four Freedoms a fact indeed. We make a big noise about residence segregation, or a refusal, because of race, at some theatre or restaurant, and yet we condone the effort to segregate us from the most vital of all—the right to work.

It does appear to us that it would have been better to have fought the racial clause in the union than to have made an abject surrender of those rights guaranteed under the Constitution, "the right of an untrammeled citizenship. How much greater a respect for those rights would have been, and we might say, how much greater the respect for those individuals would have been had they sternly refused to accept the offer of segregation.

If they had with intelligence fought for the right that has been guaranteed through edict of the President, laid aside their desire for personal preferment and gain, at the expense of their fellows, the Boilermakers Union would have to have made acknowledgement of the manliness of the Negro which would have done much to obliterate and eradiate the antagonism of race and color.

Yet that is just one example of the inability of the majority of our men who aspire to leadership. That is why we espouse the leadership of our women. You never could catch one of them bartering the welfare of the race for self aggrandizement. Ever since the days of Harriet Tubman, Sojourner Truth up to the present they have proved valorous and undaunted. The women have ever shown the willingness to sacrifice for the ideals which they espouse, and they demonstrate factual exhibitions of those ideals. We are more convinced than ever that it is to the women of the race that we must look for the consummation of our racial welfare.

Man Held on Assault Charge

Next Door Neighbor Says Accused Man Cut Him; He Denies It

Booker T. Straungh, 920 E. Adams Blvd. has been held to answer on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon preferred by John Johnson his next door neighbor and an employee of the City of Los Angeles. Johnson claims that on Feb. 7th in an argument over a door key he was viciously assaulted and cut severely about the arms and shoulders by Straungh.

The accused man however, denies the charges and has retained Attorney Curtis C. Taylor as defense counsel. He states that he only used the knife in self-defense after he had been assaulted by Johnson who was in a drunken rage and was highly intoxicated after having imbibed a large quantity of wine.

Straungh also said that Johnson came to the preliminary with his arm in a bandage as though he could not use it, but that after the preliminary was over the arm bandage was discarded and the alleged wounded man drove his car away as if nothing was wrong with him. Attorney Taylor drew from two of the prosecution witnesses an admission that Straungh was seen to stagger from a vicious blow struck by Johnson before the cutting began. The defendant and his Attorney were ordered to appear in Dept. 43 on March 4th for plea. In the meantime he has been released on $500 bail. He is a defense worker.

Urge Passage of Anti-Poll Tax Bill H.R. 7

NEW YORK — Stressing the war urgency of legislation to abolish poll taxes, and urging maximum unity in the campaign to pass such legislation, the Executive Committee of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties last night recommended passage of the Marcantonio Anti-Poll Tax Bill, HR 7.

According to the Federation, passage of anti-poll tax legislation would:

. . . "lead to the enfranchising of 10 million Americans"

. . . "increase confidence and wholehearted participation in the war effort of countless people in the United States and throughout the United Nations"

. . . "be a major check to the anti-democratic, anti-administration forces headed by the Southern Bourbon bloc in Congress".

Anti-poll tax bills have been introduced in this session of Congress by Congressmen Marcantonio, Baldwin, Gavagan, Bender and Magnuson, the Federation stated.

The statement warned that "Because poll tax Congressmen control the Judiciary Committee to which this legislation has to be referred, these bills will be held in committee without action. The only way to bring such legislation to the floor of the House is through a discharge petition signed by 218 Congressmen. It will require a vigorous national campaign to obtain these signatures. To succeed, such a national campaign must have behind it the solid unity of all organizations and individuals who seek the abolition of the poll tax."

"In recommending support of Conressman Marcantonio's anti-poll tax bill we wish to point out that it is of the greatest importance to achieve maximum unity in the campaign to pass anti-poll tax legislation around that bill which will receive widest and most active support, and most vigorous action in the House. We hope that the Conference to Abolish the Poll Tax scheduled to meet in Washington on March 9th and 10th will consider favorably our recommendation in support of HR 7. We hope that at the Conference all pro-war Congressmen regardless of party who have introduced anti-poll tax legislation will be actively drawn into the campaign to pass such legislation in this session of Congress."

Brotherhood Week Observed

Music of many lands by artists of various nations and races was presented Sunday night in a concert at Beth Sholom Temple in observance of National Brotherhood Week, the period between Lincoln and Washington's birthdays, designated by President Roosevelt as a time for the consideration of the contributions made to civilization and culture by all peoples of the world.

Local artists presented were Edna Rosalyne Heard, composer and dramatic soprano, whose California. Other artists presentvoice has placed her among outstanding singers of Southern and were Ruth Malkowitz, lyric soprano and Roberta Sachs, actress and dramatic reader.

MASS MEET TO FOLLOW CONFERENCE SESSIONS

The March 14 Philharmonic mass meeting will follow an all-day Saturday conference of Negro bodies, trade unions and progressive organizations at Second Baptist church, to establish city-wide unity behind a neffective program to bolster Los Angeles' war production through plugging up manpower leakages caused by racial discrimination.

Fortified by the recent significant statement of the planning bureau of the War Manpower Commission in Washington, "The nation's manpower needs for 1943 cannot be met unless job discrimination against Negroes, women and other available workers is eliminated," the delegates, five from each participating organization, will hack out a program for full concentration upon sore spots of discrimination in local war industry.

TO HIT BOILERMAKERS

Set for a major attack is the AFL Boilermakers union, which holds closed shop agreements with Calship yards, Consolidated ship yards and the Western Pipe and Steel Company, but limits production through maintaining Jim Crow unions which fail to protect Negro workers' upgrading rights.

Means will be devised to support militantly the stand of Lodge 727 of the International Association of Machinists at Lockheed aircraft company where the local union has asked its national Grand Lodge for a referendum on the question of Negro participation. Negroes may not join the union because of constitutional restrictions.

Policies of racial segregation, discrimination and unfairness at North American Aircraft company will be blasted and a firm program to combat them outlined with the United Auto Workers CIO union, which holds a contract there.

The Los Angeles Railway company, which 'welched' on its promise to obey President Roosevelt's Executive Order 8802, will be the center of further discussion, planning and attack.

A major concentration of the delegates will be upon ways and means of bringing together white and Negro churches of the city around a Production for Victory program.

All delegates will be special guests at the Philharmonic auditorium mass meeting at which Dr. Powell will speak.

There will be no admission.

SCMWA Backs The Eagle

We are only too glad to herewith add the fact, unfortunately omitted from the Industrial Union Council greetings on the CIO page in the Special Edition last week, there was a $25.00 contribution made by SCMWA.

The union has long given splendid support to the Eagle pledge of all-out cooperation in union matters. The Eagle is proud to number SCMWA among its friends.

Mrs. Frank Casmon Returns to City

Mrs. Frank Casmon of 1431 W. 37th place returned to the city on Saturday, Feb. 20, after 10 months of visiting relatives and friends in the East where many social courtesies were extended her.

Mrs. Casmon visited New York City, New Jersey, Washington, D. C. and many other cities of interest. While in New York, Mrs. Casmon was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Joiner and Dr. and Mrs. Binga Dismond, the former Cora Campbell of Los Angeles. Her last stop was Lexington, Mo., and after a three weeks illness she was able to return home reporting a marvelous vacation.

Henry Strickland Is Host

Henry Strickland was host to a number of friends at his home, Sunday evening, following the Anderson concert. Buffet was served later. Talented guests made up an impromptu program. Mrs. Pauline Stokely assisted as did Walter Gregory.

FORT SILL, OKLA.—When Sgt. Joe Louis Barrows, Fort Riley, Kans., boxing instructor, came to Lawton, Okla., he helped the Colored USO Club celebrate its first anniversary. He visited Fort Sill and gave Pvt. Billy Tiger, Oklahoma Golden Gloves lightweight titlist, a few tips on proper ring technique.

St. Paul Baptist Church Marches on Under Banner of the Holy Ghost

Rev. George Garner recently appointed Special Asst. Pastor of St. Paul Baptist church, will preach Sunday, March 7 in the evening service, on the subject "The Necessity of Regeneration." Rev. Garner, a new addition to the ministerial staff, will, in view of his worth as a business man of no mean ability, be assigned the duties of financial officer, and we predict for him a great future as a minister.

Pastor S. A. Williams will preach a demonstrative sermon at the 11:00 a. m. service Sunday. Do not fail to avail yourself of this wonderful opportunity to see and hear this marvelous demonstration, divinely inspired and actuated in the life of a man of God.

Last Sunday, Feb. 28, was another great day in St. Paul, at the 11:00 a. m. services there were algre numbers of worshippers in both churches and they were spiritually uplifted by the profound promulgation of the gospel by two young preachers, one in each church. The evening service was equally inspiring, under the preaching of two other young preachers.

There were several accessions and the financial offerings were big for the day.

Mortgage Burning

A cordial welcome is extended to the public to attend the Mortgage Burning of Ward Chapel AME church, 1250 E. 25th street, March 7, at 7:30 p. m. Bishop Noah D. Williams of the Fifth Episcopal District, is expected to be among the guests present.

2 Defense Workers Held

Willie Robinson, 118 Gary St., and Tyree Madison, 1615 Essex St., both defense workers, employed at the California Shipyard, have been held to answer to the Superior Court on a charge of robbery preferred by Guy Domino, (white), also a defense worker who complained to police that on the night of Feb. 6th the two men set upon and beat him severely and took his watch after a collision near 118th St. and Central Ave. at which time his car ran into a car operated by the two defendants.

At the preliminary hearing which was held last Monday afternoon, both men refused to take the stand on the advice of their Attorney, Curtis C. Taylor. However, Attorney Taylor cross-examined all of the prosecution witnesses very severely and drew from them all an admission that after the accident the complaining witness, his wife and two other girls who were in the party all got into Madison's car and smoked cigarettes and talked friendly until a motorist who was passing by consented to take Madison and Domino to the Watts police station for the purpose of making a report.

They also admitted that Madison accompanied Domino to the station and at that time Domino made no complaint about having been robbed. After he had returned from the station however, he went to 77th St. Police Station and told the officers that the two men had taken his watch and beat him up very badly. He showed no scars of a beating however, according to the testimony of witnesses at the preliminary hearing.

Attorney Taylor expresses complete confidence in an acquittal when the matter comes up for trial. In the meantime both men have been released on bail and ordered to appear in Dept. 43 for plea on March 4th.

job and requested a strong move by the War Manpower Commission.

Friday's War Manpower Commission conference with the Mayor and other listed dignitaries will mark history in the fight to secure 100 per cent efficiency in transportation of war workers and in the battle for Negro rights.

WMC boss Harnish arranged for the Friday meeting following action of a delegation from the Negro Victory Committee headed by Rev. J. Raymond Henderson, with members including Rev. Russell, Rev. F. D. Jordan, Bishop Noah D. Williams, Charlotta A. Bass of the EAGLE, William Pollard, James Anderson, AFL and Lou Rosser of the CIO. This group will return to Harnish' office Friday with the addition of progressive Rev. S. A. Williams of St. Paul Baptist church.

Atty. T. L. Griffith, NAACP prexy, was held in court, unable to attend. It was Griffith's fighting address at the Victory Committee's Thursday night meeting of the L. A. Railway workers that struck the keynote of unity in the demand for action against employers who violate Executive Order 8802. Urging that cases be taken directly to court, failing other action, Griffith told the Victory committee, "We gladly join with you in this work. The problems of our community are far too big for any one organization. It is our joint, militant action which will bring victory!"

Griffith is expected to be one of the key speakers Friday.

fell. James Alexander and Leonard Mosely took the injured man back in the house, but he died where he lay on the couch before the ambulance from Newton station arrived.

When Washington arrived in answer to the call, he questioned Mosely so closely that he finally admitted that he had stabbed Shaftoe but denied knowing where the weapon was. After a diligent search, Washington found it outside in the yard. The accused was booked on a charge of suspicion of murder.

Also in the home at the time of the killing were Lucien and Margaret Luke of 5445 Staunton avenue. Margaret is a sister of David.

Mrs. Bilbrew on Lecture Tour

Mrs. A. C. Bilbrew, who is on a lecture tour in the South, has been appearing in concert and directing plays in Houston, Tex.

Last Sunday she delivered an inspiring talk before a large interracial audience at the Mexican Baptist Church. Mrs. Bilbrew spoke on unity of peoples of America. She will continue her tour soon, being slated to appear in many Southern colleges and churches.

These Questions may decide what laxative to give your child

Ques. Is it true that children take more readily to a child's laxative? Ans. Yes, that's generally so. Ques. What do you mean by a "child's laxative?" Ans. A laxative like Syrup of Black-Draught, designed especially for a child's needs and tastes. Ques. Does Syrup of Black-Draught contain the same laxative-ingredient as reliable old Black Draught? Yes, in a form most children find pleasant to take.

Your children should like Syrup of Black-Draught. Follow label directions. The big 50c btotle contains more than three times as much as the old trial size.

I know now I lived a century ago
For a tom-tom beats in my heart
When night brings Africa to my door . . .

As I sat listening to Marian Anderson Sunday afternoon and lled to watch her make that regal bow, arms filled with reddest oses and most graceful of bird-of-paradise (unusual bouquet!), ruck me how great a privilege it is to even be in the same room h her! . . . how fortunate for us to live in the same age with immortality . . . few individuals inspire me as does Anderson It is of interest, too, to note her curtailment of added concerts, ush of people at receptions, etc. and unnecessary getting-about. has had a concert season which would stagger an ordinary art-

I'm quite sure.

hether she comes and stays a k, or just dashes thru our ge, it's still a privilege . . . left Monday morn for her e i' Philly, then on to Mexi- I believe our town sort've ks three-fourths of her con- tour, and she takes a well- ed rest, if brief, after Cali- ia is checked off the list . . . only regret is next Febr. is rely too far away before she rns. Likeable Mariet- Canty, who we read entirely little of, has her mother vis- g her from NY, she arrived wk. Marietta just finished ole in "Lady In The Dark" ich was altered from a pale- e character (as I recall, now, m the stage version in NY) that of a tan tone character, ecially for her. She was at Sunday event with the Tony ls . . . Ed Birch is in town . Steve Lockett is a Frisco pyard worker . . . Gordon oques was in town over the tend from Oakland. Dr. Bun- Bundrant, from NY, was with m . . . Todd Duncan is far m well, and has his producers rried.

Maudelle, the native dancer- odel, will be presented in re- al at the Ass't League Play- use . . . The Goodloes, of Dee e, are expecting a young one . Bill Chase and Ollie Har- gton (he draws Bootsie) were e two NY newsmen who took eir physicals last week . . . awdy, I can see Bill in khaki w . . . Altho we just couldnt em to make good time Sunday m. and thereby missed poppin' . we hear Vye Aldridge's cof- e was a grand session, and folk d a gay time of it. Recalling ye from her more leisurely ys when a roomful of us would rink gobs of her Chinese tea by andlelight and listen to "Jo" ooper (why doesnt she give a cital?) sing softly, I'm sure her test hostess role was a good e . . . When Hattie McDaniel aves in May for her 10-wk tour, ll her snazzy hats will be made y Mildred Blount. Friday nite ast, Mildred had some fourteen f us out for supper at Medcalf's n No. Hollywood, and to view er miniature hats and the Van- erbilt veil (also miniature) which have been exhibited there for a month. Mildred, wearing beautiful orchid, looked more like herself than we've seen in a few seasons.

Luther Thompson, at Huachuca, probably may get his requested dismissal via the age limit angle . . . Catherine Dickerson, Earl's wife, arrives here from Chi in May . . . Fern Dowdy had a bad siege of illness last week and took to bed . . . The Cobbs-Bolden duo return to these parts within a few mos. to dedicate an organ . . . Billy and Helen Chappell Smith's baby has been a hospital patient . . . J. T. Gibson, away from here 10 years, is back in town . . . J. Robt. Smith finished his job with the U. S. S. S. and has settled down to stay here, as I predicted . . . Gladys Hampton, still buying furs back East. It must get monotonous, surely . . . Each time we hear "It's st One Of Those Things," we think of Jimmie Daniels singing it in NY . . . ah, me . . . They do say: if the Garner divorce suit listing was a surprise, wait til you read of the next one coming up! . . . Item: Omaha USO Center burned to the ground . . . Leroi Antoine has stored the drums for the duration, grabbed himself a button and checked in at Douglass. He and Bardui Ali, the bandleader in town from NY, could be brothers in appearance . . . Exie Boutte is in Indianapolis, whence her brother passed . . . Jeannette Donald Iles will christen her daughter Cornelia on Mother's Day . . . Lottie Anderson will accompany Hattie McDaniel on tour . . . It's Tommy Anderson, who left Pasadena to go East and work in "Native Son," who is road mgr. of the USO Camp Show "Keep Shufflin'."

Ceramic artist Geo. Farmer has forwarded word to his representative that I'm to have that magnificent (we think!) figure of the praying woman at the tree, and we're jumpin' straight up 'n' down! . . . The Curtis Smiths always welcome Dorothy Maynor's arrival for the trio are dear friends . . . They tell me I've heard no pianist til I hear one Gladys Childress, who was sensational at the piano at the AKA reception for Marian Anderson!! She's a Phi Beta Kappa, majoring in music at SC. Well, it's the unsung artists of whom I always want to hear and read, and I still wish they were pushed more by groups than established "names!" . . . Marion and Reggie Williams, still honeymoonin', were in town last wk from Oakland. Reggie went in the army Frid., Marion returned forlornly to Oakland.

Was that slated all-out press confab via Fox called off entirely? Topic to be discussed: W. G. Still's recent miletone marking . . . If some of our own celebs would be willing to cooperate on promptness and accuracy, etc., with our press, they wouldnt have any sortve beef to make about shortcomings of the beige boys! . . . We wish Dooley Wilson would wax "As Time Goes By" for the jukes . . . Flu bug bit Maxine Hudson and Juanita Williams, Carrie's eye-filling sis . . . What's become of the career of pianist Eugene Gash? . . .

Wonder if Caterina Jarboro will repeat that terrific concert she did in NY last April? Truly, Caterina (we dearly love "Katrushka," as we called her last summer) is the last of the divas, and does a genuinely glamorous job at it, what's more. I'll never forget Caterina, dependably late, sweeping regally into a room filled with impressionable souls, that great voice filling the place long before she appeared in the doorway. Delightfully caustic, delightfully unpredictable at all times, I personally find her a necessity to my appreciation of intimate friends . . . and can she pay pinochle? Yes, yes.

March calendar: Steve Lockett birthdays on the 9th; Dr. A. A. Foster on the 7th; the Nicholas twins (Annjebelle and Lester's girls) birthday on the 21st; Ann Moseley birthdays on the 29th; Pearl B. Smith, on the 31st; Ronnie Vaughn celebrates his third birthday sometime this month; Pvt. Mercer Ellington birthdays in March . . .

Freddy Banks was in town from Omaha for a few days, still carrying tell-tale signs of an approaching middle-age spread. Shame! . . . Lt. Eliz. "Kewpie" Hampton arrives Satd. for a hometown vacation . . . Jim Scott Jr. is stationed in Wyoming . . . Dunham dance troupe left Wed. for Frisco, Seattle, NYC, then Mexico and back to the West coast. They're under Hurok management, same as Marian Anderson. They'll dance in concert houses. Good luck, kids!

Lilac Girls Club Meets With Mrs. Bruce

Lilac Girls club met Feb. 12 at the home of Mrs. Hazel Bruce. All members were present as the president opened the meeting. The girls are always glad to get together.

After business, the meeting adjourned to meet again at the home of Mrs. Cage. Hostess Bruce served a real dinner that just hit the spot. Bridge was played. Mrs. Velda Peden won first prize; Mrs. Alice Cotton won second prize, and Mrs. Ella Cotton won third prize.

Alice Cotton is reporter.

Surrounded by her sorors, Marian Anderson, whose presence in town was climaxed with her annual Sunday appearance at Philharmonic, is shown at the closed reception given in her honor last Wednesday by Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. Held in the Blueberry Hill home of the Bowdoins', the affair was tastefully done and noticeably enjoyed. Miss Anderson was presented with an unusually finely-wrought piece of costume jewelry as a token of esteem by her hostesses. The honoree left Monday for the East.

Zeta Phi Beta sorority will observe their fifth annual presentation of the bronze plaque distinguishing the "Outstanding Negro Woman of Los Angeles in 1942" on March 15, at Ralphe Porter's place, 453 E. Adams blvd.

Nominee for the honor is Dr. Ruth Temple, asistant city health officer, the only woman in the state to hold such a position. Her commendable achievement during the last twelve month period is specifically stressed in the selection of her name by Greek letter and community organizations.

GOING AWAY PARTY . . . The Popular Matrons Social Club gave a surprise party for Mr. Fletcher Galloway who left recently for Utah to serve in Uncle Sam's Army. He is a former mail carrier.

SEE 'KEEP SHUFFLIN''

Since it began touring, the West Coast USO Camp Show unit, "Keep Shufflin'," has appeared in more than 73 camps. Under the supervision and direction of Ivan Harold Browning, the show is following a schedule which will take it to every Army camp in the Far West.

The cast consists of Hattie Noel, the 3 Shades of Rhythm, Ford, Harris and Jones, Lucius Smith and Viola Clay. Often Browning steps out of his manager role and does a number or two to keep things moving. The unit does not have a band of its own, but in each camp gets the aggregation which usually is stationed there. Larry Ford is show emcee.

Tommy Anderson, formerly of Pasadena, came out from New York, where he appeared in "Native Son," and did much radio work, to take over the job of company manager. Noble Sissle is director of all colored USO Camp Show units.

Eastside USO Canteen Gives Elaborate Tea

One of the prettiest and most elaborate teas of the season was given by the ladies of the Eastside USO Canteen last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chester S. Bleze.

Mrs. Ruth Kimbrough and Mrs. Randolph Moore poured tea. Mrs. May Oliver, Ethel Atkinson, Alice Wilson and Mrs. Capitola Green assisted. Mrs. Lena Wilson served at the door.

Mrs. Cora L. Flood and Mrs. Josephine Brown served at the registration table. A large basket of groceries was raffled off by the canteen chairman, Mrs. C. A. Robeson. A program was given, with several numbers from the Covan Kiddies and a vocal solo by Mrs. Thelma Pruitt, accompanied by Mrs. Ursula Adams.

We thank all who contributed to its success. The Eastside USO Canteen invites all who wish to join its organization, especially mothers who have sons in the armed forces. There are no joining fees and no dues. All are welcomed. Contact the canteen chairman, Mrs. C. A. Robeson, at RI-3014.

'WHISTLING IN DIXIE' NOW ON SCREEN AT UNITED ARTISTS

Red Skelton returns to the screen as "The Fox," the detective character he portrayed in "Whistling in the Dark" in another screamingly funny adventure film, "Whistling in Dixie," which is now playing at the United Artists theatre, downtown Los Angeles, 933 S. Broadway. Skelton and Ann Rutherford, who plays his sweetheart, find themselves enmeshed in a murder mystery in an old Southern town, and participate in one hilarious adventure after another.

Skelton was never funnier, and Miss Rutherford is her charming self. Miss Diana Lewis plays her supporting role skillfully. George Bancroft is an ideal menace as the crooked sheriff and Guy Kibbee plays a bibulous judge with comic results. Rags Ragland plays a double role as the gangster Sylvester and his brother, a chauffeur.

Mu-So-Lit Club Holds Monthly Meet

Mrs. E. Kay, of W. 20th street, was hostess for the monthly open meeting of the Mu-so-Lit club, Feb. 25.

The club voted to donate a shelf of First Aid supplies to the Eastside AWVS Canteen.

Discussion of current problems which affect the local home front was the feature of the social hour round table.

Guests were Mrs. J. V. Moore, and Mrs. O. Day.

Mrs. S. Morrell will be hostess on Mar. 11. All members are urged to attend.

Hostess Mrs. Kay served a delightful chicken gumbo lunch. Guests and members voted her the perfect hostess.

Mrs. Gladys Allen is president; Mrs. Laura Randall, secretary-reporter.

Grand Party Honors Pioneer on 73rd Birthday

Mrs. Louise Tems of 1617½ E. 43rd Street, pioneer resident of Los Angeles, Calif., was feted with a grand party honoring her seventy-third birthday, Tuesday, February 28, 1943, at the Taborian Hall, 1036 E. 41st Pl. Mrs. Tems wore an evening gown of baby blue silk, topped with a short black cape of chiffon velvet, and a corsage and hair dress of white gardenias.

The evening was spent at games, laughter and dancing. Highlight of the evening was spining the plate, one penny penalty if you failed to stop the plate before it ceased to spin. The proceeds will go to Star of the West Tabernacle No. 12, Los Angeles, to buy War Bonds. A beautiful poem, titled, "She's my mother", was rendered by Blanche M. Tems, daughter in-law of Mrs. Tems, with E. Meyers at the piano.

Delicious chicken and deviled ham salad with all the trimmings was served. Everyone had a delightful time. Mrs. Tems received many lovely gifts, messages and cards wishing her many happy returns of the day.

CORRECTION!

By way of correction, in the Anniversary Edition greetings from the Queen of the Angels Council No. 87, Knights of Peter Claver, the greetings should have read Queen of the Angels, etc., not Order of the Angels, etc.

We regret the error very much.

NEW YORKERS DON'T SEE RAPPED MGM FILM, 'TENNESSEE JOHNSON'

hat he objected to "black domination" of the South. He refuses remove the economic power of slavocracy, its vast plantations ,the basis of its whole rotten, corrupt political power. He called the Conventions in the Southern States at which the notorious "black codes" were adopted, measures which virtually reestablished slavery.

He pardoned the great Confederate leaders, politicians and militarists, scarcely had they put down their guns.

In his third annual message to Congress Johnson said. "The Negro have shown less capacity for government than any other race of people. No independent government of any form has been successful in their hands. On the contrary, wherever they have been left to their own devices they have shown a constant tendency to relapse into barbarism."

But these actions met the furious opposition of the American people, fresh from the revolutionary leadership of Abraham Lincoln.

Johnson's policies were denounced by the nation. He was saved from impeachment for high crimes by one vote in the U. S. Senate. Wherever he went across the land, black flags were hung out and signs reading "TRAITOR" hung across the streets. So despised was the treacherous administration of Andrew Johnson that he didn't dare run for re-election.

Leaders of the people against this White House Appeaser were Rep. Thaddeus Stevens, first to propose emancipation in Congress, Sen. Charles Sumner and Frederick Douglass.

Stevens especially achieved greatness in his unrelenting attack upon the pro-slavocrat policy of Johnson.

But what has M-G-M's film to say?

It says Andrew Johnson was terribly wronged. He was a great democrat. He wished only to unite the nation." He carried out Lincoln's policy (appeasement!) He was a friend of the Negroes, wanting races to "live together in peace."

And what of Thaddeus Stevens?

He was a cold, political boss. He was a fanatic with an incomprehensible hatred of slave-holders. Without actually saying it, the picture contends that he was a confirmed "nigger-lover."

There are long speeches about heeling the wounds of the nation —"as Lincoln would have"—thru pardoning the slavocrats and refusing to touch their plantations.

Bald-faced lies in the film are a letter from Abraham Lincoln to Johnson which was never written and a speech by Johnson to the Senate which was never delivered!

"Disfranchisment! Confiscation!" Johns shouts in alarm when these measures are proposed against the rebel leaders.

The film, however, makes no mention of his veto of the bills to enfranchise the Negro and those aimed at dividing the plantations among poor whites and ex-slaves.

The traitor president's unpopularity with the masses of people is glibly explained by hinting that Thaddeus Stevens has hired thugs to heckle Johnson wherever he speaks. Thus the condemnation of a whole nation becomes the closed-door plot of a single politician!

While Tennessee Johnson swoons at the thought of disfranchising rebels, he wants Negroes and whites to live "side-by-side" —only the Negroes must have no civil rights, no vote, no land.

Unity! Unity! He shouts. Unity with the betrayers of the nation. Unity with the slave-holders.

And here we must take our cue for today.

Let us then have unity with the fascist world, which, after all, is motivated by the same principle of enslavement as graced the ever-so-graceful Confederacy.

Let us today take no heed of those who would enfranchise the poor, the black, the despised. This would only result in 'race trouble.'

Let us today forgive and forget as soon as the war is over. Let us clasp Hitler and his cut-throats to our bosoms. Let us pardon them all.

Let us swoon at the thought of disfranchising Goebbels, Himmler, Goering, and Junker landowners. But, on the other hand, let there be no "race trouble" stirred over granting voting rights to the Jews, the citizens of occupied countries, the colonial peoples, Negroes in the South, etc.

AND BY ALL MEANS, let us refrain from taking the land or the factories or the banks from their fascist owners!

Let us have world unity! No ugly memories! Let us welcome the fascist ruling cliches of Italy, Germany and Japan once again in to the ever-loving arms of civilization.

That is the message which 'Tennessee Johnson' brings a nation at war for survival against those who would enslave and degrade all mankind!

FIFTEEN PERSONS are taking courses now in the Lincoln University (Mo.) School of Journalism this semester, a gain in enrollment of 200 percen t over the opening date a year ago, according to Mrs. Thelma Berlack Boozer, acting director. John Childress of Colorado Springs, Colo., the sixteenth enrollee and a journalism elective, was called to the Army this week. Some of the students took time out to pose for a picture this week on the steps of the journalism school building. They are (front row, left to right) Miss Emma Brady, of Kansas City, Mo.; Jimmy Stewart, of Evanston, Ill.; Miss Mary Jane Saunders, Waterloo, Iowa; Clarence M. Long jr, of New Rochelle, N. Y., all of whom are journalism majors, and Miss Edith Massey, of Kansas City, Mo., a journalism minor. On the back row row (left to right) are James Reeves, of St. Louis; Clyde M. Phillips jr., of Mexico, Mo.; Thomas Bonner and Miss Loretta E. Owens, both of St. Louis; Samuel Jones, Kansas City, Mo.; and Samuel Wright of New Bloomfield, Mo., all journalism electives. Other students taking journalism electives but not in the picture are Mrs. Emogene Gordon Bordeaux, Jefferson City, Mo.; Miss Odessa Porter, Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Miss Frances Mayfield and Earl Hogan, both of Kansas City, Mo. Miss Saunders, proof reader, is holding a copy of THE CLARION, student weekly newspaper supervised by the journalism school faculty.

Manufacturers went on record against the President of the United States as the greatest foe of the nation, ignoring entirely our war for survival. We must know that the DuPont millions, closely allied to the financial interests of Nazi Germany, openly announce treason to the cause of the Four Freedoms.

We must understand, also, that the fascist ruling clique of the National Association of Manufacturers does not represent the majority of American businessmen patriotically serving the cause that is common to us all.

Dupont and the like oppose this war because it would destroy that fascist system of world slavery which is their ideal of human society.

There are many ways to confuse our nation, to obstruct it, to bog it down in the titanic efforts required for victory. Important among these is the vicious policy of racial discrimination.

The drive for the extension of racial discrimination originates with the American traitors in high places.

The drive to end discrimination originates with the War Administration of the United States and with the common masses of people for whom victory is the first and only order of business.

Among the people, however, there are large deposits of race bigotry and hatred, planted there long ago by the very forces which now harvest that prejudice to weaken the all-out effort of our whole country in the moment of greatest challenge and clearest emergency.

The rout of that victory-delaying prejudice from the people is the historic mission of the labor movement today as part and parcel of its mammoth victory effort. It must become crystal clear to the leaders of labor that an offensive campaign against race bias in its own ranks must be waged and waged NOW.

The Negro people, pouring into industry by the thousands, must recognize their great ally, the American labor movement.

We see here the outlines of a great division of work. There is a task for the leadership of the Negro people. There is another task for the leadership of labor. The performance of both tasks is a patriotic duty.

As a Negro individual with some slight influence among my people, it has been my chore since the outbreak of this upheaval to tell my people the true, liberating nature of this war, to direct them, as best I can, from the pitfalls of defeatism, away from the paralyzing theory that this is "a white man's war," and toward the full, vigorous stream of American life battling for survival against those who would make of the world one vast plantation, with a handful of fascist masters and a million million slaves.

As a Negro speaking to my own people I have plainly and clearly denounced those among us who have confused this giant issue. I have struck with all my might that false theory that the Negro can fight his battle alone and isolated from the rest of America. When a famous leader of our people strangely told us that he did not "give a damn" about the nation's war effort. I said that he served our enemies and not our friends.

I have told the Negro people to join labor unions everywhere. Where there has been discrimination against Negroes within labor, I have urged a militant struggle against that discrimination, knowing it to be a dagger in the hands of labor's enemy and the nation's.

This has been my job. How well it has been performed, I cannot say. But I do know that the contribution of my people to victory is a source of pride and strength to all who will see it. That contribution will expand as my people become increasingly organized into the main ranks of the fighting labor movement.

But there is a great responsibility on the shoulders of white union leaders. Theirs is the job of destroying that alien propaganda of the Messers DuPont which poisons the minds of millions of American workers. They can accept no compromise with the Hitlerite concept of race superiority. They can only view such ideas as the "sabotage of the mind" against which the Vice-President warns our whole country.

It is not easy to tell a man that his dearest prejudices are, in effect, treason to his nation's cause. But no lesser argument can be effective, and no lesser argument is the truth.

There is a particularly deceptive preachment of pro-fascist America which has found its way into a number of the most powerful and conservative labor bodies. This is the creed of Jim-Crow. "Separate, but equal," is the two-faced legal term with which the Bourbons hide their hatred. There is no place for Jim Crow in the labor movement!

White workers must insist upon the full, unsegregated participation of their black brothers in every union everywhere. Separate unions, just as separate schools or street cars or railroad seats, are an excuse for inequality. The member of a Jim Crow union is less protected against management than is the member of a non-Jim-Crow union. And to the extent that any worker is unprotected, all other workers are also exposed. In its war setting, Jim-Crowism is used to limit the contribution of Negro workers to the nation's victory, to the victory that will secure the freedom and future of every citizen, white or black, in the country. Where Jim-Crow unions exist, Negroes are not upgraded, and war production is struck a blow in its most vital region.

Here is the reason today that white workers must fight vigorously the poison of union separatism. It is on the bed-rock of the necessities of victory that we must base our every argument. For no answer can stand up to this logic. The war is the most authoritative thing in America. The war demands full production. Jim-Crow unions prevent full production. THEY MUST GO!

I have written so far in a general manner. But words are of no importance if they do not indicate a line of practical action.

There are immediate tasks of white and Negro workers in Southern California today.

In the AFL Boilermakers union covering California Shipyards, Consolidated shipyards, and the Western Pipe and Steel Company, Negroes are railroaded into Jim-Crow unions. Here my general statements concerning the war hampering effect of these institutions are proved in the cold light of hard facts.

The Negro community and the Negro workers have joined to demand an end to the Jim-Crow union. There now devolves upon the white workers their end of the bargain. Prompt, vigorous support from them must be heard. There are Texans, Oakies and Arkies at the shipyards. It will not be easy to convince them. But victory in this war is not easy, either; and Americans have never deserted a fight because it is a hard one.

The Marine Machinists of the AFL REFUSE TO PERMIT THE EMPLOYMENT of trained Negro machinists in the shipyards even thought management extends them job opportunities. This is direct sabotage of the war effort and of the real interests of the working people.

At North American aircraft company, the firm authors a policy of segregation and discrimination which a CIO union has pledged to fight, but which has yet to fully mobilize its forces in this victory struggle.

At Lockheed aircraft company, an AFL Machinists union has stepped forward boldly to demand a change in the Machinists national Constitution barring Negro membership. But this union needs militant support.

Throughout our city, our whole vast Southland, the policies which originate in the high places of American fascism grapple with those of a people dedicated to victory in this people's war.

It is the mission of organized labor and the Negro people to decide the issue of this contest.

Our answer must come clear and decisive.

The Southland is at war and there is no room in our ranks for the Fifth Columnist race hate or the traitor Jim Crow.

Victory, Victory, is our single cry!

GANDHI'S FAST PUTS UNITED STATES ON SPOT IN INDIA CRISIS

ing as it does the majority of Indian national opinion, is convinced that only through the establishment of a national government will India be able to rally her entire strength and resources in her own defence and for the common cause of the United Nations. Congress does not stand alone in making this demand. That effective power should now vest in an Indian Central Government is the common demand of all parties. It is necessary, however, to understand:

1. What is meant by a National Government.
2. Whether it is practicable now.
3. What are the objections raised and whether they are valid.
4. What limitations would be asked by the British and to what extent these might be acceptable to the Congress.
5. How far Indian disunities or political difference in India makes this impossible.
6. The relation of such a National Government to the imperative needs of (a) India's defense; (b) effective participation in the world struggle.

A national government NOW is imperative. It is the only hopeful answer to the grave peril that threatens India and the cause of the United Nations in Asia.

Such differences as there are exist only in regard to the distribution of power as among different parties or groups in such a government. It may be argued that there are fundamental differences so far as the Moslem League is concerned about the future structure of India. But these differences do not bear on an interim arrangement. Congress has stated unequivocally that it does not seek power for itself and that it would come to the necessary arrangements if Britain transferred effective power.

The Colonial die-hard Tories, now as previously, are unwilling to transfer such power. Sir Stafford Cripps' initial statements and assurances to Congress leaders led them to believe that this position was at that time altered and that there was a common basis betwen the British and Indian sides which made possible compromise and an interim settlement. Congress negotiated, therefore, and strove patiently to reach a settlement until it discovered that the common basis either had not existed or did not exist any longer.

A NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

I. The demand for a national government asked for an interim settlement, or solution to the deadlock with all its limitations. The essentials of such a settlement are:

1. It must be composed of Indians who can inspire the confidence of the Indian people.
2. It must be in practice (irrespective of the position of Constitutional Law) a team and not a body of individuals, however eminent, picked by the Viceroy or the London Government.
3. It must be able to command the confidence of the majority of the elected members of the Central Legislature and obtain the cooperation of the provincial governments.
4. It must function as a unified government under conditions of collective responsibility.
5. It must have the status of an autonomous government in relation to other governments and states and must be able to exercise its functions in the department of foreign relations: in an Allied War Council and other such organizations.
6. A Victory or Governor-General, whose headship of the State would continue in the interim period of such a government without prejudice to the future status of India, and without the broad and sweeping powers now possessed by the British Viceroy.
7. The relation with the government of Indian States (the princes) would for the time being be through the Viceroy who would, in the new circumstances, exercise his new authority as the constitutional head of the Government of India in harmony with the new relations between him and the members of his Council.
8. The powers of veto and intervention which now vests in the Governor-General and his vast authority under the Act of 1935 shall not be used except as the head of a constitutional and popular government.

LIMITATIONS

II. The demand made by the Congress at all times was subject to the following:

a. Congress had been prepared at all times to accept the position that the Commander-in-Chief, General Wavell, should have full freedom in the conduct of the war on the operational and technical side.

b. During the negotiations Congress went further and agreed to include the Commander-in-Chief as minister of war in an Indian National Government.

c. The question of the further constitutional structure would have to be left to future agreement; the national government would give priority to the immediate questions of defense and organization of the people.

d. While certain legal changes are desirable and in the Congress view not subject to difficulties. Congress accepted Sir Stafford's view that they were impracticable at present. Such changes as are required would be minor amendments to the Constitution Act.

PRACTICABILITY

In the view of the Indian leaders there are no real obstacles to necessary major legislation if there is political agreement between Britain and India. But, while retaining their own views, they accepted Sir Stafford's contention that such agreement was imposible now.

Legislation required for creating a government of the type set out above is of a minor character. An example is an amendment which dispenses with the statutory obligation to include three members of the public services on the Viceroy's Council.

There are no practical obstacles in India to the setting up of a National Government. There would be difficulties, clashes, perhaps the aloofness of minor groups. Congress conceives this government as a coalition. No party can form or run a government on a popular basis unless it takes into account all views of any appreciable importance. In the Congress provinces (as in the non-Congress areas) all governments included Hindus, Moslems and others. In the present case it is not suggested that there should be a Congress government. Congress asked for power not for itself but for India as a whole so that the demands of the United Nations strategy could be met at ONCE and TOTALLY!

In practice the Governor-General would have to ask the leaders of the Congress to suggest a list of members of a government who in their turn would have to submit a team which would be sufficiently representative as indicated in the paragraph above. In any democratic system or indeed, on any practical basis, it would be their responsibility to solve the various problems that would arise.

This method of choice of a national government is essential to stability and UNITY of administration in this crisis through which all nations are passing. For this is a crisis which demands the MAXIMUM OF UNITY, not only among peoples, but among the nations waging war against the would-be world-enslavers.

The Governor-General, standing for different groups, were he to set up a coalition himself, acting as the central factor, would become primarily a political leader and not a constitutional head of government. Thus his actions would justifiably open up suspicious, increase difficulties and severely prejudice his capacity to use his good offices to ease situations if such should arise in the future.

An analogous development took place in the provinces in 1937. The Governors of the Provinces, acting under instructions from New Delhi and London, agreed to treat the ministers as a popular cabinet. After several months of obstinate insistance on the letter of the law of the Constitution of 1935, the use of the vast powers of the Governors was abandoned as Congress members refused to take office unless this was done.

The relations between the legislatures and the members of the Executive would automatically undergo transformation in a popular direction when the Viceregal powers of the Governor-General, of veto, intervention, certification of bills, restoration of grants, etc., are no longer in use.

This was the body structure of the Congress demand. It was based with full knowledge and aceptance of India's share of the responsibility of waging war against the Axis combination. Indian leadership, long anti-Fascist, felt that only a National Government formed now could establish unity in India. They felt that a National Government now would unify the forces of India with the forces of democracy and progress in the rest of the world. Instead of weakening India's defense (as is often argued), it would strengthen it. The Japanese or German invader would find a population physically armed as best it could, but armed well in the indispensable weapons of morale;--determination and purpose. The Indian people defending their freedom, their land, will offer unremitting resistance, will hurry the enemy, will scorch any material he might use, will starve him and destroy him on the soil he dares to invade.

You, my American friends, shoulder a great responsibility. Your capacity to outfit not only your own but all the Allied Nations is unquestionably great. I rejoice at the turn of the war in favor of the nited Nations. I look keenly to the launching of that Second Front spearhead of attack at the heart of Nazi-Fascism in Europe. But I feel strongly that you do not quite realize the importance of a free India at once. Freedom for India now, during the course of the war, is a military necessity, a great United Nations need. Indian manpower, hundreds of millions strong, are still immobilized. Vast essential war resources are only slightly utilized. Indian industry should be rapidly expanded to meet the crying needs of the United Nations in the South Pacific and the Mediterranean theatres of conflict.

India, my friends, could deliver the goods. India as a fighting ally would save hundreds of thousands of American lives—would shorten the war—would speed the victory!

You MUST raise your voices for A FREE INDIA NOW! you must help your leaders to establish a policy in Asia which would shatter the false conception of the enemy who uses India as an example of "United Nations insincerity." By urging freedom for India now you help to change the traditional Colonial Tory policy towards India, a policy which is out of keeping with the basic nature of the war. By helping to change this Colonial policy and to establish a new and correct policy you thus help to lay the foundation for the swiftest United Nations victory and the establishment of the post-war world of liberty and justice for all peoples everywhere.

being responsible "to a considerable extent" for a policy of job discrimination against Negroes and other minorities and for a policy of constant attack upon organized labor. He laid at their door great responsibility for snipping the win-the-war program of President Roosevelt.

Pointing to the fact that the poll-taxers were frequently elected by as few as two thousand votes in some districts against forty thousand in a half million votes in non-poll tax districts, he stated, "undemocratic elections make for undemocratic representation. Men elected in voting constituencies of two thousand voters can never be as responsive to the people of their districts as Congressmen and Senators elected from districts where there is no restriction on the franchise."

New York Church Helps Solve Ills of Worshippers

NEW YORK—There are few churches, if any, among Negroes, which have taken up labor's cudels to the degree or with the igor such as has the Abyssinian Baptist Church. Sparked by the nergy and guided by the forelight of its young, militant and ynamic pastor, the Rev. Dr. Adm Clayton Powell, Jr., Abyssnian has taken hold, in no unertain terms, of the problems hat must be met today by its vorshippers, and have championd thme the better that its people night find a wholesome living on arth while preparing for the ereafter.

In 1923 the congregation of 4,00 souls moved up to Harlem rom its smaller quarters in West 0th Street, there to begin a new ife and to bring a helping hand o a growing community. The lock was led by Dr. Adam Clayon Powell, sr., pastor emeritus. The 14,000 enrolled members of he church today have never reinquished the standard.

Besides this huge membership, he church boasts a federal credit nion worth $32,000, a cooperative church insurance carrying olicies valued at $75,000, a conumers' coperative society with 50 shareholders, and spends 50,000 anually to maintain this lant and program. Indeed there must be some formula for achievng so enviable a record.

"There is," declares Dr. Powell, jr., who by the way is the irst and only Negro member of he New York City Council. Simply the recognition of the act that the majority of Negro eople are workers rather than roducers. As workers they must et and hold more jobs; as nonroducers they must learn to hannel their income into projects which ultimately will inure o their benefit. This is broad, but we have narrowed it down to specifics, and are forging toward achievement."

The younger Powell became assistant to his father in 1931. About that time, too, he was director of home relief for Harlem. Municipally directed relief, then in its birth throes, had to cope with the accentuated problems of the Negro victims of the "last hired, first fired" policy of employers. When the satisfying of want assumed a condition of permanency, Rev. Powell surrendered his duties in preference for the church.

His solution was, along with a group of interested individuals, the establishment of the Greater New York Coordinating Committee for Employment (name since shortened). The primary objective was to compel employment of Negroes in the busy retail stores along 125th St. in the very midst of Harlem.

Members of the congregation of Abyssinian, with their pastor, wore picket signs before many of those stores demanding a share in the jobs. On August 7, 1938 the Coordinating Committee signed a contract with the merchants represented by the lily-white Uptown Chamber of Commerce assuring that at least one-third of the jobs in the stores covered would go to qualified Negroes. The contract was the first of its kind, indicated a new approach to the problem. Harlem realized that at last among them was a man to be dealt with.

Dr. Powell assumed the pastorate in October, 1937, a year before his fight begun, a fight that had its beginnig in local retail stores and wound up in 1941 with the cracking of the major bus line in New York which until then had barred Negroes in the shops or as operators.

The interim also saw the opening of new jobs at the World's Fair, in the Consolidated Edison Company, in leading bread companies, the distillery, brewing and soft-drink industry, the Philip Morris cigarette company and several other type concerns and chain stores in and out of the Harlem community. Positions ran to salesmen, retail clerks and office help of many sort. It has been estimated that the Committee's efforts, backed largely by the strength and membership of the church, has upped the payroll of the Negro people of New York an average of $1,000,000 annually, this on an expenditure of hardly more than $2,000.

Abyssinian's pastor early saw the wisdom of courting the support of labor unions, and very often the approach for broader opoprtunities for Negroes was through this medium.

His church insisted that he become a candidate for the City Council in 1941, as it gave him the nomination of the strong American Labor Party and the personal endorsement of every outstanding laor leader in New York.

To get around the high cost of living and the low rate of wages Abyssinians decided, with a measure of prompting of course, that they wanted some means of borrowing money cheaply and without undue red tape. Hence, the Federal Credit Union was inaugurated in December, 1940, and in its first year of activity deposits amounted to $40,000.

The cooperative church insurance, known as the Friendly Society, reorganized in 1935. The membership runs over a 1,000 persons now.

This is the sort of thing Dr. W. E. B. DuBois, author and lecturer, was speaking of when he declared that the church is the suitable nucleus for the establishment and development of the consumer movement in America. "But to buy one must earn," says Dr. Powell, "to earn one must work. Work--or production as it is called-is highly organized; and workers are organizing the better to work. Abyssinians see this and are following through on a program that conforms to this changed pattern. We here see labor on the march and we become a part of it to improve our own lot and the lot of our fellowmen."

Christian Science Servicemen's Center Opened

A Christian Science Servicemen's Center in the downtown district of Los Angeles was recently opened at 518 West Sixth St.

The new rooms provide a convenient place for servicemen and servicewomen to meet their friends, quarters for rest and study, and an information center. It was established as a joint activity of Christian Science churches of Los Angeles County to give helpful assistance to men and women in all branches of the armed forces.

It is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Man" is the Lesson Sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday. The Golden Text, chosen from Romans, reads: "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

A Bible citation from Matthew tells of a man who came, and kneeling down to Jesus, said: "Lord, have mercy on my son: for he is lunatick, and sore vexed: for ofttimes he falleth into the fire, and oft into the water. And I brought him to thy disciples, and they could not cure him. . . And," continues the account, "Jesus rebuked the devil; and he departed out of him: and the child was cured from that very hour. Then came the disciples to Jesus apart, and said, Why could not we cast him out? And Jesus said unto them, Because of your unbelief: for verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

In "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy writes: "When man is governed by God, the ever-present Mind who understands all things man knows that with God all things are possible. The only way to this living Truth, which heals the sick, is found in the Science of divine Mind as taught and demonstrated by Christ Jesus."

Baby Contest at Second AME Church Sunday

An impressive dedicatory service was witnessed at Second AME church as the pastor received on behalf of the church four brass candlelabras and pots of palms for the altar services of the church. The candlesticks were given by Miss Hazel Eason and the palms by Miss Irene Kursh.

Rev. J. B. Isaacs received 8 new members into the church.

The church will provide desserts of various kinds to the members and friends who attend next Sunday to be taken home and partake with their linners.

The twilight musicals under the direction of Miss Ella Mae Crosland are proving very attractive. Another pleasing treat awaits those who attend Sunday afternoon at 5:15 p. m.

The baby contest and postal action on Thursday evening gvie promise of being something unusual and worthwhile.

Rev. Isaacs will speak at the morning service on Sunday on "A New Vision of God." The young people's choir will render the music at the evening service.

Banquet for Rev. Caston One of Season's Highlights

Marking one of the most brilliant and well-attended affairs of its kind in the community in recent months, the recent testimonial banquet tended Rev. J. L. Caston was a highlight.

Held in the new Trinity Baptist church, 35th at Normandie, of which Rev. Caston is pastor, the affair was climaxed with the dramatic unveiling of a portrait in oils of the pastor. The occasion, semi-formal and distinctive with interior touches, was held in the main auditorium adjoining the church and was attended by civic figures prominent in the city. A well balanced proram was given, and impressively.

An art exhibit, which ran thru two weeks after the banquet date, was formally placed on display. The art workw, loaned by the Otis Institute, was under the supervision of Art Landry, who also did the painting of Rev. Caston. Novel touch were the place cards which were miniatures of the oil painting and carried the name of the chair holder.

Rev. Caston's response was timely and appreciative. He has been a heavy contributor to the progress of his church, and, in turn, to city betterment. He is actively identified with many movements.

30 Days Meeting On!

All things are ready; Come to the Feast."

The Soul Winning Mission, 2011 Hooper Ave., begins a 30-day Soul Winning Campaign, after a week of prayer meeting. Our preaching begins Sunday night, with Sister Monette Kirk making the first strike. She will be in charge the first week. We will have a different minister each week.

During our meeting we will be assisted by spirit filled ministers with a hunger for souls and we know that God is going to bless. We are not suffering a ration in preachers and our meeting will last indefinitely.

Elder G. F. Jones, Rev. McRoy, Rev. A. J. Bumpas and others will help us in this fight against sin.

An old fashioned revival is on its way and we ask the prayers and personal cooperation from the Christian family.

Come and bring someone with you. "He that Winneth Souls is wise."

Hattie M. Crooms, minister.

Candle Light Musical Hour at Second AME

The Young People of 2nd AME church, located at 313 E. 43rd St., are holding a series of musical programs with much success. These programs begin at 5 p. m. and last for about one hour. Each one seems better than the previous one, so much that the pastor, Rev. J. B. Isaac, is asking the young people to continue them indefinitely.

The program committee composed of Misses Ella Mae Crossland, Hazel Eason, Vivian Smith, Ruby Woods; Messrs. John Ivy, Edsell Webb, Edmond Smith, Bruce Johnson, invite you to be present at their next presentation, Sunday next at 5 in the afternoon. You will be pleasantly entertained. The date and location, Sunday afternoon, March 7, 213 E. 43rd street.

Santa Monica Jr. NAACP Has Discussion On Dress

At a well attended mass meeting Feb. 26, eight members of the Junior Council of the NAACP participated in a panel discussion on the proper dress and conduct of our young men and women working in defense plants.

Mrs. Marcus O. Tucker, president of the Santa Monica Branch, gave brief remarks on the importance of the subject. Mrs. Ida Gordon, second vice president and chairman of the Youth Committee also participated.

Those on the panel were Miss Helen Brentley, a clerk in the Santa Monica post office, who is the only woman representative of our group in the post office. She spoke on the necessity of making our best appearance at all times. Miss Marie Morgan emphasized the importance of wearing the proper clothes and keeping the hair in becoming style. Mrs. Mary Lee and Miss Ardelle Spaulding, both worker in defense plants, girls obeying the rules and restressed the need of our boys and fraining from getting angry without cause. Mrs. Lee gave an example of poor conduct on the part of one of our workers in her department.

Mr. Alvin Knowles, third vice president of the Branch, spoke on increasing our personal efficiency in whatever department we are in. He spoke of how some of our boys rush to ring the bell in the department where he was working before it was time to stop work. Mr. Robert Brown, a postal service employee, gave an interesting talk on our attitude toward our jobs. He said that we must put all we have into our work and strive to improve our shortcomings.

We feel that this was one of the most interesting and helpful programs ever given by the NAACP.

A. G. Allen is reporter for the NACP.

Associate Matrons Club in Regular Meet

The Associate Matron's club of 1943 OES, held its regular monthly meeting on Feb. 28 at the home of president Mrs. Freda Taft. At the request of the Grand Worthy Matron, we were given instructions on Jurisprudence by our Grand Chairman, Mrs. Willie Mae Cowan.

We had as special guests the Grand Associate Patron, Mr Henry Spears, with his wife, who is the Worthy Matron of Queen Vashti chapter.

At our March meeting all Associate Patrons, Worthy Matrons and Patrons are invited to be our guests. The home was decorated in the colors of the club, red and blue, and each was given a rosette in colors made by the president. After the meeting a lovely repast was served.

Mrs. Freda Taft, president; Mrs. LaGulia Shaw, advisor and Mrs. Louise V. Fulghum, secretary.

Neighborhood Plans New Opening

Preparations are now under way for the official opening of the Neighborhood church in the newly acquired property at San Pedro street and 47th place, which will take place after the next two weeks.

Since the purchase of the property several addiitons have been made and the work is now nearing completion which will make it one of the most attractive churches in the city. Sunday, Mar. 7, will be the beginning of the opening celebration which will last one week, during which time various churches of the city will join in the church program. Prof. George Garner, of international afme as a singer, and who has recently been ordained to the ministry, will give "The story of Deliverance" at the morning service. The new additions will be consecrated at 3 o'clock and Rev. Clayton D. Russell, dynamic pastor of the People's Independent Church of Christ, will deliver the opening sermon for the week's celebration at 6:30 p. m.

AWVS Has Vesper Hour

Southeast Unit AWVS held its first Vesper Hour service, Feb. 28, six 'til seven. Hon. Judge Benj. J. Scheinman was the principal speaker. He touched upon essentials of citizenship, unwarranted prejudice and cited examples of the imortant role Negroes are playing in the Los Angeles area.

Despite the absence of its director, Earl Pleasant, who was ill, the Mixed Chorus made a sensational debut. Thirteen year old Marjorie Day was magnificent as soloist. The 75th Chemical Quartet, led by Corp. Ross A. Davis, came in for its share of plaudits.

After the service, refreshments were served. Many donated to the event, among them being Mrs. Carrie Anderson, Mrs. Sadie L. Staley, who made delicious gingerbread.

The Vesper Hour will be held each second and fourth Sunday at the Center. On the intervening Sundays the service will be carried to various camps. The first trip will be to the Air Corps stationed at Victorville.

Last Friday night a group of 25 hostesses and Laura Slayton, Mmes. Maurine Browning, Gwendolyn Valentine and Marion Black as chaperones, went to Camp Temescal at Corona, where the 7th Reg. headquarters camp is located. A swing band, made up of Guard boys played nad gave a floor show as refreshments were served.

Mrs. Lena Kirk, chairman of the Workshop, with the help of the girls, are busy knitting helmets, scarfs and sweaters ofr servicemen. Also layettes for needy War Mothers. Classes meet every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday ,noon 'til 6 p. m.

Universal Evangelical Closes Revival

The Universal Evangelical church, Non-Denominational, 2503 S. Central avenue, pastored by Rev. Miss Anita L. Edmonds, closed a victorious revival last Sunday night. Rev. Mrs. Blanche Blake, noted CME evangelist, was the principal speaker. She preached to capacity audiences. Souls were converted and added to the church. The financial report of $73.85 was unusual, notwithstanding money was a secondary matter on the past of the evangelist and pastor.

This church shall always be a continuous revival center.

Beginning Sunday, March 7, the pastor will begin a series of sermons on the topic, "The Approaching Judgment in the Light of Prophecy." Sunday's sermon will deal with the subject, "The Condition of the World Today as Prophesied in the Bible."

Rev. Edmonds is an experienced evangelist as well as pastor, having traveled extensively six years before settling in California to complete her education. You will miss a great deal if you fail to hear these messages. Sunday night, the pastor will speak from the subject, "Lost and Restored."

40th Birthday For Calif. Bank

California Bank this week celebrates its fortieth anniversary.

Reviewing the history of the bank, Arch W. Anderson, president, recalled that the $200,000,000 financial institution of today was originally organized in 1903 as the American Savings Bank and opened for business at Second & Broadway. Two years later the bank opened a branch in Boyle Heights, the first branch bank in California, according to all available records. This branch exists today as the First and Cummings office and is one of 44 branch offices operated by California Bank in and around Los Angeles.

In 1920 the bank assumed its present name, California Bank. At that time deposits were $31,000,000. Since then the institution has continued to grow until today with deposits of $206,000,000, as shown in the year-end statement of condition, it ranks as America's 57th largest bank, Anderson revealed.

Predicting that Los Angeles will continue in its role as the nation's main gateway to the Orient, western Central America and the Antipodes, but on a greatly expanded basis following the war, Mr. Anderson said that "for forty years it has been the privilege of California Bank to assist in the development of Southern California and it is prepared to continue to play its part in financing the coming expansion of trade with all of the countries bordering the Pacific Ocean."

Willie Sampson- Dorothy Garrot Nuptials Announced

Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Sampson announce the marriage of their son, Willie James, to Dorothy M. Garrett, Wednesday last, in San Francisco. They will live in San Francisco, the bridegroom being employed there. Mrs. Rose Sampson and Miss Alma Perkins, members of the Fleur De Lis club, and popular amon the young social circle in Los Angeles, accompanied the bride to be to San Francisco. They met Mr. Sampson, and the party entrained for Reno where the couple was married.

The bride was beautifully dressed in a street dress of Alice blue and wore a corsage of orchids. She has been employed at the Hall of Records for the past year prior to her marriae. She is quite popular among the younger set.

GENE SORRAL, prominent Los Angeles business man and Grand Esquire of Elks, is recuperating at Hot Spring, Ark. His host of friends are hoping for his speedy recovery.

First Negro Recruiting Officer Here

The first Negro to serve as recruiting officer at the Naval Recruiting Station in the Federal Building, Petty Officer Randall S. Young, USN, reported for active duty in this area last Monday.

Permanently stationed at Santa Ana, Mr. Young is inducting race boys of 17 who have the permission of their parents, and men from 38 to 50. He stresses the little known fact that candidates for all types of service, other than messmen, are accepted. Mr. Young is a former Los Angeles police officer and has been in the service 8 years, having served six years and four months in World War I.

"He that gathereth in summer is a wise son: but he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame." — Proverbs 10:5.

Tennessee Johnson: Hitler Would Love This!

"Gone With The Wind" was a smash hit in Berlin.

The new MGM film, "Tennessee Johnson" would merit even greater enthusiasm from the Reich.

The picture grossly distorts American history to portray the worst appeaser in our national saga as a highminded democrat and to smear the great progressives of the Civil War period as "fanatics."

Andrew Johnson, successor to the martyred Abraham Lincoln, sold out the Civil War. He is the God-father of the Poll Tax South. It was he who blocked redistribution of the plantations to the former slaves and poor whites,--a reform still urgently necessary. It was he who voted every measure to grant civil rights to Negroes. It was he who plotted with the former slave masters to return them to political power only a few months after they had put down the arms with which their attempt to destroy democracy had been waged.

The MGM film portrays Johnson as a hero devoted to peaceful uniting of the nation.

Thaddeus Stevens, arch-foe of appeasement and defender of Lincoln and the Civil War, is shown as a ruthless political boss possessed of a pathological hatred for slave-holders (quite incomprehensible, too).

The poisonous message of "Tennessee Johnson" is in its application to the present world conflict. We are again engaged in a battle against the enslavement of mankind. Part of that struggle is the liberation of the Negro people, whose complete freedom was sabotaged after the Civil War in a vast plot which included the assasination of Lincoln, the appeasement of Johnson, the operation of the Ku Klux Klan, and the corruption of the whole Federal government.

Lincoln was bound and surrounded by Copperhead conspirators, and today Franklin Roosevelt is opposed by a whole legion of defeatists, appeasers and poll taxers, men frightened at the progressive nature of the war, hysterical at the Administration's pronouncement, "the world can no longer exist half slave and half free," and scared stiff at the potentialities of the President's Executive Order 8802. The completion of the great tasks of the Civil War lie before us,--enfranchisement of the South, integration of the Negro into American life, accomplishment of real national unity.

Discrediting one of the leading figures of the Reconstruction era,--Thaddeus Stevens,--becomes an unveiled attack against the progressive forces,--the anti-defeatist, win-the-war forces of today. "Tennessee Johnson" is a threat to the development of national unity, an insult to the Negro, aside from being a shocking corruption of history.

The film's plea on behalf of forgiving American slave-holders, yesterday's appeasement,--is readily translated into a plea forgiving today's slave-holders, a solemn, lying statement of the case for present appeasement.

An indication of the kind of democrat Stevens was and the extent of MGM's libel against him may be gained from a glance at the inscription on his grave in a Negro cemetery at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, written by himself:

I repose in this quiet and secluded spot
Not from any natural preference for solitude; But finding other cemeteries
Limited by charter rules as to race,
I have chosen this that I might illustrate in death
The principles which I advocated through a long life,
Equality of Man before his Creator.

FEPC Must Have Power

The conference which President Roosevelt called to study suggestions for the future of the Fair Employment Practice Committee has been held in Washington and its report hurried on to the chief executive.

This means that the new formation of the FEPC may be revealed daily.

Disclosures concerning the Conference which included over 20 white and Negro organizations, indicate that maximum unity was obtained around the demand for continuation of the sweeping hearings on job discrimination in the railroad industry which were underway when Paul V. McNutt's order cancelling them precipitated a national-crisis of stupendous proportions.

Unity for Production

That the whole Los Angeles community, Negro organizations, labor and religious bodies, civic and progressive groups, are achieving unity in the demand for the fullest war production in Los Angeles thru immediate removal of racial discrimination was indicated in the stirring words of a conference call issued by spokesmen for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Negro Victory Committee, the Urban League, the National Negro Congress and scores of other bodies this week.

The inspiring Conference Call, being issued today throughout Los Angeles read:

"Today vast armies sweat, bleed and die on the battlefields of the world to decide whether our nation shall survive a free republic or a vassal slave state. In Africa, on Guadalcanal, in India, China and soon on the blood drenched continent of Europe itself, America's people's army will fight for the "unconditional surrender" of the Axis. This is a struggle unmatched throughout history in ferocity, terror, death and destruction. Our boys,--the boys from your home and your neighbor's home, black and white,--these boys, fighting and dying all over this globe,--need ships and guns and tanks. They need them NOW. Their lives as soldiers, America's life as a nation, depends on that production which will give them the arms of victory. Every hand in our nation, every mind, every soul and thought must be directed to the fullest mobilization of all workers for production. Here is the military necessity upon which hinges the future of our children and our children's children.

"Los Angeles is one of the strategic production centers in the whole of the United Nations. Every ounce of manpower in this giant factory of freedom must be utilized for the supreme effort, for equipping the armies of MacArthur, Eisenhower and Doolittle all over the world.

"Because of this tremendous responsibility upon our community to produce for victory, we view with alarm the disruptive wedge of racial discrimination weakening our entire effort.

"The Los Angeles Railway Company refuses to hire and upgrade Negroes and 300 public vehicles are taken from our streets, 30,000 war workers are delayed daily on the street corners.

"North American, Douglass and Lockheed aircraft companies first refused to upgrade hundreds of qualified Negro workers and now discharge them on the slightest pretext, leaving fatal empty places on the assembly lines of victory.

"Unions at California ship yards, Consolidated ship yards and Western Pipe and Steel Company form Jim-Crow auxiliaries for Negroes, lowering morale, curtailing production and denying the government the use of skilled Negro workers.

"Trained Negro marine machinists are prevented from contributing to our country's war for survival because the International Association of Machinists Marine division will not permit Negro membership.

"These are all violations of the President's Executive Order 8802, barring discrimination on the basis of race, creed or color in war industries. They stab in the back the heroes of every fox-hole on Guadalcanal, of every tank corps on the deserts of North Africa.

"Because unity of our whole city is demanded to secure the fullest production from our great factories and shipyards, a Conference will be held Saturday, March 13, at Second Baptist church, 24th and Griffith Streets, to determine ways and means of strengthening war production through eliminating racial discrimination."

The Conference will rank as one of the most important gatherings in West Coast history, attracting, as it will, delegates from rank-and-file white and Negro organizations as well as the labor movement, the churches and the government.

It is still important that Negro organizations and individuals maintain a steady flow of letters and wires to Washington asking full implementation of the President's executive order 8802.

Fresh support of minority rights in industry was reflected last week in the report of the War Manpower Commission planning bureau which warned "the nation's manpower needs for 1943, cannot be met unless job discrimination against Negroes, women and other available workers is eliminated."

"Well, Bootsie, we ain't exactly callin' you no liar, But why should the Gov'ment ask you for advice when they got all them generals an' things right there in Washington?"

★ THE WORLD THIS WEEK

By ROBERT PATTERSON

FORCED BACK

The veteran German twenty-first and tenth panzer divisions forced our North African armies back to a 35-mile loss in three days, losing us our previous gain in Tunisia. Our armored units suffered severe losses in men and tanks. One reason given for our setback is the German Mark VI tank, so new that we haven't had a chance to capture one as yet and study its potentialities. During the action, General Eisenhower came close to capture, passing near a place where the Germans attacked just an hour and a half later. Officers at Allied Headquarters feel skeptical concerning the story of Rommel's injuries. Apparently he led the attack! Is our policy of non-interference with the politics of North Africa permitting fifth column activity that slows our procedure into Tunisia? The answer is anybody's guess.

MORE CHEERFUL

The largest convoy to reach Malta since the British captured Libya, steamed into that harbor last week with thousands of tons of food, munitions, gasoline—and, ladies underwear! The island rejoiced mightily. At the same time, across the Atlantic, four French warships steamed haltingly into a United States harbor for repairs. Vice Admiral Raymond Fenard, chief of the French naval mission to the United States, greeted Admiral Ingersoll, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Atlantic fleet, on board the Montcalm, giving the news that forty-two French warships, in addition to these four, soon will be fighting on the side of the United Nations. The ships are a clearly visible token of the French desire to fight beside us, whatever the nuances of politics.

MORE "GO" LESS "STOP"

The government made an effort last week to put more "go" and fewer "stop" signals in traffic, to save tires, gasoline and time. Joseph B. Eastman, Defense Transportation Director, asked all state and municipal authorities to adjust traffic control methods to keep pace "with changing conditions." And along the lines of more "go," were the orders of OPA to eliminate Ration Board control over recapping of passenger automobile tires with reclaimed rubber. The order goes into effect about Mar. 1. The source of the order warned, however, that motorists should not conclude that the rubber situation is better. The order is meant to conserve tires before they get worn below the reclaiming point. And speaking of more "Go," news comes from the American Trucking Association that a Victory pennant is available to all motor carriers. The pennants will bear the word "Emergency" and the official ODT sanction, set off by red, white, and blue. Attached to all trucks transporting U. S. wartime cargo, their purpose is to protect and speed truck traffic so indispensable now, especially to the farmer in his food-for-freedom crops.

HOME-FRONT

Tinned fish and tinned meats went under the freeze this week until meat is rationed—to prevent hoarding, but fresh and frozen fish were not included. The Nation's civilian economy tightens hour by hour. President Roosevelt offered an alternative to Congress concerning the limitation of incomes to $25,000, saying he would rescind the order if it would impose a "super tax" of 100 per cent on all net incomes over that amount. The voice of the people has been heard in this. A recent survey showed the majority did not favor the implications of income limitations.

REAL ESTATE

Since Pearl Harbor, Uncle Sam has become the biggest real estate operator in the world! His land and building business aggregates more than $250,000,000. Heading the government real estate brokerage business is Norman H. Littell, assistant attorney general in charge of the lands division. During the past year, his department took over either through outright purchase, or condemnation, approximately 12 million acres of land. Over 20 million acres must be acquired to meet the expanding needs for camps, maneuvre areas, training stations, dry docks and shipyards, bombing and artillery practice ranges. It used to take 15 days to consummate government appropriation of property—and that was a record. Now, less than a third that time accomplishes the same ends. Uncle Sam loads the red tape involved into an aeroplane and flies papers and signatures back and forth, if need be!

★ SPREADING JOY

By JOHN FOWLER

Here are some excerpts from the "Southern California Guide", dated Saturday, March 10th, 1894. Mrs. C. A. Alexander has been ill for some time. Mr. C. M. Baker will move his tonsorial parlor to San Pedro street. For first class furnished rooms call Mrs. Reed at 113 E. Third St. For cleaning and dyeing, see a Lipman, 243 E. First St.

Mrs. G. Scott of Los Angeles St. is quite ill. We are sorry to say that Mr. George Montgomery is on the sick list.

Our people who live in the vicinity of Seventh and San Julian Streets, have not failed to give O'Banon and Taberman a call when they desire anything in the grocery line.

Mr. and Mrs. McHenry was given a very pleasant reception, Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones of 211 San Pedro St.

Loueing and Hill the ruseling wood and coal dealers, 131 San Pedro st. handles the best coal and delivers to any part of the city, at a moments notice at 45c per hundred.

Oh! mama, did you know that the Johnson photo company have removed their galleries to 505 E. First Street, and still makes cobnits for 75 cents per dozen.

Mr. George Bright has opened a little Blue Front Cigar store on First and Los Angeles Streets.

Mr. Thomas Pillow purchased the Simpson Restaurant, at 119 San Pedro street where he will be pleased to see the old customers return and many new ones.

Mrs. H. B. Brown wishes to inform the general public as well as her old customers that she has opened her dressmaking parlor at 123 E. Fifth street, where she will be pleased to have them call.

The Second Baptist Church Choir entertainment was quite a success. Great credit is due Mrs. P. J. Spicer and Miss E. Hopkins for excellent management. The attractive features of the program was the recitation of Miss Cook, the solo by Mrs. Brown and the lightening art work of Prof Holland. "The Annual Sermon of the GUO of OF" the Southern California Guide continues. Last Sunday, church was crowded to its utmost capacity with the elite of the city to listen to the able discourse of Rev. S. W. Hawkins, whose eloquence held the large congregation in perfect appreciation for one hour and a half. The Reverends humor, kept the audience in more than one broad smile, while his pathos startled the sober thoughts of the philosophical.

THE LA FIZSTA CELEBRATION

This celebration promises to be a grand success, and as an attraction to bring visitors to Los Angeles, will be fully as important as the Mada Gras of New Orleans. The decorations of the allegorical floats will require some very artistic, as well as historic portraits. We understand that William Lemas, the scenic artist of the Burbank theatre is to have charge of the work. Now that the colored Americans have decided to take no active part in the second of May at the Mid-winter Fair, other than wish it good speed, let us take hold of the La Fiesta and make ourselves known. This we can do with credit and honor to ourselves at a small cost.

From the L. A. Express Feb. 4th, 1885.

"Old John Ballard, the gigantic colored pioneer, was in town today from his ranch in the Los Virginier, with a four-horse wagon load of turkeys. He reports the grain in that section as flourishing and able to do without rain until March.

From the L. A. Express, Nov. 22, 1893:

The United Republican Club has incorporated. The directors are Nathaniel Jones, Edward Johnson, James Slaughter, Al Tilton, John Harris, Chas. Oliver, J. O Banks, Louis Young, and Grant Jackson.

Coming back up to date again. Here comes the Old Sweethearts Parade, they are being led by Mr. and Mrs. L. Stewart of E. Santa Barbara Street and Fighth and Towne Ave. Church. My Congratulations.

His Visit to Berlin'

(An exclusive California Eagle Serial).

The California Eagle takes sincere pride in presenting the first public presentation of the mission fulfilled by America's number one youth leader, Charles Edwards on his "Assignment to Berlin". (What has gone on before)--Mr. Edwards recalled your memory to December, 1941, when war was declared. He now attempts to expose the facts of why? . . . He recalled his dramatic journey through Berlin, Germany between May, 1937 and September, 1939 . . . during which time he was granted a personal interview with Adolf Hitler . . . The purpose of his interview was to try and understand and explain to the World Christian Youth Conference the understanding and aspirations of the German Government, that they desired to know . . . He has told that "Mein Kampf", did not tell nearly al lof iHtlers aims . . . We continue Mr. Edwards' interview with his explanation of the pomp and ceremonies given to his going to meet the Chancelour . . . in the Reich Capitol.

I was received at the entrance by the Chief of the Nazi high command who was accompanied by a group of Nazi storm troopers. He greeted me with Heil Hitler! . . . naturally I returned the greeting with Heil Hitler! and a wave of the right hand above my head. (when in Rome do as the Romans do, when in Berlin you must do as the Germans say do)--so we continue. He was dressed in the traditional Nazi high command uniform with all the trimmings. We passed through the hall of columns into the great reception hall, and there stood officials high in the German government. I was thoroughly searched and asked to leave my brief case at the desk in the outter lobby, in a far corner of the room. To tell the truth this whole business of the reception ceremony rather startled me. These Germans it appeared, took themselves very seriously . . . by this time I was convinced that honors had to be accorded Hitler as to a great king, it was a bit too much for me. But I rather enjoyed it. The walls were hung with heavy fluttering curtains in reddish purple and light blue. As I learned later the colors of the curtains were supposed to symbolize the four elements out of which the world was made . . .

★ THE CASE OF WM. PICKENS

By ULYSSES S. KEY and DeVERNE LEE

Martin Dies and Dies-ed it again. This time it was Dean Wm. Pickens, salesman of American War Bonds, whose case he diesnosed. Upon the advice of Dr. Dies, Pickens has been placed in an isolation ward where he will stay until his contagion can be proven non-existent, or--to alleviate any undue suffering—he will be put mercifully out of commisison by the doctor's assistants. Dr. Dies reports that Pickens shows red spots on a black background, extreme symptoms of a noxious mental ailment which he has sought patriotically for the past 4 or 5 years to eliminate.

"As a result of his studies and findings, Dies scrupously divides American men into three classes, white, black (Negro), and red (Communist). Black American men, according to his theories, are abominable, and red Americans, an abomination. He holds that a white red man is non-existent, that there is hope for red whites, but that a red black is hopeless, dangerous, doomed. The unfortunate thing about this theory is that Dr. Dies himself suffers from a Black-Red phobia. He can always see black wherever it is and frequently sees red where it isn't. It may be that his fear of black goes back to a childhood when he learned to associate black with the night--of which he was terribly frightened. It is possible that some adult, in an effort to impress a youthful mind, explained to him that red was the color used to infuriate bulls so they would fight more fiercely and was therefore dangerous. That there are more scientific reasons for this phobia is true, but these will do since they are just about as consistent as are his justifications for branding William Pickens a Communist.

We are not quite sure just when in his program of fervent devotion to the cause of his race that Pickens began taking on a reddish hue. We do know that for years he campaigned the nation in the interest of enlarging membership in the NAACP. In the deeper South, he worked vigorously lifting his voice boldly to point out the incongruities of the Southern white man's political and economic pattern of dominance over the Negro. We remember a night three years ago in Vicksburg, Miss. when the Negro YMCA sponsored Pickens' appearance.

The spring weather was inclement. All day the clouds glowered and showered. That night was worse, but there was a sizeable crowd of Negroes with a sprinkling of whites there to listen to Pickens. We remember this vividly because in the middle of his speech, something went wrong with the electricity and the Y building was blinked into darkness--indeed for some 15 minutes the entire city was without electric light. Pickens kept right on with his analysis, cutting through the layers of exploitation, lynch-rule, and superior-ignorance with his own light of truth and so envisioning the real situation that several of the colored folks chimed out encouragingly to assist him and all of the whites shifted guiltily in their seats. At times flashes of lightning revealed Pickens leaning on the rostrum stand or gasticulating expressively. Toward the end, the lights came on and Pickens humourously stated that he had "sweated" a couple of moments lest the black-out had been especially prepared for him. At the end of the meeting a couple of hundred dollars in membership were collected and some 50 odd new members enrolled on the NAACP roster.

This was in Mississippi and we know from papers and other sources that Pickens carried on through Texas, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia and all the other lowlands with this same zealous courage, not advising Negroes to revolutionize the South, but urging them to join with the progressive forces working for them. He made many friends for himself and the organization, numerous hostile enemies for himself. Concerning the difference in the viewpoints of the NAACP and Pickens, we must confess ignorance. We know that despite his having been ousted, Pickens still holds the respect of Negroes and those whites with whom he became acquainted. We know that they are all deeply and unquestionably aware of his devoted interest in all American people and their status in the American system. His approach and attitude to the race problems have been branded conciliatory and "tame"--even cowardly. How can a man be black and yellow and red at the same time?

When he left the NAACP, he started the job as promoter of sales of War Bonds among the Negro people. There is evidence that his efforts here show appreciably measurable results. Or cannot say that he is responsible for the sale of thus-and-so thousands of bonds. Neither can one give definite credit to any other salesman. It is the idea behind the bonds which makes them salable, and it has been Pickens' job to interpret the idea behind the buying of bonds to a people who now--more than at any other time--question that idea. Pickens has had to color his interpretation from his own background and to assert himself openly justifying by his work, not only his own belief in the idea-behind-the-buying-of-bonds, but also his contention that Negroes are as loyal in the support of this our corrupted democracy as are any other racial group.

Now he has been pronounced dangerously ill with the red-fever and has become somewhat unhappy a victim of a black-red phobia. His salary for selling bonds is tied up, His loyalty to his country is challenged. His devotion to the cause of his race is debased and belittled. And, were it not for the fact that this is a democracy, the scarlet colored stigma flung over Pickens might be increased to include many and all other Negroes—as indeed an attempt was made to partly do so. Martin Dies must indeed feel encouraged. What about the feelings of William Pickens?

Certainly, by this time, the probings and studies of a scientific mind should have revealed that fundamental facts of truth and right are indiscriminate of race, color, creed, or national origin. Certainly, any comparison devoid of Dies partiality, must show that there are converging lines where the basic truths of all political beliefs, theories of government, or religious traditions are one and the same. That is the secret of perpetuation of life, of beliefs, of theories and governments. That they all enter the world by the same biological processes, that they all breathe and eat and sleep to live, bleed red blood, and die is the basic truth-in-common with all nationalities. Beyond that they differ, nor are those differences indicative of their capabilities or potentialities. Theirs is the right to differ by virtue of the differences of the very climes in which they live, the obstacles they have to face and conquer.

We want Mr. Dies to search out those sharp, secret teeth which seek to nibble away the roots of our tree of liberty. But--we would suggest to him to take care lest he deport himself dubiously or ludicrously. To blindly feel the prongs of a pruning fork and exclaim loudly that here are teeth of an animal eating away our tree's roots simply because be's teeth and prongs are sharp is to appear misinformed, inept, even humourous. To do this among men who know sharp teeth and pruning forks is to reveal a grave unpreparedness for the job of nourishing the tree. It is to reveal a vast discrepancy of reasoning powers.

Mr. Dies must continue his work. His implications will give Negroes further opportunity to present their real selves, their true selves for examination and consideration. Then too, a fanaticism such as his draws unto it all of his ilk whose efforts have previously been expended in other channels. Labor-baiters from the unorganized South, vested interests of the anti-democratic all over the country, and those among the labor groups whose motives are sullied and at cross purposed with the democratic way, all champion him. Behind him around him they traipse and hover. We want to know them.

We see him and his followers in relation to the American way as a boil to the human body, corruptions, to be dealt with effectively and beneficially, must be drawn out. When the tiny indication of a boil appears, one puts on a poultice to accumulate all the filth to one spot. The body is benefitted when it is let out. Let's see that Dr. Dies and supporters have continued control of their power. Let's encourage them. The more William Pickens' they isolate, the more accountable will be the story of the Negro people and their love of and devotion to an unkind government. Let's watch the Dies impurities fret and blister and swell to a head. Like the worthwhile but painsome boil, they will eventually burst.

Dies is a swell patriot. We like him . . . like the work he's doing—not for the credit he does us or himself, but for the opportunity he provides us to do ourselves credit. Incidentally, let's hurry to see Dean Pickens . . . to assure him that we know he's really not as sick as some would like us to believe.

AN EXCLUSIVE CALIFORNIA EAGLE SERIAL

"NATIVE SON" ★

From the book by
RICHARD WRIGHT

Having been bound over to the Grand Jury and indicted by it, having been arraigned and having pled not guilty to the charge of murder and been ordered to trial — all in less than a week, Bigger lay one sunless grey morning on his cot, staring vacantly at the black steel bars of the Cook County Jail.

Within an hour he would be taken to court where they would tell him if he was to live or die, and when. And with but a few minutes between him and the beginning of judgment, the obscure longing to possess the thing which Max had dimly evoked in him was still a motive. He felt he HAD to have it now. How could he face that court of white men without something to sustain him? Since that night when he had stood alone in his cell, feeling the high magic which Max's talk had given him, he was more than ever naked to the hot blasts of hate.

There were moments when he wished bitterly that he had not felt those possibilities, when he wished that he could go again behind his curtain. But that was impossible. He had been lured into the open, and trapped, twice trapped; trapped by being in jail for murder, and again trapped by being stripped of emotional resources to go to his death.

In an effort to recapture that high moment, he had tried to talk with Max, but Max was preoccupied, busy preparing his plea to the court to save his life. But Bigger wanted to save his OWN life. Yet he knew that the moment he tried to put his feelings into words, his tongue would not move. Many times, when alone after Max had left him, he wondered wistfully if there was not a set of words which he had in common with others, words which would evoke in others a sense of the same fire that smoldered in him.

He looked out upon the world and the people about him with a double vision: one vision pictured death, an image of him, alone, sitting strapped in the electric chair and waiting for the hot current to leap through his body; and the other vision pictured life, an image of himself standing amid throngs of men, lost in the welter of their lives with the hope of emerging again, different, unafraid. But so far only the certainty of death was his; only the unabating hate of the white faces could be seen; only the same dark cell, the long lonely hours, only the cold bars remained.

Had his will to believe in a new picture of the world made him act a fool and thoughtlessly pile horror upon horror? Was all his old hate a better defense than his agonized uncertainty? Was not an impossible hope betraying him to this end? On how many fronts could a man fight at once? Could he fight a battle within as well as without? Yet he felt that he could not fight the battle for his life without first winning the one raging within him.

His mother and Vera and Buddy had come to visit him again and again he had lied to them, telling them that he was praying, that he was at peace with the world and men. But that lie had only made him feel more shame for himself and more hate for them; it had hurt because he really yearned for that certainty of which his mother spoke and prayed, but he could not get it on the terms on which he felt he had to have it. After they had left, he told Max not to let them come again.

A few moments before the day, a guard came to his cell and left a paper.

"Your lawyer sent this," he said and left.

He unfolded the TRIBUNE and his eyes caught a headline: TROOPS GUARD NEGRO KILLER'S TRIAL. Troops? He bent forward and read: PROTECT RAPIST FROM MOB ACTION. He went down the column:

Fearing outbreaks of mob violence, Gov. H. M. O'Dorsey ordered out two regiments of the Illinois National Guard to eep public peace during the trial of Bigger Thomas, Negro rapist and killer, it was announced from Springfield, the capitol, this morning.

His eyes caught phrases: "sentiment against killer still rising," "public opinion demands death penalty," "fear uprising in Negro sector," and "city tense." Bigger sighed and stared into space. His lips hung open and he shook his head slowly. Was he not foolish in even listening when Max talked of saving his life? Was he not heightening the horror of his own end by straining after a flickering hope? Had not this voice of hate been sounding long before he was born; and would it not still sound long after he was dead?

He read again, catching phrases: "The black killer is fully aware that he is in danger of going to the electric chair," "spends most of his time reading newspaper accounts of his crime and eating luxurious meals sent to him by Communist friends," "killer not sociable or talkative," "Mayor lauds police for bravery," and "a vast mass of evidence assembled against killer."

Then:

In relation to the Negro's mental condition, Dr. Calvin H. Robinson, a psychiatric attache of the police department, declared: "There is no question but that Thomas is more alert mentally and more carey than we suspect. His attempt to blame the Communists for the murder and kidnap note and his staunch denial of having raped the white girl indicate that he may be hiding many other crimes."

Professional psychologists at University of Chicago pointed out this morning that white women have an unusual fascination for Negro men. "They think," said one of the professors who requested that his name not be mentioned in connection with the case, "that white women are more attractive than the women of their own race. They just can't help themselves."

It was said that Boris A. Max, the Negro's Communistic lawyer, will enter a plea of not guilty and try to free his client through a long drawn-out jury trial.

Bigger dropped the paper, stretched out upon the cot and closed his eyes. It was the same thing over and over again. What was the use of reading it?

"Bigger!"

Max was standing outside of the cell. The guard opened the door and Max walked in.

"Well, Bigger, how do you feel?"

"All right, I reckon," he mumbled.

"We're on our way to court."

Bigger rose and looked vacantly round the cell.

"Are you ready?"

"Yeah," Bigger sighed. "I reckon I am."

"Listen, son. Don't be nervous. Just take it easy."

"Will I be setting near you?"

"Sure. Right at the same table. I'll be there throughout the entire trial. So don't be scared."

A guard led him outside the door. The corridor was lined with policemen. It was silent. He was placed between two policemen and his wrists were shackled to theirs. Black and white faces peered at him from behind steel bars. He walked stiffly between the two policemen; ahead of him walked six more; and he heard many more walking in back. They led him to an elevator that took him to an underground passage. They walked through a long stretch of narrow tunnel; the sound of their feet echoed loudly in the stillness. They reached another elevator and rode up and walked along a hallway crowded with excited people and policemen. They passed a window and Bigger caught a quick glimpse of a vast crowd of people standing behind closely formed lines of khaki-clad troops. Yes, those were the troops and the mob the paper had spoken of.

He was taken into a room. Max led the way to a table. After the handcuffs were unlocked, Bigger sat, flanked by policemen. Softly Max laid his right hand upon Bigger's knee.

"We've got just a few minutes," Max said.

"Yeah," Bigger mumbled. His eyes were half-closed; his head leaned slightly to one side and his eyes looked beyond Max at some point in space.

"Here," Max said. "Straighten your tie."

Bigger tugged listlessly at the knot.

"Now, maybe you'll have to say something just once, see . . ."

"You mean in the courtroom?"

"Yes; but I'll . . ."

Biggers eyes widened with fear.

"Naw!"

"Now, listen, son . . ."

"But I don't want to say nothing."

"I'm trying to save your life . . ."

Bigger's nerves gave way and he spoke hysterically:

"They going to KILL me! You KNOW they going to kill me . . ."

"But you'll HAVE to, Bigger. Now, listen . . ."

"Can't you fix it so I won't have to say nothing?"

"It's only a word or two. When the judge asks how you want to plead, say guilty."

"Will I have to stand up?"

"Yes."

"I don't want to."

"Don't you realize I'm trying to save your life? Help me just this little bit . . ."

"I reckon I don't care. I reckon you can't save it."

"You mustn't feel that way . . ."

"I can't help it."

"Here's another thing. The court'll be full, see? Just go in and sit down. You'll be right by me. And let the judge see that you notice what's going on."

"I hope Ma won't be there."

"I asked her to come. I want the judge to see her," Max said.

"She'll feel bad."

"All of this is for you, Bigger."

"I reckon I ain't worth it."

"Well, this thing's bigger than you, son. In a certain sense, every Negro in America's on trial out there today."

"They going to kill me anyhow."

"Not if we fight. Not if I tell them how you've had to live."

A policeman walked over to Max, tapped him lightly on the shoulder, and said:

"The judge's waiting."

"All right," Max said. "Come on, Bigger. Let's go. Keep your chin up."

They stood and were surrounded by policemen. Bigger walked beside Max down a hallway and then through a door. He saw a huge room crowded with men and women. Then he saw a small knot of black faces, over to one side of the room, behind a railing. A deep buzzing of voices came to him. Two policemen pushed the people to one side, making a path for Max and Bigger. Bigger moved forward slowly, feeling Max's hand tugging at the sleeve of his coat. They reached the front of the room.

"Sit down," Max whispered.

As Bigger sat the lightning of silver bulbs flashed in his eyes; they were taking more pictures of him. He was so tense in mind and body that his lips trembled. He did not know what to do with his hands; he wanted to put them into his coat pockets; but that would take too much effort and would attract attention. He kept them lying on his knees, palms up. There was a long and painful wait. The voices behind him still buzzed. Pale yellow sunshine fell through high windows and slashed the air.

He looked about. Yes; there were his mother and brother and sister; they were staring at him. There were many of his old schoolmates. There was his teacher, two of them. And there was G. H. and Jack and Gus and Doc. Bigger lowered his eyes. These were the people to whom he had once boasted, acted tough; people whom he had once defied. Now they were watching him as he sat here. They would feel that they were right and he was wrong. The old, hot choking sensation came back to his stomach and throat. Why could they not just shoot him and get it over with? They were going to kill him anyhow, so why make him go through with this? He was startled by the sound of a deep, hollow voice booming and a banging on a wooden table.

"Everybody rise, please . . ."

Everybody stood up. Bigger felt Max's hand touching his arm and he rose and stood with Max. A man, draped in long black robes and with a dead-white face, came through a rear door and sat behind a high pulpit-like railing. That's the judge, Bigger thought, easing back into his seat.

"Hear ye, hear ye . . ." Bigger heard the hollow voice booming again. He caught snatches of phrases: ". . . this Honorable Branch of the Cook County Criminal Court . . . now in session . . . pursuant to adjournment . . . the Honorable Chief Justice Alvin C. Hanley, presiding . . ."

Bigger saw the judge look toward Buckley and then toward him and Max. Buckley rose and went to the foot of the railing; Max also rose and went forward. They talked a moment to the judge in low voices and then each went back to his seat. A man sitting just below the judge rose and began reading a long paper in a voice so thick and low that Bigger could only hear some of the words.

". . . indictment number 666-983 . . . the People of the State of Illinois vs. Bigger Thomas . . . The Grand Jurors chosen, selected and sworn in for the said County of Cook, present that Bigger Thomas did rape and inflict sexual injury upon the body . . . strangulation by hand . . . smother to death and dispose of the body by burning same in furnace . . . did with knife and hatchet sever head from body . . . said acts committed upon one Mary Dalton, and contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided, against the peace and dignity of the People of the State of Illinois . . ."

The man pronounced Bigger's name over and over again and Bigger felt that he was caught up in a vast but delicate machine whose wheels would whir no matter what was pitted against them. Over and over the man said that he had killed Mary and Bessie; that he had beheaded Mary; that he had battered Bessie with a brick; that he had raped both Mary and Bessie; that he had shoved Mary in the furnace; that he had thrown Bessie down the air-shaft and left her tofreeze to death; and that he had stayed on in the Dalton home when Mary's body was burning and had sent a kidnap note. When the man finished, a gasp of astonishment came from the court room and Bigger saw faces turning and looking in his direction. The judge rapped for order and asked:

"Is the defendant ready to enter a plea to this indictment?"

Max rose.

"Yes Your Honor. The defendant, Bigger Thomas, pleads guilty."

Immediately Bigger heard a loud commotion. He turned his head and saw several men pushing through the crowd toward the door. He knew that they were newspapermen. The judge rapped again for order. Max tried to continue speaking, but the judge stopped him.

"Just a minute, Mr. Max. We must have order!"

The room grew quiet.

"Your Honor," Max said, "after long and honest deliberation, I have determined to make a motion in this court to withdraw our plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty.

"The laws of this state allow the offering of evidence in mitigation of punishment, and I shall request, at such time as the Court deems best, that I be given the opportunity to offer evidence as to the mental and emotional attitude of this boy, to show the degree of responsibility he had in these crimes. Also, I want to offer evidence as to the youth of this boy. Further, I want to prevail upon this Court to consider this boy's plea of guilty as evidence mitigating his punishment . . ."

"Your Honor!" Buckley shouted.

"Allow me to finish," Max said.

Buckley came to the front of the room, his face red.

"You cannot plead that boy both guilty and insane," Buckley said. "If you claim Bigger Thomas is insane, the State will demand a jury trial . . ."

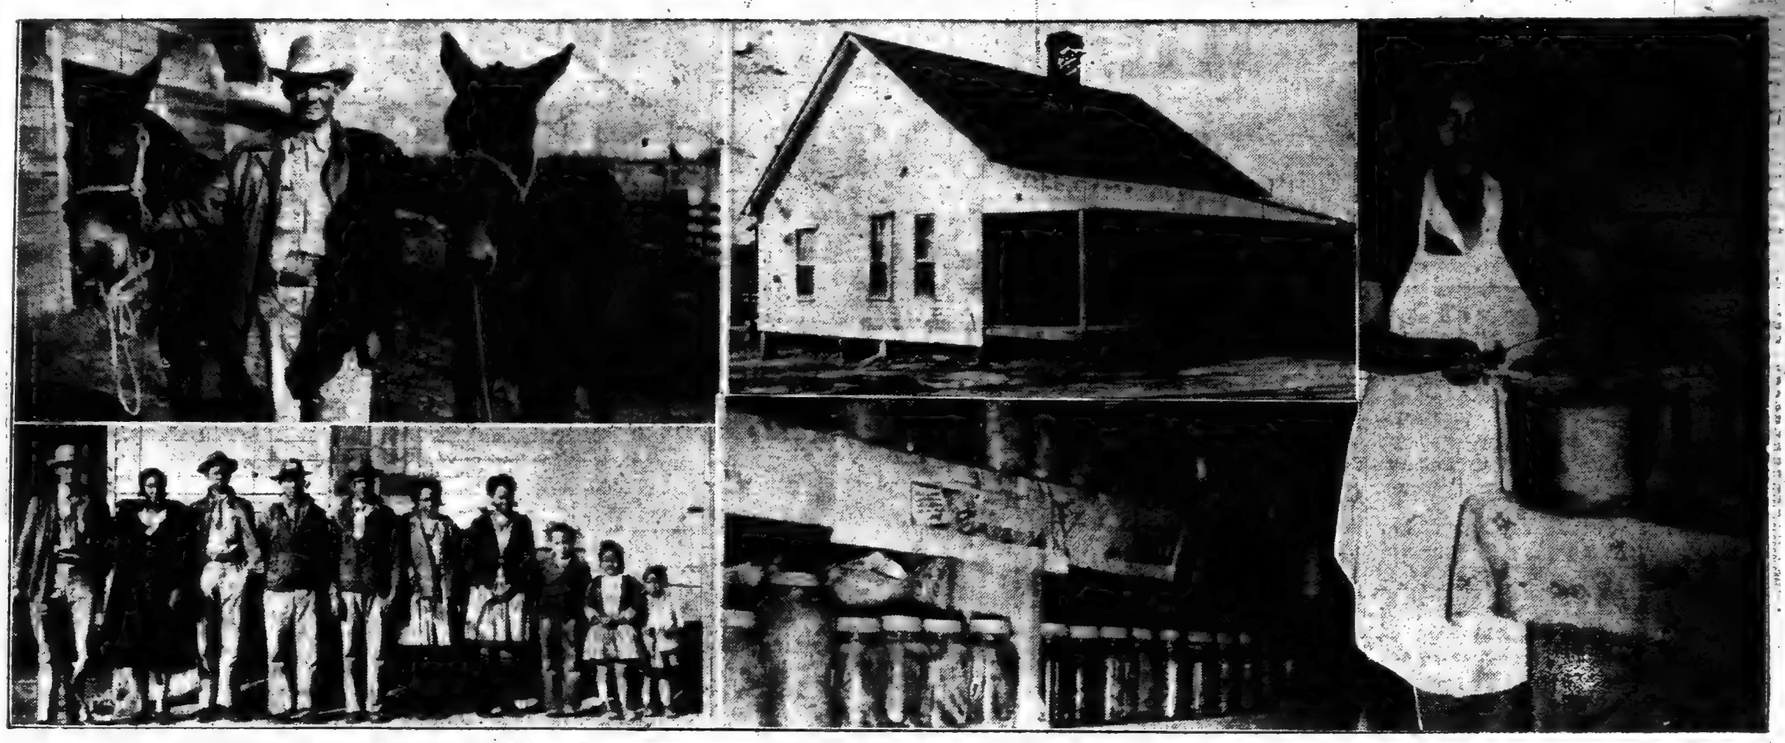
"Your Honor," Max said, "I do not claim that this boy is legally insane. I shall endeavor to show, through the discussion of evidence, the mental and emotional attitude of this boy and the degree of responsibility he had in these crimes."

"That's a defense of insanity!" Buckley shouted.

"I'm making no such defense," Max said.

"A man is either sane or insane," Buckley said.

"There are degrees of insanity," Max said. "The laws of this state permit the hearing of evidence to ascertain the degree of responsibility. And, also, the law permits the offering of evidence toward the mitigation of punishment."



"The State will submit witnesses and evidence to establish the legal sanity of the defendant," Buckley said.

There was a long argument which Bigger did not understand. The judge called both lawyers forward to the railing and they talked for over an hour. Finally, they went back to their seats and the judge looked toward Bigger and said:

"Bigger Thomas, will you rise?"

FIRST RACE FARMER PAYS OFF FSA FARM LOAN

Five years ago Roddie Pridgett, 41, was a sharecropper who was just "getting by". Today he owns his 120 acre farm in Rankin County, near Pelahatchie, Mississippi, having paid off his Farm Ownership Loan 36 years ahead of schedule. The father of nine children, Pridgett is the first Negro farmer in the United States to pay off his loan under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act which is administered by the Farm Security Administration of the Department of Agriculture. He was honored at special ceremonies held February 12 at Jackson College, Jackson, Miss., of which Dr. J. L. Reddix is president. The ceremonies highlighted the annual farmers' conference sponsored by the college.

Upper left photo shows Mr. Pridgett with two mule colts he has raised. He has two teams of workstock, a wagon, plows and other farm equipment. Not only does he have money in the bank to finance his 1943 operations but he has paid off all his debts. He will cooperate with the FSA Food-for FMreedom program by increasing his peanut and soybean acreage, poultry and eggs, hogs and dairy products. The Pridgetts sold an average of 20 dozen eggs a week last year.

Upper center photo is a view of the Pridgett home, a remodeled farm house on the place they bought with an FSA loan of $1,495. Cost of remodeling was $166.82. The farmer and his boys did all the work. (The house is in good repair, is neat and clean in appearance.)

Photo at extreme right shows Mrs. Lucile Pridgett with the pressure cooker she used to can more than 600 quarts of food last year. Before the Pridgetts became Farm Security borrowers she never canned more than 50 jars of food a year.

Lower left photo shows the family who are proud of their achievement. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Pridgett are four sons, Enos J., 15; Robert Lee and Earl Lee, 14 year old twins; Jack 7 and four girls whose ages are 13, 11, 6 and 3. Besides their healthy and well-clothed children the Pridgetts have much to show for their hard work. All of the children are still at home except the oldest daughter who is married.

In addition to the canned goods, part of which is shown in the lower center photo, the family has killed seven hogs. They also have 250 gallons of cane syrup, quantities of potatoes and peanuts, nine head of dairy stock, plenty of corn, hay and other feedstuffs. Excessive rains which threatened to ruin their crops in 1940 and '41 only caused the Pridgetts to work all the harder. Note result: they paid out their FSA loan 36 years ahead of schedule. State Finances Draw Warning from Warren

Urging "utmost caution and deliberation" in the approach to the problem of state finances, Governor Earl Warrent, speaking on "The State and the Taxpayer," at the 17th annual meeting of California Taxpayers' association, in Los Angeles, on Friday, Feb. 19, said:

"We can always find legitimate use for more money than we ever had to spend before, but we must keep in mind that the standards we set through expenditures now may add to our disappointments later on. When our revenues fall off, we will not only be obliged to face the decrease, but will have to try to measure up to the new standards acquired during the period of affluence.

"We must not forget that had it not been for the stimulant of war, our state would be in the red. There is still need for effecting economics in state government and I trust more can be done even though the major portion of the expenditure requirements are frozen in the constitution by direct action of the people.

"We must look ahead and keep in mind that the day will come when we have to finance our necessities with less money and curb all new habits of extravagance which are the outgrowth of present day affluence."

5th Community Health Meet Slated Sunday

The fifth annual Community Health Meeting under the auspices of the Southern California Medical, Dental and Pharmaceutical Association, the L. A. Tuberculosis and Health Association and the Citizens Advisory Committee, will be held Sunday, Mar. 7, at 3:30 in the auditorium of First AME Church.

Professional men and women, prominent in all sections of the country, will be guest speakers.

BEHIND THE SCENES WITH HARRY

By HARRY LEVETTE Theatrical Editor

NO TIME FOR PAST HISTORY this session, there's too much current history in the making too speedily, to take a look backward, and too little time to tell it in, for complete sentences. So here you are in abbreviated, bob-tailed dots and dashes.

MIGRATION OF MANY TOP MUSICIANS west made it better for the ones left behind in New York, all of them busy; same goes for performers according to recent letters from the big town. Cab Calloway had to stay over a week longer than planned to complete his 1943 sequence in Fox's "Stormy Weather", delay in completion of arrangements for recordings said to have been the cause. . . Pix was due to go into the can on March 2 . . . Cab also had to cancel last Sunday's date at the Elks for same reason . . . must hurry back to New York as soon as picture finished this week . . . Uncle Sam called two more well known musicians last Thursday; trombonist Allen Durham, and saxaphonist Roger Hurd; both in Les Hites' band . . . makes 17 men Les has lost since we entered the war . . . Bobby Johnson, clever, popular dancer, and trick rider, also inducted last Thursday, had to drop out of "Stormy Weather" before big final scene finished.

THE KING COLE TRIO, under contract to open in Omaha for 8 weeks at a leading nite spot, have been a nightly sensation at the 331 Club for a long time . . . Red Alle nand J. Higginbottom due in Wednesday of last week to replace them; apparently delayed started last Monday . . . Nadine Cole, clever dancer wife of leader Nat doing fine in "Stormy Weather" . . . Alton Redd and classy band at Cricket Club . . . Harlan Leonard playing special dates; has fine contralto vocalist, Myra Taylor, ass wing stylist . . . C. P. Johnson, spectacular band leader, and all-artist band, still at Vince Mar. on Figueroa . . . Monte Easter at the Harlem . . . Les Hite at the Casino . . . Paul Howard and his Quality Serenaders at Bill's Vienese Cafe, Eagle Rock . . . Ceele Burke, (you guessed it) still at Bal Taboran . . . Benny Carter winding up at Hollywood Cafe . . . Snub Mosely followed Benny Carter into Swing Club . . . Baron Morehead still holding 'em down in one of Pasadena's leading nite spots . . . Happy Johnson at Club Alabam.

MORE NEWS, HIDDEN THOUGHTS ETC.

BEST NEWS HEARD OVER RADIO in months, that Negro Army Air units soon to go into combat duty; that there are now 450,000 Negroes in armed forces on all fronts, 10,000 in Africa alone. It was on KHJ last Saturday night. Good material for a stage play or a movie scenario; our struggles to get a chance to fight, when there are many citizens of other nationalities dodging the draft . . . The Four Tones back at the Jade, each now, both singing, and playing an instrument, with Juan Panelle, as added fifth member at the piano . . . Don't forget Madam Sul-Te Wan's birthday on March 7, she lives at 446 E. Vernon Ave. . . . Bill Robinson has proved to be as good an actor as he is a dancer in "Stormy" . . . never "blows up" seldom makes a mistake in dialogue or muffs a line; only became peeved once; when unsuitable musical arrangements for his song was delaying action . . . Model chorus girl: Little Dorothy Williams, formerly of the Cotton Club, and many other leading nite spots and stage shows . . . deportment on movie sets, perfect; ever willing, obedient, hard-working and devoted to her family . . . Model male movie extra: Andrew Taylor, quiet, gentlemanly, punctual, cooperative, unobstusive, unboastful of excellent educational background . . . has given fine service as stand-in for Dooley Wilson during current role at Fox.

"SARATOGA TRUNK" NEXT BIG ALL-COLORED SEQUENCE TO HIT SCREEN

WITH ITS SCENES LAID IN the old French quarter of romantic old New Orleans, "Saratoga Trunk", when released months from now will be the next major picture with a large Negro sequence. Unfortunately they had to start shooting last week without finding a colored girl, in time who could speak the French language with the accent required by the dialogue director. Three weeks ago Helen Crozier, young New Orleans player, was given a two hour interview, for service as technical advisor, then given the book to study in regard to translating the English into the Creole dialect. But for the actual playing of the roles, white actresses had to be made up as colored to avoid delaying the picture, while making a nation-wide search for girls who had mastered the colloquial French.

Several groups of atmosphere players have already worked in street scenes, with a number of large calls to come later as the picture progresses. Gary Cooper and David Bergman are co-starred.

"This Is The Army" company went on location on Monday of last week, with Sergeant Joe Louis back from a furlough in order to salute the new boss of his household, his baby daughter, Jacqueline. Joe is playing an important role in the big screen play being filmed under supervision of the War Department.

Twentieth Century-Fox's "Stormy Weather" is one picture that really lives up to its title.

Shooting started January 21--the stormiest day of the year.

Since the important musical extravaganza has been in production it has weathered 14 days of wind and rain.

And the stormiest scene of all--the scene in which Cab Calloway and the Katherine Dunham dancers interpret the title piece, "Stormy Weather"--was held up for a half day last week because the rain noises outside the stage interfered with the rain and lightning effects the special effects department was producing inside!

LEVETTE TO DO SECTION IN 1943 HAND BOOK

Accepting the assignment from editor Florence Murray, theatrical editor Harry Levette, is preparing the motion picture industry section of the Negro Handbook, 1943 edition, published by the Wendley Mallet company of New York.

Levette was chosen because of his close connections with Hollywood for 16 years.

Following are the features that will be included in the motion picture section in the forthcoming edition of the Negro Handbook:

1. Negroes taking prominent roles in pictures produced by the white studios for 1943. (This will include the name of the actor, the name of the role he plays, the name of the picture and a brief description of his role, without critical comment, such as "the valet to the star, so and so, the friend of so and so, who does thus and so. Also, name of producer.

2. Titles of all-Negro films, and the producer. Negro taking leading roles in these films and a brief account of what the story is about.

3. Titles of Negro shorts and names of star performers, as "The Life of Dr. Carver," etc.

4. Names of all Negro producers; brief account of their founding, how long they have been in existence and what pictures they produced in 1942.

5. Accounts of controversies among Negroes and the film industry, such as "The Birth of a Nation," the fight against "Tennessee Johnson," and the results, if any. Any other pictures that have caused objections or controversies on Negro groups.

6 Outstanding events in the movie world, such as Walter White's conference with the officials of the industry on behalf of better roles for Negroes; the results, if any; Lena Horne's reception in Hollywood, if you think it outstanding.

7. Names of Negro actors who have taken outstanding parts in the war effort, such as selling bonds or playing or appearing at soldier camps.

8. Any outstanding work by Negro technicians or any technicians employed by the movie industry in the manufacturing of pictures.

Mardi Gras Fete Slated Mar. 9

A grand Mardi Gras Festival will be held Tuesday, Mar. 9, at Odd Fellows Hall, 102nd and Beach street, at 9 o'clock. The Parish group of St. Martin's Episcopal church is presenting the affair. A king and queen will be crowned. The public is invited to boost their favorite contestants.

'STAGE DOOR CANTEEN' PRAISED BY LEADERS

Shown above is Caleb Peterson, bass-baritone and screen actor, protege of Eddie (Rochester) Anderson, who is portraying the role of Johnny Jones, American Negro war hero, in the new picture "Stage Door Canteen," starring Paul Muni, Katherine Hepburn, Katherine Cornell, Helen Hayes, Jack Benny, Ethel Waters, and many others. In the picture, young Peterson is shown wearing the Distinguished Service Cross and being congratulated by William Terry, who is one of the leads in the picture. Also in the picture is Michael O'Rourke who starred with Errol Flynn in "Desperate Journey." The picture shows for the first time, on the American screen, a Negro wearing the Distinguished Service Cross.

Showing clearly the sentiment of outstanding Negro and white leaders of our country regarding the far-reaching effect such a motion picture will have upon raising public morale are the many letters of congratulation already sent to Mr. Sol Lesser, producer of Stage Door Canteen. Below are excerpts from a few of them:

"I am appreciative because of the opportunity it affords to make for a better understanding between the Negro and the white man."

Signed,

William F. Bleakley, former New York State Supreme Court Judge, and Republican nominee for the Governorship of the State of New York in 1936.

"I hope very much that I will have an opportunity to see "Stage Door Canteen."

Signed,

Homer A. Hale, former Governor of West Virginia.

"Mr. Peterson is a former student of this college. All of us here anticipate keenly his success in the role assigned to him in this picture."

Signed,

John W. Davis, President, West Virginia State College.

"Such roles strengthen national morale, contribute permanent gains in amicable race relations, and renew the faith of our allied partners.

Signed,

F. D. Patterson, President, Tuskegee Institute.

"You are aware, I know, what it may mean to the colored people of the United States to be able to have intelligent young men of our own race group appear in pictures, in roles which suggest the existence of intelligent and self-respecting persons of that group, able to bear responsibility and to be of constructive significance to their fellows. Whatever the moving picture industry is able to do in this direction will be greatly appreciated by the colored people and will, I believe, be of very helpful significance in the life of our nation."

Signed,

Mordecai W. Johnson, President Howard University.

MOST OF FILM STARRING ROBINSON SHEER MUSIC

Intended at first to have a large percentage of story, unfolding a cavalcade of the Negro in all fields of entertainment, and all varieties of music including the classics, "Stormy Weather," was finally decided upon by 20th Century Fox production officials as principally the life of Bill Robinson in a music. They also placed Bill in his first romantic role as rival to Babe Wallace, for the affections of Lena Horne.

How much music belongs in a musical?

Twentieth Century-Fox, using the costly "Stormy Weather" as a laboratory, believes it has settled the question once and for all.

The picture, purely a cavalcade of music entertainment starring Lena Horne, Bill Robinson, Cab Calloway, Fats Waller, The Shadrack Boys, The Nicholas Brothers, the Katherine Dunham Dancers and scores of other entertainment "greats," has a running time of 82 minutes—of which three-fourths is music.

This 75 per cent is devoted to Robinson in dance numbers, Lena Horne in dance and song, Calloway's, Waller's and the Tramp Band's music numbers, and assorted specialty acts set to music.

No musical ever made in Hollywood has devoted so much time to sheer music, but despite the proportions of the picture's ingredients the story proceeds solidly with no perceptible thinness.

This, acording to William LeBaron and director Andrew Stone is due to the happy circumstance that "Stormy Weather's" plot is based on the life story of Bill Robinson—the picture is an entertainer's life told in memorable songs and dances by which he advances his career.

Because of this circumstance, "Stormy Weather" boasts a total of 24 songs and musical numbers —far and away the largest number of big songs and dances ever recorded for one picture and a total which may settle the music vs. story controversy for all time.

SWEETHEARTS OF RHYTHM TOUR SOUTH

NEW ORLEANS, La.—International Sweethearts of Rhythm on their tour of the South are breaking all attendance records. In New Orleans Easter Sunday, the management already has stated a sell out. Ferguson Bros. Agency, Inc., which is handling their southern tour are getting numerous requests for their return on short notices, but their demand is so great they are unable to do so. At present all of the spots booked are anxiously waiting their arrival with sell out houses in advance.

LES HITE FEARS ARMY CALLS TO SCUTTLE BAND

With two more of his best musicians called for induction last week and more with their number up in the near future, Les Hite, one of the country's best and most popular band leaders, fears that he will not be able to keep his organization up to the fine standard that has made it nationally famous.

In fact, last week he was trying to cancel an engagement to open at the Trianon to follow Jan Garber there and to be followed by Louis Armstrong. Said the genial Les, "You see, that places me in a tough spot; I can't follow Garber into a spot like that with too many new men, for being so well known on the coast, they will be expecting the same perfection of the old Sebastian Cotton Club band. For the same reason I have to have an outfit as good as Ol' Satchmo will bring, to avoid unfavorable comparison." But the Trianon management at last reports refused to listen to pleas for cancellation of the engagement.

The two men lost last week, when called for induction, were Allen Durham, trombone player, and Roger Hurd, saxophonist. The rest of the band now winding up at the Casino, are Gerald Williams, Mickey Young, Walter Williams, and Jack Trainor, trumpets; John Pettigrew and "Harpo," formerly with Harlan Leonard, trombones; Floyd Turnman, Luke Jones, Kurt Bradford and "Stretch," formerly with Benny Carter, saxophones; Tucker on the drums, Charles Mingus, the bass, Gerald Wiggins, piano and Frank Pasley, guitar.

However, friends of Les are advising him not to get discouraged, because fate may replace the men he loses in the good cause of the war effort.

RUPERT HARRIS INVADES MIDWEST

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Rupert Harris and his orchestra flying the banner of Ferguson Bros. Agency, Inc., moved into Club Continental Springfield, for a four week stand. Harris' band is fast becoming quite a night club favorite wherever they play due to the versatility of the combo.

NEGRO YOUNGSTER CLICKS IN REPUBLIC'S "HIT PARADE OF 1943"

STARTING SATURDAY, Mar. 6, at the Lincoln theatre for four days will be "Seven Days Leave," which features the romantic team of Victor Mature and Lucille Ball. Six catchy tunes by Hollywood's foremost songsmiths, Jimmy McHugh and Frank Loesser, are worked into the story and the two big production numbers. A brilliant cast aids the two stars in the gay story. Gildersleeve, the radio character; Ginny Simms, Buddy Clark, Les Brown's band, Freddy Martin's band, Lyn, Royce and Vanya, famous dancers, and Court of Missing Heirs and Truth or Consequence (radio shows) are in the line-up.

ANDRIES DIENUM ONE OF FILM CITY'S YOUNGEST DIRECTORS

It is a far cry from the dykes and windmills, quaint customs and old world traditions of Holland to Hollywood, magic city of make-believe, but an interesting personality made it.

A little Dutch lad's rapt attention to the music of Fats Waller, Jim Europe and other great American orchestra leaders of the past two decades, today had brought him an assistant directorship in Hollywood.

Grown up now, and his memories of Holland far behind him, Andries Dienum, one of the youngest second assistant directors in the cinema city, won his assignment to 20th Century Fox's "Story Weather" almost solely on the basis of his encyclopedic knowledge of the careers of Cab Calloway, Fats Waller, Shelton Brooks and other music-producing personalities in the picture.

Born in Workun, Friesland, a political subdivision of Holland, Dienum, hearing the music of Waller and Europe over the radio, began to collect information on them as other children might collect stamps or autographs.

It was his enthusiasm for American music of this type which led him to America at the age of 16. He graduated from Stanford University, acquired an American wife, and, in the course of associating with producers of American music met Nunnally Johnson and Joris Ivens, fellow enthusiasts.

After he worked with Ivens for a while in the production of such documentary films as "Spanish Earth," and "Power of the Land," he applied to Johnson for a job. A few month ago, Johnson succeeded in getting him placed in 20th Century-Fox. When "Story Weather" went into production department at the production Dienum's hobby won him the post of second assistant director.

Courteous, but strictly business like in his dealings with the players, he is well liked by them, employers whose interests he also and has the full confidence of his protects. Andries will make good.

SNOOKUM RUSSELL KEEPS 'EM SWINGING

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Snookum Russell and his orchestra with the singing of Annie Laurie Page ad the featuring of Christine Chatman boogie-woogie pianist and blues singer finishes their six week contract at Stein's Buffet Bar Saturday, March 6. What was supposed to have been a two week engagement turned out to be six, with the management still asking for an extension, however, due to the popularity of this fine aggregation their managers, Ferguson Bros. Agency, Inc., has decided to send them on a tour that will route them into California behind the Terrell aggregation.

PHA TERRELL, ORK HOLLYWOOD BOUND

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Pha Terrell the "Voice of Romance" and his orchestra are really getting primed up for their coast tour. Managers and Bookers throughout the West are sending in request for the appearance in their cities for this great musical crew.

Terrell's popularity as a vocalist and his playing of his inimitable band makes this aggregation click wherever they appear. Ferguson Bros. Agency, Inc., personal managers of the attraction are having no difficulty in preparing their coast tour which starts Mar. 10th.

★DOWN IN FRONT
With J. CULLEN FENTRESS

War's-eye View of the Sports Scene

No sooner did the column query last week, "Had the Negro produced a great miler at last?" than the lad in question, New York U.'s freshman sensation, Frank Dixon, convince 14,000 in Madison Square Garden Saturday night that he rates that title. All he did was to win, but brilliantly, the National AAU mile championship in 4 minutes, 9.6 seconds, beating the defending champion, Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student . . .

For a while it looked as though the UCLA basketballers were going to stage one of those whirlwind finishes we associate with the school's gridiron teams. Bolstered by the Marin jaysee Negro center, Don Barksdale, the Uclans were right in the race for the coast conference southern division crown up to last week. But they dropped a 41-60 verdict to Stanford up north which eliminated them from championship consideration. Saturday night, however, they nosed out California in a 44-40 thriller with Barksdale hitting the hoops for a total of 17 digits and high point honors. Meeting USC's southren division champions this weekend the Bruins can still make their season a successful one . . .

For the past several weeks the column has been listening to Bill Corum and Don Dumphy broadcasting the boxing bouts from Madison Square Garden. When Wilson fought Robinson the duo's partiality to the latter was unmistakable. The same thing was apparent last week when Cleo Shans put up a losing battle against the Canadian, Dreco. Boys, what can the matter be? . . .

On the local fistic front, Cecil Hudson, the magnificently conditioned welterweight of Gladstone Bell's, hit the win column at Hollywood Legion stadium with a convincing win over Jimmy McDaniels, the Watts Irishman who had given Hank Armstrong his toughest comeback battle. Boxing well, Hudson showed he could work as well as McDaniels on the inside. An Armstrong-Hudson battle should be a classic . . .

Litte Harold Dade made a game stand against Pedro Ramires in the six-round semi on the same card. Dade dropped a close verdict . . .

Tuesday night, Mar. 16 at the Olympic aud. John Thomas will be out to redeem himself in the eyes of his supporters as he tangles with Slugger White, of Baltimore, Md., recognized in that state as lightweight champion. A John Thomas in good shape can take the measure of any lightweight in the world. He lost a split decision to Willie Joyce, NBA-recognized No. 2 lightweight behind Beau Jack, but his left hand wasn't as fit as the proverbial fiddle. Against the Slugger, who has no mean reputation, Thomas may again be the invincible lad of old. Slugger is new here, so we haven't seen him. Since that's the case, and knowing Thomas's ability, we'll stick with the home-grown product . . .

Popular Red Barker goes against Paul Guerrero over the 10-round route at Hollywood Friday night. It's one-half of a twin main event. The pair has staged thrillers in the past several months . . .

The Count Relaxes Between Scenes Of Republic's "Hit Parade Of 1943"

Count Basie and two of the boys in his band beat it out between scenes of "Hit Parade Of 1943," in which this popular orchestra leader and his expert group of jazz artists go to town. Other negro personalities featured in the Republic musical, which co-stars John Carroll and Susan Hayward, include Dorothy Dandridge, The Golden Gate Quartette, Pops and Louie, and Nicodemus.

★ SPEECH OF THE WEEK
By Alexander Beck

Eight score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth upon this Continent a New Nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the Principle of the inalienable right of men, in and to the enjoyment of Life, Property, Worship, Happiness, and Economic Security.

Now we are engaged in a great world conflict, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived can survive the terrible catastrophe that has encircled the world.

The enemy is powerful, aggressive, and ruthless. Nearly 5,000,000 persons have answered the last roll call and gone to the Great Beyond, from which no mortal ever returns. Other millions are wounded and many maimed for life, existing only in a living death. Nearly one-half the people of the world are under the iron heels of the Dictators, in bondage far worse than the Black Man, freed by the Great Emancipator.

Some day this fearful carnage of life and distruction of property must come to an end; this mass murder must write its finis. Then let men and women at the conference table determine that a victorious war shall not again be sacrificed in a sabotaged peace.

Men and women of vision and practical idealism shall formulate a plan for the outlawry of the war demons. Our great Republic must take its place among the other freedom loving people of the world in making certain the dead shall not have died in vain; that liberty loving people of the earth under God shall have a re-birth of Freedom and that Government of the People, by the People and for the People shall have its realization in the Golden Rule Principle of the man of Galilee.

Xavier U. Cagers on Way to SIAC Championship

By CHARLES L. DE LAY

NEW ORLEANS, La., Mar. 3.—Fresh from a hard-fought 46-45 over-time victory over the vaunted South Carolina State cagers of Orangeburg, the Florida A&M Rattlers of Tallahassee, Fla., waged two of the most brilliant basketball battles before bowing twice to the Xavier University Gold Rush of Louisiana here at Xavier stadium last week-end; scores were 40-43 and 39-38.

Prior to these two contests Florida and South Carolina State were in a two-way tie for second place in the current season's play standings of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic conference with three defeats each, and Xavier on the top rung of the ladder with only two losses.

CLIFTON SETS RECORD

On a recent six-game tour, Xavier defeated Tuskegee, 50-31; Benedict, 81-31; Morehouse, 46-45 and Alabama State, 44-24.

Xavier's Nathaniel "Sweetwater" Clifton set a new SIAC all-time scoring mark in the Benedict game, sinking 21 field goals for 42 points.

Joyce Whips Hank Armstrong

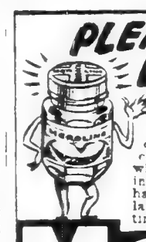
In one of the prize up-sets of the year, Willie Joyce, of Chicago, recognized by the NBA as the second best lightweight in the world, defeated Henry Armstrong, former triple crown champion, in ten blistering rounds last night at the Olympic auditorium.

Joyce used his bicycle to keep away from Armstrong's dangerous right-out the fight, and scoring repeatedly at long range. He used an effective left hand to consistently out point Armstrong.

Armstrong, recently released from a tonsillectomy, showed the effects of his vacation from the ring. He missed Joyce repeatedly, his timing being way off.

There were no knock downs. A sell out house seeing the thrilling battle.

ON THE TURF
By Geo. A. Ramsey



SAN DIEGO—Bay Meadows race track, the only course in California that enjoys the sport of kings opened Saturday to a goodly crowd. Although not as big as in former days when no restrictions were on, the fans sent nearly a quarter of a million dollars through the mutuel machines.

Oaklawn Park at Hot Springs, Ark., opens with a meeting of some of the best horses in the country on hand. About the best on the ground is Count Fleet, the great 3-year old that is the winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby.

It looks as if Valdina Orphan will have the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap at his mercy next Saturday, althoudgh he must pack 126 pounds.

Horses are now moving across the border for the opening of Caliente March 14, although they are still a little skeptical about the opening.

So long—George.

'Sugar' Whips Lamotta in Rematch

DETROIT, Mar. 3. (Special)—Ray "Sugar" Robinson, the uncrowned welterweight champion of the world, also proved himself to be one of the greatest ring generals of all times last Friday night in his brilliant successful defeat of Jake Lamotta here at the Olympia, thereby avenging his only loss in 132 pugilistic engagements.

Robinson stayed away from the rugged Lamotta and outboxed him decisively throughout the 10 stanzas.

In round 7, the charging Lamotta caught Ray with a stiff right uppercut to the chin and floored him. Wisely, Robinson took a count of 8 and was sufficiently undazed to continue that stanza brilliantly.

The Lamotta followers hoped that the 7th round in this bout would be like the same stanza in the previous bout and mark the turning point of the fight, but "Sugar" Ray came back in Round 8 and again outboxed his heavier opponent. He won the unanimous decision of the two judges and referee.

John Thomas Boxes 'The Slugger'

Olympic matchmaker Babe McCoy figures on two great weeks in a row today as he reviews last night's classic at the Grand avenue auditorium between Henry Armstrong and Willie Joyce and looks ahead to Tuesday night Mar. 16 and the John Thomas-Slugger White attraction.

White, from Baltimore, and recognized as lightweight kingpin of the world by Maryland, arrived last week.

Thomas is again in fine shape after losing a split decision to Willie Joyce at the Olympic several weeks ago. The Joyce-Thomas go was called one of the best fights seen here in years.

Both of Tuesday's principals boast stand-out records.

Matchmaker McCoy is lining up a strong supporting card for Tuesday's fisticuffs.

RACE PREJUDICE IN AMERICA

Time was, I was confined to one small spot,
And I was looked upon with hate and dread.
Now I have scattered everywhere
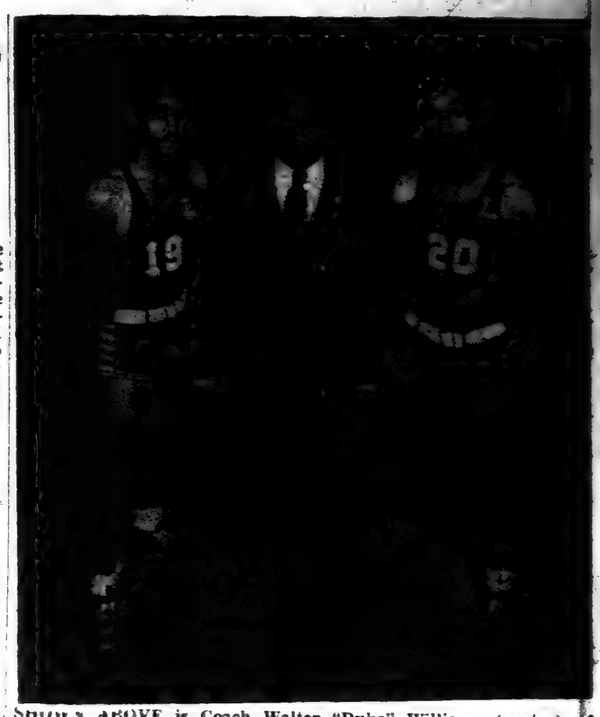
The crawling slimy worm I was
Has now become a giant cobra—seven headed.

CONFESSION

I could forget you
If I could forget your voice.
Or the way you stood tall
And breathed deeply
As you looked into my eyes.

I could forget you
If I could forget the snatches of song
That fell from your lips when you were happy.
Or the way you cursed softly when something annoyed you.
Or your hearty laughter over a well-told joke.

I could forget you
If I could forget the sound of your step
Quick and impatient on my walk.
Or if at times when I am alone
I did not feel your kiss upon my lips.
I believe I could forget you.
Yes, I am almost sure
I could forget you.



TRANSFORMATION

You came, my desert blossomed into bloom,
The dull cactus flamed with a vivid red.
The Yucca lifted high its fragile blooms
And all was beauty where before had spread
A barrenness, a lonely desert waste.

—RUBY BERKLEY GOODWIN.

Mrs. Mary Hammock Passes Here

Mrs. Mary Dean Hammock passed Tuesday morning at her home, 1543 E. 22nd street. Funeral services will be held Saturday, March 6, at one o'clock, from St. Paul Baptist church, 21st and Naomi. Rev. S. A. Williams is pastor.

Ben Johnson, Famed Dash Ace, Promoted to Corporal

CAMP STEWART, Ga.—Private Ben W. Johnson, of the 207th CA Battalion (AA), former world champion colored sprinter, has been promoted to corporal, it is announced today.

He was advanced to his new rank on the recommendation of his battery commander. His promotion was based on his attention to duties and his soldierly qualities.

Co-holder with Jesse Owens of world championship sprint records, Corporal Johnson ran against Metcalfe, Owens, Peacock, and many others while he was competing in big-time track competition.

Corporal Johnson was on the faculty of the Bordentown, N. J. State Manual Training School before enlisting Dec. 2, 1942. He attended Columbia University four years. His home address is 307 East Main St., Plymouth, Pa.

2 10-Rounders at H'wood Legion

Two 10-round bouts headline the fistic bill Friday night at Hollywood Legion stadium.

Matchmaker Charley MacDonald features Paul Guerrero versus Red Barker and George Freitas against Leonardo Lopez.

All four are the 118-pound challengers of champion Manuel Ortiz.

The Barker-Guerrero go is a rematch, Guerrero having won a close decision in the previous meeting which was over the six round route.

There is an old saw to the effect that the shoemaker must stick to his last—and rationing orders are putting teeth in the old saw. The cobblers around town tell me they are working ten to twelve hours a day. Folks seem to be afraid of a rationing order on repairs—which is not expected. Lots of people aren't using their heads over the footwear problem and are bombarding the poor shoemaker with discards that have been used for teething the dog. So the leather artists say take it easy—nobody's going to have to go barefoot unless they want to. The cobblers have to protect the soles of 130,000,000 Americans. That seems like a big feat, but they say it's only sew-sew.

Beautician Loses 2-Year Battle Against Cancer

The courageous fight waged by Mrs. Pearl B. Peach, 2180 West 36th street against the ravage of double-cancer, was ended by her death at the General Hospital February 22.

Mrs. Peach, despite failing health, had continued to operate her business, Pearl's Beauty Box, until June of last year, when she went to Salt Lake City, Utah for treatment in that city. Returning to Los Angeles on December 4th, the stricken woman entered the general hospital three days later, and remained there until her death.

BURIAL DELAYED

Last rites for Mrs. Peach were held at The People's Funeral Home in the Ivory Chapel Thursday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Clayton Russell officiating. Mrs. Peach was a long-time member of the Independent Church. Owing to the fact that her mother, Mrs. Fanny Hopkins, of San Antonio, Texas, was unable to arrive for the funeral, burial services were held over until Monday at which time the body was laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.

Tribute to the gallant fight which Mrs. Peach made against the dread disease with which she was afflicted was paid by her devoted friend, Mrs. B. F. Spivey, prominent Westside matron, who, in the absence of relatives, faithfully carried out her promise to take care of the expense of the last rites.

Tot, 3, Dies of Pneumonia During Night

Barbara Ann Beeman would have been three years old on March the 16th, but the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Telpher Beeman, of 1537 E. 55th street passed away during the night of February 26 while her parents, in a room close by, were unaware of the tragedy which had struck, until they found the child dead in her bed in the morning.

According to the coroner, death was due to bronchial pneumonia. Barbara Ann had been ill but a few days previous to her death.

Mr. and Mrs. Beeman were from Atlanta, Ga. and lived here for five years. Mr. Beeman was employed by the Union Pacific railroad.

Funeral services were held in the Ivory Chapel of The People's Funeral Home on Monday at 10 o'clock, with Bishop C. P. Jones, of Christ Temple officiating. Burial was at Evergreen cemetery.

Beautiful Young Matron's Death Ends Love Idyl

With the sudden death of beautiful Dorothy Dolores Jones, 23, on Feb. 16 a romance which terminated in her marriage to Wm. Jones, of Needles, Calif., less than a year ago, was brought to a bitter end.

Mrs. Jones, a noted beauty from Taylor, Texas, had but recently occupied a home at 3619 Adair St., which her husband had purchased. Her husband, chef for the Morrison Construction company of Rice, Calif., was earning an excellent salary, and the prospects of the newly-weds for a happy and prosperous life seemed unbounded.

Mr. Jones journeyed back and forth between this city and his job frequently to visit his lovely young bride. A few days after his most recent visit, during which his wife seemed well and happy, the distraught husband received the chilling news that Mrs. Jones was dead.

According to The People's Funeral Home, the body was shipped to Needles, Calif. on the 24th, for burial. Mrs. Jones father, McKinley Robinson is in the armed service at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

It is understood that an inquest into Mrs. Jones sudden death is pending.

FOR SILL, OKLA.—Pvt. Willie Wright, Battery B, 31st Battalion, Field Artillery Replacement Training Center at Fort Sill, hasn't as yet had a chance to take a crack at the Axis with a gun but he just finished bombarding the enemy with $9,202 worth—count 'em—of War Bonds. Converting all his assets into cash, Private Wright marched into his battery orderly room, planked down the money, and said he wanted to invest in a few bonds. Wright's is the largest single purchase of War Bonds yet recorded in the 31st Battalion, the Replacement Center's Negro training division. Inducted in the Army October 15, 1942, the affluent soldier hails from San Antonio, Texas.

L. A. Urban League Meet Set Mar. 21

Preparations are under way to mark the annual meeting of the Los Angeles Urban League on March 21st with an impressive series of events, it is announced by Floyd C. Covington, executive director.

Committee in charge of arrangements is headed by Mr. Howard G. Mayer, Director of Publicity, Columbia Pictures corporation, chairman; Dr. Ruth J. Temple, L. A. City Health Department; Sunflower, secretary of the League of Justice for the American Indian; Mr. J. Stanley Robson ,Counsellor, Bell High School, and Mr. John E. Hargrove, district chairman, Protective Order of Dining Car Waiters, Local 465, A. F. of L., and who for two years has been chairman of the successful Community Chest campaigns on the Eastside. The Urban League is the recipient of Chest funds.

The meeting on the 21st will concur with the national Vocational Opportunity Campaign, scheduled from March 14 to 21. One of the highlights of the campaign will be a coast-to-coast radio program on Saturday, Mar. 20th, in which the contribution of Negro women in local defense industries will be featured, Mr. Covington states.

RODEO CONGRESS, WESTERN FILM BLOCKED BY DRAFT

What would have thrown the spotlight on a little touched branch of entertainment, the Negro as a horseman, will probably have to take its place in the line of many other ventures that await until after the war. This was a wild west rodeo with colored cowboys in competition with other nationalities, which was planned by Bobby Johnson. Bobby, a well known dancer who learned trick riding as a sideline and Rochester, famous movie star, were to be featured riding his favorite horse "Mustard Greens," and other mounts of his were to be exhibited.

But last Thursday, the young dancer, who had organized a "Congress of Colored Horsemen," and had the promotion all arranged for staging at Wrigley Field, reported for induction into the armed forces. There are about 14 members of the horsemen's club, organized and held together by Bobby ,all of whom went in for trick riding, bronco busting and other feats of horsemanship. Besides there were more than a dozen girls, all fair riders, who were to have taken part in the rodeo.

But most important of all was the fact that the Sig Neufeld Productions, which features all-white westerns, became interested and expressed a willingness to film a picture showing that the days of the old west, colored cowboys were frequently a part of those stirring days. In a conference with the producer, he told Bobby and the EAGLE theatrical editor to bring him a story written to that effect, the only stipulation being that his three contract stars have he top roles. However, Johnson intends to go ahead with his plans after he helps lick the Axis.

Full program of the meeting will be published shortly, it is announced.

LOUIS JORDAN GOES INTO ARMY FRIDAY

NEW YORK, Mar. 3. (CNS)—It was formerly written that Louis Jordan, King of the Juke Boxes, was to be in the Army by the first of January. Thinking he was now a Private, I was a little surprised to find him and his Timpani Five at the Loews State theatre this week beating out "Five Guys Named Moe," which features each member of the band, for Broadway.

Backstage, the clarinet and saxophone playing maestro explained that the Army wanted him—only on Mrch 5. Therefore, they'll all play the Adams Theatre, Newark, N. J., and that'll probably be their last engagement together. So ends a great career—but just for the duration.

★ POST OFFICE FACTS & FIGURES

By PAUL HACKETT, Sr.

(Plead my cause, O Lord, with them that strive with me: fight against them that fight against me!)

We had hopes that for once all government organizations would get together and support a single bill. It seems though that the national executives of the AF of L have asked for a separate bill. In compliance to this request Senator Mead introduced a companion bill to S. 360 known as S.635 excluding all postal employees and including all other Government employees. Now that we have bill S. 360 in committee the supervisors and clerks say that $300 is not sufficient.

With all the opposition confronting us in Congress the human thing to do it seems would be to accept the $300. This is no time to make definite plans for post war days. Let us rather shape the instruments to work with against the day when we will need them.

Many of us accuse big business of using the war as an excuse to increase large fortunes and yet are not many of us trying to take advantage of this same situation in a small way. Every individual has the desire and should be able to maintain his home in certain standard. To do this there must be a balance equation of salaries. It is very unfortunate that there are such desparities of salaries in the Government service. Most employees have an exaggerated opinion of their services in comparison to a fellow worker in another classification. This attitude has served to defeat the purposes of post office workers in the past, and past experience seems to have taught them little.

For example clerks and carriers salaries graduate from $1700-$2100 and postal laborers from $1500-$1600. Special clerks salaries are from $2200, $2300, 2400. Special clerks $2500 and $2600. Postal laborers who do everything a clerk does but stick mail would receive $1800 and $1900.

The men who maintain the buildings start in at $1200 and if he can please his supervisors and foremen he will get a raise of $60 every eighteen months. After seven and a half years he will receive the top salary of $1500. To give his family some degree of comfort and educate his children he is forced to find a second job.

Try placing yourself in the position of a custodial laborer or station cleaner. Would you be satisfied trying to live on his salary? Get behind your senator and congressman and tell him that he needs more money. He would appreciate a $300 raise but $500 would even be better. Give your support to S360 we want the postal employees to receive a raise to, they deserve more for memorizing approximately 6000 streets and the stations which cover them.

White Man Rapes Race Girl, 18

Invading a district that is nearly all colored, a white man waylaid and brutally raped an 18-year old colored girl last week on a public street, making his escape before anyone could come to her aid. The victim, who reported the crime to police immediately afterward, was Miss Rose Evernone of 295 E. 50th street, but her attacker is unknown. However, she gave investigators a good description of him, and in the city-wide dragnet that was thrown out, he is expected to be captured shortly.

Miss Evernone was walking home about 11:30 p. m. in the 600 block on E. 56th street, when suddenly the rapist stepped out of the shadows behind her and seized her by the throat to prevent her screaming. Choking her, he threatened to kill her if she did not stop struggling or made an outcry. Being in a sparsely settled section of the street, he dragged her from the sidewalk, threw her to the ground and started to ravish her. However, becoming alarmed by an approaching pedestrian, he released her and fled.

Physicians at General hospital, where the girl was taken, bore out her testimony that she had been assaulted. She described her assailant as stocky in build, wearing glasses, dressed in a light shirt with sleeveless sweater and dark trousers.

If we find the job where we can be of use, we are hitched to the star of the world and move with it. —Richard Cabot

Non-Partisan Political Bloc Urged By Randolph

CHICAGO, Ill.,—Before the Oklahoma Negro Teachers Association's Convention in Oklahoma City, A. Philip Randolph, National Director of the March On Washington Movement and International President of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, proposed that the Negro people develop a powerful Non-Partisan Political Block, representing Negroes of al political faiths, embracing the major national Negro organizations, civic, religious, trade union, business, educational, fraternal, women's and youth groups in the country, which can talk turkey to the anti-Negro elements in the Congress.

Upwards of twenty millions of Negroes in America should have and can build a powerful non-Partisan Political Block comparable to the non-partisan political block of labor, recently formed by the AF of L, CIO, the Big Four and the Farmers' Union, and the Southern block, the Farmers' block and the block of the National Manufacturers' Association concluded Mr. Randolph.

COAST AWAITS ETTA MOTEN'S RETURN

As soon as the news was heard last week that the famous musical, "Porgy and Bess" company was heading here for an engagement at the Biltmore Theatre, interest became rife among the music lovers. But especially were they elated over the prospects of the return of Etta Moten in the new role of "Bess," which has thrilled the eastern audiences, but of which the coast has so far been deprived.

The appearance of the well-loved singer here will be like a homecoming, since it was here that she sprang into national screen fame when she was featured in "Flying Down to Rio," which made the studio that produced it sorry they had not given her screen credit. Following release of the picture, the production department had to answer many letters, asking "what is the name of that colored girl who sat in a window and sang as the parade went by?"

Miss Moten's last appearance here was more than two years ago in a recital at a local church.

South America was a responsive as the United States had been to the glamorous golden voiced singer, whose voice has been described by critics as being "ecstatically beautiful." Both public and press were lavish in their praise.
